The navy men need $125,000 from the state of Iowa to carry them through these emergency times in continuing a relief program that they have supported for the past 40 years out of their own funds. On account of the unprecedented navy personnel increase during the past few months and heavy casualties, the relief program was due to suffer without this outside help.

By each community doing its part the quota requested has been so distributed that the contributions are but tokens of our obligation to the men in this branch of the service

Most of the communities have accepted their small part in this effort and have either completed their quotas or anticipate making their amounts by the end of the month.

In all a total of about $720 has been reported in to the county committee, with some workers still to report in each place. The following is the partial report made Saturday night, giving quotas and amounts already turned in:

Klemme, quota $105, report $55; Goodell, quota $47, report $35, Kanawha quota $153, report $30, Corwith, quota $96, report $150, Britt, quota $3[illegible], no report, Woden, quota $61, report $64; Garner, quota $309, report $300; Crystal Lake, quota $60, report $60, Hayfield, quota $26, report $26

Those who wish to contribute to this worthy cause should send or hand their contribution to Ira Overholt, Chairman for Klemme.

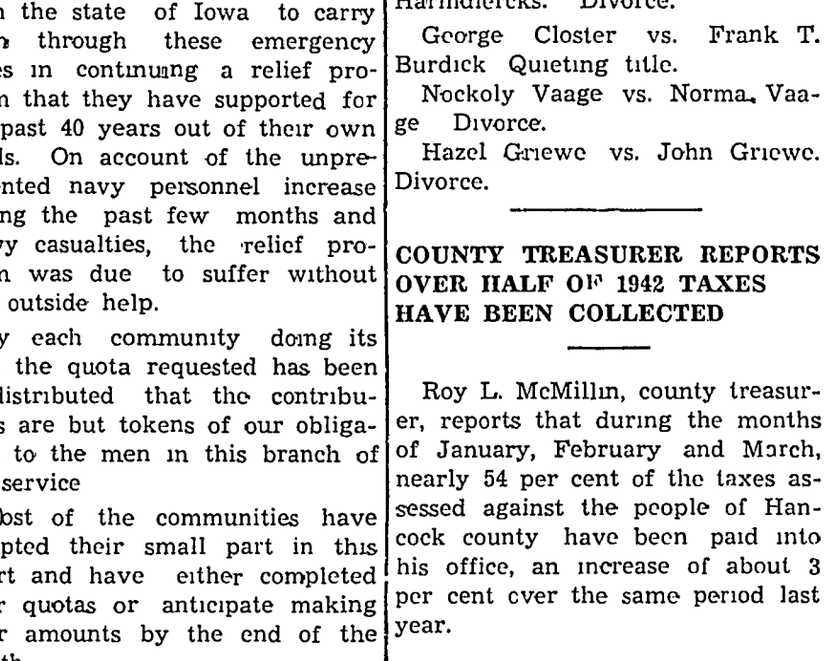
COUNTY TREASURER REPORTS OVER HALF OF 1942 TAXES HAVE BEEN COLLECTED

Roy L. McMillin, county treasurer, reports that during the months of January, February and March, nearly 54 per cent of the taxes assessed against the people of Hancock county have been paid into his office, an increase of about 3 per cent over the same period last year.

Taxes certified to his office for the year were $590,063.72, and up to the first of April there had been collected $317,958.17.

In addition to the above amount drainage taxes in the amount of $7,819 64 had also been paid in to the county treasurer's office.

IOWA TROUT SEASON OPENS MAY 1



German Brown Trout Caught Opening Week, 1941 In Northeast Iowa By H. F. "Heinie" Pfiester

The Iowa trout season opens at 5:00 A. M. May 1 and closes at 9:00 P. M. on September 30. Trout may be fished each day during the open season from one hour before sunrise to 9:00 P. M. war time. Daily catch limit is 8; possession limit, 16 Legal length for trout in Iowa is seven inches.

The State Conservation Commission anticipates the best trout fishing in 1942 since the inauguration of fish stocking programs more than 60 years ago. Streams in ten northeastern Iowa counties will receive stockings of more than 150,000 legal size trout, and a heavy carry-over of wild stock is shown by recent stream surveys. A folder showing the locations of all the Iowa trout streams may be secured by writing the State Conservation Commission, 10th & Mulberry, Des Moines.

CATFISH SEASON OPENS MAY 1

The catfish season opens in Iowa on the inland streams at 12:01 A. M. May 1 and remains open until midnight May 30th. It is closed May 31 and during the entire month of June, the month of heaviest spawning, reopening in all inland waters at 12:01 A. M. July 1, and closing again November 30. Catfishing in the lakes of Iowa is not open until July 1. The daily catch limit is 15, possession limit 30, and minimum length, 12 inches. The minnow and frog season is not open until May 12.

Impending Sugar Shortage Necessitates Government Rationing of U. S. Supply

Citizens Must Apply For Ration Books Early in May.

Sugar can't swim! Whether you take one lump or two, this is the primary reason why War Ration Book No. 1, to be issued by the Office of Price Administration, will cover sugar.

Sugar beet is cultivated in no less than 19 American states from Ohio to the Pacific coast. Cane sugar is produced in Florida and Louisiana. Yet, less than 29% of our sugar requirements were raised within the bounds of this country. More than 71% came to the United States from off-shore area.

Cuba is famed as the "sugar bowl" of the world. But in 1941 no more than one-third of our 7,989,000 ton deliveries came from that country.

Puerto Rico supplied us with about 16 per cent of our sugar last year. Hawaii and the Philippines each sent us nearly an equal percentage. The small balance came from the Virgin Islands, Peru and other miscellaneous and outlying sources.

War in the Pacific, Axis submarine action in Atlantic and Caribbean waters and necessarily curtailed shipping has interrupted the sugar supply column from these off-shore areas.

Register May 4, 5, 6 and 7.

So Mr. and Mrs America will register for ration books at their local elementary schools May 4, 5, 6 and 7. Industrial concerns, wholesalers, retailers, grocers, restaurants and hotels already have registered From April 28 until the second day after individual registration begins, all sugar sales have been suspended throughout the nation, OPA has announced.

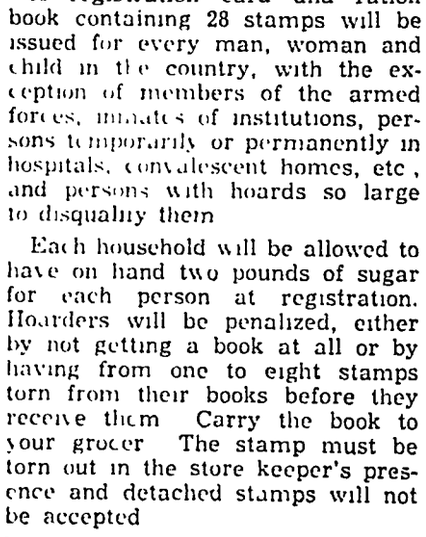
Services of approximately 1,400,000 registrars and facilities of some 245,000 elementary schools will be employed in the rationing procedure. In addition, work of the registrars will be supplemented by more than 7,500 local rationing boards, with a membership of some 23,000

A registration card and ration book containing 28 stamps will be issued for every man, woman and child in the country, with the exception of members of the armed forces, inmates of institutions, persons temporarily or permanently in hospitals, convalescent homes, etc, and persons with hoards so large to disqualify them

Each household will be allowed to have on hand two pounds of sugar for each person at registration. Hoarders will be penalized, either by not getting a book at all or by having from one to eight stamps torn from their books before they receive them Carry the book to your grocer The stamp must be torn out in the store keeper's presence and detached stamps will not be accepted

Stamps will be numbered for purchases in a specified period and when the time limit is reached the stamp will be voided In this manner no one can save—or hoard—stamps for use at a later date

One adult must register for each family unit, although the head of the family may register for all family members. Servants, lodgers and others who may live in a household, must register individually. Generally speaking, a family unit consists of persons related by blood or marriage and living and eating under the same roof.



She's a young 'n, all right. But she knows how to lop down the sugar cane. In her spare time she also likes to chew on some of the stalks, for they make good tasting "sugar sticks."

After the first registration, latecomers may obtain their ration books from local rationing boards after a two-week period following the May 4-7 registration Those away from home may register in the nearest elementary school if they know the number of their local rationing board.

Provisions for Preserving, Canning.

Special provisions will be made to provide householders with sugar for home preserving and canning, certain persons who have it for medicinal reasons, and for farmers, ranchers, etc., who customarily buy sugar in bulk for use over prolonged periods.

One thing is certain. Rationing is necessary, but a sugar shortage is all a matter of what country you live in. Prospective per capita United States consumption (including industrial use) may run as high as 77 pounds. Compare this with normal, peacetime per capita consumption in all other lands during the 1937-38 season It was less than 31 pounds per capita.

There are many drains upon America's sugar supplies. Cuba also must supply our Allies, countries which formerly drew heavily upon the Ukraine and Java — sources which are not now productively available to them. Russia, which counted on a good share of the 1942 Philippine crop, now must rely upon some Cuban supplies arriving by way of Archangel, if possible

In addition, a large amount of Cuban sugar will be required this year for the manufacture of high-test molasses from which alcohol can be made for war needs. In 1941 the equivalent of more than 1,300,000 tons of Cuban sugar was used for this purpose. A slightly larger amount may be needed for this use during 1942, particularly for explosives and for other war requirements.

Ah—watch it! Two's enough. Two will do instead of the usual three.

Here is the final step in the sugar industry before you see it on your table at home, or in the restaurant. This is one of the many storage centers throughout the nation where sugar is kept until it is rationed out.

Best posted sugar trade and Washington quarters recently added up the "tote" for the 1942 sugar barrel. The result was an estimate of some 5,515,000 short tons available from all points or roughly one-third less than the amount used last year

In 1941 our mainland sugar producers (beet and cane combined) managed to account for 2,348,000 short tons We can count on only 2,200,000 short tons from them this year It certainly is not that producers here lack price incentive—since the OPA ceiling level for raw sugar—3.74 cents per pound New York, cost and freight duty paid—is the most attractive that has prevailed since 1929.

Beet Sugar Shortage.

However, distribution of beet sugar from domestic areas will fall short of the 1941 figure as there are smaller inventories to draw on than existed a year ago. Sugar beet processing starts in the fall. While farmers will co-operate to the utmost with the U. S. department of agriculture "all-out" supply program, there are definite limitations on the quantity of new crop sugar that can be delivered to users before year-end

Admittedly, our domestic sugar supply arm may be improved materially in 1943 As an offset, however, the calculations have taken into account such non-recurring supply items as frozen stocks, as well as 500,000 tons estimated to come through from Hawaii. Effects of the war on shipping, labor and harvesting will make their imprint. Ordinarily, Hawaiian sugar is ground on a 24-hour per day basis. Because of blackouts, night operations are unlikely this year. Retention of all relatively clear shipping lanes during the period preliminary to the marshalling of our full, peak resources for the maximum offensive effort also is a controversial point. All these factors call for careful husbanding—but not hoarding—of sugar supplies

In 1941, some 5,641,000 tons of sugar used in this country came from off-shore areas. This year, possibly a maximum of 3,315,000 tons will show up from such points.

One must picture this sugar problem in terms of shipping and the competitive need for space on the boats for other materials, in either the raw or finished form.

When War Broke Out.

When the war broke out in September, 1939, there were 69,440,000 gross tons of world merchant shipping (vessels of 100 tons and over) At the end of 1939, vessels of 2,000 tons and over (representing most of the sea-going bottoms) totaled 51,988,000 gross tons

The United States total was 7,880,000 tons. However, only 2,094,000 tons of the American merchant marine were used for foreign commerce, the remainder working in coastal and intercoastal shipping and on the Great Lakes Some of these ships doubtless have been pressed into service on longer hauls, where possible. Furthermore, new merchant marine construction is perking up and, according to best estimates available, by the end of 1942 construction of new shipping is expected to proceed at the annual rate of nearly 2,500,000 gross tons

Translated into terms of sugar, shipping is a most important factor. The general freighter working the Cuban run averages some 4,000 tons and can carry about 4,000 tons of sugar as its cargo. It can make about nine trips per year. In other words, each average freighter can account for roughly 36,000 tons of sugar—providing it carries nothing else in its homeward bound cargo.

To carry the 1,285,000 tons indicated for Cuban shipments to the United States in raw sugar form, therefore, would require the services of 36 ships, of 144,000 tons total. Add about 120,000 tons in shipping tonnage needed to bring in the Puerto Rican crop and—without any other off-shore points—we would tie up more than 10 per cent of our entire ocean - hauling merchant marine (based on 1939 tonnage estimate) for sugar needs alone

This estimate is predicated on the theory that shipping losses thus far largely have offset the amount of new ships already launched for ocean-going hauls. Naturally,—as now seems likely—should the rate of shipbuilding increase faster than war tonnage losses, and if more vessels are taken from intercoastal and Great Lakes run onto longer hauls, then the shipping situation may very well show improvement. Actually, it probably has done so already to some extent.

Vitamins Won't Give You 'New Eyes for Your Old'

Warning against the false hope that a box of vitamin pills will provide "new eyes for old" was sounded recently by M. J Julian, president of the Better Vision institute The average person following normal eating habits, he says, obtains adequate amounts of vitamins for eye health, adding that dosage with vitamins usually is disappointing as a "cure all" for common visual defects

Vitamins are important to the photo-chemical action that takes place in the retina in the transformation of light impulses into nervous signals to the brain The amount of vitamins required by the retina, however, is extremely small.

If there are enough vitamins in the diet for the general well-being of the body, a person may rest assured that his eyes have an ample supply Even in night blindness, which has been widely publicized as a condition resulting from vitamin A deficiency

AIR CRASHES

With the tremendous war expansion of the army and navy air branches has come an accompanying frequency of press reports of crashes by fledgling pilots. These stories have brought a flood of worried inquiries to Washington authorities

Relatives of aviators have expressed concern over the number of these accidents and the adequacy of the training programs.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND has investigated both matters. For military reasons detailed figures cannot be disclosed. But the following generalizations can be published·

1. That the U. S. percentage of accidents is less than that of the British and appreciably under the best available German figures. The casualty rate among Nazi trainees is reported to be quite high due to limited training facilities, personnel and equipment.

2. While U. S. accidents have increased numerically because of the greatly increased number of men in training, the percentage of accidents has not increased. Today it is about the same as the ratio in 1940. This fact is of key importance, since it means there has been no deterioration in the basic quality of the army and navy air training systems despite speed-ups and other war factors.

3. The present training systems are far superior to those of the World war. Trainees are selected more carefully and given much more and better instruction before they get their coveted wings.

The question of allowing military air crashes to be reported has been a subject of inner circle debate for some time. Some authorities contend this is valuable information to the enemy, and cite the fact that Britain has banned such press stories.

The President, however, has not entirely agreed with this view. He is against publication of totals or percentages but sees no objection to press reports of individual mishaps. This is the policy being followed but the question is still under discussion.

SPRING AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Outside the White House fence march soldiers with fixed bayonets. But inside the tall, iron fence, defying the changes wrought by war, is the perennial transfiguration of spring

The grass is a soft green, and the beds of pansies and jonquils have burst into bloom in colorful brilliance The flowering shrubs and trees were never lovelier—the magnolias, japonica, and forsythia.

On the Pennsylvania avenue side, the magnolias are making a gorgeous showing, supported by the forsythia and japonica bushes, all at their best The same three faithfuls are on display near the fountain in the South garden. These are the two best show places in the White House grounds

The only scar in the scene is the construction work on the East grounds, where sewers and conduits are being laid for what is officially described as a "remodeling operation."

The colors seen best by the President from his desk are those of the jonquils and pansies in the rose garden just outside his office window

There is a touch of irony in the fact that some of the best color is Nipponese in origin—the Japanese magnolias, and the japonicas, which are otherwise known as Japanese quince.

HULL AND WINCHELL

Cordell Hull, dignified, austere secretary of state, sat gazing out over the Atlantic ocean recently from a Miami Beach cabana adjacent to the cabana of turbulent, Broadway news-sleuth Walter Winchell.

For two months Mr Hull has been absent from Washington; there has been speculation whether he would return So news-sleuth Winchell put the question bluntly to his cabana neighbor

"Mr. Secretary, are you going back to work?"

The secretary of state replied in the affirmative He said that after he had had sufficient rest in the South, he was going back to work.

Note—One of Winchell's friends reproached him for putting such a blunt question to Mr Hull. Replied Winchell. "I've gotta ask questions. That's my racket."

ELMER TWITCHELL OFF TO CO-ORDINATE

"I'm off to Washington," declared Elmer Twitchell in an unusually high state of excitement.

"What for?" we asked.

"I wanna be a co-ordinator," he replied eagerly.

"What do you wish to co-ordinate?" we hopefully asked him.

"I ain't particular," said Elmer. "Squat tag or leap frog would be up my alley. I was national open squat tag champion in 1928, and I have written several books on leap frog which are standard works everywhere."

"But I am no slouch at lariat throwing or sack racing, either," he resumed after a moment. "Nor at Indian club swinging, apple bobbing and blind man's buff."

"Are they co-ordinating such activities?" we asked.

"Oh, yes," snapped Elmer. "Yes indeed. They are co-ordinating everything. Haven't you been reading about the testimony before Senator Byrd's committee? And this is no minor co-ordination, it's an all-out co-ordination. We are the Arsenal of Co-ordination, from what I read."

"Do you think you'll land a job?" we asked.

"Why not? Everybody else has. A friend of mine who has been good at card tricks has been named National Co - ordinator of Parlor Games under the OCD and Wilbur Jones, an alligator wrestler by profession, has landed as National Co-ordinator of Alligator Wrestling."

"Really?"

"Not only that but an appropriation is being asked for $150,000 for alligator pools and $75,000 for alligators."

"Can you get alligators for that money, the kind that will really do any work?" we asked.

"Yes, alligators are as a class willing to sacrifice a little for the cause," explained Elmer.

"What does Mrs. Twitchell think of your working as a federal co-ordinator of rope tricks, squat tag playing and so forth?" we asked.

"Oh, she's too busy to care," he replied

"What's she doing these days?"

"She's a co-ordinator," he said.

"Of what?"

"Either magic lantern shows or eggplant culture, I am not sure which," said Mr. Twitchell. "She's doing well. Great for morale, she says"

"The whole Twitchell family is in on it," we observed.

"Yes indeed, Uncle Chidsey has been in from the start. He's U. S. Co-ordinator of Kite Flying at a pretty good salary. He is opening kite flying centers everywhere and thinks he may get a million dollars for kites. He says that nothing bolsters up a people's morale like running around with a kite on a string. And Grandpa Lem is co-ordinating, too. He's the one who never did amount to much at anything."

"What's he co-ordinating?"

"Top - spinning, I understand," snapped Elmer, grabbing a train.

Strawberry Mousse.
(Serves 6)

1½ cups crushed strawberries
1 cup thick cream, whipped
2 egg whites, well beaten
Pinch of salt
½ cup sugar

Combine sugar and crushed fruit and stir until sugar is dissolved. Fold sweetened fruit into the whipped cream. Fold salt into beaten egg whites and mix with fruit and cream. Pour into a refrigerator tray or mold for freezing until firm.

No round-up of strawberry recipes is complete without a sauce to crown that dish of ice-cream or that cool vanilla pudding which you made this morning. This one will really turn your simple dessert into a party-mannered one, so cherish it as you would an heirloom:

Strawberry Sauce.
1 quart strawberries
Powdered sugar to taste
Grated rind of one orange
Few drops of lime juice
4 tablespoons currant jelly
1 cup whipping cream

Stem and wash strawberries. Slice them and sweeten to taste with powdered sugar. Sprinkle grated rind and lime juice over berries, and stir in the currant jelly beaten with a fork. Beat the cream and fold it in carefully to the strawberry mixture. Serve over ice cream or cold pudding.

Then there's shortcake! Nothing is so good as slivered or crushed strawberries spooned between hot biscuits, slit and buttered:

Strawberry Shortcake.
(Serves 8)

2 cups flour
1 tablespoon sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
⅔ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons fat

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut fat into mixture, using two knives. Add milk gradually to make a soft dough. Toss on floured board, pat lightly to ¼-inch thickness. Cut with a biscuit cutter and bake on unbuttered pan in a hot (425-degree) oven for 12 minutes until a light, golden brown. Split, butter and fill with crushed or slivered, sweetened fruit. Replace top and spoon more fruit on top. Be sure that you let the sugar stand on the fruit for a half an hour or so before using.

(Serves 6)

Place 3 to 4 pounds of spareribs in a roasting pan. Pour over the following sauce and bake at 300 degrees for 2 to 3 hours, basting occasionally with the sauce.

Sauce: Combine ½ cup soy sauce, ¾ cup honey, 1 level teaspoon prepared mustard, and 1 finely chopped onion.

Stewed Tomatoes.
(Serves 6)

1 can tomatoes (No. 2 can)
1 tablespoon butter
Salt and pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
1 slice bread, cubed

Heat tomatoes, add salt, pepper, butter and sugar. Fold in cubed bread and as soon as all is heated thoroughly, serve immediately in small sauce dishes. Cracker crumbs may be used in place of bread crumbs.

Lynn Says:

Honey Hints: With increased use of honey in prospect you will want to learn to use it most economically. Honey is different chemically from sugar so follow all amounts given in recipes carefully for best results. They have been tested to give you the necessary correctness in cooking.

To measure honey, use a greased or a moist cup so it will pour out readily to the last drop. A greasing brush is an economical way to grease the cup. In measuring spoonfuls of honey, dip the spoon first into cooking oil, melted butter or liquid fat before dipping in honey.

Keep liquid honey in a warm place, about 75 degrees or over. Avoid damp places of storage. Comb honey is better kept at room temperature rather than in the refrigerator.

To liquefy honey that has granulated, place in a bowl of warm water, just warm enough for a hand, and leave in until all crystals have dissolved.

Cakes made with honey taste different from cakes made with sugar and seem less light and fluffy when baked. But the cakes will be moist, flavorful, and nice textured if you let them stand from a day to three days to age properly.

Place honey jar in warm water for about 10 minutes before using.

THE DAY OF ACCLAIM

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.—Mark 11:9.

The last week of our Lord's earthly life had come "Normally, in fact almost universally, the last week of a man's life is of practically no significance. In many cases he is too sick to speak with any clear intelligence, and, of course, when ill, is incapable of doing any noteworthy deeds. In our Lord's life, the last week was the most important of all, and to it more space is given (in Scripture) than to any one whole year of Jesus' ministry" (Dr. Wilbur M. Smith).

The first day of that week found our Lord riding into Jerusalem in humility, and yet in royal majesty, to present Himself as Israel's King and Messiah. We find

I. The King Seeking Man's Help (Mark 11: 1-7).

How surprising that the One who made and upholds all things (Col. 1: 16, 17) should have to say, "The Lord hath need of him," in sending for a humble beast of burden. Yet therein lies a marvelous truth. He has graciously so ordered the universe that He has need of us and of our possessions. That was true in the days of His flesh, when He had voluntarily become poor for our sakes. In a somewhat different sense, but nonetheless precious, it is true today.

To be needed by anyone—to have that which can be used—is always encouraging, but to find that the Master needs us and what we have to give, is truly inspiring. Let us learn to give as readily as the owner of the colt (vv. 5, 6), and let us also learn the important lesson of unquestioning obedience taught in verse 4. "They went their way" to do what the Lord told them to do. How greaty simplified and glorified would be the lives of Christian people if they would thus obey Christ.

II. The King Receiving Man's Homage (Mark 11 8-11).

Presenting Himself as their Messiah, Jesus received the enthusiastic acclaim of His disciples and friends, who were probably joined by others who were drawn by the excitement. But the Pharisees did not join in (see Luke 19.39, 40) nor did the city, not even knowing who He was (Matt 21·10, 11). So it is today; some love and praise Him, some hate Him, others just ignore Him Of which class are you?

He gave Jerusalem and the nation a final opportunity to receive Him. It was not yet too late, but it was their last chance Such a time comes in the life of everyone of us. They rejected Him. What do we do?

But let us not forget that there were those who shouted, "Hosanna," who cast their garments down before Him and waved palms of victory and joy. Thank God for their holy enthusiasm. Pray God that we may have a little more of it. We have come to the place where nobody shouts "Hosanna" or "Hallelujah" except the church choir—and they do it only in carefully modulated tones We cheer at ball games or at a political rally, and while we surely do not want that same kind of confusion in the church, it would be quite appropriate to bring some real enthusiasm into our Christianity.

Our Lord knew that it would not be long ere the multitude would be changing their cry to "Crucify Him," for He knew their sinful hearts. So in the midst of His day of acclaim we see

III. The King Weeping Over Man's Sin (Luke 19 41-44).

In times of great joy or under unusual circumstances we are prone to think only of our own pleasure or our own need. But with Christ the need of the souls of men was never for a moment forgotten. He might well have gone on to Bethany to rest and rejoice with His friends over His triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

This constant and tenderhearted concern which Christ had for the city which hated and was soon to crucify Him; this remembrance of their need even in His brief hour of public acclaim, may well teach the church a much needed lesson. Many churches are prosperous, well cared for, and even popular. They are prone to rest back and ride the crest of the wave of popularity, forgetting the souls of men and women in need, many of whom live under the very shadow of the church. Shame on us for such callous indifference in the light of our Lord's agonized weeping—for such is the meaning of the word in Luke 19:41.

Others may observe that their city or community is hostile to the gospel, that men would rather crucify the Christ than receive Him. And so they are content to have their snug little spiritual retreat where they meet to comfort one another and to congratulate themselves on their spiritual haven. Again we say, shame on us!

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

THIS inviting three-in-one pattern looks ahead to summer days and at the same time is immediately practical with its sleeveless jumper dress cut on princess lines, the matching jumper and bonnet. For every little girl can put the jumper with its cunning bolero topper on now and wear it.

Pattern No. 1546-B is a design that inspires even the sewing amateur to get out scissors and cloth and begin. The jumper is so very simple to make and the bolero offers little or no problem. The matching bonnet can be made on a very simplified plan!

Barbara Bell Pattern No 1546-B is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years Size 3 requires 2 yards of 35 or 39-inch material for ensemble Bonnet lining ½ yard Dress and bolero trimming 2¾ yards ric-rac, bonnet ¾ yard

WOMEN who are looking for an extra-practical style to make as a serviceable cotton work dress will approve highly of Pattern No. 1554-B This straight button-front shirtwaist model with a set-in belt will look trim and smart in denim, cotton gabardine or seersucker.

Tailored details which are effective in giving this dress an efficient and pleasant appearance are the yoke shoulders, simple notched collar, cuffs on the sleeves and a set of ample-sized patch pockets. Trim lines throughout slim the figure and heighten the appeal of this cheerful model. Generous fullness through the top and the flaring skirt means too that this will be a comfortable dress to wear for all types of work.

Disappearing Island

Falcon island in the South Pacific is unique in that it has vanished and reappeared three times since its discovery in 1865, says Collier's. Being built up by the ashes of volcanic eruption and then destroyed by wind, rain and ocean current so many times, Falcon is such a geographical curiosity that it has been visited by scientists from all over the world, most of whom preferred to examine it, because of poisonous gas, from the deck of their ship.

BUYING LIFE INSURANCE IS A TWO-FRONT DEFENSE PROGRAM

W C Keraus says, "Certainly it's both a duty and a privilege to buy Defense Bonds, but it is also a duty and a privilege to make certain that your family is adequately cared for in these days of uncertainty. Now, more than in ordinary times, security for your family is vitally necessary.

"You can buy Defense Bonds and at the same time purchase a low-premium form of Life insurance for your family's protection. In following this plan, you not only provide that necessary security for your family, but your insurance company is investing your Life Insurance dollars in Government Bonds to help buy planes, tanks, ships, guns and all the necessities of war. Thus your Life Insurance dollars are doing double duty: protecting the Home Front and at the same time financing the War Front."

WE'LL SEE YOU IN TOKIO

Maybe the boys who registered for the draft Monday may be a bit older in years, but they were, as a rule a pretty peppy gang of men who put their name on the dotted line to help Uncle Sam lick the Nazis and the Japs.

Art Wellemeyer says, "I'll see you in Tokio. I'm going in business there as I'd rather do business with the Jap than a thousand Americans."

Art was of course referring to his profession as an undertaker.

Herman Paul said "Maybe I can't shoot straight but I would sure scare hell out of em."

A lot of the boys had seen service in the World War and were ready to take a swing at it again.

Some of the married boys said they had been at war for twenty-five years and were well trained and that they might just as well join the army and get paid for fighting.

After being hitched up with a red-headed partner for these many years this writer has really learned how to duck. We could easily catch hand grenades and toss 'em back to the Japs.

C C Knight, one of the assistant registrars, lost his hat in the shuffle. He retrieved it next day way down by the Northern Lumber Co. His story sounds fishy.

Good thing the women did not have to register [illegible] they would never give their right age.

Could you imagine Doc Missman riding around in a jeep or Coonie Quandt as a parachute jumper? Or Bawly Kluckhohn cooking up a mess of navy beans for the army? Or Ed Jacobs John Day "Tubby" Hummel Fat Kluckohn Pete Wilson and "Ole" Ramsay as a sub-marine crew?

Or Doc Anderson aboard a tank and Capt Ira Overholt aboard a horse in the cavalry? Lee Klotzbach would be a whiz on a machine gun while "Buck" Kluckhohn manned the anti-aircraft.

Yep, we have the makings of a real army right here in Klemme.

ONE - tew - tree - fo[illegible] and tuck in those Milwaukee fronts look alive!

This column made a record last week . only two mistakes.

"Ole" Ramsay was carrying FOUR large (?) bullheads, not three!

Peter Johnson is practically a man, not the kid in the first grade as we stated. Peter wants the world to know that he's in the THIRD grade. O K Pete, don't shoot!

* * * *

A few weeks ago one of our prominent citizens thought he'd try out a scheme to see how the coming sugar rationing would effect his family, and unbeknown to his wife and children, he carried out an experiment.

First he figured out to the very ounce the amount of sugar that his family would be allowed for one week. He then went to the store and purchased that amount of sugar.

And, when his wife wasn't looking he emptied all the sugar containers into a separate bag and hid it away. The containers were again re-filled with the sugar he had purchased.

During the week the family used sugar in a normal way and he did not caution them to go easy.

At the end of the week he still had four ounces of sugar left and no one had been deprived of what they wanted!

He figures the rationing will not be anything to weep about.

FORMER KLEMME STUDENT WINS SCHOLARSHIP

"Bill" Zabilka, a senior in the Sanborn, Iowa high school this year, and who took a prominent part in Klemme high school athletics and music while a student here, has been awarded a scholarship at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa.

"Bill" entered a competitive musical audition at Cornell College, April 18th and won a scholarship in the contest with his clarinet.

He will enter Cornell next fall and continue his studies there.

"Bill" also won a first on his clarinet solo in the pre-state contest and enters the state music contest at Spencer next week

"Bill" was a star on the Sanborn high school basket ball team this past season and is credited with pulling his team out of a bad hole with his accurate long shots to put his team ahead to win the county championship.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr Caldwell's.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

• In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

• It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

• When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Story Tellers: Because of war-time economic difficulties, some mags have ceased publishing. One of the regrettable casualties is The Living Age . . . The Nation's In The Wind Dep't is its zippiest feature . . . World Digest reports there are five thousand press agents in America . . . And twice as many wastebaskets, thank goodness . . . Back in June 1931, Gen'l MacArthur wrote a piece for a vets' mag suggesting a draft of 4 million men for army training. Naturally, nobody listened. Hoover was President . . . Wm. B. Ziff's new book, due in June, is called "The Coming Battle of Germany." We hear it is dynamite, designed to tumble an avalanche of brass-hat thinking. Duell, Sloan and Pearce will publish. Ziff is the one responsible for the reinstatement of the late Billy Mitchell . . . "The Murder That Rocked Broadway" (the Arnold Rothstein affair) in the current True Detective is our favorite murder story.

The Editorial of the Week: (From the Memphis Commercial-Appeal): "Sedition laws need immediate reexamination for the purpose of giving them teeth. There is desperately needed a policy of government which will lump all traitors, seditionists, and subverters, whatever their citizenship status, into one category . . . In a total war where internal attack is a chief technique we cannot expect survival from the incongruous and piddling policies the Government now follows in dealing with those who seek its defeat or overthrow . . . George Christians (of Chattanooga) a crackpot and a fool? Once they said that of the Nazi paperhanger, who has engineered the greatest revolution and bloodiest conflict in all history . . . Let's swap the kid gloves for a pair of brass knuckles!"

The Front Pages: Editor & Publisher's thumbnail editorial: "If it's anything we can't print, you shouldn't be talking about it!" . . . Newsmen who used to see convicted Nazi agent Viereck in Washington say that he acted as though he were above and beyond arrest, that he rated himself invulnerable.

A notorious Sixth Colyumist argues that writers who pen malicious things about women in public life deserve to be shot . . . What a fraud! That from the Americounterfeit, who has made a career out of malice. He has written dozens of dishonest pieces about persons in public life, including Mrs. Roosevelt, whose politics his boss opposes. Like a shady lady, he can be hired for an hour or a weekend. Every one of his attacks on Axis enemies in the U. S. is repeated over the short-wave circuits from Berlin, Rome and Tokyo . . . If he had any intellectual honesty—he'd shoot himself.

Scrambled Eggs:

No matter how little you have you're rich if you envy nobody . . . The Indians who sold Manhattan for $21 weren't such goons. It didden belong to them! The island had to be bought back again from the real owners . . . If I owned the paper I'd tell my editorialists, colyumists and staff. "Before you write anything always ask yourself the question—"Will it be anything Hirohito, Hitler and Benito would enjoy reading?" . . Or hearing? . . . A scholar tells me that the style Time uses in part isn't so modernistic. That some of Time's literary acrobatricks are patterned after Homer's "Iliad."

The friends who are most deserving of your favors are those who were your friends before you were in a position to do them any . . . Nobody's ever perfectly content. The poor man is often bored, the rich man blase.

Next time anyone complains about cuffless trousers remind him that they don't wear 'em in the Army and Navy, either . . . The only actual talent possessed by many celebrities is the knack of getting their names in the papers . . . If the late William Rhodes Davis, the oil promoter (he tried to interest the State Dep't in a peace with Hitler) were alive—would he be in the headlines?

Whatever became of Verne Marshall, the Cedar Rapids editor, who said Davis was his backer in "The No Foreign War Committee" gag? One report had him in a sanitarium—mentally upset, etc.

Joan Edwards says that what the country needs most right now to win the war is a blockade around Japan and fewer blockheads around Washington . . . Comes the real blackout what happens to guys carrying torches? . . . Nifty crack by a draftee: "Well, s' long. Any messages for MacArthur?" . . . What we need, too, are more editors like Jack Carley of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal. The way he laid it on that Chattanooga Coo-Coo, who patterned himself after Hitler . . . Boy, how they are being dealt with.

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ROLAND YOUNG made up a novel "ten best" list the other day, between scenes of Columbia's "He Kissed the Bride"—a list of Hollywood's best scene-stealers. Being a gentleman, he spared the fair sex. Here are the performers he considers most dangerous to have in camera range while playing a big scene; Cary Grant, Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery, Charles Chaplin, James Gleason, Robert Benchley, Bob Hope, Allyn Joslyn, Edgar Kennedy and Daisy, the canine star. For your information, the best scene-stealers do the trick with their eyes and their hands, and are death to newcomers; put two together, and you have a battle royal.

Mickey Rooney, it seems, is considered adept at scene stealing, but according to Roland Young, his face lights up too much when he gets ready for a piece of business "In the Hardy pictures, Lewis Stone stops Mickey cold every time by dead-panning."

At last Richard Denning's actually going to appear in scenes with Dorothy Lamour; it's taken him three years. When she played in "Her Jungle Mate" he was an aviator flying over the jungle, searching for

RICHARD DENNING

Ray Milland. In "Disputed Passage" he had two scenes and two speeches, but not with her. Now, in "Beyond the Blue Horizon," tall, blond Denning steps out as Dorothy's love interest.

Billie Burke is one of those people who never throw away anything of sentimental interest. But the other day she told Joan Crawford, whose mother she plays in "He Kissed the Bride," that she was going to destroy most of the things she'd been saving. So she went home and pitched in—and the first old letter she opened was one from Enrico Caruso, written to her after she refused his proposal of marriage. (That was in the days when she didn't want her career cluttered up with matrimony.) The house cleaning stopped right where it had commenced.

Recalling the damaging effects of a terrific beating George Raft took in the original version of "The Glass Key," six years ago, Paramount executives have applied for $50,000 worth of insurance to cover possible damage to the handsome countenance of Alan Ladd, playing Raft's role in a re-make of the mystery thriller. Raft still bears the scars of the slugging administered by Guinn Williams.

William Holden's been grounded for the duration of "Meet the Stewarts." Director Al Green nearly collapsed when he found that Holden was spending his Sundays racing high-speed motorcycles at Muroc Dry Lake, and got studio permission to stop it.

Betty Winkler, of the air's "Abie's Irish Rose," and Vice President Wallace agree on one thing—that she can't speak Spanish. She auditioned for NBC's new "Down Mexico Way," and without warning was asked to learn a Spanish song from a record and sing it. When she heard the result she criticized it vehemently. Wallace was kinder when he heard the recorded show; just said "That girl cannot speak Spanish."

"Johnny Presents" Talullah Bankhead in evening gowns, only because her sponsor asked her to wear them instead of slacks when broadcasting. So now she changes in a special dressing room at the studio, and as soon as she's finished her stint, bowed and thrown kisses to the lads in the audience who are in uniform, she gets back into her own favorite uniform—slacks.

ODDS AND ENDS—Sammy Kaye, the bandleader, is learning to skate since he accepted a leading role in Sonja Henie's next picture, "Iceland" . . . At last Lionel Barrymore has a role he langs to play, that of Thaddeus Stevens, arch enemy of Andrew Jackson, whom he's been studying for years . . . In "The Gentlemen Misbehave" Cary Grant gets chased by six bloodhounds, one of which captured convicts who escaped from the Arizona state penitentiary; at rehearsals that one always caught him . . . Pat O'Brien's formed an "All Irish" glee club on the set of "He's My Old Man"—Pat's the only Irishman in it.

LEAVES from Uncle Sam's Notebook

by HARRIET MAY WILSON

The Migrating Hordes

Yesterday, perhaps, you were working in your garden, laying your plans for your spring gardening, raking up old vines and stalks, burning the rubbish—in short, making ready for the spring season that follows so swiftly upon the heels of winter. The day was so still you could hear the drumming of a woodpecker in a distant woodlot or the mellow sound of the schoolbell, a mile away, calling the children in from recess. The sun was warm on your back Still, it was a lovely day and you looked with delight upon the somewhat draggled-looking robin which tagged you around the garden, picking up dropped seeds, your eyes rejoiced in the flashing color of the bluebird, darting from fencepost to fencepost; once a chimney swift flashed, in speedy flight, across your field of vision. These were some of your summer birds. They were coming back after the long winter months. You missed them then and wondered where and how they had gone.

WHERE AND HOW—WHY AND WHEN DO THE BIRDS GO?

Of such value to all gardeners, orchardists and farmers are the services of the birds that all may well be concerned with their migrations

LONG-DISTANCE MIGRATIONS

While it is generally known that many—perhaps the majority—of the birds which frequent our farms and woodlands in the North during the summer months, merely travel southward in the autumn far enough to find their accustomed foods, yet, some birds are known to make incredibly long migratory flights. Some of our common summer residents spend their winters in localities well south of the equator—perhaps on Argentinian pampas, or even in Patagonia. The arctic tern is said to be the champion "globe trotter." A government bulletin says of this remarkable bird:

"Its name, 'arctic,' is well earned, as its breeding range is circumpolar and it nests as far north as it can find a suitable place The first nest to be found in this region was only 7½ degrees from the North pole and it contained a downy chick surrounded by a wall of newly fallen snow that had been scooped out by the parent In North America it breeds south in the interior to Great Slave lake, and on the Atlantic coast to Massachusetts. After the young are grown, the arctic terns disappear from their North American breeding grounds, and a few months later they may be found in the Antarctic region, 11,000 miles away"

NIGHT TRAVEL OF BIRDS

Although most birds appear to be rather helpless in the dark, going to roost at dusk and arousing only when early daylight calls, nevertheless thousands and thousands of them migrate in night flights. All lovers of field and woodland have noted that on some given day in early spring it may be that not a bird will be visible, yet on the following morning flocks of them will appear everywhere, proof that they have come back in the night.

HEIGHT AND SPEED OF MIGRATORY FLIGHT

It was assumed at one time that birds flew at great altitudes, but, since man's conquest of the air, it has been realized that flight is increasingly difficult as air becomes rarefied with altitude, partly because of the reduction of oxygen supply and partly because of a lack of buoyancy in the rarefied air Therefore, although some of the birds with excessive wing spread, such as cranes and storks, have been seen (with binoculars) flying at 20,000 feet above sea level, the fact remains that migration in general is effected below 3,000 feet.

The speed of flight varies greatly: Flycatchers loiter along at 10 to 17 miles per hour, the fast-flying mourning dove rarely exceeds 35 miles; herons and hawks, timed with an automobile speedometer, have been found to fly at 22 to 28 miles, aviators claim that at 65 miles an hour they can overtake the fastest ducks. The greatest bird speeds reliably recorded are of the swifts and the duck hawk—from 100 to 180 miles per hour

NEED FOR PROTECTION DURING MIGRATION

The hazards of migration are many, and have been greatly increased by changes brought about by man's occupation of one-time feeding and resting grounds There is need for bird refuges, and for a general legal protection of the migrating hordes

For further information, sent ten cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington D C, asking for Circular No 363, "The Migration of North American Birds."

THE GRAND FIR

This conifer is well named, since it grows usually from 150 to 200 feet high, and frequently to a height of 250 to 275 feet. It is usually called "white fir" because its smooth bark is splashed with grayish-white blotches

FEED FOR GOSLINGS

Goslings need no feed until they are 36 to 48 hours old They should then be fed stale bread soaked in milk or water, or, they may be given a mash made of four parts corn meal and 1 part middlings

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO

It's simple. It's fun. Just think up a last line to this jingle. Make sure it rhymes with the word "see."

Write your last line of the jingle on the reverse side of a Raleigh package wrapper (or a facsimile thereof), sign it with your full name and address, and mail it to Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., P. O. Box 1799, Louisville, Kentucky, postmarked not later than midnight, May 2, 1942.

You may enter as many last lines as you wish, if they are all written on separate Raleigh package wrappers (or facsimiles).

Prizes will be awarded on the originality and aptness of the line you write. Judges' decisions must be accepted as final. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded. Winners will be notified by mail.

Anyone may enter (except employees of Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., their advertising agents, or their families). All entries and ideas therein become the property of Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation.

Notice

Dr D P ANDERSON has just received the following bulletin on infectious animal disease from the Veterinary Association

"As a result of the tremendous demand for many materials essential to war, the horse has achieved a greater economic and practical role than for many years. As the pinch of war goes on, the horse will become increasingly important

We can see that the demand for horses has been greater and prices have risen accordingly What the military status of the horse and mule will be cannot be determined or described at present but reliable sources state that 200,000 horses were used by Hitlers armies during the invasion of Poland Likewise the increased demand on agriculture will undoubtedly necessitate the reliance on horse-drawn machinery to a greater extent Just how prevalent the infectious horse disease Sleeping Sickness, will be this summer, is difficult to estimate but it is very likely that eastern Iowa could experience an extensive and devastating outbreak Such an epizootic could have a great effect on our future welfare The public health standpoint is also of grave importance inasmuch as a number of fatal cases of this horse disease occurred in humans, last summer, in middle western states It is quite certain, therefore, that early immunization against Sleeping Sickness in horses would result in numerous benefits."

IN MEMORY OF DORIS GRANGE WHO DIED 20 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The golden gates were opened
And Heavenly Angels smiled,
And with their tuneful harpstrings,
Welcomed the little child

They situated high and holy,
Where God had entered in,
And safe from all temptation,
A soul is sealed from sin

They led her thru the golden streets,
On to the King of Kings,
And a glory fell upon her
From the rustling of their wings

The Saviour smiled upon her
As none on earth could smile
And Heavens great glory shone around,
The little earth-born child

On earth we miss the little one
We sigh and weep and sigh again
And wonder if another such
As ours has ever died

Oh! Had we seen through those high gates
The welcome to her given
We never would wish our little child
Back from her home in Heaven

—Mr. & Mrs. Paul Grange at Dolan

LT. EARL SCHAEFFER NOW AT CAMP BLANDING, FLORIDA

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Mrs. Earl G Schaeffer in which she stated Lt Schaeffer is now stationed at Camp Blanding, Florida Lt and Mrs Schaeffer have rented a house at Green Cove Springs, Florida, only 20 miles from the camp, and Lt Schaeffer goes to and from the camp by bus

Mrs Schaeffer writes " Earl and I were very fortuate in having been able to live one year in one place, something not many in the army can say We have grown to love many things in the south and I know it has broadened our outlook on life * * * After several hours of house-hunting we found a little home in Green Cove Springs This town is on the St John's River, and right now I can see it from my chair on the veranda. This town is about 20 miles from the camp. The J C Penny farms are between here and camp I understand Mr Penney's father was a Presbyterian minister and he built many homes on these farms for retired ministers Because of the scarcity of residences near the camp, army people have been allowed to rent some of the vacant houses there

"I do not know when we will again be able to set foot on good old Iowa soil, so we are sending best wishes to all of you from all of us and would like to have you give our greetings to our Klemme friends"

Sincerely,
Florence Schaeffer

A MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY
WASHINGTON

May 1, 1942

TO THE PEOPLE OF IOWA:

This week a new campaign for the sale of War Bonds and Savings Stamps is under way throughout the Nation. It is the War Bond Quota Campaign.

It is urgently necessary that you double the rate at which you are now buying War Bonds and Stamps This will mean the sale direct to individual Americans of War Bonds and Stamps to the amount of not less than one billion dollars every month.

One billion dollars a month is the National quota. It is equal to one-tenth the combined incomes of all Americans.

This money is needed to buy the tools of war for your fighting forces. It will not pay for all of them. Our war expenditures now are at the rate of about FOUR BILLIONS a month, and they are growing daily. But a billion dollars a month direct from the people will make all-out production possible. Without it we cannot do our best; without it we cannot put forth our full effort.

It is desperately needed for another reason. We can't fight a war and at the same time live and spend as usual. There are not enough goods to go around — the things we buy with money. If we go on spending at the 1941 scale, we'll be robbing the fighting man to add to our own comfort or pleasure. We'll be driving up the cost of living for all of us. We'll be imposing dire hardships on our neighbors.

What is asked of you is ten per cent of your earnings — a tithe for Liberty. It is not a tax; it is not even a contribution; it is a loan at interest, for your use and protection later.

Your Government asks you to cut down your expenditures, TO SAVE — your boys on the firing line and in the training camps, through your Government, ask you to save so that they may have what they need to win YOUR WAR for you — America asks you to save; to SAVE TO WIN THE WAR; to buy War Bonds and Stamps up to not less than ten per cent of your income.

Is Liberty worth it? Is Democracy worth it? Is America worth it? I think I know your answer.

Sincerely,
H Morgenthau Jr

FOR VICTORY BUY UNITED STATES WAR BONDS & STAMPS

The above letter was sent to this newspaper by Secretary Morgenthau in Washington. We publish it in the interest of the War Bond Quota Campaign and earnestly recommend that all our readers do their share in the tremendous job ahead of financing the War effort.

More Funds Still Needed For Navy Relief Work

NAVY RELIEF DRIVE SHOWS GAINS PAST WEEK

Donations Can Be Sent Or Given To Ira Overholt, Klemme

The Navy Relief drive which has been in progress in the county during the past three weeks made a substantial gain on the way to the quota goal, five of the nine communities reaching or exceeding their quotas, with the other four not having made a complete report

This county has been asked to raise about $1,200 for this fund which goes direct to the boys in the Navy, Marine Corps and the Coast Guard service to assist them to carry out their relief program within their own organization, and for which there is an urgent need due to the multiplied instances of distress among the dependents of these men in our service, fighting our battles.

No one is asked to contribute a large amount but everyone should feel an obligation to help the Navy boys with a small donation.

People in the Klemme territory can mail or hand their donation to Ira Overholt, local chairman

Do your bit for the Navy!

FORMER KLEMME BOY IS CANDIDATE FOR CO. SUPT.

Geo S Bergmann, superintendent of schools at Pisgah, Iowa, a son of Rev Bergmann, former Klemme Methodist pastor, is a candidate for Superintendent of Schools of Hancock County.

Mr. Bergmann was in the community Friday interviewing presidents of school boards.

Mr Bergmann attended Klemme high school, graduated from the eleventh grade and then finished at Garner, after which he attended Morningside College.

He has taught 14 years, twelve of which he has been superintendent. He has been at Pisgah for seven years.

Drive slow, enjoy the scenery and save rubber.

BOY SCOUTS ENTERTAINED GIRL SCOUTS AT PARTY MONDAY NIGHT

Monday night was a big event for both the Boy and Girl Scouts of the community as the local Boy Scout Troop held a party for the Girl Scouts at the Community Hall.

Each Patrol of the Boy Scouts had charge of part of the entertainment

All enjoyed playing the corn game and each girl brought a May basket which was sold to the highest bidder. Pennies were used to pay for baskets and the corn game and all proceeds were turned over to the Girl Scouts.

Refreshments were served after the games.

EDWIN THIEMAN LEADS IN DAIRY HERD IMPROVEMENT FOR MONTH OF APRIL

Edwin Thieman's herd of grade Guernseys were high producers in April of the Hancock County Dairy Herd Improvement Association

Thieman's nine cows averaged 834 pounds of milk and 42.6 pounds of fat

V A. Cook had the high individual cow for the month. Cook's registered Holstein "Anna 2" produced 1948 pounds of milk and 89.3 pounds of butterfat.

Other farmers in the Klemme territory who had herds listed in the high herds included Roy Jacobs, John Knoedler, V. A. Cook, C J Wille and son, and Mitchell Bock

Twenty-eight herds on test averaged 810 lbs. milk and 29.7 pounds butter-fat. 75 cows produced between 40-50 lbs. b. f.; 25 between 50-60 lbs.; 1 between 70-80 lbs, 2 between 80-90 lbs. for the month.

Ralph Ruggeberg is the supervisor.

HELLO, FOLKS!

Mr. and Mrs. William Coobs, of Elkader, Iowa, are the proud parents of twins, a boy weight 8 lbs., and a girl, weight 8½ lbs., born on Tuesday, April 28th.

William Coobs is a brother of Ben Coobs, Mrs. W. F. Pavey and Mrs. Verner Lewis of Klemme.

Charlie Carlson Died Monday Morning

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD AT WELLEMEYER FUNERAL HOME TODAY

Had Lived At The Mrs. C. A. Arnold Farm For 28 Years

Funeral services were held this Wednesday afternoon at the Wellemeyer Funeral Home for "Charlie" Carlson, 76, who died early Monday morning at the home of Mrs. C A Arnold

Rev. H E. Harvey, pastor of the Klemme Methodist church officiated Arrangements were in charge of the Wellemeyer Funeral Service and interment was in the Ell Township Cemetery near Klemme

Special music was provided by a mixed quartet composed of Mrs C C. Kilgore, Mrs. C. G Waterman, Mr. Emil Patet and Mr Wm C Keraus, who sang two hymns The piano accompaniment was by Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson.

The casket bearers were Harry Gibbs, Chas Fritzel, Verner Lewis, Ben Coobs, Tom Roths and Tom Nelson.

The following obituary is thru the courtesy of the Wellemeyer Funeral Service:

Obituary

Carl S Carlson, age 76, who has been a resident of this community for a half century or more, passed away at the Mrs C. A. Arnold farm home Monday morning, May 4th, 1942.

Mr Carlson was born in Sweden on February 15th, 1866, and it was in Sweden that he completed his common school education, and became a member of the Lutheran Church by confirmation.

At the age of 21 years Carl Sigfried Carlson came to America and located at Bloomington, Illinois and later went to Princeton, Ill, where his occupation was farming

Two years later he came to Hancock County, Iowa, where he and his brother, Gustof, operated a farm in Avery township.

After about a dozen years of farming together, the brothers dissolved partnership and Carl Carlson found employment on the C A Arnold farm This was in 1914, 28 years ago

Mr. Carlson was a man of clean habits, faithful and conscientious in his work, and loyal to his friends Because of these fine traits of character, the Arnolds were glad to have him stay and make his home with them, even after his working days were over.

Of his immediate relatives he leaves to mourn his death one brother, Gustof Carlson of Ingram, Wisconsin, and one sister, Mrs. Alec Gustafson of Princeton, Ill, besides three brothers and one sister in Sweden. He was the second of nine children He also leaves a number of more distant relatives and a host of friends.

Farmers who are going to need wire fencing should order at once for immediate delivery

• TIRES SAVED

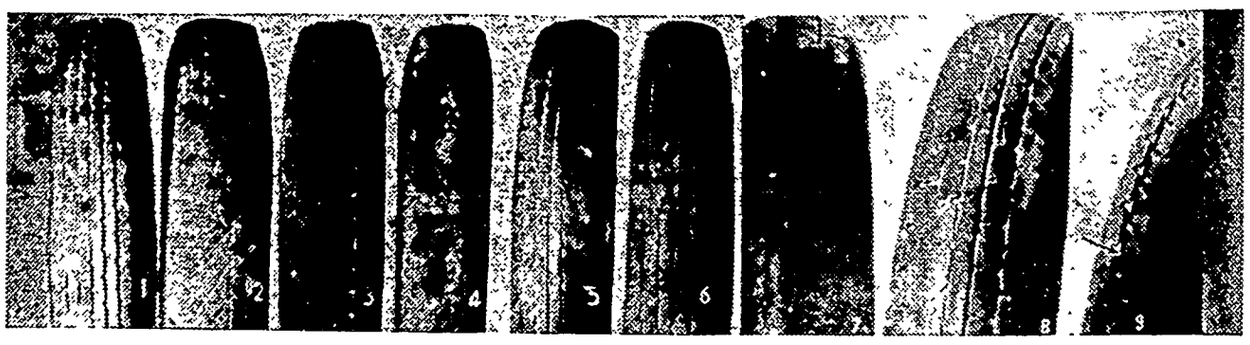
The John Strock automobile caught fire, but Storm Lake firemen quickly extinquised the flames Mr. Strock felt much better about the whole thing when he learned that the tires had been saved!

EARLY BULLHEAD FISHING GOOD

Picture Of Three Boys Digging Fishworms

Optimistic early fishing predictions are already being borne out by the bullheads. Reports on practically all the inland waters are that bullhead fishing is fair to excellent. Lost Island Lake, which lost many fish in the freeze-out during the winter of '39 and '40 ,is one of the brightest spots, with many fine strings reported taken there. Clear Lake, Storm Lake, Spirit Lake, and the Okoboji Lakes, as well as many of the smaller bodies of water, have produced good early catches. Many of the inland streams have also provided excellent bullhead fishing. It is reported that the shores of some of the lakes take on the appearance of an army encampment at night because of the numerous small fires that are lighted by the fishermen to warm their fingers and heat coffee. The lowly bullhead provides a lot of sport in Iowa.

'Make 'Em Last'—That's Number One Rule For Nation's 32 Million Automobile Drivers



Cheated out of thousands of miles of service, these tires failed and were rejected at inspection station because of:

1. Bad wheel bearings, loose king pin bolts and badly worn tie-rod ends.

2. Loose front end.

3. Bad camber condition.

4. Boot substituting for tread and fabric.

5. Toe-in and low pressure.

6. Misalignment.

7. Loose and badly worn tie-rod ends, king pin bolts, drag links and bushings.

8. Camber error and loose front end.

9. Excessive side drag.

Periodic inspection, proper care and adjustment would have increased the service of any of these tires by thousands and thousands of miles. The driver who neglects his tires today will soon become a pedestrian.

"Never mind us Take care of the tires first!"

That was the command gasped out to two stretcher bearers when (in a cartoonist's imagination) they attempted to give first aid to the injured occupants of a badly wrecked automobile

The cartoon, published in a nationally-read magazine, may exaggerate the situation, but it demonstrates beyond all doubt that 1942 will go down in history as the year when rubber became more precious than rubies.

Talk of "rubber stockpiles," "crude rubber" and "carry-over tonnage" leaves the average motorist cold. He doesn't understand all the technicalities behind the current rubber shortage. But he does know that when his present tires wear out, he will be forced to leave his six-cylinder, 1937 Blue Streak standing idle in his garage.

The National Safety Council, Chicago, lists many DON'Ts the motorist must continually keep in mind, besides a few important DO's. If he keeps on forgetting about them he is soon without rubber on his tires.

Checkup by Experienced Operators.

It is possible that more motorists are going to maintenance stations to have their tires checked than ever before (This incidentally, is one of the essential DO's)

Motorists there will learn that their tires are unsafe (alas!) if the fabric, breaker strip, or outer body ply is exposed Also that if the tire has cuts or snags greater than an inch in any direction and deep enough to expose body fabric, it is then in the unsafe condition Furthermore, if the tire has a bulge it is dangerous to use, for patches or boots are not sufficient protection Then, too, another way to learn if the tires are unsafe is either to look over the wheel and tire yourself, or have the garage attendant see if bolts, nut or lug are bent, cracked, or if the rim or wheel flange is defective

Then after you have made sure that your tires and wheels are OK, your next best procedure is to get yourself in the habit of using war time driving rules to conserve your tires as long as possible

Here is a list of rules, compiled by the safety council You, of course, can add to them

Drive only when absolutely necessary, and then drive at a moderate speed.

Start and stop slowly, slow down on turns, and park carefully to keep from grinding off the tread and nicking the rubber off your tires.

Use brakes carefully (shift into second going downhill), and make sure that your brakes are adjusted so that your tires will not be worn unevenly.

Every 5,000 miles or so cross-switch your tires to increase total mileage. If your wheels are correctly aligned and balanced, the cross-switching will add miles and miles to each tire's life.

Check the air pressure of all your tires each week. Have the tires and tubes inspected regularly against future trouble and wasted rubber.

Such suggestions will go far in helping you keep your tires as long as possible. But the time will soon come when you will be thinking about having your tires recapped or retreaded.

If you are one of those fortunate persons whose application was approved by your local tire rationing board, then a few suggestions may prove valuable Recapping, which is vulcanizing a tread surface onto a partially remaining tread, and retreading, which means stripping old tread off the tire and replacing it with a new tread and vulcanizing onto the casing, is done with the greatest of economy and safety when the following rules are remembered:

Use only tire cases which have no cracks, punctures or flaws.

Recap tires that are not worn through to the cords of the casing.

Don't allow anyone to recap or retread your tires unless he can meet a high standard of workmanship.

When you decide on a certain shop to retread or recap your tires be sure that their services are reliable, their material the best available, and the workmanship as good as, or better than, any other shop.

Checking on Gas and Oil.

Once you have begun to follow these rules and suggestions for your tire protection and safety you should center your attention on the gasoline and oil consumption of your car.

During the past years a nervous condition hit the majority of the drivers in the U S A This was noticeable in their attempt to get between two points in the shortest time possible They sped from one place to another without fully realizing that a moderate speed will get them to their destination, most of the time, in as short a time as if they roared on down the road

Today, when gasoline and oil are necessary to help win this war, moderate speeding not only saves you money because of a smaller consumption of gas and oil, but also helps your nation

The accompanying charts, dealing with tire, gas and oil conservation, give you more definite proof of the value of moderate driving than would thousands of words.

At a 65-mile per hour top cruising speed, as compared with 40 m.p.h., gas consumption was more than 30 per cent higher. Yet the average gain in speed was only 15 miles an hour, as the faster driver had to slow down more frequently, and with greater abruptness.

Oil consumption increases at an even greater rate than gasoline consumption when the speed was stepped up to more than 35 miles per hour. Almost four times as much oil is used at 65 m.p.h. than at a 40-mile top cruising speed. The difference is even greater when a car is equipped with an oil filter.

If you want to be a safe driver and also conserve gas, oil, tires, besides lives of other motorists and pedestrians, remember these few rules for driving today:

Start early on each trip so you can get to your destination without using excessive speed.

Drive at a moderate speed suited to the conditions of the highway on which you are traveling. Don't pass any more cars than the number you observe passing you.

Speed up gradually, but shift from one gear to another as quickly as possible. Slow down gradually.

Warm up the motor before driving reduce speeds on grades . . against headwinds . and keep your car tuned up for greatest economy.

Be smart by being thrifty with gas, oil, and automotive material.

Recaps, Retreads Keep Vital Transportation Moving

When your present tires begin to show the dreaded wear, you'll be giving more thought than now to the possibilities of having them retreaded or recapped:

If you come under the following "List B" classification you can get the work done. This list includes

1. Applicants to whom other transportation service is not available: Licensed taxi, for transport to places where construction or mechanical structural, or highway maintenance services are needed

2 Transportation of executives, engineers, technicians and workers to and from work essential to the war effort

3. Transportation of produce and supplies to and from the farm if applicant does not have a truck or other means of transportation. In other words, applicant owning automobile may get retreads.

4. Transportation of federal, state and local government employees on functions essential to public health, safety or war effort.

5. Transportation of mail by private person under government contract—rural letter carriers

6. Wholesale delivery of newspapers, provided automobile is used for NO OTHER PURPOSE.

7. Hearses, milk trucks are also included in the listing.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

WHERE HONOR IS DUE

Although General MacArthur's spectacular defense of the Bataan peninsula gathered all the headlines, praise and honor is also due other high-ranking officers who kept up the unspectacular but very necessary part of the defense.

One unsung hero who has done a great job is Maj. Gen. George F. Moore, in command of the harbor defenses of Corregidor. General Moore's anti-aircraft guns bagged so many Japanese planes that the Japs didn't relish flying over Corregidor very much.

Then there is Brig. Gen. Charles C. Drake, the quartermaster, who has the heartbreaking job of rationing supplies down to almost nothing.

Another man who performed military miracles is Brig. Gen. Albert M. Jones. He commanded the southern sector of Luzon, south of Manila, and accomplished the seemingly impossible job of withdrawing his beach defenses to join the forces of General Wainwright on Bataan

Then there is Gen James R N. Weaver, in command of tanks, together with Generals Joseph P. Vachom, William E. Brougher, Bradford G Chynoweth, William F. Sharp, Allan C. McBride, Clyde A. Selleck, Clinton A. Pierce, and Arnold J. Funk, all unsung heroes

Note: General Wainwright should not be criticized for commanding part of the battle of Bataan from Corregidor. General MacArthur, according to those returning from the Philippines, also directed the Bataan battles from Corregidor.

MARKET INFORMATION LEAKS

Government sleuths are probing a series of mysterious leaks of important market information from key war agencies.

On several occasions recently certain Wall street traders have obtained advance tips on important moves to be made by the War Production board, the Office of Price Administration and the agriculture department.

In one instance cotton brokers got wind of an agriculture parity price announcement 45 minutes before it was made public. This announcement was supposed to be absolutely secret until publication. The market operators not only learned about it, but used the information for private profit.

The WPB order banning all nonessential building construction also was tipped off in advance to certain members of the building trade. So, too, was the OPA's action imposing a price ceiling on fats and oils, and allowing an increase in wool prices. Word regarding this move leaked out two days before the order was issued.

Under suspicion for these leaks are certain dollar-a-year men, who, while not directly connected with these matters, were in a position to learn about them and to tip off business friends.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

¶ As early as 1939, General "Hap" Arnold, chief of the air corps, told officials of the Insular Affairs bureau that if he were an enemy he would like nothing better than the assignment of bombing Pearl Harbor. He pointed out that the navy was always huddled close together in the harbor, that the harbor's mouth was narrow, making it difficult to get out, and that it was a perfect target for an efficient air attack.

¶ The Truman committee is investigating sensational charges by the Long Beach (Calif) Independent that southern California airplane factories and shipyards are far behind schedule, having been delayed by cost plus charges, slowdown tactics, arbitrary union hiring, extortionate initiation fees, farcical inspections. It is also charged that one plant, scheduled to be in full production last June, is far from even fractional production. Meanwhile local plants stand empty awaiting government orders.

¶ New influx into Washington is the Australian War Supplies mission. About 180 of them are coming to town.

CONGRESSIONAL WASTE

Rookie Representative Earl Wilson of Indiana, imaginative advocate of a 10 p. m. "curfew" for government stenographers, recently popped up with another idea

He proposed that house members, who occupy two big office buildings on Capitol Hill, be herded into one so that the other might be used by war workers This was hitting below the gravy-line, and fetched Wilson a hot retort from Representative John Rankin of Mississippi, plus some dark looks from others

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

Pattern No. 8094

IF PRIZES were given out for good apron designs, Pattern No. 8094 would be a blue ribbon winner. It has everything—an easy fit, shapely lines and is quick to put on because of the straps which button at the shoulders. Furthermore it opens flat for ironing so it is double easy to keep fresh and clean. Just a few yards of low cost cotton will make it—and it is as easy as ABC to sew.

Pattern No 8094 is designed for sizes 34 to 48. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 32 or 35-inch material. 8 yards bias fold for trim.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

Haw! Phil Baker tells about the six-year-old who was tugging a suitcase down Central Park West. The corner cop stopped her and asked where she was going.

"My Daddy and Mummy were having a fight," explained the child. "Mummy told Daddy to go to Timbuctoo, and Daddy told Mummy to go some place else. So, I left home—nobody's sticking ME with any two-year lease!"

Forecast for 1942: From Jay Franklin's colyum in Richmond, Va. "Walter Winchell will cease to write about Cafe Society because it won't exist. Walter Lippmann will write the best columns of his life and nobody will read them. Mark Sullivan will be drafted into Government service to help administer the nationwide food-stamp plan. Dorothy Thompson will fight it out with Clare Boothe Luce for the role of Julia Ward Howe or Florence Nightingale. David Lawrence will continue to do his stuff so long as he can find papers to print it, after which he will join the USO and work in a canteen. Raymond Clapper will gain in courage and, breaking with Roy Howard, will emerge as a real columnist.

Morning Mail: "Dear Walter: So chorus girls never become famous—just notorious, eh? The Winchell you say! Howz about Ruby Keeler, Barbara Stanwyck, Virginia Bruce, Gladys Glad, Ina Claire and Joan Crawford? Go stand in a corner, but don't get me wrong. I'm a former Hellzapoppin' chorine, and I have good reason to be nuts about W.W.—Margie Young, Banjo Eyes."

THERE ARE MANY examples of clever headline-writing. We think this is one of the best: When John Masefield arrived here from England where he was poet laureate, he refused to grant newspaper men an interview . . . So one evening paper ran this streamer: "King's Canary Refuses to Chirp"—which made a better story than the interview could have been.

From the editorial page of the N. Y. Post: "If Adolf Hitler captured Our Town, which are the first ten New Yorkers he would hang? . . . Certain names will spring to your mind at once. Dorothy Thompson? Walter Winchell?"

Ladies first, of course.

Capt. Patrick Smith, whose articles on Japan were of great benefit to the U. S., is now an American and ready for any service the country wishes . Salute to the National Maritime Union: The one Union whose members do more than work for the country. They die for it!

. "Banjo Eyetm": Leona Olsen of the chorus and Ben Bernie's boy, Jason, have called the whole thing spinach . . J. Dorsey's manager and the chief arranger bare-fisted it this week . . A foreign playboy, who told the El Morocco, Stork, Fefe's and other debbies he was from Holland, was collared by the FBI as a Berliner . . . Spring is really here. All 3 hatcheck gals at Iceland became brides last week.

Gosh, Yes! Al Bernie says you hear so little of John Nance Garner you'd think he was still Vice-President!

Journalism's biggest laugh in a long time came when Sec'y Knox's paper published a competitor's personal letter to a reader. In which the rival boasted of many things he claimed he did in the interest of the nation . Knox's paper played up the conceited letter with the headline "Whatta Man!" . . . When Knox saw it he was disappointed . . . "The slug 'Whatta Man!" was not so good," he said . . . 'It should have said: 'And On The Seventh Day He Rested!'"

Sounds in the Night: At La Conga: "A bore is a guy who wraps up a two-minute idea in a two-hour vocabulary" . . At Iceland: "Since we have MacArthur and so many Yanks there, why don't they call it UStralia?" . . . At Roseland· "Hey, where has Ripley been all your life? . . In the Cub: "He's gotten to a point in his career where the only way you can insult him is to ignore him" . . . At LaMartinique: "Frustrated? She's practically strangling from her halo" . . . At Spivy's: "It's one of those improbable things. Like Tallulah getting stage fright" . . In the Hickory House: "She uses her eyebrow pencil to draw little question marks over her eyes" . . In the 1-2-3: "The gay life's worn her out—like a piece of used confetti" . . In Versailles: "You can't have everything. Even a friendly slap on the back has its sting."

Tee-Hee: Elsa Maxwell, the nicest blimp in town, approached a Rainbow Room table group. Maestro Leo Reisman greeted her with: "Where have you been all these weeks?"

"Helping the Gov't design some new tanks," explained Elsa.

"Really?" meow'd a deb. "I didn't know you'd taken up modeling."

Jimmy Walker says: "The Freedom of the Press is too often confused with the freedom of the publisher."

Building a Rock Garden

Variously known as a "rock garden" or a "rockery," any portion of garden, farmstead, or suburban lot which yields readily to landscaping with rocks, with a bit of water, and with plants suited to such locations, is a never-ending delight to the true gardener. The chief problem with which the gardener must deal, in this connection, is that of deciding just which plants are most likely to succeed under the existing conditions. No plants can be used for rockeries in all parts of the country; plants must be selected for the particular locality in which they are to be grown.

CHOOSING THE SITE

It happens, sometimes, that the gardener says, deliberately, "I will now construct a rock garden," and does so from the ground up, as one might say. As a rule, however, some contour of the land, some characteristic of soil or background, or some rocky outcrop provides both the incentive to the project and the basis for all calculations If no such motivating factor exists, and if the rockery must be made "from the ground up," then great care must be used and the maximum of good taste exercised to make sure that the result has a natural and informal appearance.

ROCK WALLS

Quarried stones, or angular field stones can often be used to bolster up an artificial bank, with very natural-looking results, particularly if stones are chosen which have weathered surfaces An accepted authority on the building of rockeries states that if there is a gentle slope to the land, a row of stones may appropriately be placed at the bottom of the slope, leaving spaces between the stones two or three times as wide as the stones themselves; other stones may then be placed behind these spaces, back far enough to hold the soil at a desired slope. Stones should not be of uniform size; the more irregular the finished outline, the more attractive.

THE SOIL FOR THE ROCKERY

While the rock structure is being placed, soil suited to the plants to be grown should be placed behind the rocks and between them; if the rock garden is a natural formation it will still be advisable to fill in with a good garden soil. In the northeastern part of the United States, and especially in shady and moist formations, leaf mold and good friable soil are desirable Frequently, in open, sunny locations, limestone chips may be better than soil, and sand and coal ashes are sometimes desirable. It is essential to decide what plants are to be used, before the soil is placed, if the gardener is not to be disappointed in the outcome.

CHOOSING THE PLANTS

Since the rock garden is a permanent installation, permanent plants are generally used, although it may be necessary to use annuals at first to secure a quick result. As a matter of fact, it may be desirable to use a few annuals each year, to vary and enliven the rockery. Plants of first importance in a rockery are low-growing varieties, though this term is relative, since what seems a low-growing plant on a rugged hillside would not seem so in a terrain of gentler acclivities. In choosing plants, it is well to look about in surrounding country since native plants will adapt themselves better and look more natural than will imported species.

Two large groups of plants—the Sedums and the Sempervivums—provide many of the kinds suitable to be grown among rocks; most of them are hardy and will adapt themselves to wide ranges of temperature. The best-known of the Sempervivums, which grow in clusters or rosettes, are the various houseleeks such as the "hen-and-chickens"; among the commonest of the Sedums which trail over the rocks and along rock crevices, are stonecrops, gold-moss, love-entangles, false houseleeks and liveforevers. The perennial alyssums are also adapted to a wide range of country. Other favorites are low-growing phloxes, dwarf irises, and many of the columbines

For shaded situations, one may plant forgetmenots, bluebells, primroses, saxifrages, bellflowers and ferns; for sunny places, especially in northeastern United States, bellflowers may be chosen, or pinks, together with green candytuft, lavender and speedwells. In dry regions, cacti are naturally indicated.

For further information, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., asking for Leaflet No. 90, entitled Rockeries.

EARLY LETTUCE

Lettuce is one of the few plants which will do well in gardens which are shaded a portion of the time. It may well be planted between the rows of other crops which require a longer time for their development. Iceberg and Hansen are good varieties of early head lettuce.

THE TREE FROG

These little amphibians, which possess the ability to change color according to the color of their surroundings are really frogs although commonly called tree toads.

GASOLINE CRISIS QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q.—When I get into a filling station can I get all the gas I want?

A.—It will depend on how many cars have been ahead of you.

Q.—If I drive into a station and say "Fill her up," what answer will I get?

A.—No answer; just a laugh.

Q.—Will I be able to buy gas at any hour of the day or night?

A.—That depends on your luck.

Q.—My luck when out of gas has never been hot. So what?

A.—So you'd better realize that under the new orders no gas station may be open more than 12 hours a day, and there is no telling which 12 hours a station may choose.

Q.—You mean that if I run short of gas between six at night and six in the morning I may find the nearest pumping stations only operate during the day, and if I run short during the day I may find the nearest stations only run nights?

A.—It's wonderful how quickly you grasp an idea.

Q.—Isn't this a little screwy?

A.—How so?

Q.—I mean isn't it better for all gas stations to keep open certain specific hours as under the previous ban, so that any autoist may plan his travels intelligently?

A.—What makes you think autoists plan their travels intelligently?

Q.—May dealers stagger their hours; that is, open from 10 to noon, close from noon to 2 p. m., reopen from 2 to 4, etc.?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What would be the sense of this?

A.—Well, it would add a speculative appeal to the whole thing.

Q.—Would it appeal to the American public?

A.—Look how bingo is doing!

Q.—What is the guiding rule for gas sellers?

A.—The whole idea is to fill simply the minimum requirements of essential users.

Q.—What is an essential user?

A.—An essential user is an autoist whose driving is necessary.

Q.—For instance?

A.—Doctors, army and navy men, nurses, government officials, etc., are people whose use of a car is necessary.

Q.—Then can I get all the gas I need if I take a nurse out for a ride?

A.—Yes, but it will be smarter if you use her car and get her to take you out for a ride.

Q.—Would it be all right for me to have ten gallons now?

A.—Have you stopped to think that ten gallons of gas might be the deciding factor in a vital tank battle at the front?

Q. — Should I make it seven gallons?

A.—Don't you realize that seven gallons of gas might get the valiant men out of a tight spot in India?

Q.—I'll take five.

A.—Do you realize that with war engulfing the whole civilized world every gallon of . . .

Q.—Stop. I get it. Lemme have a half pint!

A.—You're hopeless.

SMALL RIFLES ARE DANGEROUS

At this time of the year those who go into the field for the annual sport of shooting gophers, should bear in mind that there is an element of danger present

"Plinkers" with 22 caliber rifles are cautioned to be extremely careful where they point their gun Some of the more powerful .22 slugs are dangerous to humans and livestock up to a mile When out shooting gophers don't shoot in the direction of farm buildings or any livestock in the pasture

Be sure to carry guns unloaded and taken down or contained in a case when in a car on a public highway

Most farmers are glad to have you shoot the pests . . but don't be a pest yourself!

An old fashioned pop bottle was found by Poisall Brothers while doing excavation work in Reinbeck recently The bottle, found under several feet of earth, is white and thick, with the stopper that was in use many years ago This type of bottle was discontinued some 30 years ago when the pure food law was enacted.

• MORE SNAKES

Garter snakes in some Iowa areas have disappeared as suddenly as they appeared recently and without explanation Some snakes were found in a ditch in front of the home of Mrs. Jennie Hildreth in Summerset In a short time, 26 had been killed by neighbors called to the scene.

• RAG DAY

"Tag Day" has become a common occurrence in most towns. Adel varied it somewhat recently when they had a "Rag Day." In place of collecting waste paper for the day, boys collected old rags, clothing, etc

• IN CODE

A series of odd characters were found on an egg laid by a hen on the Howard Fenton farm near Albia. The characters resembled "L W W 6" Up to the present time no one has deciphered the code.

• MAGNOLIA BLOSSOMS

A magnolia tree, rarely found in this part of the country, is in full bloom on the V G Brownell place in Eldora The tree which is over five feet high has ten large flowers in full bloom, with several other buds about to open Mr Brownell states that the buds are formed in the tree in the fall of the year Another magnolia tree is located in Eldora at the C W Haase home.

• MORE FUN

Jim Endicott, night marshall at Glenwood believed he was being called in line of duty when he was called to a local restaurant one evening last week When he reached the cafe, he found two world war friends, City Auditor Phillip Manner of Council Bluffs and State Patrol Sergeant Clarence B. Day of Marshalltown This was not enough of a crowd, so D N Barnett, another world war friend, was called to "bail out two comrades of war days" Before the evening was over and to help make the event a real "celebration" another man was called to make it really "old soldiers reunion"

• NO TAGS

A number of dogs in Van Buren were either brought into the country this last year, or were reported when they had not been before When county officials ordered dog tags for 1942 only a few more than were sold in 1941 were purchased So many more licenses were applied for that some dogs will have to go without the metal tags this year

• UP IN THE AIR

Warren Ryan, living near Grinnel, made a small model plane so well that it "took wings and flew away" Instead of flying around a few times and landing, it headed northwest and went higher and higher Warren tried to follow it, but soon lost sight of it A reward has been offered by Ryan for the safe return of his small plane

• IOWA CELEBRITY DIES

John S. Pecinovsky, 43, widely known as the "Half and Half Man" and made famous by Ripley, was buried recently at Cresco. About three years ago Pecinovsky, in opening a tavern in Bonair, began his rise to fame through an advertising stunt in which he allowed his beard and hair to grow long only on one side; he dressed clothes which attracted notice from the fact that the right side of each garment was constructed of dark material and the left side in white Tourists came from far and wide to see him.

• CONSOLIDATED BIRTHDAYS

Mr and Mrs. J G Shifflett, of Grinnel were nominated grandparents twice in one night recently when their daughters, Mrs. John Ransom and Mrs Charles W. Wilkinson, gave birth to sons at Community hospital in Grinnell A coincidence of the double blessed event was that the mothers have the same birthdays.

• "GENERAL" STATON

John Staton of Perry, 81, caretaker of Camp Dodge for more than 30 years, probably knows a lot more Iowa fighting men than any one in the state He is the personal friend of General Tinley and Gov Wilson and was on hand recently when the two distiguished men inspected the new Iwa State Guard

• MUSICAL PUBLISHER

Chris Reese, Algona newspaper man and former state senator from Marshall county, revealed himself as talented in other lines also recently when he "made a violin talk" before the Algona Rotary Club. It was brought out later that he had had previously more than four years of weekly appearances with his violin before radio audiences.

• SUPRISE MEETING

Two Clarinda boys, Charles Lee and Wendell Otte, enlisted in different units of the army at different times, met recently in faraway Australia, as members of the U S Army air service They reported they liked everything in Australia except the muton on which they are fed a little too often

• PUNCTURED

A punctured lung and other serious injuries were suffered by Ronald Bock, 9, when he slid down a flagpole of the community grounds in Hinton Prongs at the base of the pole were mainly responsible for Ronald's sojourn in a Sioux City hospital

• CLAY FOR HUMANITY

Modeling clay from Elgin, Iowa is being used by the industrial art classes of Wartburg college, Waverly, Iowa, in sculptured figures of animals and humans, as part of the work of instructing the future teachers 'who can help children to a better understanding of the problems of our modern civilization'

• NOT LAVISH HERE

It was pay day recently for Sigourney councilmen They received exactly $1 per meeting of the council for a whole year, if they attended The result was that three councilmen received $17 total salary, and the others, $16 and $15, and $3 00 Nothing was paid for committee work.

• BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

R. J Galloway of Clear Lake celebrated Hitler's birthday by purchasing $1,000 worth of U S War bonds Galloway bought the bonds, stating: "So we can hit Hitler harder!"

• PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Only once in the history of the establishment of Carlson's Cash Store in Lockridge (and that's 13 years) has the store failed to have an advertisement in its local paper One week only out of 676 was there no ad for the paper. This in itself is quite a record and it speaks for the pulling power of advertising in a weekly paper.

• EDITORIAL COMMENT

Farewell, Seniors, your high school days are nearly to a close and before you lies the great variety of fields which you will be entering with a greater goal ahead

Before, you were guided by parents and teachers, but now some of you will go to the east, some to the west, others to the north and south, and some will stay here in Klemme, to make out your future Each will contribute his or her part to the world as you have to the school Some will make great contributions, and others small

As we leave this school, others will take our places, hardly thinking that we once were students at K H S We, ourselves, after parting on graduation day will never be united as a class again I'm sure, however, each of us has plenty of memories of our dear high school days which will be cherished throughout life.

Our education will not end on high school graduation day for many of us are going to college next year Those who do not will also be learning through life

Let us get as much as possible from our last days of high school as possible

• SENIOR NEWS

We have one chapter left to go in American History, but when we finish with our book, we plan to tudy the constitution of the United States for the remainder of the school year

In Physics we had an experiment of the Wheat Stone Bridge We were to find an unknown resistance when one was given We are now on our own since Mr Onerheim is at the State Music Contest but we hope to accomplish a little by ourselves

We are learning how to make the best possible use of our voice in Public Speaking We are giving twelve minute talks with the use of only a few notes Some of the class have been giving talks about trips and experiences they have had, while others are giving speeches on historical or nature subjects

In Home Economics the girls have learned to mend stockings and to patch Phyllis has completed her red polk-a-dot dress. Arlene Schmidt has finished her striped dress and Betty has her formal all ready for the Junior-Senior Banquet.

• SOPHOMORE NEWS

After finishing our Biology we have started reviewing. We are going through the glossary, learning the spelling and meaning of words.

During the past week we have been learning how to write letters in English We have practiced writing notes of sympathy, apology, thanks, etc.

For Algebra we have been reducing and multiplying fractions, using the four cases we learned.

• FRESHMAN NEWS

We are through with our Business Training course We took our final test Wednesday

In Science we are studying about controlling the body.

The girls in Home Economics are working on projects and studying personal grooming.

We have been reading and writing about short stories for English

This week four from our class attended the State Music Contest at Spencer

• JUNIOR - SENIOR BANQUET

South America, here we come! On May 1st the Seniors of 1942 were invited by the Juniors to a Fiesta in South America The gymnasium was decorated with various articles, lending it a South American atmosphere

The mothers of the Juniors prepared a delicious banquet in South American style. We Juniors wish to take this opportunity to thank our Mothers for their work and devoting their time for our benefit.

GARNER DEFEATS KLEMME 6-1

Tuesday, April 28th, the Shamrocks journeyed to Garner, and were defeated by the Cardinals to the tune of 6-1 Klemme collected five safe blows, while Garner collected 6 hits.

Kaduce, Klemme pitcher struck out six men, while Schneider for Garner struck out ten men.

• PRIMARY NEWS

The first grade finished their book, "Day In and Day Out," and are now reading "Fact and Story Readers"

Several boys and girls brought spring flowers and blossoms to school. We enjoy them very greatly

Thursday was Elaine's seventh birthday and it was also Roger's sixth birthday. Elaine treated us to candy bars and Roger gave us May baskets. The May baskets were very pretty.

Friday was May Basket Day. We all received many pretty May baskets

Graydon Barz visited in our room Thursday afternoon.

This is the first week that first graders have been spelling. The following first graders received a perfect score: Miriam, Garry, Billy, Sharon, Elaine, LuVerne, Larry, and Neva Ann.

The following second graders received 100 per cent in spelling: Maralee, Lucille, Iris, Maxine and Delores

• THIRD AND FOURTH GRADE NEWS

We have been making May baskets in Art. It was fun to deliver them to our friends.

We finished reading 'Little Town On the Prairie," and are reading "Lassie Come Home." It is a very interesting story of a collie dog.

• FIFTH AND SIXTH GRADES

The following people had perfect spelling scores this week: Iris, Maurice, Marjorie, Norma, Irene, Darwin, Donna, Edward, Helen, Rose, William, Ruth, Harold, and Velma. Names on the improvement list included Maurice Ardel, John and Velma.

Donna's eleventh birthday was on Monday. She treated us to candy bars.

May baskets were the vogue in our room Friday.

In Art we are making bird pictures.

We have had many different kinds of spring flowers brought to our room during the past week.

• SEVENTH AND EIGHTH GRADE NEWS

Robert is back in school again this week after a long illness. We are all glad to have him back.

Jimmy went to Spencer as a member of the saxophone quartet to enter the state music contest on Friday.

Several of the girls are making plaques for their mothers in Art class. The boys are working on wood projects.

Jeanne brought us some wood pinks and other wild flowers this week.

Perfect spelling scores for the week were earned by Ruth, Ronald, Lowell, Roger B, Dean, Phyllis, Marcille, Peggy Lou, Elizabeth, Roger R., Lois Ann and Carol.

Last week in Self-Testing drill No. 16 the seventh grade received their highest rating of the year, which was a 10 or excellent for the class. This week our rating was 8½, or good

• CROWS EXPENSIVE

Many Iowa counties have taken action through their boards of supervisors suspending the bounty paid for crows. The reason is the high cost of bounties. Last year Worth county paid out $189 alone to crow killers, and has a record top for three days killing in 1942 of $86

• WOLVES CAUGHT

Eight tiny grey timber wolves were found by Homer Fletcher and Worth Chassain of Lean recently

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of thanking Mrs C. A Arnold for all she had done for Mr. Carlson during the past years. We also want to thank all who contributed flowers, and who assisted at the services.

Baked Potatoes Do Right by Supper
(See Recipes Below)

Supper Social

The simple suppers at which a crowd gathers are pleasant for their warm friendliness, for the cozy talk which they inspire. They are especially easy to give if you plan to have each of your friends bring a dish for the supper — a pot luck, as it were. This will save each woman the time and effort of making a whole meal, and then you will all be together for knitting, sewing or defense work on the calendar for the evening.

An assortment of attractive main dishes are usually received with enthusiasm. Try these for enchanting appetites:

Russet Half Shells.
(Serves 8)

6 medium-sized Idaho bakers
½ cup hot milk
2 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper to taste
1 large onion, chopped and cooked in butter until tender
12 small pork sausages

Scrub and bake potatoes at 400 to 450 degrees. Remove piece of skin from top of potato, or cut large potatoes lengthwise in two. Scrape out inside being careful not to break the shell. Mash thoroughly, or put through a potato ricer. Add butter, salt, pepper, milk and cooked onion. Beat well. Pile mixture lightly into shells, top with two small pork sausages that have been partially cooked (boiled in a small amount of water) Return to oven and bake at 350 degrees until sausages are cooked through and browned.

If you want to provide everything for your pot-luck supper from individuals except the main dish, here is one that will fill the bill perfectly. Simple to put together and as colorful as it sounds, the salmon loaf doesn't need much watching if you are busy with other things:

Salmon Loaf.
(Serves 25)

4 cans salmon
1 quart fresh bread crumbs
3 cups diced celery
2 ounces butter
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon onion juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
8 eggs
1 quart scalded milk
1 40-ounce package frosted peas
2 quarts medium white sauce

Combine salmon, bread crumbs, celery, butter, seasonings. Beat up eggs, add scalded milk Add to salmon mixture Make one or two salmon loaves. Bake in a greased pan placed in hot water at 325 degrees until loaves are firm. Make a green pea sauce by cooking frosted peas for 5 to 8 minutes in boiling salted water. Combine with white sauce. Pour over loaf when serving and slice the loaf.

Whisk any of these baked bean combinations into the oven and you have a quickie dinner dish if you have just hurried home from your defense training courses:

Pork Chops and Baked Beans Casserole. (Serves 6)

6 pork chops
1 large can baked beans
1 teaspoon sugar
½ cup tomato catsup

Fry pork chops until nicely browned on both sides. Pour baked beans over chops, add sugar and catsup. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 20 minutes.

Nothing equals the charm of home-baked, freshly baked bread that fills the surroundings with a delicious fragrance. That's why I give you this recipe for old-fashioned:

Raisin Bread.
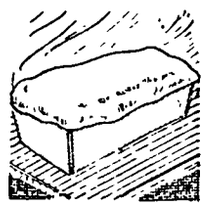
(Makes 2 loaves)

1 package fresh granular yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
½ teaspoon sugar
1 cup scalded milk
2 teaspoons salt
¼ cup brown sugar (solidly packed)
¼ cup corn syrup
5½ to 6 cups (or more) flour
6 tablespoons melted shortening
1½ cups seedless raisins

Pour the granular yeast into the cup of lukewarm water, add the half teaspoon sugar, stir and let stand about 5 minutes. Put the scalded milk, salt, sugar and corn syrup into mixing bowl. Let cool. When milk is lukewarm, add the softened yeast and 3 cups of flour. Mix well, then beat until smooth. Next add the melted (not hot) shortening and enough flour to have the dough cling together in a ball. Add the raisins which have been covered for a few minutes with very hot water, then dried in a cloth, and dusted with flour. Knead the dough thoroughly, adding only enough flour to avoid stickiness Let dough rise in a covered, greased bowl in a moderately warm place (82 to 84 degrees) until doubled. Fold the dough down and let rise about ½ hour, then divide and shape into two loaves. Place in greased bread pans and brush tops with melted shortening. Let rise until doubled. Bake about 50 minutes in a moderately hot oven (375 to 380 degrees) If desired, brush tops with honey just before taking from the oven.



For an in-the-season, centerpiece note, besides its economical aspects, try this A long, low, shallow bowl in pottery or glass such as you may have used for relishes, if large enough use a snow-white cauliflower banked with parsley, eggplant, radishes or tomatoes.

If you like candles for the table, place these in little baking cuts or ramekins, at either side of the vegetable bowl.

A simple setting like this calls for gay, unadorned china and soft or bright plaids in tablecloth and napkins.

Lynn Says:

Laundering Tips· With soap one of our prime, do not waste items, you will want to make the most of every scrap of soap you have. Save the small soap scraps from the bathrooms and kitchen, put them in a soap shaker so you will make use of them in washing dishes.

To have clean clothes even in spite of economical soap usage use your washing machine wisely. Use only just so much water in your machine as the water line indicates and do not overload your machine. Six to eight pounds of dry clothes are about right for the average washing machine.

Mix the soap thoroughly with the water before putting in the clothes. About two inches of soap suds are necessary to do the job up right.

Water temperatures play an important part in laundering. Do not use very hot water for white clothes. For colored clothes, water comfortable to your hand is best. For synthetic silks, woolens, rayons, water should be lukewarm.

MONDAY: THE DAY OF AUTHORITY

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 21:12-22.
GOLDEN TEXT—My house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples.—Isaiah 56:7.

Modern presentations of Christ in picture and sermon often give the impression that He was an effeminate man who went about doing gentle little deeds of kindness. One almost feels that He spoke in a half whisper and that He fearfully avoided the difficulties and dangers of life.

Such a picture of Christ, whether in words or on canvas, was never obtained from the Bible. Yes, He was gentle and kind; He did go about doing good, He was altogether humble—but why give the false impression that gentleness means weakness, kindness means a sentimental softness, etc These are the virtues of a strong man and such was our Christ. He was a manly man who so excited the admiration of the boys in the temple that they shouted a holy "Hurrah" (Hosanna—in Hebrew).

On Monday as our Lord came into the city He saw and dealt with the fruitless fig tree and later in the day He cleansed the temple. This seems to be the order of the events (see Mark 11) and we will so consider them.

I. Jesus Stimulates Faith by an Act of Judgment (vv. 18-22).

In the morning as Jesus returned to Jerusalem, He was hungry. He had probably spent the night in prayer after His time of fellowship with the disciples (Mark 11.11). It was early spring, and normally not the time for figs to be ready to eat, but He saw a tree which already had foliage on it. Since the leaves form after the fruit, He properly looked for figs—green, perhaps, but even so useable for food—and there were none.

In a swift miracle of judgment, He condemned the tree, which soon withered. Some have assumed that He acted in anger, but that is evidently not so. His act was a sign to Israel and to us. The fig tree was a figure of Israel (see Hosea 9:10, Joel 1:7, Luke 13:6-9). They as a nation had the outward signs of fruit, that is, the "leaves" of temple worship, teaching of the law, etc., but there was no fruit of repentance and faith, of real love for God (see Rom. 2:17-23). Judgment was certain, and our Lord cursed a useless, fruitless tree to try to awaken the people to their need.

So our Lord comes to us—to look below the foliage of Christian profession, of our charities and benevolences, of our correct doctrinal views—to see if there is any fruit of real Christian living. How often He must turn away in sadness because there is none.

This miracle was not only a sign of judgment, it was used by our Lord to stimulate the disciples' faith. What they had seen was only an indication of what faith (and note it was their faith) could do The promise of God to those who, abiding in Christ and with His Word abiding in their heart, ask according to His will, in faith nothing doubting, is without limit.

II. Jesus Stimulates Praise by an Act of Authority (vv 12-17).

For a second time He drove out from His Father's house those who had made it a place of merchandise, of commercialized thievery. This is a majestic picture The Son of God and Son of Man steps into the center of this unholy traffic and with mighty, holy indignation (not anger) drives it out. The people who had suffered long because of this religious racket, which paid a nice "cut" to the priests themselves (probably as a "gift" even as such things are managed in our day), were jubilant.

The boys who were in the temple (for such is doubtless the meaning of "children" in v 15) were so delighted at this magnificent exercise of His divine authority that they broke out into "Hosannas," which, as we have suggested, were really a holy "Hurrah." Well, why not? Hurrah for our Lord! He will not tolerate iniquity even though it hides under the cloak of religion. He is not afraid to speak out and to act against sin and corruption. Possibly the church would reach a good many more men and boys in our day if it would step out in faith to fight the wrong and support the right. Then maybe the young men would shout, "Hurrah for the church," instead of some of the things they are saying.

The chief priests and scribes were "sore displeased" (v. 15) both by the acts of Jesus and the praise of the boys. They would be! And they have a host of descendants who hold places of authority today—yes, even in the church—who would be much displeased if such things were to happen now. But why fear them? Is it not high time that the people of God honored their Lord both by faith and good works, regardless of what men may say? Ought we not to please God rather than men (see Acts 5:29 and Ps. 56:4)?

OF THE PRESS

● Manufacturers and merchants sense the power of the press. Early they began using it to carry their advertising facts and ideas into homes. And they found it a most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers. And the buyers in turn found it profitable to deal with those who were willing to state in print the values and services they offered.

DATE SET FOR METHODIST VACATION CHURCH SCHOOL

The Klemme Methodist Vacation Church School will be conducted from May 25th to June 12th at the Methodist Church The Vacation Church School is a unique opportunity for progressive religious education, and is an excellent place to teach children the essentials of Christian character This school just about doubles the time for Christian nurture under the direction of very able teachers

The committee on V C S has chosen the following courses to be used in the respective departments Kindergarten, "Our Happy Word" Primary, "Bible Homes and Homes Today"

Junior, "Discovering the Lands of the Bible"

Intermediate, "Come, Let Us Worship"

We earnestly solicit the cooperation of the parents to see that the children get here We cannot help them if they stay away. It is hoped that every boy and girl in the community will find a place in the church, and if they do no attend another Bible School we cordially invite them to come here regardless of race, creed or denomination Help us help the boys and girls to become better citizens and better Christians

• ALMOST MISSED TRAIN

Eleven first and second grade Allison students nearly missed what to most was their first train ride The youngsters and their teacher went to Waverly in automobiles to visit a condensed milk plant They missed connections in Waverly and the disappointed children thought they would have to return home in the cars However the drivers were able to catch the train at Shell Rock, so the youngsters were given a joyful ride home

• NEW SPORT

Some Wartburg college students went fishing and deposited some of their catch into the goldfish pond around the fountain in the center of the campus. "Permission" was given to remove the fish Instead of the traditional line, a pipe-wrench was used to "catch" the fish Wartburg college is located in Waverly.

COUNCIL PROMISES ACTION ON STREET OILING

At their meeting Monday night the street committee of the town Council had made no definite investigation on oiling the streets of Klemme.

However, they stated that they would have a definite report to make within a week.

Last August about seventy property owners in Klemme petitioned the council to oil the streets in order to hold down the dust.

The dusty season is now close at hand and the work should be done soon to be effective.

FIRST AID

RED CROSS FIRST AID COURSE TO BE GIVEN HERE

Plans are being made to hold a Red Cross First Aid Course here in the near future.

Both men and women are eligible to take the training in First Aid and it is hoped that a class of fifty will be enrolled.

In order to determine the supplies needed, it is necessary that all who are interested must register. . Those who successfully complete the course will be given a certificate by the Red Cross.

Those interested can register at the Wellemeyer Store Friday and Saturday of this week.

Much of the food of raccoons is secured far from water, and consequently the animals do not always wash it

MISS MARGIE BLUMER BRIDE OF MR. RAYMOND WILLE

Marriage Ceremony Took Place At Reformed Church Tuesday

A quiet wedding took place at the Klemme Reformed Church on Tuesday afternoon, May 12th at 1:00 o'clock, when Miss Margie Blumer became the bride of Mr Raymond Wille.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch, who used the double ring ritual

The bride was attended by Miss Arlene Wille, a friend, and cousin of the groom. Mr Aaron Wille, brother of the groom, was the best man.

The bride wore a blue crepe dress, and the bridesmaid wore a pink crepe dress and both wore corsages of gardinias. The men wore blue-green suits and wore boutoniers.

Mrs. Wille is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs Walter Blumer. She graduated from the Klemme high school in 1940, and has since been at home.

The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wille. He graduated in 1938 and has since farmed.

The couple are on a honeymoon trip to Wisconsin and on their return will be guests of honor at a reception to be held at the Community Hall Sunday afternoon.

KLEMME LEGION AUXILIARY MEETING HELD MAY 5

The Ladies Auxiliary of Klemme met at the hall on Tuesday evening, May 5th and voted to buy a $75 00 war bond, and to donate $10 to the Navy Relief fund.

Fruit or flowers were sent to all the aged mothers of Auxiliary members for Mother's Day and cards were sent to all Auxiliary mothers.

Plans for Poppy Day were discussed and poppies will be sold in Klemme on Saturday, May 23rd.

Lunch was served by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jost, and Mr. and Mrs. David Schwichtenberg.

SATURDAY, MAY 23 IS ANNUAL POPPY DAY IN KLEMME

Wear A Poppy And Help A World War Veteran

Poppies of patriotic remembrance will again bloom in Klemme and throughout the nation on Saturday, May 23, according to the Poppy Sale Chairman of the local unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, it was announced today

Every man, woman, and child in Klemme and surrounding community will be asked to wear a poppy on that day in honor of the men who have given their lives for America. The poppies will be distributed by volunteer workers from the Auxiliary and the coins contributed for them will be used in Legion and Auxiliary work for the war disabled, their families, and the families of the dead.

Making the little red flowers has given many veterans employment during the winter and spring months. The work is limited to men receiving but little or no government compensation and those with families to support.

Contributions received for the poppies on Poppy Day are a principal source of support for the vast welfare work carried out by the Legion and Auxiliary among the disabled men and dependent families. With the new war adding to America's list of war victims, there will be greatly increased need for funds during the coming year.

Poppy Day has been observed by the Legion and Auxiliary annually for the past 20 years. With the nation again at war, the poppy has new significance this year and will be worn as a symbol of patriotism by millions of Americans throughout the country.

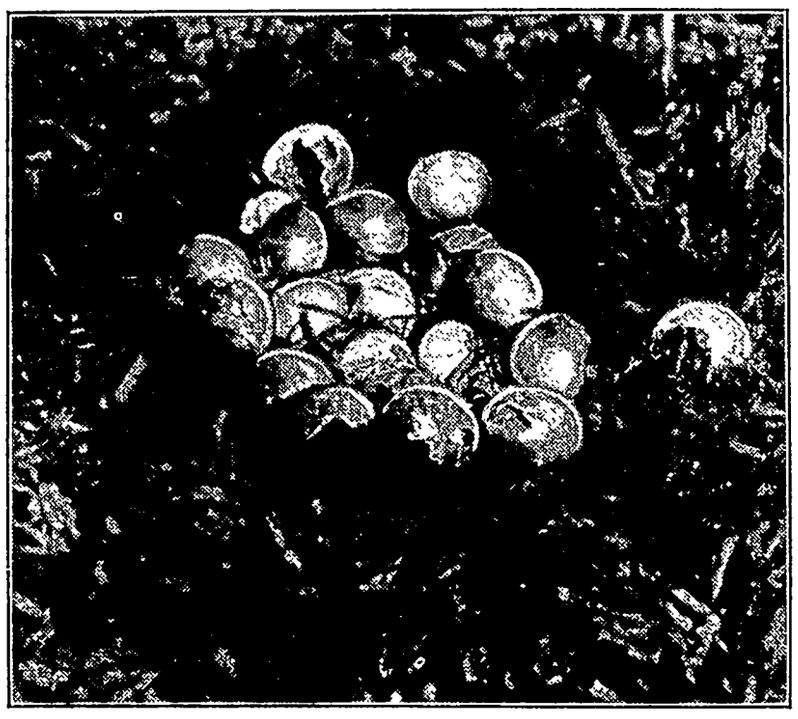
Please Don't Burn!



Nest Of 19 Pheasant Eggs Destroyed By Late Spring Burning

Research proves that spring burning does not improve pasture or hay land. In fact, fire destroys the organic matter which the soils are enriched. Late spring burning is particularly bad from a game standpoint. At this time of year almost every grassland fire burns alive nests of helpless baby rabbits. Those same grasslands harbor the nests of ground-nesting birds, and even a fast-moving fire will invariably destroy the nest and its contents. Don't burn, especially during May and June.

War Production Board Tells How to 'Dress for Victory'

Waste Eliminated Through Freezing of Current Styles.

Men and women, designers and manufacturers, seem to have agreed already that the War Production board's orders covering the use of materials in the manufacture of clothing are "not so bad." The average citizen in wartime will bear no resemblance whatever to the pitiably clothed figure pictured in recent cartoons. The changes will not be noticeable for a while, as they do not affect the garments already manufactured for spring and summer wear. And even in the fall they will not offer any great departure from present fashions, as drastic style change is one of the things the WPB is most eager to avoid.

The purpose of "freezing" current styles is to eliminate waste, both by cutting down the amount of material used and by discouraging the tendency to discard clothes that are not the "latest style." Our country's needs will set the styles from now on, and it will be patriotic to conform to them. But don't throw away that dress just because it has pockets or pleats. Wear it out. And don't rush to the stores and do panic shopping. There will be enough for everyone if no one takes more than his share. Hoarding wool or silk is as bad as hoarding sugar or rubber.

Simplification of styles and colors of women's sweaters and other garments worn during the First World war reduced the quantity of wool used in these textiles by one-third, enough to provide cloth for 900,000 uniforms. Also eliminated during that era were 5,500 styles of rubber footwear. Shoe colors were reduced from an approximate hundred to only three, black, white and a single shade of tan. Result? A saving in leather, dyes, boxes, shipping space, labor and transportation.

Through conservation and prevention measures, the order is expected to make possible the production of at least 15 per cent more garments out of the same yardage. Some conception of WPB economies may be obtained from the fact that the elimination of cuffs from some 19,500,000 pairs of trousers will make available enough wool cloth to manufacture 300,000 suits.

Men Affected Least.

Men and women alike are affected by the WPB s orders, but the men will probably "feel the pinch" a little less, as their styles have never been subject to as radical changes as have the women's The new trend merely keeps them in line with the more conservative styles of past years

Men in wartime will wear suits stripped of patch pockets, fancy backs, belts and pleats The absence of cuffs on the trousers will be no more noticeable than on military uniforms, while restrictions on width will affect only the "extra wide" trouser styles. Shortening of the inseam will not result in shorter trousers but will account merely for the three inches ordinarily used in making cuffs.

Trousers usually are delivered from the manufacturer to the retailer without cuffs and are finished for the customer after purchase. The WPB order forbids any person to tailor cuffs upon trousers, and this prohibition, involving severe penalties, applies all the way from the manufacturer, retailer and custom tailor, to the consumer's wife.

This means that many trousers, made before the order went into effect, will be long enough to permit cuffs Other trousers, made under the new regulations, still may possess enough yardage for cuffs, due to variations in customers sizes. The law expressly prohibits any such use of the extra material. Arrangements have been made for the American Red Cross to act as a central clearing agency, receiving the wool clips obtained from cutting off the cuff material and returning them for reprocessing. From the 19,500,000 trousers now on hand, material for 300,000 suits could be obtained in this way, according to the WPB.

Specifications Listed.

The consumer's wife, on the other hand, will be left more or less free to use her own judgment when she makes clothes for herself. So far no restrictions have been placed on pattern makers. Women, too, will be free to wear what they can buy. It will not be necessary for them to take the complete WPB list of restrictions with them when purchasing apparel, for whatever is for sale in the stores is patriotic to buy. The stores and the manufacturers are responsible for compliance.

Women are watching without a tear as frills and furbelows are slashed from the fashion picture. Deprived of voluminous skirts, billowing sleeves, flowing drapes and most of the little "feminine touches" so dear to their hearts, they are ready to wear and to enjoy wearing fashions that are low in priorities, high in patriotism.

Inasmuch the the WPB-decreed streamlined simplicity is not just a mere style note but a federal law, the American woman's victory wardrobe will include the following essential restrictions on all garments, producing fashions to wear as a badge of honor.

Dresses manufactured after April 9 cannot be sold with a jacket, bolero, cape, coat or redingote at a unit price.

No double material yokes.

No fabrics which have been reduced from normal width or length by all-over tucking, shirring, pleating, except for minor trimmings.

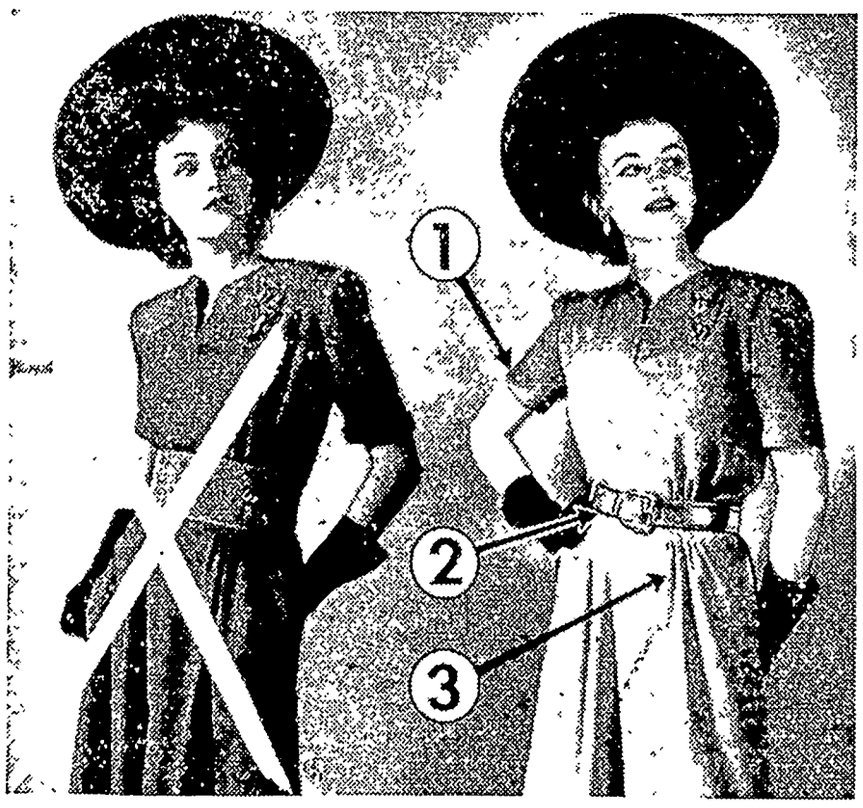
Interlinings containing any virgin wool or reprocessed wool cannot be woven after April 9.

No wool evening wraps.

Plaid sleeves cannot be cut on the bias.

No dress sleeves wider than 14 inches in circumference for a size 16; proportionate sleeve measurements for other sizes.

No over-skirts or aprons for evening dresses.



The dress to the left in the above illustration does not conform to the specifications ordered by the War Production board. It is "out" for the duration. The dress to the right, with its cuffless sleeves (1), narrow belt (2) and only slightly shirred waistline (3) is in accordance with the WPB specifications. Under the new ruling normal fullness is permissible, but not all-over tucking or shirring, or any other unnecessary use of material in trimming.

Clothing Manufacturers Can Still Get Good Fabrics

Suits and coats in general will be made of softer but serviceable fabrics employing larger quantities of reprocessed or reused wool, cotton and rayon mixtures Although hard fabrics wear well and retain their shape, they are apt to become soiled and shiny more quickly than soft woolens The government has asked woolen manufacturers to weave fabrics that will give the same elements of wear and shape-retention as previously.

The consumer division points out that the OPA has set price ceilings at the wholesale level on wool products from the "pulled" stage through worsted yarns. Shoppers should question unreasonable markups over the retail counter Before purchasing they should consult the label which the law says must be attached to each garment, and find out the amount of new, reprocessed or reused wool and the amount of other fibers in the fabric.

Evelyn Caroll's "The Army and Navy Have It," written for Charm magazine, tells very simply the feminine contributions to the cause.

The silk that once was two-thread hose,
Lastex that once was your girdle,
The zipper that used to connect your clothes,
Cannot jump priorities' hurdle.

Peroxide that once made your tresses gold
Curlers that made them wavy,
Hairpins that had such a good strong hold
Now go to the army and navy.

Lipstick cases are ammunition
Corset stays travel with tanks
Not a single complaint, nor suspicion
Of hoarders will damage our ranks.

Bombers 'Speak';

The American airmen finally delivered a message which Tokyo understands. Not from an inkwell, but from a bomb rack.

The American fliers reminded Japan that the open city of Manila was not a closed grave—but an open wound.

London, Warsaw, Shanghai and Nanking are avenged because the burning sea of Pearl Harbor is still burning in American hearts.

Japan is entitled to receive what she gave Japn gave no warning at Hawaii and she gave no mercy at Bataan. These are cruel words, but these are cruel times. The blazing cities of the Axis nations are the only lighthouses to civilization. The way to bring peace to our cities is to bring war to theirs. The foundation for international justice must be dug with 2,000-pound bombs.

This is the lesson they have asked for and we must drive it home with bayonets: Where our planes can fly, our armies will march. And where our armies can march, their dictators will kneel.

IMPORTING COTTON?

For years the United States has had a huge surplus of cotton. The idea of importing cotton seemed fantastic. Yet that is exactly what is about to be done, as the latest development in the Good Neighbor policy.

Oscar Johnson, leading Mississippi cotton planter and former official of the AAA, will go to South America to buy surplus cotton from Peru and Brazil. He carries a checkbook of the Commodity Credit corporation, whose funds for domestic and foreign crop purchases amount to $4,000,000,000.

Both Peru and Brazil are suffering severely from loss of foreign markets. Brazil's cotton was sold in Europe, Peru's to Japan. Both Latin American countries wholeheartedly backed the United States at the Rio conference and now Uncle Sam is returning the favor.

For some time, department of agriculture officials, fearful of outcries from the cotton belt, were timid about buying foreign cotton. They thought they might get away with purchases for storage in South America—but not for imports into the U. S.

But two agriculture officials—John B. Hudson, president of Commodity Credit, and Sam Bledsoe, aide to Secretary Claude Wickard — conceived the smart idea of putting the plan squarely up to southern congressmen, with Oscar Johnson as the choice for buyer.

This worked like a charm. Cotton congressmen have full confidence in Johnson, and they even approved importing some cotton, especially the long staple variety from Peru, which does not directly compete with U. S. cotton.

Meantime, plans are being made to purchase other Latin American agricultural surpluses, including beef and vegetable oils. But Argentina, which is suffering more than any other country, will get no U. S. help while President Castillo remains on the neutrality fence.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

President Roosevelt has indicated to Democratic chiefs who urged him to tour the country, that he may take a transcontinental trip this summer—if the war permits. Democratic candidates facing tough election battles are eager to have him visit their states. Also the President long has wanted to inspect several army camps and war production centers.

HOPKINS LOOKS AT WAR

Following his trip to England, Harry Hopkins is giving close friends a very optimistic picture about the war situation.

He is convinced that Hitler is really alarmed at the tough resistance of the Russians, the growing war strength of the United States, and the fear of an invasion on the European continent.

One of Hitler's greatest weaknesses, Hopkins believes, is manpower. German industry has done a great job hitherto. But now with an increasing drain on both industry and the German army, the tremendous losses at the Russian front are having a definite effect.

To his close friends, Harry Hopkins is known as one of the most optimistic men in the administration. But even discounting this natural optimism, other war chiefs in a position to know seem to have a fairly bright look in their eyes recently.

It will be a long time before we can begin to do any real crowing, for the situation in the Near East is almost as sour as the very, very sour situation in India. It does look, however, as if the spring had definitely brightened the war picture.

MUSSOLINI'S DOTAGE

Inside word brought back from Italy by those in the know gives a desolate picture of Benito Mussolini. He has been pretty well isolated from the war command and from direction of the government, both of which are dictated, directly or indirectly, by Nazis.

Mussolini has gone in for reminiscing on his younger days when he was a militant young socialist, part of the time exiled in Switzerland.

He has even sent for his old socialist friends, including some previously exiled to France. And they have sat around talking about the good old days when they were young.

Maybe this is insanity. Maybe it is just getting back to sanity after 20 long years of delusions of grandeur.

POWER PROBE

A powerful lobby is again back on the Washington scene.

Driven out of the capital a few years ago by the blasting investigation of Justice Hugo Black, then U. S. senator from Alabama, the utility forces have quietly resumed their undercover pressure operations.

Inquiries at this office elicited the explanation that the purpose of the power interests was to "facilitate co-operation with the government in the war effort."

ccess of Dairy Union Effected by Price Parity

rm Authority Believes That 'John L. Lewis Will Frighten Every Farmer Into Solid Attacking Front.'

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

U Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

ohn L. Lewis, head of the United e Workers of America, is well the road to uniting the farmers America, but not all in the way planned to when he started to anize his United Dairy Workers er the famous "district 50" of powerful UMW.

hat is the verdict of a friend of he in Washington, an official who spent his days with farmers and m organization heads and his hts sleeping with the "farm prob- " throughout most of his adult rs. He believes that John Lewis, trying to unionize agriculture, conjured up a devil that will hten every farmer into a solid acking front ately the return of gentle parity the land had begun to have disintegrating effect on the farm- . Their long-sought goal reached, y began to turn back to their arate interests.

"The farmer won't lay down his e and pick up a pen and sign mbership in something unless ngs are going pretty bad. When can manage to make both ends et he keeps his eye on the fur- , takes care of his own acres follows the old New England tto that 'good fences make good ghbors.' In other words, he is original rugged individualist."

T·at is the way my friend put it me. I was complaining that I uldn't get any definite informa- n as to their plans out of the m group representatives on this ve on the part of Lewis to try to anize the dairy industry. The ies of the meetings the group resentatives were holding in shington was pretty much behind sed doors.

"They won't talk about their ns," my friend explained, "be- use they don't know what to do. s an absolutely new thing in the erican history of the men whose siness it is to make a living out the soil and domestic animals— e idea of making a union out of pitalists. They don't know how meet it Personally, I don't think ws will have any success. What erests me is that his efforts are ey to bring the farmers together n, the way they were brought gether in the thirties, when Amer- a lost its export market for farm oducts, or for that matter the y they were brought together by e old Granger movement clear k in the seventies. It takes de- r to unite the farmers. When erica started to change from a rely agricultural country to a mi-industrial country the farmer d to unite to get his rights. Ever nce then there have been farm or- nizations but it takes a real crisis e the one in the thirties to really ng them together."

I asked him why he thought ewis would fail.

"It's been the history of every fort to make a union between city orkers and farmers that after the rmers sign up they find the work- s are running them," he said. They are suspicious."

I have no doubt that a number of airymen have signed up. I have o idea how many and I can't find ut. But they are the men who st can't make ends meet. They e the ones who haven't been le to run their farms productively else they are located so that their ansportation costs cut their prof- s to losses. In other words, they aven't been able to keep their costs wn. Lewis will have to offer them mething He can't very well omise to boost consumer prices at time when price ceilings are in e offing. I have received a number of let- ers protesting against the Presi- ent's suggestion that this war be alled the "Survival War." The riters do not issue with the argu- ent that this is a struggle for the urvival of one of two cultures, two ypes of thinking, but because the hrase "survival of the fittest" hich means the fittest physically.

That may be a sound criticism. I do not contest it. But one thing is certain: We have to be more than physically fit to survive this war. I think we are turning out well-trained soldiers, equal to cope with any enemy in strength, endurance and alertness. But there is no doubt that the nation has been coddling itself during the last few years. The letters I get from many well-meaning people with suggestions of what to do for the soldiers make me think that this idea of coddling is pretty deep. What the soldiers need most of all is not sweetmeats and goodies, but the assurances that the folks back home have faith that the cause is worth fighting for; and that the fighters are worthy of the cause —that it is a duty to protect your country and not simply an unpleasant sacrifice.

I think that kind of an expression is the one that does the soldier's heart the most good. I know that the only letters which I received in the last war that annoyed me were the ones which told me what deep sympathy the writer had for my many hardships, how I must be brave and bear it all, that my loved ones were so impressed with all that I was going through.

I was reading over some of my war letters the other day. I recall the two things in them which helped me most. One was my mother's remarks that my "new life" as she called it, might help me spiritually. She never characterized what I was doing as better or worse; she never discussed it in military terms, or the painfully inadequate terms in which a civilian tries to describe what he or she thinks military experience is. My mother suggested that perhaps "my new career would give me a deeper meaning of life."

That gave me something to think about.

The other kind of letter I liked to get was from my father with things like this in it: "If you have to sleep on the ground hollow out a place for your hips. Then you won't be stiff in the morning." Or "remember this, obey your officers but try to make friends with the sergeant."

Cakes and cookies are nice but they get pretty well bashed up and you have to open them in the presence of some hundred other guys so nobody gets enough. Coddling the stomach doesn't help one's intestinal stamina.

Thousands of girls have come here to work. They didn't have to come. They are getting so well paid that girls in private offices quit and go with the government. But the papers are full of long, tearful articles about how the poor things are so homesick they can't stand it. They haven't enough boy friends to amuse them. All in all they have a terrible lot.

A series of highly thoughtful meetings were held recently by some anxious people in this vicinity where 80 per cent of the civilians employed by the army in the last five months have been women. When the army and navy auxiliaries are founded a lot more men will be replaced by women. So it makes Washington society slightly bogged down on the distaff side.

"We can't create men," said one employee's service officer, tersely.

The answer to that of course is, "well, not immediately."

"The men exist," another official interested in the happiness of government employees delicately suggested, "but the problem is to present them to the girls in as normal a way as possible and without patronizing anybody."

Back in Colonial days it was different. Women were so scarce that when a boatload arrived there was heavy bidding and many a bale of tobacco had to be offered for a good wife. Since then, however, in most communities I think the supply has at least equalled the demand. And yet somehow the ladies used to get by without pining away and dying.

But now it's problem—a national problem in the national capital—and maidens are languishing for dates because nobody can figure out how to "present the boys to the girls without being patronizing."

Does that make it a "survival" war, too?

Propaganda

After a long and careful study and analysis of German propaganda, the experts tell us that Hitler wants us to believe that:

Democracy is dying.

Our armed forces are weak.

The "New Order" is inevitable.

Our West coast is in such grave danger there is no point in fighting on.

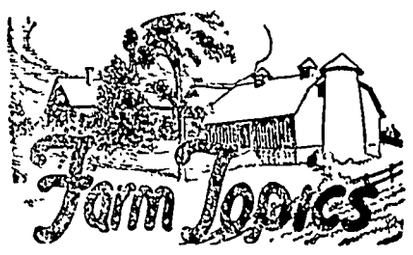
The British are decadent, and "sold us a bill of goods."

The cost of the war will bankrupt the nation.

BRIEFS:

The Poles have now returned to he forms of underground fighting sed by them under the oppression f Czarist Russia Now they are aid to have a greater centralized uthority and more detailed plan- ing. Many forbidden newspapers re published. Many German sol- iers and officers disappear.

WPA community recreation proj- cts are being suspended during the ar because 95 per cent of their ersonnel are engaged in war work.



Dairy Production Climbing Steadily

Fluid Milk Consumption In Cities Is Still Off

Combined production of cheese, creamery butter, and condensed and evaporated milk in the United States in 1941 exceeded the 1940 output by 7 per cent. The January, 1942, production of these dairy foods was 9.6 per cent greater than in January, 1941, according to Ohio State university rural economists.

The 1942 production goals for dairy products call for approximately 12 per cent greater production than was obtained in 1941. The required increase in cheese and concentrated milk can be secured by a 7 per cent increase in all manufactured dairy products if some of the total production is shifted from creamery butter to the concentrated forms

Courtesy U S Department of Agriculture.

Wisconsin Dairy Queen Miss Ruth Krumheuer, knows of the dairy benefits obtained from the modern, well-tinned pail which she is holding. The two weeks' old Holstein calf looks like a coming winner, too.

Need Will Be Met.

Creamery butter made up approximately 70 per cent of all manufactured dairy products in 1941, so any significant diversion of milk from the manufacture of butter will meet the needs for more milk to be made into cheese or to be condensed or evaporated. The production of dried milk in 1941 was less than the 1940 production, but a larger share of the total was prepared for human consumption.

The consumption of fluid milk in cities has not increased at the rate expected. Increased payrolls and greater quantities of milk available do not induce urban citizens to consume the amount of milk needed for adequate diets.

Rural economists believe that the best interests of the dairy industry at present require a definite policy as to price and of quantities of products to be purchased and stored, if increased production is to be maintained with the least expenditure of productive facilities.

Tractor Trouble Advice

If the farm tractor lacks pep, better check up on valves and valve mechanism. If there is rebound on each compression stroke when the engine is cranked slowly, the valves are closing properly. Lack of compression means waste of fuel and loss of power.

Sticky Valves.

Lack of compression in the farm tractor may be caused by sluggish or sticky engine valves. Engineers say this cause of power and fuel waste can often be remedied with a little kerosene. Start the engine, and after it has idled a while apply kerosene to the valve stems so that it works down between the stems and the guides.

Adjusting Discs.

To prevent overloading the farm tractor, adjust the size of discs and disc plows to the power of tractors. If less draft is desired, the width of cut may be reduced or one or more discs may be removed. In operating in hard ground, weights should be used at the rear and front furrow wheels rather than on top of the frame or beam.

Leaves Show Soil Needs

Through methods developed by horticulturists at the Pennsylvania State college it may be possible in the future to determine the soil requirements of crops by foliar or leaf diagnosis.

For instance, plants may become sickly as a result of too much of a certain fertilizing material in relation to the supply of others, or because of a shortage of certain other soil foods, according to a bulletin from that university.

GAS RATIONING

Within a few weeks automobile driving will be "by card only." It will no longer be a question of where you will go for your Sunday auto trip, but how?

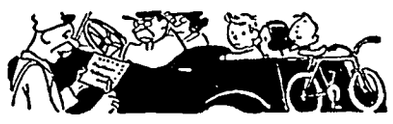
Week-end motor trips are to become short distance affairs, and on any summer vacation trip by sedan a bicycle strapped on the back will be compulsory equipment.



Americans have become accustomed to pile into the old boiler, step on the gas and keep driving until the family took pity or the car hit a tree. "Fill 'er up!" have long been the three most common words in the language. And it is going to be quite an experience for the average man to realize that even his detours are being rationed.

Guns must get priorities over joyrides and no real American will question the justice of putting bombers, tanks and warships ahead of hot brakes, hot dogs and hot radiators.

We have driven by ear, by intuition, by habit and by orders, but driving by card will be a new experience.

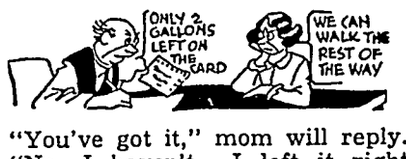
It will not be a question of how many miles does she give to the gallon, but how many gallons does she get to the card.

* * *

"Well," we can hear mom saying Sunday morning, "where will we go for a ride today?"

"Look at the ration card and see," we can hear pop reply.



"You've got it," mom will reply. "No, I haven't. I left it right there on the table so you could all make your Sunday plans accordingly."

"It's only got two punches left," sister Susie will observe as she examines it.

"Then that's as far as we'll go," dad will snap.

"How far can we go on two punches?" little Edgar will ask.

"That will get us just about enough gasoline for one bathing beach, four all-hots and two arguments with a motorcycle cop," dad will explain.

And a motorist already has to carry so many cards there will be serious complications. He is practically a walking card case right now. Once he empties his pockets it is hard to tell whether he is a motorist or a fortune teller.

However, war is war, and from now on most auto trips will be demitasse travels. And if you are an autoist disposed to squawk, forget it. Just think about the luck of the poor fellow who just bought a rural tavern, a roadside lunch or one of those tourist camps. Oh, man!

STITCH WELTING TO SIDE PIECES
PRESS SEAM BACK
STITCHES HIDDEN BY WELTING
SIDE PIECE

THE covering of many chintz chairs today is hand sewn to the chair padding. Such covers have trim lines and may be ripped off easily for cleaning or washing. The sketch at the lower left shows how covered cord welting is basted and stitched to outside pieces of the cover which have been cut on the chair with an accurate seam allowance. When the seam edges have been pressed back the piece is pinned on and sewn with matching heavy duty thread, as at the lower right.

NOTE: Clip and keep this article as this sketch is not in any of the homemaking booklets prepared by Mrs. Spears for our readers. ALL-BRAN FUDGE SQUARES—BEST YOU EVER TASTED!

Every mother in the land will want to bake these scrumptious cookies. Children will demolish a plate of them in a wink. Grown-ups rave about their "different" taste and new crunchy texture. They're made, of course, with the famous cereal, Kellogg's All-Bran.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN FUDGE SQUARES

3 squares unsweetened chocolate	1 cup sugar
⅓ cup butter	⅔ cup flour
2 eggs	½ cup All-Bran
	½ cup nutmeats
	1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Melt chocolate over hot water and add butter. Beat eggs well, add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add melted chocolate and butter. Stir in flour, All-Bran, chopped nutmeats and flavoring. Pour into greased pan, making a layer about one-third inch thick. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 20 minutes. Yield Sixteen 2-inch squares (8 x 8 inch pan).

• FRESHMAN NEWS

This week we started studying about health in Business Training Mr Patterson gave each of us an individual pamplet with hints for good health. Each day he tells us how to administer First Aid.

In English we read short stories for the first part of the week. We then started talking about radio programs We wrote on unusual themes for Frday

Because of the sugar rationing program, we had no school Monday and Tuesday afternoon. We all enjoyed this.

We studied the work of controlling the body this week in general science

• PRIMARY NEWS

The second grade have finished their Social Science books and are now reading the "Webster's Readers." We are keeping a Weather Chart in Science Class. The warmest day so far this week was Friday.

Friday was Melborne's birthday He was six years old. He treated us to candy bars.

The children had a vacation two afternoons this week while the teachers helped with the sugar rationing.

The first and second grade had a Peanut Shower on Miss Hardcopf Friday afternoon. We all had lots of peanuts to eat.

The following first graders received 100% in Spelling every day this past week Sharon, Neva Ann, Billy, Garry, Miriam, Elaine, and Luverne

The following second graders received 100% in Spelling the past week Maxine, Delores, Lucille and Marolee.

• THIRD AND FOURTH GRADE NEWS

We had two nice surprises in our room Friday In the morning we received a letter from Jacqualea Steffen, and Friday afternoon she visited in our room. We were glad to see her again

Thursday afternoon we had a Peanut Shower for Miss Guelff. It was fun and we helped her eat the peanuts

Merlin, Luella, Willis, Jacqualea, La Nelle, Joan, Nancy, Norene, and Beverly received perfect scores in spelling this week.

• FIFTH AND SIXTH GRADES

Miss Irvine has finished reading the book "Little Town on the Prairie." We liked it the best of all of the Laura Ingalls Wilder books that she has read to us.

We had two birthdays in our room this week Marjorie's was on Wednesday, and Maurice's was on Friday. They treated us to candy bars.

Irene, Norma and Helen brought bouquets of lilacs for our room.

Perfect Spelling scores on Friday were earned by Norma, Marjorie, Maurice, Isabelle, Iris, De Vera, Darwin, Donna, Edward, Harold, Rose, Ruth, and Esther. Improvement was shown by Isabelle, Esther and De Vera.

Perfect Close for a Meal—Apricot Jelly Roll
(See Recipes Below)

Mother-Daughter Luncheon

Once a year it is becoming for Daughter to don the cook's cap and uniform and come out with a whole meal cooked to please Mother. And the day Mother appreciates it most is on her day of the year—Mother's day! So, today, I've planned a menu which even the youngest cooks can make into a glorified meal to which they can invite their mothers.

Now, young cooks, on your toes if you would gather laurels at Mother's day luncheon time! Bring out the measuring cups and ingredients, first. Then read the recipes over several times and visualize each step before you start. Ready? Good.

Your first course—served in small glass cups with a sprig of mint, if you can get it—will stimulate the appetites and brighten the table:

Fruit Cup.
(Serves 8)

3 oranges, peeled
1 grapefruit, peeled
1 pint strawberries, hulled
2 bananas

Section the oranges and grapefruit. Peel the bananas and dice. Mix with fruit sections. Sprinkle lemon juice over the fruit, sweeten to taste. Let stand and chill. When ready to serve, place in fruit cups.

Eggs are plentiful now because the government asked farmers to have their hens work overtime to increase egg production that they might be sent abroad and have enough for home use.

So, bring out the eggs and their surplus of nutrition to menus by choosing one of these two recipes for your main luncheon dish. Eggs are noted for the facility with which they can be cooked, and there is but one major rule to follow in cooking them: use as little heat as possible to get a tender product.

(Serves 6-8)

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons of flour
2 cups hot milk
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
½ tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
½ tablespoon chopped pimiento
6 hard cooked eggs
½ cup sliced, cooked mushrooms

Melt the butter, add the flour and stir until smooth. Combine with hot milk. Let cook eight minutes over hot water (in a double boiler). Stir with egg beater. Add onion, green pepper, pimiento, sliced eggs and mushrooms. Let cook five minutes. Serve hot on buttered toast.

Eggs a la Rockefeller.
(Makes 1 serving)

1 slice bread
1 thick slice tomato
1 soft cooked egg
2 tablespoons cheese sauce
Parsley

Toast the bread slightly and spread thinly with butter. Place the slice of tomato on the bread, then on the tomato, put the soft boiled egg. Over this pour the cheese sauce and garnish with parsley.

Cheese sauce: Add ½ cup finely grated or finely cut cheese to 1 cup hot white sauce, and stir until cheese is dissolved.

Orange Frosted Berry Salad.
(Serves 6)

1 tablespoon gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
½ cup orange juice, heated
¾ cup orange juice, unheated
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup orange pieces
¼ cup berries or seedless grapes
½ cup sliced peaches
Orange sections
Frosted berries

Soften the gelatin in the water 5 minutes. Dissolve in the heated orange juice. Cool and add the unheated orange juice. When slightly thickened add the orange pieces, grapes, and sliced peaches. Pour into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with orange sections and clusters of frosted berries. (To frost berries, dip in slightly beaten egg white and roll in granulated sugar. Spread on paper to dry.) Serve salad with lemon flavored mayonnaise.

As you go into your sugar-rationing period, are you keeping your eyes peeled for recipes that take it easy on the sugar without sacrificing any of their appetite appeal? For that very reason you'll like this one of jelly roll because it uses naturally sweetened apricots for the filling and eliminates the powdered sugar sprinkled over the top.

Jelly Roll.
(Makes 10-12 slices)

3 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup sugar
1 cup sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
5 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter

Add salt and vanilla to eggs, beat until light and fluffy. Add sugar in 2-tablespoon portions, beating after each addition. Add sifted flour and baking powder. Fold in carefully and quickly. Stir in water and butter, heated together until butter is melted. Pour into a jelly roll pan, about 16 by 11 by 1 inch that has been greased and lined with paper, then greased again. Bake in a moderately hot (375-degree) oven about 18 minutes or until nicely risen and delicately brown over the surface. Loosen edges and turn onto a piece of waxed paper or a towel sprinkled with powdered sugar. Remove pan and peel off waxed paper. Spread with dried fruit—cook your favorite dried fruit (apricot, prunes or peaches are good) in a minimum of water, then put through a sieve, cool and spread. Roll lengthwise, cool on a cake rack.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card. The nation's sugar bowl is due to be somewhat smaller than last year's because we will have to get along with a third less sugar than we had before. This means we will be using several substitutes.

You smart homemakers will learn how to use maple sugar, where you like maple flavoring. One and one-third cups of maple sugar may be substituted for one cup of granulated sugar.

Honey, oldest sweetening, has versatile uses. Use it on your breakfast fruits, cereals, sauce for ice cream, in cakes, quick-breads, cookies, even in sugars, jams and jellies. Since honey has a distinctive flavor, use half honey and half sugar in recipes or the consistency and color of the product you make may be changed considerably.

Corn syrup may be substituted cup for cup for granulated sugar, but when using it, cut the liquid in the recipe down by one-third.

Molasses makes your gingerbreads, baked beans, brown bread, cakes and even cookies.

Besides these substitutes you'll have dried fruits which are high in sugar content. When stewing fruits, add sugar toward the end of the cooking period: it will take less to sweeten the fruit.

Make desserts with fruit juices, both canned and fresh, and you will find it bridges the sugar ration well. Above all, do not waste sugar. You can probably get along with less in the morning coffee and tea. Try it.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

A STUDIO stage hand stole the spotlight from William Powell and Hedy Lamarr when Wendell Willkie (who recently was elected chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox) visited the stars. Willkie arrived just in time to watch them doing their first love scenes in "Crossroads," and offered to change places with Powell. The stage hand, Pinky Picciano, had a brother who was a petty officer on the battleship Mississippi when Willkie's brother Ed was a division officer on the ship, and entertained Willkie and the cast with anecdotes. Incidentally, in his new position Willkie will not "perform any executive duties or be actively connected with the operation of the company."

TUESDAY: THE DAY OF CONFLICT

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 22:41—23:11.
GOLDEN TEXT—The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner.—Mark 12 10

"By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority?" Such was the challenge Christ faced when He came into the temple on the last day that He was to be able to teach there. The chief priests and elders (Matt. 21:23) asked it because they knew that they had received their authority with their offices, whether appointive or hereditary.

Jesus held no such position, yet He had just driven the money changers out of what He called "my house" — the temple. They challenged Him, and through the long day He answered and also asked them questions. Here we find a rich store of parables, illustrations, unanswerable arguments, as He met the Pharisees, Sadducees, Herodians —all His enemies who, though they hated each other, made common cause against Jesus. The discussion concludes with His facing of the Pharisees with

I. The Ultimate Question—"What Think Ye of the Christ?" (22:41-46).

The crux of the entire matter was right there for them, as it is for us, though in a somewhat different sense. They were looking for the Messiah—the Christ; but their idea of Him was that He would come as their royal leader, to break the yoke of Roman bondage and set them free. They knew He was to be the son of David, but they did not see in their own Scriptures that this one was to be David's greater son (Matt.12:42); that in the line of David was to come the one whom David "in the spirit" called "Lord" (Ps. 110:1). They knew about Christ, but they did not know Him, and thus they were like many today. They have heard of Him; they may even admire His character and His teachings, but they do not know Him. What think you, reader, of Christ?

Christ then states

II. The Final Test—Doing, Not Just Saying (23:1-4).

Having finally closed their mouths (22:46) Jesus proceeded to a solemn indictment of the scribes and Pharisees. First of all He declared that they failed in the final test of life, which is not words but actions.

Notice that He recognized their authority and their teaching, but in severe condemnation pointed out that they did not live what they professed. That is the criterion by which we shall all be judged. Those who think that because they belong to some church, or subscribe to a creed, or speak a smooth word of testimony they may then live as they please, will find themselves standing with the scribes and Pharisees on the judgment day. Why keep that kind of company?

Such men are capable of

III. The Great Hypocrisy—Pride Posing As Piety (23 5-9)

They were, oh, so religious! Interpreting literally and mechanically God's command that they keep His law always near them in action (hand) and in thought (mind) (see Deut. 6 8; 11:18), they made showy leather cases and wore them on wrist and forehead as containers of the written Word. They loved the chief seats and the titles of distinction. And all this was done in the name of religion. What hypocrisy!

But wait — are we any better? What about the preacher who is not happy unless he is invited into the pulpit? What about those who take or accept the titles which our Lord expressly forbids? What about those in the pew, as much as in the pulpit (and perhaps more), who want to be recognized as "the masters" of the church? To be sure, they do not always wish it to be so crudely put as that, but they do expect to be recognized as such "or else—." This too, under the name of Christianity. There indeed is the great hypocrisy!

We are thankful that our lesson does not close here. Our Lord next revealed

IV. The Right Attitude—Service Not Recognition (23:10, 11).

He that is mastered of Christ is ready to be the servant of all. To exalt Him is to at once do away with self-praise and self-glory. Pride in position, and the desire to be praised and recognized by men, inevitably lead a man into a pitfall in which he is humbled. On the other hand, the one who in humility serves the Lord will, to his own surprise, find that God has exalted him. The way up is down.

"Torrey," said a well-known preacher with whom Dr. Torrey was associated in a great conference, "you and I are the most important men in Christian work in this country." Not long afterward God set that man aside. Quite different was the spirit of D. L. Moody, who at the height of his ministry for God would say, "There are better men here behind me on the platform to speak when I am through"—and he really believed it!

OF THE PRESS

● Manufacturers and merchants sense the power of the press. Early they began using it to carry their advertising facts and ideas into homes. And they found it a most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers. And the buyers in turn found it profitable to deal with those who were willing to state in print the values and services they offered.

Cleanliness

• IMPORTAN IN CREAM PRODUCTION . . .

CREAM should be carefully cared for from the moment milk is drawn from the udder of the cow, and as it is one of the most perishable foods, it is of great importance that it be produced under conditions where both cleanliness and sanitation are the rule

TO PRODUCE MILK that is CLEAN and WHOLESOME, the cows must be kept clean and healthy and they should be well fed and kindly treated

MANY A SHEPHERD DOG has been praised as wonderful by his master when as a matter of fact, he has been one of the most costly animals on the farm Cows cannot stand the constant worry of being "dogged" and be in a condition either physically or mentally to produce their maximum

MILKERS AND ALL who handle the cream and milk should appreciate the value of cleanliness and thoroughly clean the stables and the dairy utensils every time they are used

THIS CREAMERY is greatly interested in the subject of BETTER CREAM and we want your cooperation

Arrangements Being Made To Issue Sugar For Canning

LT. R. A. JORGENSON, JR.

CADET RAY JORGENSON, JR. GRADUATES FROM LUBBOCK FIELD

Aviation Cadet Ray A. Jorgenson, Jr. of Klemme, Iowa, and son of Mr and Mrs. R. A Jorgenson of Klemme, Iowa, was among the more than one hundred and fifty young men who were graduated from the U. S Army Flying School at Lubbock, Texas, at exercises at the post held at 10:00 o'clock A. M at which time the cadets were commissioned Lieutenants and received their well-earned wings.

The graduation exercises were attended by parents, sweethearts, and friends of the young men from a large number of states.

Proud mothers had the honor of pinning the wings on their sons and parents were made honorary members of the Air Corps.

Lieutenant Jorgenson was named one of a group of fifteen graduates to remain at the field as an instructor. Other members of the class was assigned to various squadrons at other fields.

Lt. Jorgenson is a member of Class 42-E, the largest graduated from seven fields throughout the United States. Class 42-E was the last class to wear the traditional Cadet blue uniform.

A total of thirty-seven Iowa men were in the graduating classes at seven advanced training fields in the United States.

Preceeding the graduation ceremonies a banquet attended by over five hundred parents, friends and other guests of the Cadets was held at the Lubbock Hotel Tuesday evening, followed by a dance at the Hilton Hotel.

Tuesday afternoon a reception was held for the visiting parents

Lt. Jorgenson entered the service November 3, 1941 and received his primary training at Stamford, Texas He was then advanced to basic training at San Angelo, Texas and completed his advanced flying at Lubbock.

FIRST CANNING SUGAR MAY BE PROCURED JUNE 4

Each Town In Hancock County To Have Sugar Rationing Board

For the information of those who expect to register for sugar to be used in canning, the following authentic information is released.

Who May Apply

All applicants must have registered for war ration cards.

Any adult member of the family unit. If there is no one who can qualify in that respect then the oldest member of the family or any responsible person may do so

A consumer, not a member of the family unit may register for himself.

For a minor not self-supporting, his parents or guardian or any responsible adult may apply.

The person making the application must know the following:

First: Names of all persons in the family unit. Also serial numbers of war ration books.

Second: Number of quarts of fruit canned last year.

Third Number of quarts of fruit on hand.

Fourth: Number of quarts of fruit to be canned this year.

Fifth: Whether the sugar is to be used for preserving or not.

Sixth: The excess sugar supply as of the time of registration and any subsequent reductions therein.

Sugar issued now must be used in the canning period between now and July 1.

Certificates will be issued for late July and early September canning.

You will receive one pound of sugar for every four completed quarts of fruit canned.

You will receive one pound of sugar per year for preserving.

Sugar allowed under these regulations shall be used only in the quantities during the period and only for the purposes for which it was allowed.

If such a certificate was allowed and not used, it must be returned to the Board within thirty days. If a certificate for such sugar was issued and used return the war ration card of the individual to the Board. This card will be returned to you.

For your convenience a Ration Board comprised of three citizens of your community will conduct the registration.

As it will take a few days to make these appointments and to get instructions to them, sugar rationing for canning will be delayed until Thursday, June 4th and the time of registration will be from one to four-thirty p. m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 4, 5 and 6.

A Ration Board will be placed in every community of the county, which means that you may go to your nearest town.

Any information needed can be supplied you by the members of the Ration Board.

I would suggest that you cut out this item and study it carefully so that there can be no misunderstanding regarding the rationing of sugar for canning.

G. A. BEMIS, Ration Administrator of Hancock Count.

KLEMME STORES WILL CLOSE MEMORIAL DAY AT NOON

Klemme stores will close at noon on Memorial Day, Saturday, May 30th for the balance of the day and evening.

Stores will be open on Friday night to accomodate shoppers.

Friendly Neighbors to the South of US . . . .

South America, Led by Vast Republic of Brazil, Now More Closely United With U. S. After Rio Conference

By CHARLES A. SINGLER
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Consider briefly the great continent to the south of us, and see what bearing it may have upon Uncle Sam's all-out victory effort.

Time was, in the early days of the war, when South America was very much like Benito Mussolini. Remember that stocky orator, poised on the fence of power politics, eagerly watching each move in the great struggle to see which way the balance of power was shifting And then, satisfied that he had made the right decision, jump into the fray with his Italian legions.

South America's attitude was much on this order for a long time. If Germany were to win in Europe, South America stood ready to move in a totalitarian direction. If Germany lost, she would be content with what Pan-Americanism might have to offer her.

The United States was regarded as "the Colossus of the North" and viewed with both suspicion and concern. The Latin-Americans resented Uncle Sam, they distrusted him; they thought he was meddling Shirt organizations, cut to the measure of Adolf Hitler's military tailors who were cutting up Europe on a pattern of their own, were flourishing everywhere throughout South America.

Here was a picture that needed changing—a pattern which could only spell trouble and plenty of it. Confronted with this picture, Uncle Sam evolved his "good neighbor policy" which already has gone a long way towards banishing distrust and bringing about that hemisphere solidarity so urgently needed to present a solid front against the Axis powers.

No attempt will be made in this limited space to cover all the potentials in natural resources, or in men, munitions and ships, which South America represents to the United Nations. And it is well that we bear in mind that we are bound to South America by much more than a thin neck of land through which the Panama canal has cut its way.

Spirit of Freedom Kin.

We are bound to South America by cultural, traditional and economic ties. We are kin to it by the spirit of freedom For the very same love of freedom which caused the Pilgrim Fathers to break away from Europe's feudal ties caused Brazil to break away from Portugal. Rio de Janeiro, with its magnificent backdrop of 365 mountain peaks—a mountain peak for every day in the year—was founded 55 years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock.

The conference in Rio de Janeiro was charged with significance, and the outcome of that conference, while it was not a total success, was so full of good import that every citizen of the United States can take heart from the results achieved.

After the conference in Rio, in which Under - Secretary Sumner Welles and Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil, former ambassador to Washington, were the principal figures, Brazil moved into top position among the ten South American republics—a position which Argentina had enjoyed over a long period of years, and the Western hemisphere began to turn hopeful eyes to the great republic of Brazil for new leadership in the solidifying of South America against the wiles and tricks of Axis propagandists.

At least three countries which had been satellites of Argentina—Paraguay, Bolivia and Uruguay—switched allegiances, and began looking hopefully to Brazil for guidance

As for Chile, she demonstrated at her last election how she felt about the Hitler-Hirohito-Mussolini combination of international brigands, for at that time Juan A. Rios, prodemocratic candidate for the presidency, was elected by a landslide vote And while these two countries have not gone all the way, the steps they have taken indicate a definite trend away from the Axis, which is reassuring to say the least. They have pledged to cut business relations with the Axis, to bar war materials from going to the enemies of the democracies, and to combat totalitarian influences within their borders.

Argentina's and Chile's failure to give full co-operation at the Rio conference, however, has not been without its price.

That price is the cutting off of special economic military and naval aid under lend-lease, the theory being that the countries that have either severed relations or declared war have exposed themselves to Axis attack and possible invasion. Lend-lease commitments will, therefore, preferentially be extended to those nations which have already made the breach Chile, however, because of her long coastline and her small navy, will get modified treatment in regard to military and naval supplies.

The smallest of the South American republics is Uruguay, with 72,153 square miles. Brazil, the largest, has 3,285,319 square miles within its borders, an area larger than the United States proper Into these great spaces of mountain and valley jungle and plain the whole of Europe — omitting Russia — could easily be enclosed.

Here are just a few of the Brazilian "Good Neighbor" anti-aircraft guns, and their crews. In addition to many more guns such as these, not only in Brazil but other South American nations, Brazil's good neighbor air-defense program calls for a largely increased fleet of planes and pilots to fly them. This South American nation, working with the United States against the Axis, has received many "mass deliveries" of bombers from the U. S.

While Brazil with its 43,000,000 inhabitants and boundless natural resources represents a vast potential of power, it also represents a military liability because of that dangerous land-bulge towards Vichy-controlled Dakar, on the bulge of Africa. It will be recalled that the British and Free French forces battled to wrest Dakar from Vichy early in the war, but found the job too big and too costly. Dakar is 1,600 air miles from Natal, Brazil.

World War I Ally.

America has not forgotten that in World War I Brazil went to battle on the side of the Allies. With its big coastline and its big reserve of vital war materials, such as rubber and manganese, and its leadership in the Pan-American movement against the Axis, it is quite natural that Brazil should come in for the most aid from the United States.

Brazil has an army of 100,000 men, the largest army in South America, and most of these men under arms are in the zone where her coastline bulges to within attacking range of the base of Dakar, Africa. The republic has about 300,000 reserves, and an untrained manpower of 1,000,000. Brazil not only controls the shortest invasion route across the ocean, but guards the southern shores of the Caribbean gateway. In northern Brazil air defense drills are held almost every day. The wild and uninhabited coastline offers many an ideal site for enemy submarine refueling operations, within but a few hours' flying time from the Panama canal. In realization of this threat, air forces patrol the coastline.

Brazil has two battleships, seven destroyers, two cruisers, and four submarines Its air force consists of a sizeable armada of U. S.-built planes. Happily for all concerned, it is rapidly expanding its army, navy and air force. Happily, also, is the fact that Getulio Vargas, president of Brazil, is a great aviation enthusiast, who has a plane and a pilot of his own, and who knows what it's all about. Another item on the happy side of the ledger: Brazil has a sizeable merchant fleet, the second largest in the hemisphere.

Warplanes and munitions are being made in Brazil's factories on a large scale; iron is being mined from the hills and rubber is being tapped from her rubber trees. America's desperate rubber situation may find at least a partial answer in Brazil.

Importance of Colombia.

Among other vital raw materials which come from Brazil are bauxite, which is vital to the manufacture of war planes; quartz, graphite and mica, also castor oil, which is used in the lubrication of high-speed engines.

Colombia's position on the map makes her full co-operation with the U. S. a matter of vital importance. Colombia was among the first of the Latin-American nations to declare war on the Axis. She has some 15,000 men under arms, and more than 250,000 trained reserves guarding areas close to the Panama canal. Colombia's principal exports are coffee, oil and gold.

Bolivia, shivering on her cold and barren mountain plateau, is more important in our war effort than most of us imagine. Since the fall of Malaya into the hostile hands of the Japs, the tin center of the world, at least for the U. S., has become Bolivia. Tin furnishes 70 per cent of her exports.

Venezuela's vast oil fields are of strategic importance in the all-out war effort of the United Nations The great bulk of this crude oil is refined at the huge plants on the Dutch islands of Curacao and Aruba

The Vastness of South America

The estimated population is 91,300,000.

The Amazon river there is the longest in the world—3,900 miles.

The Andes mountain system, extending 4,400 miles from Panama to Tierra del Fuego, is the longest and highest mountain range in the world. It averages nearly 13,000 feet—a dozen peaks exceeding 21,000 feet.

Brazil, alone, is more than 260,000 square miles larger than the United States. That South American nation territory covers 3,285,319 square miles

Paraguay with 61,847 square miles is the smallest nation in South America, excluding, of course, the three Guiana nations in the north.

Natal, in northern Brazil, is the nearest American point to Africa.

The wild, and hardy tribe of Patagonians live at the very end of South America, along the Magellan strait.

Some of its most important products are gold, diamonds, coffee, nitrates, manganese, tin, copper, cattle, cotton, cacao and rubber.

Wood Successfully Replacing Metal for Many Purposes

Though historians skipped it, a wood age must have preceded the Stone, Bronze, and Iron ages, but that oversight is now to be remedied—A Wood age is going to follow them We are now in the first phases of this new wood age. It is ushering in new businesses and reviving old arts was revealed in a survey of displayed consumer goods items at a large merchandising center in Chicago, Ill.

More on the artistic side are displayed scores of new woodenware products that come under a gift classification Among these is a table piece carved in the form of a lobster with a well in its back for salads or snacks. Then there is a variety of carved trays, and platters. Some of the latter have grooved outlines to fit the shape of turkeys, ducks, etc.

Here are more items being made out of wood instead of metal:

MacArthur wasn't the only hero on Bataan Peninsula, as this story, just arrived, reveals. In the early days of the campaign, MacArthur summoned an engineer and asked: "How long will it take to throw a bridge across this stream?"

"Three days," was the reply.

"Good," snapped MacArthur. "Have your draftsman make drawings right away."

Three days later, the General sent for the engineer and asked him how the bridge was coming.

"It's all ready," was the answer. "You can send your men across now, if you don't have to wait for them pictures They ain't done yet!"

ALASKAN HIGHWAY

After all the hullabaloo about the vitally needed military highway to Alaska, it now looks as if it would take at least two years, perhaps nearer three years to build it. One trouble is there is still an argument about the route.

To date the army has picked a route by way of Edmonton, center of the prairie state of Alberta, which is longer than the route advocated by Alaskan territorial officials.

The Alaskan officials propose a short quick route straight up from the state of Washington to Prince George, then on to White Horse. Part of this—about 400 miles to Prince George—already is built. And if interned German, Italian and Japanese prisoners were put to work on the remaining link, it might be finished before winter.

However, both the army and the Canadian government favor the longer route via Edmonton. This would follow the chain of Canadian airports to Alaska. These airports are operated by the Canadian Pacific railroad, which may be one significant reason why the Canadians want a road to link them up.

The army originally picked this route because last summer some of its planes, en route to Alaska with green pilots, got lost and cracked up. So it was suggested that a highway linking the airports would serve as a guide to airmen. The army also favored this route in order to send gasoline and supplies by truck to air bases. The war may be just about over, however, before this interior highway is built.

JAPANESE PROPAGANDA

Inside intelligence information is that Japanese propaganda agents are now marshalling their forces for a concerted attack against the United States in Latin America, with Argentina, Brazil, and Chile as focal points.

Japan will resort to a number of typical Axis methods to sway neutral countries away from collaboration with the United States, including the Axis-worn tactics of making overtures and giving assurances that she has no imperialistic aims toward these countries. On the other hand, the Japanese will emphasize that the United States has been greedy in her international trade relations and has imperialistic designs on Central and South America.

In launching this propaganda attack Japan has instructed her agents to do everything possible to solicit the good-will of Spanish and Portuguese representatives in Latin American countries.

In addition to propaganda agents and diplomatic representatives, Japan has recruited agents in commercial firms throughout both Europe and the American countries to propagandize persons of Latin culture and Catholic faith. In this connection, plans have been made to go even so far as to try to exploit his holiness, the pope.

Already $50,000 has been forwarded to Japanese representatives in Chile to be used in attempting to bribe government officials.

One of the most audacious phases of the Japanese plan is the one that calls for an attempt to induce a revolution in the United States by co-operating with factional groups within the country, and creating dissension among the people by sniping at the Roosevelt administration.

ROOSEVELT FAMILY DINNERS

In the usher's office, just inside the front door, an old-fashioned callboard is hung, to indicate when guests are in or out. There is space for 20 names, but on a recent day it carried only the names of Mrs. Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins and Lorena Hickok, long-time friend of both the First Lady and Hopkins, who often stays at the White House. (The President's name is never entered on the board.)

A year ago it was possible to drive along Pennsylvania avenue, turn in at the White House gate, hand a calling card to the footman at the front door and eventually receive an invitation from Mrs. Roosevelt to come for tea.

Today, the gates are closed and heavily guarded. The two avenues flanking the White House are barred to traffic entirely. Never in 100 years has the White House been so heavily guarded. The teas and receptions are cancelled for the duration, and the normally democratic residence of the Chief Executive stands cold and aloof.

It's a Dog's Life

A certain gentleman went out shooting with a pointer he had borrowed from a friend who was a crack shot. He, being a poor shot, missed again and again, the pointer each time looking at him in bewilderment.

Finally the dog set a pheasant in an open field, and glanced back at the man as much as to say "Now, here's a perfectly good shot. See if you can do anything this time."

The pheasant rose and flew off the man missed. The pointer sat down, raised his nose high and howled long and dolorously. Then with never another look at the amateur huntsman, he turned and trotted home.—S. A. Derieux in "Animal Personalities."

U. S. Army Mans Outposts Of Far-Flung Battle Fronts

United States Assumes Military Command in Area Many Times as Wide as Its Own Borders.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

Spring has unloosed her fluttering green scarf over the capital, the dark pattern of black branches against sullen skies was gone. Beyond the classic portico of the Treasury building I could see, from my high window, pointed tree tops like a jade comb in a gray dowager's hair.

That was May in Washington as it has looked for nearly a quarter of a century. But there was a certain signature in the upper corner of this picture framed by my office window that made the whole scene modern—strictly, brutally, 1942. It was as the silhouette of a parapet, the top of a tall hotel and on the penthouse roof a black cylinder pointed skyward—an anti-aircraft gun. But that did not hold my attention. I have seen hundreds, if not thousands, of those guns in the past weeks. It was a doughboy under his rounded helmet sitting on the edge of the parapet kicking his heels into space as his watchful young eyes followed the skyline.

To me he was the symbol of a million men scattered from the Arctic to the Antipodes, scanning strange skylines, soon to see them all turn red.

Never in history has a nation sent its sons out to as wide-flung a front as that which America is guarding today, never in history has such a terrible machine been built by a single people.

In less than half a year a nation that yesterday spent less on its army than on its movies, its autos, or its cosmetics has begun to man the outposts of the United Nations.

Gradually the United States has assumed military command in an area ten, perhaps 20 times, as wide as its own borders. Boys from Florida and Texas live in iron huts in Iceland under an American commander—boys from the Dakotas are sweating in Asiatic jungles—boys from New England are fighting sandstorms in the African deserts—American generals give commands in China, in the South Seas, in India and the Levant.

The car is still running—though not so far in the East and the northwest Pacific—we still have at least one teaspoonful of sugar for our coffee, school begins, father goes to the office or the fields, there are still dishes to wash, shoes to shine, umbrellas to mend, babies to change. If it weren't for these common, engrossing things human beings could not carry on while the whole world goes through the excruciating agony of travail that will bring forth something whose nature no one can guess.

To survive this ordeal requires the dull, unthinking indifference of the brute or the faith of saints and martyrs.

Canada Struggles for Financial Independence

Changing its business all around is one of the biggest jobs this country has today. Changing the business of a hundred million people is a long, hard job. We've only really got down to cases since Pearl Harbor. But when the President told us about forgetting the "creature comforts" and the efforts that have been made since April 28 in Washington to carry out his seven point cost-of-living program most people began to realize that we are on the way.

Recently I took a specially conducted trip through a section of the territory of our northern neighbor, Canada, where they have been busy "changing" ever since 1939.

From the moment you get off at the busy station in Montreal filled with uniforms and the folks there to meet them, you realize how important Canadians are to Americans, how important Americans are to Canadians, and how vital it is that each of these good American neighbors see eye to eye, work together and learn to forget "border and breed and birth" and to greet each other frankly and freely as brother Northamericans.

Canada is big—a little bigger in square miles — than the United States. It has a tenth of the people to support and develop this great heritage. Unlike the United States, one-third of the Canadians are French-speaking and two-thirds of the English speaking mixed with a heavy smattering of races drawn from as many different lands as our Northamericans.

"Daughter I am in my mother's house, but mistress of my own" wrote Kipling of "Our Lady of the Snows" as he called Canada whose wide vistas of lakeland, prairies, mountain and forest were too wide for even his facile genius to bring to a single canvas. Now she is a grown-up daughter who can speak to the motherland on equal terms.

Interdependency

Today, bound together in the same cause, the United States and Canada are more interdependent than ever. They must share in the framing of a new world after the war.

Canada has never accepted a lend-lease arrangement with the United States.

Canada's parliament has voted a free gift of a billion dollars to Britain.

Canada, dependent on so much of America's output to sustain her war effort is struggling to maintain financial independence so that she can sit down at the peace table with no debtor's shackles on her wrists, no burrs on her tongue, as an equal counselor among the Northamericans.

But because the United States is a giant, financially and industrially, and Canada is small in comparison, she is deeply affected by what America does. That is why she is keenly interested in how the United States works out the program for checking inflation laid down in the President's message of April 27.

Canada's war effort depends on the United States for certain materials which Canada neither grows in her fertile soil nor fabricates in her factories. Canada has things America needs. You cannot go into one of the busy Canadian war factories without seeing the name of an American city stamped on some machine—American machine tools is an essential which we have furnished Canada so that she could equip not only her own army and navy but help Britain to equip hers.

And Canada has had a problem. She bought much more from us than we from her. American dollars became as scarce north of the border as corn pone (and it's hard to think of an American product unknown in Canada).

Tourist Dollars

One of the chief sources of American dollars was the American tourist. The tourist trade fell off with the beginning of the war. It has almost disappeared with the rationing of gasoline and tires. No Canadian can come to the United States and spend his money here (reducing Canada's dollar exchange) without proving his visit is strictly business.

One of the clauses of the famous "Hyde Park agreement" made by Prime Minister McKenzie-King and President Roosevelt was "co-ordination of price policies." Today that co-ordination has begun, 14 months after it was laid down. For there can be no effective price control in Canada if there is no control in the states whose products she has to buy. If American prices should soar how could the Canadian government force its own merchants to keep prices down on the many things they get from the United States, or how could the Canadian war budget bear the strain if the many war products they must have from us (gas engines for instance, for planes and tanks and trucks) went up in price?

Canada began to study price controls immediately after her declaration of war with Germany in 1939. But it was not until December, 1941, that maximum price regulation went into effect. Since then Canada has been watching, waiting, hoping that we would follow suit, because there could be no Canadian price ceiling unless there was a "north-american" price ceiling. It would be a house with less than half a roof.

On December 1, 1941, Canada froze prices and wages allowed for unpreventable rise in the cost of living by granting a bonus in wages if the cost of living went up. It has, however, varied little, now if the President's program is successfully carried into effect, stabilization can be assured. We have followed the Canadian pattern.

U. S. Influence

But some American prices had already affected Canada. Take the typical case of the Canadian merchant who either had to sell grapefruit at a loss or stop selling them because the United States was the only source. If all the merchants had stopped selling grapefruit it would have had a bad effect because it would have meant a greater strain on the market for other fruits or vegetables—tomatoes, for instance, which happen to be in great demand for similar vitamin content both at home and in Britain

Alertness Keeps Farm Buildings Free of Rats

Constant Vigilance Is Way Menace Is Stopped

By R. E. GROSS

(Agriculture Engineer, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Use poison bait, fumigate, set traps or keep a good rat dog—but be sure to do something to protect your farm from the rat menace.

Rats multiply so rapidly that frequent attention to the problem is necessary all the time, and especially now when farm efficiency is playing an important part in the nations Food for Freedom program.

Keep the farmstead free from all piles of waste material or supplies stacked in such a way as to offer shelter and feed for rats. This is the first and most urgent measure. Supplies should be kept in rat-proof buildings or in stacks located away from buildings. Waste should be removed or destroyed.

Leave No Holes or Cracks.

Repair foundations, floors and sills of buildings, leaving no holes or large cracks offering a start for gnawing. Foundations must be intact to a depth of two feet below ground level. Sheet metal or wire screen tacked over holes or cracks and to the edges of doors are a sure stop.

Wood walls are rat-proofed by covering with half-inch mesh wire screen to a height of four feet above the ground and placing a smooth strip of galvanized metal above the wire mesh.

Rats can burrow through decayed, crumbly concrete or even sound new concrete while it is still soft and moist. Everlasting diligence is required.

Suggestions on Plows

Before using a new plow, engineers suggest that the farmer measure the down suction and land suction of the share, and make a record of the measurements. Later, when the share needs sharpening, it can be given the same degree of suction.

A wobbly rolling colter increases draft and makes a ragged plowing job. Hence colter bearings should be adjusted snugly to run true and vertical but freely, replaced if badly worn. Generally colters are set to cut one-half to one inch wider than the share, and the width of two fingers above it.

Best position for the jointer on a plow is just far enough behind the colter hub to prevent dirt and trash wedging against it and low enough to cut a three-cornered ribbon of soil about 4 inches wide and usually not more than 2½ inches deep. Farm engineers say when a jointer is used without a rolling colter, its point should be set approximately over the point of the share, the same as when a disc jointer is used.

Normal Loss

Shell Eggs Shipped to Isle Getting There OK

Shell eggs, produced on United States farms, are getting to Great Britain with losses in transit amounting to no more than normal losses in domestic shipping, says G. T. Klein, extension poultryman at Massachusetts State college.

This was indicated by a recent report to the British house of commons by Major Lloyd-George, undersecretary to the minister of foods, in which he stated losses amount to no more than 5.3 per cent.

These losses, says Mr. Klein, are largely due to spoilage and breakage and compare favorably with normal losses in shell eggs shipped from producing areas to consumers throughout the United States.

This should be good news to the American poultryman who has wanted to know whether his eggs were reaching Great Britain without severe loss and in condition to be of use to the English people. Shipment of eggs under the Lend-Lease act has enabled the British government to increase allotments to stores and thus supply consumers with a greater number than they have had previously through the rationing system.

Farm Notes

Trailers and dormitories to be made available for temporary war housing by the Farm Security administration under a recent presidential allocation of $13,000,000 will provide 12,269 dwelling units for workers in 24 war-industry areas, the U. S. department of agriculture says. Housing facilities in these areas are expected to be ready for occupancy early in March.

THE UNIONIZED MILK INDUSTRY

John L. Lewis is now trying to unionize the milk industry throughout the country. If he succeeds every bottle of milk delivered will have a union label certifying that there has been no non-union contact from the cow pasture to the doorstep.

The idea is to have milk from union farms handled by union dairy hands and delivered by union milkmen. The new slogan may be "Milk From Union Cows, Contented or Not!"

We can imagine a union cow, chewing its union cud in a union meadow, swishing a unionized tail and lowing in tones approved by the Musicians Union.

We can picture union clover, union brooks, union hillsides and union hay.

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea,
The plowman homeward plods his weary way—
All unionized and happy as can be.

Whoever thought the cowbarn would some day become a closed shop.

What would grandpa have thought if somebody had predicted that the walking delegate would wind slowly o'er the lea, that the cow would jump over the moon only if it had a union permit and that the milkmaid's answer to "May I go with you" would have been "Not unless you are a member of the union in good standing, mister."

Somehow we find it hard to gaze over the rolling country these spring days and take in the bucolic scene without feeling that, although he is not there in person, the spirit-form of John L. Lewis flits through the meadows, looks disapprovingly on the gusto of the rushing brook and, wielding an invisible rubber stamp, puts an "Okay J. L. L." on the flank of every mooly.

Whispering into the ear of every cow the wonders of the five-day week and warning the bull to take orders only from its local board.

To revise Anne Emilie Poulsson's old verse:

At five o'clock he milks the cow,
The busy farmer's man.
At six o'clock the strains the milk
And pours it in the can.

At seven there's a clamor and
A merry little row,
It's found the cow that gave the milk
Was not a union cow.

The busy farmer's man is called—
With him it goes quite hard;
It's charged that when he strained the milk
He lacked a union card.

At eight o'clock John L. appears,
A frown upon his pan—
And there will be no milk today—
'TWAS NOT A UNION CAN!

Do not add salt to the water when boiling corn on the cob—it would toughen the corn. Boil corn 10 minutes, drain and serve immediately tucked in the folds of a napkin. Never let corn stand in water after it is done; that would impair the flavor and texture.

A stale loaf of bread, with crusts removed, will yield eight cups of crumbs. When stale bread begins to collect around the kitchen, grind it into crumbs, and store away in a glass jar until ready to use.

The ideal way to put linens away is to roll them. Mailing tubes are excellent, so are broom handles, window-shade rollers or sections of poles on which rugs may have been rolled. Store linens in a cool—not hot or dry—place.

Celery tops should never be thrown away. They may be used as stock in soup or may be boiled with turnips, carrots, or cauliflower. Remove them from the pan before serving. A new flavor will be added to vegetable stand-bys.

* * *

Take especially good care of pots and pans now that metal is needed for war industries. Often old ones can be repaired. Heat them slowly and do not use too hot a fire, thereby reducing the strain on the metal and amount of heat used.

GARNER, I

Store News

The price of FURNITURE has NOT advanced nearly as much as other lines of merchandise, and many of the items we sell in a Furniture Store are not effected by the war [illegible]

Linoleum, Yard Goods, and Linoleum Rugs still cost us the same as last year, but freight rates have advanced a little and this merchandise is not packed as well as formerly and we therefore have more damaged ends, etc, hence our retail price is up a little, 6¢ each per rug, which is hardly worth mentioning

There are a few items in a furniture store which will gradually dissappear for the duration Wool Rugs The mills are weaving canvas for tents instead of rugs and carpets for our floors.

We have a large stock of Steel Beds and Bed Springs but when these are gone we don't know where to get more.

Inner-Spring Mattresses have not been made since May 1st When the half hundred we have are gone you can sleep on Cotton Mattresses or use straw ticks, and of course we are glad to do this if it will help the sons of our community who are called to the Colors

The Sewing Machine Factories are busy on War Contracts, and for the present are not making Sewing Machines. We still have several

At present the factories are not making Studio Couches but, we have a big stock and can probably take care of all our customers

We are glad that the Government has put a ceiling on Furniture Prices This means that furniture prices will continue at todays levels for the duration of the war

And now, while farm prices are high, our people find it an ideal time to buy some items of

VOTE FOR Bourke B. Hickenlooper for Governor

REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES JUNE 1

Qualified to Give Iowa Progressive Leadership

As a citizen and taxpayer of Iowa, you want to vote a capable, well-trained and experienced man into the office of Governor. Lt. Gov. Bourke B. Hickenlooper is a hard working, straight thinking man who has the experience and public training we need in this critical time.

He has served three sessions, two regular and one extra in the Iowa Legislature. He presided over the State Senate for two additional regular sessions as Lieutenant Governor. His stand on vital questions has always been fair, constructive and courageous. He is known and appreciated by Iowans generally, for 100,000 of them signed his nomination papers.

Born and reared in an Iowa farming community, Bourke B. Hickenlooper knows and is sympathetic with the problems of the farmer and the farm community. His mother and father live on and operate a farm near Blockton, Iowa. He served nearly two years in World War I and knows the problems of the men in service.

This man is qualified to be advanced to the office of Governor. With his election you are automatically placing your stamp of approval on honest, efficient, economical state government.

The nomination of Bourke B. Hickenlooper is your responsibility. Vote for this Republican candidate in the June primaries and urge your friends to vote.

No Need to Skimp on Quality!
Because High Standard covers so much surface per gallon, this typical six-room house (24' x 32' x 15') can be painted with two coats of HIGH STANDARD for an approximate material cost of only . . .

THE EXTRA PROTECTION OF
Lowe Brothers HIGH STANDARD
HOUSE PAINT COSTS YOU NOTHING

Here's why the extra protection of LOWE BROTHERS HIGH STANDARD HOUSE PAINT actually costs you nothing. It covers solidly more surface per gallon than "cheap" paint. It spreads evenly and easily to save time and money. So it actually goes farther to cost less per square-foot-of-surface protected. And that means that extra beauty and extra protection costs you nothing.

Why GEORGE A. WILSON ★ SHOULD be elected UNITED STATES SENATOR

1. He has been a GOOD Governor

—PROVED by a record of progressive achievements such as: return of nearly 2,000,000 acres from corporate to home ownership; departmental budgeting, saving $1,000,000 annually; farm-to-market roads without new tax levies; inauguration of the "open-door" policy with competitive bidding on state purchases, resulting in clean government at LOWER COST.

2. He has CONSERVED, ECONOMIZED

—PROVED by a record of substantial savings to taxpayers, such as: an increase in property tax refunds to home-owners from $1,968,912 to $8,615,727 a year; reduction by one-half of state property taxes; increase in general fund balance to over $10,000,000; elimination of 80 state-owned cars; many other common-sense economies, each a saving for taxpayers.

3. He is an EXPERIENCED public servant

—PROVED by his long record in public office, including ten years as Senator in Iowa Legislature; two terms as Governor of Iowa.

"The emergency is real and calls for action and for courage and sacrifice. We dare not ignore the crisis. Now is the time to enlist, to organize, to make it plain to all the world that we mean to uphold our national integrity and preserve our way of life."—From address by Gov. Wilson at Liscomb, Iowa, September 7, 1940.

This is no ordinary election. Your next senator must represent Iowa in the world's most important capital, at a time when America needs its most able men. George Wilson is the man best qualified for that job.

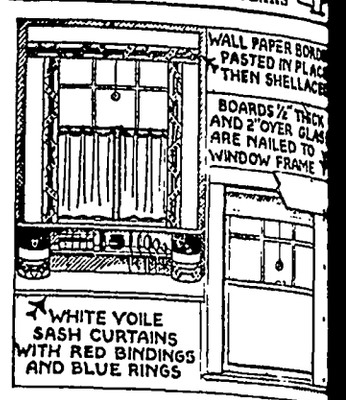
NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS



WALL PAPER BORDER PASTED IN PLACE THEN SHELLACED
BOARDS ½" THICK AND 2" OVER GLASS ARE NAILED TO WINDOW FRAME
WHITE VOILE SASH CURTAINS WITH RED BINDINGS AND BLUE RINGS

THIS new style of framing windows with boards gaily decorated, started with the black-and drills. The boards prevent light from showing around the edges dark shades. The style is especially attractive and practical for kitchen windows as the frame gives the effect of colorful draperies, yet may be washed with damp cloth.

This window strikes a patriotic note with blue paint and a red, white and blue border. Clear shellac is used. A blue shelf under the window has notches to hold knives and mixing spoons.

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good heath is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Broiled Lamb Chops Keep Your Kitchen Comfortably Cool
(See Recipes Below)

Kitchen Comfort

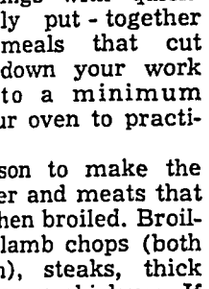
Spring Fever? Are the warm lazy days working havoc with your desire to cook, to work in the kitchen? Then dispel these lagging feelings with quickly put-together meals that cut down your work to a minimum and the use of your oven to practically nothing.

This is the season to make the most of your broiler and meats that are at their best when broiled. Broiler specialties are lamb chops (both shoulder and loin), steaks, thick ham slices, and young chickens. If you heat your oven very hot and also the pan in which you are broiling your meat before you put the meat into the oven, you will actually be cutting down the time you have your oven on. In this way you are way ahead on economy of heat and also in keeping your kitchen comfortably cool.

To cut down the time you spend on actual cooking, select foods that cook quickly or that can be cooked and served together. Our menu today is a good example of this: the lamb chops broil quickly and the lima beans brought to a boil and cooked quickly take only as much time as the lamb chops to cook until tender Serve them on the same platter, too—they're pretty that way and you will have fewer serving dishes to wash

The Refrigerator.

Your appreciation for your refrigerator or icebox undoubtedly zooms upward quite fast with the first appearance of warmer weather. Indeed, what could you possibly do without refrigeration that keeps fruits, vegetables, leftovers, meats, milk, butter, eggs and countless other products in perfect condition? In what other place could you possibly store away the salad to keep crisp and cool and the delectable desserts that must remain firm before serving?



Those reasons are enough to make you keep your refrigerator in the best of condition, but the recent limitation on making and selling refrigerators will certainly give you further reason to cherish it with the best possible care.

Keep the refrigerator away from the sun that comes into the kitchen. Keep it away from the stove, too, and give it enough space for good circulation of air at the back and top. Most refrigerators need a 2½-inch leeway at the back and 6 to 12 inches at the top

Temperatures are important, so check them with a thermometer. Safest temperature is between 40 and 45 degrees Fahrenheit.

Cool hot foods before putting them into the refrigerator. Cover foods except those having thick skins. Moisture from uncovered foods collects on the freezing unit and you will have to defrost oftener. Your refrigerator has a big job in keeping everything cool, as every piece of food requires just so much energy to cool. For this reason you should not overcrowd your refrigerator or stuff it full with bags, cartons and vegetable tops that also need energy to be cooled.

Defrosting.

Once a week or oftener in the summer if the weather is humid, defrost the refrigerator. This will help it keep the proper temperature. When you defrost, wash the inside of the box, the trays, etc., with a solution of 3 quarts of warm water and 1 tablespoon of soda Wipe with a cloth wrung in clean, clear water and dry thoroughly before returning the food and trays to the box. In this way you give your refrigerator good care and prolong its service to you.

This Week's Menu

*Broiled Shoulder Lamb Chops
Lima Beans in Tomatoes
Hashed Brown Potatoes
*Bran Sour Cream Muffins
Butter
*Wilted Lettuce Salad
*Frozen Prune Whip
Coffee Tea Milk
*Recipe Given.

Broiled Shoulder Lamb Chops.

Have lamb shoulder chops boned and rolled and cut into slices about 1 inch thick. Thoroughly preheat broiling oven with regulator set for broiling. Place lamb chops on rack so that there is a distance of about 3 inches between top of chops and source of heat. If this distance must be less, reduce the temperature accordingly. When one side is nicely browned, season with salt and pepper, turn and finish cooking. This requires about 15 minutes. Serve with tomatoes which are stuffed with cooked lima beans and broiled.

Here are muffins that will act as a spring tonic with their rich-in-iron molasses and bran cereal that peps up even the most wilted spirits:

Bran Sour Cream Muffins.
(Makes 18 small muffins)

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream
½ cup molasses
2 tablespoons water
1 egg, beaten
2 cups bran cereal

Sift together flour, soda and salt. Combine cream, molasses, water and egg. Stir into dry ingredients and add bran cereal. Fill well-greased muffin tins two-thirds full and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 20 to 25 minutes.

Wilted lettuce makes a quick and easy salad combination. It is perfect with the broiled lamb chops because of the bacon flavoring which blends so well with them:

Wilted Lettuce.

4 slices bacon, cut in small pieces and fried brown
⅔ cup vinegar
⅓ cup water
1 teaspoon sugar

When bacon is browned, add other ingredients and heat to boiling point. Pour over lettuce. Sliced hard-cooked eggs and a little diced onion may be added to make the salad extra delicious.

Frozen Prune Whip.
(Serves 6)

1½ cups cooked prunes
½ cup granulated sugar for prunes
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
2 cups milk
⅓ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 tablespoon plain gelatin
2 eggs
1 cup whipping cream

Cut prunes from pits in small pieces. Combine prunes with ½ cup sugar and spice and heat to dissolve sugar Chill. Combine 1½ cups milk, salt, and ⅓ cup sugar and scald. Add flavoring and gelatin moistened in remaining ½ cup milk and stir to dissolve gelatin. Pour over beaten eggs, stirring briskly. Chill until thick. Whip cream stiff and fold into chilled gelatin mixture; add prune mixture. Pour into refrigerator tray, place in freezing unit and freeze. Stir once or twice during freezing process.

Have you a particular household or cooking problem on which you would like expert advice? Write to Miss Lynn Chambers at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois, explaining your problem fully to her. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Lynn Says:

Keep your kitchen well ventilated and you will drive away much of the feeling of fatigue that comes while you cook. Warm air usually rises so it is better to keep the windows open from the top to create better ventilation and avoid drafts.

Place an electric fan right above the stove so that it fans the warm air right out the windows, or combine a fan with a screen placed in the upper sash of one of the windows and adjust to fan the air in or out the room.

In some kitchens it is practicable to place a fan in the chimney flue provided for that purpose.

IF THAT Victory Caravan appears anywhere in your vicinity you'll certainly want to see it. Players enlisted by the Hollywood Victory committee to tour for Army and Navy relief are Charles Boyer, Eleanor Powell, Merle Oberon, Rise Stevens, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, Bert Lahr, Frank McHugh, Ray MacDonald, Desi Arnaz, Cary Grant, James Cagney, Joan Bennett and Olivia de Havilland.

It wasn't hard for Paramount to line up a cast for "Wake Island"—Brian Donlevy, Robert Preston, Macdonald Carey, Albert Dekker and Barbara Britton lead it. But stunt pilots were a necessity—and only four could be found! Fifteen years ago there were at least 100 who vied for jobs in such pictures as "Wings" and "Hell's Angels"; now they're in the army, navy, marine corps and Royal Canadian Air force.

When Betty Jane Rhodes was a child actress, appearing in "Forgotten Faces," Herbert Marshall used to buy her miniature airplanes as gifts. Reginald Denny gave her two model planes with tiny gas engines. She's a welder in an aircraft plant in the new musical, "Priorities of 1942," completely surrounded by planes, and is air-minded enough to be perfectly happy.

Richard Lyons, seven-year-old son of Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyons, is carrying on with his screen career while his parents star on the radio in England instead of on the American screen. He has an important role in "Atlantic Convoy"; is playing an English refugee, which comes close to his own life.

Pat O'Brien's youngsters — Mavourneen, seven, and Sean, five, visited their father on location at the Alhambra airport for "He's My Old Man," and persuaded the technical advisor to take them on a flight. The "flight" consisted of taxiing from one end of the field to the other.

Lynn Martin appeared several weeks ago in a singing commercial on the air's Radio Theater, and received so much praise that when a night club sequence appeared in a later script she was promptly signed for it. Also, she was engaged to sing with Ray Noble's band on the Edgar Bergen show.

The last picture John Beal did in Hollywood before he went to New York to appear in a stage play was "The Man Who Found Himself," in which Joan Fontaine was getting her start. He gave her a pep talk, told her to stick to it and some day she'd win the Academy Award. She visited him on the set of "Atlantic Convoy" the other day. "I just came to tell you that you told me so!" she said.

Pat Friday, another young singer recently heard with Bergen, told Ray Noble that he played Cupid for her and her aviator-husband. They were listening to his orchestra, at a Los Angeles hotel, and to its music her husband told her that she was the most beautiful girl in the world. She thinks the music had a lot to do with it—"But it was so beautifully done that I just had to marry him!"

Jean Tennyson, star of "Great Moments in Music," has inaugurated a "Share Your Birthday With Men in the Service" campaign—she took her 45 pound birthday cake to the Stage Door Canteen in New York and divided it among men of the armed forces.

ODDS AND ENDS—Evelyn Keyes wears exotic perfumes—so pity Glenn Ford, playing opposite her in "He's My Old Man," as he's allergic to perfumes . . . Sounds like a record of some kind—in his first five pictures Roger Clark kissed Marlene Dietrich, Barbara Stanwyck, Lupe Velez, Ruth Ford and Eileen O'Hearn . . . Robert Ryan has reported to RKO Radio for one of the choicest roles ever handed a screen newcomer, that of the lead in "Name, Age and Occupation" . . . "Parachute Nurse" brought Marguerite Chapman and William Wright their first screen kiss—and when he grasped her the first time she slipped and turned her ankle!

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THURSDAY: THE LAST DAY WITH THE DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22 14-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of me —Luke 22 19

The last day! How quickly it comes, and how fleeting yet meaningful its moments.

We do not know what our Lord did on Wednesday of Passion Week. In all probability He remained in Bethany to rest in fellowship with His friends Surely He needed that day of quiet, for that which had gone before, difficult and strenuous as it had been, was as nothing to that which lay before Him.

Late on Thursday He and His disciples came to the upper room where Peter and John had already made preparation for the observance of the Passover (Luke 22 8). This feast had (since that great and awful night of Israel's redemption out of Egypt's bondage) pointed forward to the Christ and to His cross as the fulfillment of the type of redemption by the shedding of blood. But now the hour had come for Him to give Himself in that death, and so He set aside the Passover (because it has been fulfilled) to establish the great Christian feast of remembrance—the Lord's table, which now shows forth His death till He come.

I. The Final Passover (vv. 14-18).

Our Lord looked forward with intense desire to the Passover which He now observed with His disciples, for it was the last celebration of that feast recognized by God. All that it had foreshadowed of deliverance and hope was fulfilled in Him who now sat at the table. He had moved forward with resolute purpose to this day when His mission on earth was to be accomplished, and He was to become the Christian's Passover lamb (I Cor. 5:7).

The fact that He had looked forward to it with desire does not minimize the deep darkness of either Gethsemane or Calvary. Remember that, when in the garden He faced that hour and thought of the possibility of the cup being taken from Him, He said to the Father, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt." Praying concerning the same matter (in John 12:27), He said, "Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour."

II. The First Communion (vv. 19, 20).

Taking the unleavened bread and the unfermented wine of the Passover which had just been observed, Jesus established a new feast, the Christian feast of remembrance, which we call communion or the Lord's table.

His words are significant, "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come" (I Cor. 11.26). At the Lord's table His followers find spiritual strength in recalling His death for them, but they also find joy as they remember that He is to come again. They thus testify to the world that they believe and cherish these truths.

This feast is rightly called "communion," for down through the ages and until He does come the saints of God have at His table sweet communion with Him and with one another. Let us not neglect it!

Our Lord also spoke of the cup as "my blood of the new testament." The word "testament" means covenant. The Lord's table therefore speaks of our allegiance to Him, of our loyalty to our Lord, and our devotion to His service. That is why the Christian Church speaks of communion as a sacrament, a word from the Latin sacramentum, meaning oath, and essentially an oath of allegiance.

III. The Folly of the Disciples (vv. 21-30).

Someone may say, "That point does not belong with the other two. Both the Passover and the Lord's Supper are for the joyful remembrance of deliverance and redemption." The objection is well taken except for one thing—we are dealing with human beings as they are, not as they should be and could be by the grace of God.

Here in the inner circle of the twelve there was one traitor. It seems impossible, but apparently Judas had maintained such outward conduct as to turn no suspicion in his direction, even though all along he had in his heart the blackest of treachery against his Lord. A sad and soul-searching fact is here revealed, that it is possible for one to make a high profession of faith in Christ and even so to live as to give no cause for criticism, and yet to be unregenerate and in fact the enemy of Christ.

What about the strife regarding position? Shameful as we agree that it was, it still goes on in the church. Not even the remembrance of our Lord's death and the reminder that He is coming again is enough to keep men from wanting to be greatest.

Get Sugar For Canning This Week Thurs., Fri., Saturday

E PREPARED TO ANSWER SSENTIAL QUESTIONS

rs. Ernest Lewis Chairman Of Klemme Sugar Rationing Board

Local Defense Chairman, C. G. Waterman, has appointed the following women to act on the sugar for canning rationing board here: Mrs. Ernest E. Lewis, chairman; Mrs. James C Thomas and Mrs. Walter Lemke

Time of registration will be this week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 4-5-6 from 1:00 to 4:30 p. m. each day.

The place of registration here will be in the rooms at the rear of the Lewis Radio Shop.

The head of every family, or the person holding coupon books are required to register, wether or not you need sugar for canning.

What You Must Report

Be prepared to answer the following questions:

1. Names of all persons in the family unit. Also the serial number of your war ration books.
2. Number of quarts of fruit you canned last yer.
3. Number of quarts and kinds of fruit you have on hand now.
4. Number of quarts of fruit and the kinds of fruit you expect to can this year.

Have the above information on slip of paper

You will be allowed one pound of sugar for preserving.

You will be allowed approximately one (1) pound of sugar for every four quarts of fruit to be canned.

Sugar issued now must be used in the canning period between now and July 1st.

Certificates will be issued for late July and early September canning.

Some people seem to have the idea that if they did not receive Ration Books they are not entitled to canning sugar and they should not register for same. This is not correct. They should register and the amount of sugar in excess is deducted from allowance for canning.

HANCOCK COUNTY NEAR TOP IN STATE-WIDE DRIVE FOR RELIEF FUNDS

Overholdt And Waterman Drive Committe For Klemme Reach Quota Assigned Here

Last week marked the close of the Navy Relief Fund Drive in Hancock County and late contributions put the county over its quota with a few dollars to spare The goal set up by the county committee was $1,200 and that amount was exceeded by $6.31 on the final returns.

The county committee, N E Brear, of Garner, chairman; Mrs Anna Mae Foster of Britt, and G E. Cook of Garner, put forth a lot of effort to get the drive organized and keep it progressing and Mr Brear announced that every penny collected was sent in the Navy society, none being used for any of the campaign expense. The local committees are to be congratulated on the fine showing they made in putting their communities near the top or over their quotas, some exceeding the amounts asked by nice margins.

In commenting on the drive Mr Brear stated "You newspaper men have been called on to do more in these drives than any other one, it seems to me Ray, I surely appreciate all that you and your good paper did to help put Hancock county over the top in this drive We are at the top of the list in the state and that is very gratifying."

The cause was a worthy one and all who in any way contributed will be repaid many times by the knowledge that they have responded to an appeal that that came of necessity, and that the money raised will be used to eliminate suffering and distress where needed by the dependents of our Navy men while they are on the high seas fighting our battles.

That the splendid record made in this drive may be credited to the individual communities the following tabulation is made:

Kanawha

Committee: E B. Sheldahl, N. G. Sanderson, quota $153 40, remitted $159.49.

Goodell

Committee, Francis Cashman, quota $47.20, remitted $51.25.

Corwith

Committee, George Oxley, C. C. Johnson, quota $96.20, remitted $150 00.

Woden

Committee, H L. Missman, quota $61 00, remitted $68.00.

Hayfield

Committee, Mrs. Harrison Taylor, quota $26 00, remitted $40.00.

Britt

Committee, Mrs Anna Mae Foster, Auxiliary and Navy Mothers, quota $362.60, remitted $228 00 (of which the theatre remitted $15.)

FUNERAL SERVICES THURSDAY FOR FRANK ROBEY

Funeral services for Frank Robey will be held Thursday, June 4 at the Wellemeyer Funeral Home at 1 30 o'clock p m. with Rev. H E. Harvey officiating.

Interment beside his parents in the Klemme Cemetery.

Obituary

Frank Robey, age 73, who has been a resident of this community for 60 years or more, passed away at the Albert Kehl farm home Tuesday morning, June 2nd, 1942.

Mr Robey was born in Austria, Germany, May 1st, 1869 His father died while Frank was a child and his mother then married John Busch and when Frank was eleven years old the family came to America.

Frank, although young, helped his parents most faithfully and the family acquired and built up the farm where Wert Loger now lives. They lived there for a score of years or more

Frank sort of lost out in an educational way While in Austria his mother was working, and thus he only received a little instruction from the school and church. In America he only had the opportunity to attend school for a few terms.

However, Frank had one talent which he gave to this community most unselfishly: he loved to work and was a success as a farm hand. For this we honor him. For the last ten years he was employed on the Albert Kehl farm.

He leaves a half sister and a half brother Mrs O. W. Lemke of Klemme, and Charles F. Busch of Mason City, Iowa.

DR. DULMES WILL ENTER SERVICE IN U. S. ARMY

Dr A. H Dulmes, Klemme physician expects to enter the medical corps in the United States Army about the middle of July.

Dr. Dulmes was at Cedar Rapids one day the past week regarding his enlistment and was informed that he could expect to be in service in July, at which time he will receive his commission and orders.

He expects to have his affairs in order before that time, however, so that he can have a week or two to spend with his family, parents and relatives before entering the service.

Mrs. Dulmes and son, Dick will probably remain in Klemme until other arrangements can be made.

Klemme

Committee, J. I. Overholt, C. G. Waterman, quota $105.60, remitted $105.00.

Crystal Lake

Committee, R. Gabrielson, quota $60 20, remitted $60.50.

Garner

Committee, Fred C. Missal, Elmer Raw, Rev. W. T. Wolfram, quota $309 00, remitted $350 07 (of which $32.07 was sent in by the Avery threatre and $31.00 came from St. Johns Lutheran church.)

Total received from the community chairman and remitted by Mr. Brear to the state committee was $1,159.24, plus the $47.07 remitted direct by the theatres gives a grand total of $1,206.31.

Former Klemme Girl Married At Methodist Church Here

Mrs. Jack Dominic

MISS DORIS LUDEKE BRIDE OF ARMY OFFICER

Marriage Ceremony Held Thursday Evening At Methodist Church

The Klemme Methodist Church was the scene of a marriage ceremony Thursday evening, May 28, 1942 at 8 00 o'clock, when Miss Doris Ludeke became the bride of Lt. Jack Dominic.

Special music for the occasion was provided by the church chime system and by Mrs. Paul Griesemer of Garner, who played several piano selections and the wedding march. Elmer Ax and Paul Ludeke, cousins of the bride rendered vocal solos.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Milo Hall of the Garner Methodist Church, in front of the altar which was lighted by burning tapers.

Frank Dominic was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Stanley Ludeke, brother of the bride, and Lyle Ludeke of Britt, cousin of the bride.

Miss Mae Dominic, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Marilyn Ludeke, sister of the bride, flower girl. Miss Dominic wore a pink net gown and carried pink roses. The flower girl was attired in a floor length blue organdie dress and carried a basket of sweetpeas

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white gown having a lace bodice and a marquisette skirt. Her veil was fingertip length and she carried a white Bible having white streamers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Ludeke, route 1, Mason City She attended the Klemme grade schools and graduated from the Garner high school. She has been employed in clerical work in Des Moines

After the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the basement of the church and lunch served to the many relatives and other guests who had assembled.

The Ludeke family resided near Klemme for many years and have a large number of relatives and a host of friends in this community who extend best wishes to Lt. and Mrs. Dominic

After a wedding trip, Mr Dominic will return to her work with the Bankers Life Co. in Des Moines and Lieutenant Dominic to his post at Camp Lee, Virginia.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS MARSHALL TO DR. B. MISSMAN ANNOUNCED LAST WEEK

At an announcement party held last week at the Marshall home in Atlantic, Iowa, the engagement of Miss Jessie Marshall to Dr Byrnes Missman of Garner was announced. The marriage will take place soon.

Miss Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J Marshall of Atlantic is a graduate of the University of Iowa where she was afilliated with the Kappa Kappa Gama sorority, and was a member of the University players For the past year she has taught English and speech in the Garner high school.

Dr. Missman graduated from the University where he was affiliated with Alpha Tau Oega social fraternity and Psi Omega, dental fraternity.

He is the son of Dr. W. F. Missman of Klemme and has practiced dentistry at Garner for the past dentristry at Garner for the past couple of years.

He has recently received a commission in the U. S Navy and expects to enter service soon.

FAREWELL PARTY HELD FOR MR. AND MRS. A. L. KINGERY

The U-Delt-Em Club members and their husbands held a farewell party for Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Kingery at the home of Mr. and Mrs Fred J Arnold, Sunday evening

Bridge was played at five tables and high scores for the evening were won by Mrs. R. R. Ince and Mr. Kingery. The Kingerys were presented with a nice gift from the group, who wished them good luck and happiness in their new work at Seneca.

Lunch was served after playing bridge.

Rainbow trout grow large in Iowa according to County Attorney Harlan J. Williamson. Using a night crawler for bait, Williamson landed a rainbow in the Maquoketa river three miles southeast of Manchester that weighed ten lbs. and measured almost 26 inches. The capture of the extraordinary rainbow was witnessed by four other Manchester, Iowa, men. The party landed 28 trout in a few hours.

• SAVES TIRES

A pig on the loose in Ames recently had street traffic at Clark and Main Streets tied up in intricate knots and motorists doing fancy stunt driving all along the thoroughfare. The animal, a visitor from Clinton, in Ames for observation at the state college veterinarian clinic, eluded the expressman who had offered bus facilities from depot to college. He finally was persuaded by a filling station operator to travel de luxe to his destination.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

It may be caused by disorder of kid- ney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urina- tion with smarting and burning is an- other sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

DOAN'S PILLS

Rattlesnake Rattle

Axis diplomats have started the groundwork for a peace offensive. Their peace conditions will be flatly rejected by our Commander-in-Chief.

There is no other course—because there is no such thing as conditional freedom. A peace offer from a dictator is what a rattle is to a rattlesnake.

The American war policy is both clear and final. We will only return to peace when Hitler can never again return to war. Once we were lulled into false security—but we shall never be swindled out of victory. We shall never lose with a pen what our men have gained by the sword. America remembers Pearl Harbor—and she is determined that Tokyo will never forget. The only Americans who will ever go to Munich will be flying bombers made in Detroit.

Our fleet stands between us and Hitler's war—but our graves stand between us and Hitler's peace. We have learned Europe's lesson—there is no such thing as an honorable treaty with a dishonorable government. The American people will make peace some day—but only a peace that will explain to Colin Kelly's son why his father died.

Things I Never Knew And Still Don't Know:

That the Japs consider four an unlucky number, just as we feel about thirteen over here. (Sho' nuff—the American eagle unloaded his first batch of eggs on Nippon in April, which is the fourth month of the year!) . . . That a new official edict in England prohibits those rows of X's, representing kisses, at the bottom of letters, because spies can use them as a code . . . How we overlooked this for our Literary Lace dep't: Alimony—the high cost of leaving.

That the word coined by the R. A. Fliers for those propaganda pamphlets they drop on enemy territory is "Bomphlets" . . . That the Chinese regard cockroaches as symbols of wealth. (Their logic being that a family must be pretty poor, if they can't afford to feed a few cockroaches) . . . That the British Medical Journal offers this tip for prevention of colds: Throw your head back and let a few drops of pure medicinal cod liver oil slide into your throat through each nostril. (I'd rather have a cold.)

Whether you know that ice cream manufacturers have concocted a "victory sundae," which is made of red, white and blue ice cream. The plan is to charge 25 cents and give the customer a 10 cent defense stamp as a rebate . . That Mrs. Chip Robert, wife of the secretary of the Democratic Committee, recently gave a Washington luncheon for some femme friends. One of the women invited, phoned and asked: "What shall I wear to your luncheon?" . . . To which Mrs. Robert replied: "Come in an open throat and a back suitable for knifing!"

Whether it will depress you to learn that you have only one chance in 20,000 to be questioned in a Gallup poll. (That's the capitalistic system for you) . . That in Australia there are lizards that bark . . Whether, after all these years, Jimmy Cagney won't finally win the Academy Award for his Geo. M. Cohan portrayal in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," the film dandy . . . That the recruiting slogan of the Marine Corps at Amarillo, Texas, is: "Join the Marines and see Tokyo."

Whether you know that cats are employed by the U. S. Government with the Post Office Department footing the bill for their keep. (Their job is to keep rats and mice from making a meal of the mail) . . That on a highway in Venezuela there's a monument to a wrecked automobile with the inscription: "Slowly one goes far" . That the tag of Ann Sheridan's oomphlicker, "Juke Girl," is the funniest fun. Annie says to Ronald Reagan: "Let' settle down on a farm and raise tomatoes" . . . Reagan, ogling her chassis, retorts: "Who's interested in raising tomatoes?"

That if you feel cold in bed because you haven't enough blankets, just cover your head with a scarf, and your whole body, feet and all, will warm up in a jiffy. (In these days that alone is worth the price you paid for the paper!) . . . That when Louis XIV was King of France, for a nominal fee people could come to the palace and watch him eat. (That must have been scads of fun!)

Whether you know that in ancient Gaul there were laws making it taboo to get too stout. (If a guy got stouter than the law permitted he was fined) . . That a psychologist has figured out that a person who lives seventy years has spent 2,100 hours looking in mirrors. (Who, me?) . . . That the latest wrinkle is a cosmetic for women to put on their teeth, like nail polish, to give them that toothpaste-ad smile . . . WARNER Brothers' "Heroes Without Uniforms," a story of the American Merchant Marine, will be the first of a group of films telling us things that the government wants us to know. Lowell Mellet, co-ordinator of government films, recently submitted to industry leaders a list of 30 topics about which the government wishes the public to be informed Originally it was planned to use his ideas as material for short subjects, but it now seems likely that some of them, at least, will be developed into feature-length pictures.

"Parachute Nurse" has what might be termed an All-Starlet cast, virtually an all-feminine one. When Charles Barton, the director, counted noses he found Marguerite Chapman, Shirley Patterson, Alma Carroll, and eight other beauty-contest winners.

Now it's Priscilla Lane who's having to learn card tricks. Jan Grippo, who tutored Veronica Lake for her sleight-of-hand role in "This Gun for Hire" is doing the same for Priscilla, for "Silver Queen," in which she plays opposite George Brent.

Three of the cast of Columbia's "The Invaders" have signed rather unusual contracts. Glynis Johns, Eric Portman and Anton Walbrook have agreed to appear in Hollywood within three months after the war is ended; won't leave England till then.

When you see Paramount's "Wake Island" you'll see a setting that's absolutely authentic. The contracting firm which made the actual defense installations for the Wake Island marine garrison before the Japanese attack is in charge of construction at the Salton Sea location for the picture. It is recreating on the shores of the California island sea an exact duplication of the Pacific atoll establishment. John Farrow is directing "Wake Island," with a cast including Brian Donlevy, Robert Preston, Albert Dekker and Barbara Britton.

"Crossroads," the Hedy Lamarr-William Powell picture, brought up a slight dilemma at Metro. Powell, Basil Rathbone and Felix Bressart all had mustaches, and all were loath to part with them—but three was just too many for one film. Powell is a suave diplomat in the picture, Rathbone felt that a villain must have a mustache. Bressart couldn't bear to part with his. You'll have to see the picture to find out who lost out.

That's Ginger Rogers' mother whom you'll see as Ginger Rogers' mother in "The Major and the Minor"; she'll be making her screen debut. She had been a drama editor and a dramatic coach, she's been in charge of the younger players at RKO and this past year she's been installing a dairy at Ginger's 1,100-acre ranch in Oregon—but never before has she been an actress.

The famous musicians of the future may find themselves forming a "Those Who Were Helped by Major Bowes" association. For instance, take the Aquaviva brothers. Anthony, 17, a clarinetist, recently on the Major's program, said that if he won a prize he'd help his younger brother, Nicholas, to get the kind of tutoring he was getting. Anthony won $100, second prize. The Major suggested that he have Nicholas audition for the program. Nicholas, 14, won first prize. So Major Bowes, with the help of everybody who voted for the lads, helped them along.

ODDS AND ENDS—Returning to the lot where she was an important star, Evelyn Brent reported to Paramount to play a role in "Wrecking Crew"; Richard Arlen, Jean Parker and Chester Morris co-star in it . . . Harry Sherman may reunite several famous western stars in "Buckskin Empire"—William S. Hart, Hoot Gibson, William Farnum, Jack Holt and Richard Dix . . . Vivian Leigh is being sought for the lead in "Frenchman's Creek" . . . William Warren is in London during an air raid in his new "Lone Wolf" comedy thriller; last time he was actually there was during a zeppelin raid during the last war.

FRIDAY: THE DAY OF SUFFERING

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14 32-34, 44-46, 15: 1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Not my will, but thine, be done.—Luke 22:42.

Suffering such as no man ever faced came upon our Lord in the night between Thursday and Friday as He prayed in Gethsemane. Hatred and condemnation were poured upon Him as He went through the mockery of false trials on Friday.

The important events of last week's lesson had taken place, the precious words of comfort and assurance had been spoken, and now as midnight brings the darkness of night to its deepest hue, the Son of Man goes alone into the depth of the garden where we see Him

I. Sorrowful unto Death (14 32-34).

This Scripture portion uses many words to convey the depth of His soul's agony, as though it were impossible to express it in the faulty medium of speech So it is, for our Lord here experienced something far more serious than a dread of physical death He was not a coward. He was not afraid to die. But now His soul was about to have put upon its spotless sinlessness the stain and dishonor of the world's sins.

As Krummacher says. "Something approached Him which threatened to rend His nerves and the sight of it to freeze the blood in His veins." Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34). It should break our hearts to see His loving heart break!

Since this was the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? Service for Christ may call for passing through deep and chilling waters, but never as deep or as cold as those of Gethsemane.

Jesus took with Him into the garden the three who were closest to Him in the circle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and pray even though they could not share His holy burden, was to be a comfort to Him.

How ignominiously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Father when He prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass from Him, but in true and beautiful submission said, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."

II. Betrayed With a Kiss (14:44-46).

To betray the one who had done nothing but good, who had loved him and served him even in the washing of his feet, this would have been far more than one could have expected of even the sin-blackened heart of a Judas. But he filled the measure of his ignominy to overflowing by betraying his Lord with the sign of affection—a kiss.

We know that we may not stand on the same ground as our Lord even here, for, whereas He had done nothing to merit betrayal, we at our best are not able to stand forth without fault. Nevertheless, great is the hurt when we face the betrayals of life. It may be one whom we have befriended, who has been the object of our loving thought and care, and who in the hour when he thinks to gain himself some advantage or avenge some fancied wrong strikes us in the back, even as he smilingly professes to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like for like? God forbid! Let us rather say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend, wherefore art thou come?" (Matt. 26:50).

III. Condemned by Hatred and Cowardice (15:1-5).

We have only a partial picture of the betrayal of Jesus in our lesson, but it is typical of all that took place, for it reveals the hatred-inspired false witness of the Jews, which, combined with the cowardice of Pilate, resulted in His being condemned to death.

Pilate was convinced of His innocence, but because of the pressure by Jewish leaders he was in a difficult position. He was afraid to follow his convictions, feeling that it was more expedient to yield to the will of the populace. So he lost his great opportunity to write his name large among the heroes of history.

Many there are who follow in Pilate's steps. They know what they ought to do with Jesus, but fearing the comments of friends or the possible loss of earthly advantage, they let Him be crucified afresh by their unbelief.

The Jewish leaders and those whom they had misled hated Jesus with a malicious hatred which made them relentless in their determination to destroy Him. Now they had their quarry at bay and they were determined to close in for "the kill."

They have their present day counterpart in those who have so long rejected Christ that they have become embittered against Him.

ALONG THE MAIN DRAG

If Walt Lemke and Stub Lewis don't catch enough fish to feed the neighborhood this season they are going to be on the receiving end of a lot of razzing

The fish just won't have a ghost of a chance (to hear them tell it) as they are attacking from a purely scientific angle They have gone in for special fishing calendars almanacs, etc. and the moon has to be just right, the wind just right, and the latest gadget they have added to their vast array of scientific equipment came in Monday It is a handsomely encased barometer which we were informed that when the atmospheric pressure is just right on a rising so and so the fish are extra hungry and would bite on even a stale joke.

We have our ear to the ground listening for the alibis!

Soil Particles Graded By Novel 'Wind' Gadget

When dust storms of 1934 and 1936 darkened the sky from the Southwest to the Atlantic ocean the grit that settled at Cincinnati was finer than the particles dropped at Kansas City, and dust deposits at Washington, New York and Boston were progressively finer. A modification of what happens in a "duster" is the basis of a new device for grading soil particles developed in the soil conservation service laboratory at the California Institute of Technology.

When the laboratory staff needed soil particles sorted accurately according to size it developed a simple machine that creates a gentle "duster." The machine drops assorted sizes of sand or silt particles in suitable drawers, the coarser bits nearest the feeding hopper and the finer particles at a distance. For the most accurate sorting the staff members run the dried sand or silt through twice, first in a rough sifting by a slow breeze and second a resorting of fairly uniform material in a brisker but still mild draft.

The sorting machine is a bell-mouthed wind tunnel about 15 feet long with a grating as a floor to let the sorted material drop into the collecting drawers below. A small electric fan draws air through the tunnel at not more than 2½ feet a second, less than two miles an hour.

Dry sand and silt is fed in a thin sheet from a hopper on top of the tunnel. Larger particles drop almost vertically. The finer the sand or silt particles the farther they are carried by the breeze. Particles of equal size drop at equal distances from the feeding apparatus. Walls of the tunnel are made as smooth as possible to prevent eddies, but there is some difference in the air action near the walls, so the drawers have partitions at each end and this material is rejected. What drops in the central compartment is graded more accurately than is possible with fine sieves. The machine will handle from 60 to 100 pounds an hour.

13th Century Mummies Found in Arizona Cave

Three perfectly preserved mummies, complete with the feathered robes and trappings in which they were interred during the Thirteenth century, have been discovered in northern Arizona by University of Arizona scientists.

Headed by Dr. Emil Haury of the university staff, a party made the discovery in virtually unexplored regions of the northeastern section of the state while searching for evidence and remnants of the great Pueblo culture of 700 years ago.

The mummies were found in a holy shrine called the Painted Cave, apparently a place of worship for the Pueblo tribesmen.

The bodies—one of a woman and two of children—were wrapped in robes of turkey feathers and ornately colored blankets.

Despite the fact that the mummies were almost seven centuries old, Dr. Haury said some of the feathered robes "were almost perfectly preserved." One, he said, still was soft and silky to touch.

The walls of the cave were covered with designs and drawings representing Indian conceptions of their gods and real-life scenes of contemporary life. Dr. Haury said the Pueblos painted the pictures with their fingers, using a paint made of desert plants and roots.

The mummies were surrounded by bowls of corn, other food and jars which apparently once contained water, interred to help them on their long journey to the "happy hunting ground."

Oysters' Protection

In 1375, King Edward III of England forbade the collecting or removing from their beds of young oysters in any month of the year except May. His edict also prohibited the collecting of full-grown oysters from May to September. Both of these regulations represent the earliest known law ordering such protection, and were presumably due to biological experiences which indicated even in those early days the necessity for conservation of natural resources, says Dr. Fritz Haas of the Chicago Field museum. Furthermore, the measures taken were in accordance with the dictates of modern science, and thus the proper ones to achieve the purposes sought.

When Roll Was Called

Two years ago citizens of Granger, Wash., organized "the finest volunteer fire department in central Washington" and named Darwin Davis as assistant chief. But now they're considering all sorts of dire action against Davis because he spoiled the chance the department had awaited for two years. For 24 months members of the department drilled faithfully, waiting for the day they could show their prowess in a real fire. It finally came and when the fire alarm rang the members turned out in force—all except Davis. Not waiting for their assistant chief, the volunteer firemen dashed to the scene.

Sprinting Pig

Perhaps looking forward to the day when a fleet foot might save him from the slaughter house, a baby pig at Wilton, N. H., tries his luck at outdistancing automobiles. The pig races a car going in one direction, but reverses its track when it meets one traveling the other way.

American Cheese Will Stand 'Aging' Long Time

A Welsh rabbit made with good, old cheese will not give anybody a nightmare.

"Old" is a relative term in cheese. Some of the soft cheeses ripen in a month; some of the hard cheeses are at their best only after years in storage. The United States government, in its purchases of American, or Cheddar-type, cheese for distribution to relief clients, set 14 weeks as the minimum time which this cheese should age to be fit for human consumption. But this cheese will stand aging indefinitely.

The cooking schools have taught women to appraise food with the eye, and green cheese does have nice, clean, bright-looking rind, whereas aged cheese is rather dingy-looking.

Then, too, the average American appears to prefer mild flavors; and green cheese hasn't had time to develop flavor.

Here, however, is a discovery about an age-old food: ripe cheese is mild in flavor if kept in a temperature of 45 or below. This is possible in the modern refrigerator, and it wasn't possible until the modern refrigerator was invented.

In a few hours out of the chill, it begins to pick up flavor; in a couple of days out, it is ready to go places; and after 72 hours in a warm room it may take the plate with it.

If you make a mistake and leave it out too long to suit your taste, no harm is done: pop it back in the cold and the strength will subside.

All cheeses respond more or less by varying their flavor with various lengths of exposure to warmth, but the American responds more reliably.

U. S. Cheese Consumption Among World's Lowest

The average American housewife appears to regard cheese as a flavoring. But basically cheese is a food, one of the best we have, being highly concentrated milk. Diet experts call it a good source of the calcium and phosphorus we should all get more of, a good source of vitamin A, a fair source of vitamin D, and containing appreciable quantities of the vitamin B complex and of vitamin C.

Americans use less cheese per capita than almost any nation; the Swiss the most. The average Sweitzer will get away with more than 23 pounds a year; the average Netherlander, Frenchman or Dane between 13 and 14 pounds; the average German or Englishman between 9 and 9½ pounds, and the average American or Canadian 4 to 4½ pounds. The figures are prewar.

They indicate clearly that Americans are not getting their share.

Belief in the indigestibility of cheese appears to be based on consumption of green or unripe cheese, which is more commonly sold in America than in most countries. Properly ripened cheese is easily digested, easily assimilated, and very nourishing, to those with normal digestive equipment.

Cancer Kills 100 Daily

Stomach cancer is killing nearly 100 persons in the United States every day, yet most of them could be saved if they would go to their physicians at the first signs of gastric trouble, Dr. T. F. Mullen, San Francisco surgeon, asserted.

Making a survey, Dr. Mullen found records of only 3,000 operations for the removal of stomach ulcer in the last 50 years in the United States. During that time 1,500,000 deaths have been listed as due to that particular kind of malignancy. His reports appeared in Surgery, Obstetrics and Gynecology, a medical journal. He is a clinical surgeon in the University of California medical school.

At any given time, Dr. Mullen said, there are 27,000 persons in the United States with curable cases of stomach cancer.

One Song Was Enough

He wrote one song and then slipped back into oblivion . . . But today it is on everybody's tongue. It starts, "O say, can you see . . .?"

After a night-long bombardment of Ft. McHenry and Baltimore, finding the flag still flying, an American prisoner on a British warship scratched his emotions on an old envelope.

The music and meter of the "Anacreon in Heaven," a popular drinking song in both Europe and America, were doubtless running through the poet's mind. His name does not appear in the Patriot, nor did his verses get a title for several months. However, it was sung in Baltimore in about a week after it was written; one time when a hymn redeemed a tune from drunken barroom brawls.

Excessive Variety Monotony

Designing homes so that they will be in harmony with other houses in the neighborhood is sometimes a serious problem. The federal housing administration urges developers to avoid both monotony and excessive variety of architectural effect. When a developer uses only a limited number of house plans, variety and interest may be secured by having sometimes the end elevation and sometimes the side elevation toward the street by placing the garages and by varying the setback line and the planting so interesting groupings are secured.

Something New—Candy Aids in Weight Reducing

Sounds too good to be true, but there is a new and very special kind of candy now available which not only satisfies the overweight person's sweet tooth, but which also actually aids in weight reduction.

"Ayds" is the appropriate name of this new candy, which is said to reduce weight without the aid of cathartics, glandular products or harmful drugs of any kind.

Its manufacturers state that their product contains only vitamins A, B and D, plus food factors from milk, egg yolk, maltose and plants.

Analysis shows the following ingredients: Vitamins A, B and D; dicalcium phosphate, powdered carrots, powdered egg yolks, whole milk, soy bean flour, coconut oil, salt, corn syrup and sugar.

Here's a typical day's diet, each meal to be preceded by one or two pieces of Ayds candy 15 minutes previously:

Breakfast—1 orange, 1 boiled or poached egg, 2 slices crisp bacon, ½ slice thin toast, 1 square butter, 2 tablespoons thin cream.

Lunch — 4 tablespoons cottage cheese, 2 slices crisp bacon, ¼ head lettuce, 6 radishes, ½ slice bread, 1 square butter, 1 glass skimmed milk, 1 fresh peach.

Dinner — 1 medium serving (1¾ ounces) pot roast of beef, ⅓ medium head cauliflower, ½ medium size tomato, ½ slice bread, 1 square butter, 1 glass skimmed milk, ¾ cup fresh raspberries, 2 tablespoons thin cream.

Julius Caesar Made Jan. Beginning of New Year

January, the first month of the year, was named in honor of Janus, the Roman god of gates and doors, hence, of all beginnings He is represented with two faces, looking in opposite directions One looks behind, reflecting upon the past, and the other looks forward to the future. This is the version of Dr. C. H. Cleminshaw of the Griffith observatory and University of California.

That January is the beginning of the year is an accident, Dr. Cleminshaw declared For it was a result of Julius Caesar's decision to change the beginning of the year from the time when days and nights are equal to the time when the days are shortest He intended to start the year with the shortest day, when the sun is at the winter solstice, about December 22.

However, he delayed the beginning of the year out of regard for the customs and superstitions of the people, who had always begun the year with a new moon The new moon nearest to the winter solstice that year fell on January 1, and so the Julian calendar was started on that date in the year 45 B C Only occasionally does a new moon happen to fall on January 1. Thus we see that our New Year's day is not related to any astronomical fact or logical reason.

Shortage in Seed Supply

With Holland, Denmark, Belgium, and France completely out at this time as sources of seed supply, the shortage already is worse than that of 1914-18, according to David Burpee, head of the W Atlee Burpee company, world-famous Philadelphia seed growers. "England now buys all the vegetable seed we can spare," he said, "and importing of flower seeds into England is no longer permitted "

Our country in general needs a summer flower that can stand severe summer heat, according to Burpee. Marigolds are best but some people can't stand their smell. C D Holton, an American missionary, discovered an odorless marigold growing wild in northwestern China. The sweet pea used to be America's garden favorite, but a disease has weakened its resistance to summer heat.

Economic Condition in Japan

Only one side of Japan is seen by the Americans, and that is the bad side, according to the Rev. A. P. Hassell, Presbyterian missionary to Japan "As individuals Japanese are a good people," he said, "I have eaten in their homes and eaten with them, and in 31 years found no lack of hospitality " He is on his fourth furlough to America.

Dr Hassell said that it was remarkable how the Japanese manage to live on the little they have and it is very difficult for Americans to understand the real conditions. Their economic condition is acute. There is very little sugar and the rice is rationed strictly. Coffee is out, bread is hard to get, cotton goods are scarce and milk is only for babies who are a year old or less and in need.

Slave Labor Expensive

Many people believe that slave-owning was very profitable for the plantation owners of the Southern states in America prior to the civil war, but this is not generally true. Actually slave labor was more expensive than free-man's labor. Benjamin Franklin even pointed out that if the original cost of a slave were added to the keep, insurance, doctor bills and other costs of the slaves, that it would be more expensive than hiring workingmen for labor. Slavery was definitely waning in the South even before the Civil war—for the simple reason that it was becoming less and less profitable.

Jack Rhoten, farmer near Adel, while plowing a field unearthed a den of eight young cubs, breed of which appears to be in local dispute. He brought them to town to collect bounty as wolves. Thank You

I want to take this opportunity to thank the voters of Hancock County for nominaing me as Supervisor on the Republican ticket at Monday's primary election.

I especially want to thank the "Home Folks" in the community for their big vote of confidence in my ability to serve them in a public office.

Papagos Depend on Own Crops for Their Living

Papagos—kin to the Pimas, live on three reservations in southern Arizona, their own reservation as large as the state of Massachusetts.

Papagos—"the bean people," tillers of the soil who refer to themselves as the "desert people," saw Fray Marcos de Niza come and go, saw the expedition of Coronado, and in the end of the Seventeenth century listened to the teachings of Father Kino and from the Spaniards acquired domestic animals, farm tools, wheat.

The Papagos, never a warring nation against the white man, fought desperately to preserve their villages and their farm lands against the raiding Apaches.

Their lands extend through cloudless miles of desert terrain, where they live as farmers and as cattlemen, and their little villages are found by the water holes Their livelihood is dependent on their own crops—corn, beans, squash, melons, Sonora wheat, and from the desert the buds and joints of the chollo, spur pepper, and the fruits of the saguaro cactus, and prickly pear. The Papagos wrest their living from a stingy soil, and all members of the family group must work. Papago women excel in basket and pottery making.

Their social life is highly developed. Elaborate ceremonials are observed in most of their activities, and the medicine man holds great power over them Their religion is a curious mixture of pagan, Catholic, and Protestant.

Appendicitis Picks Old Maids, Statistics Show

Appendicitis is the disease of rich old maids, according to a statistical study reported to the British medical research council by Dr. Matthew Young and Mr. W. T. Russell.

A well-to-do British family is almost three times more likely to lose someone from appendicitis than is a poor family of equal size. The strange thing is that almost every other disease germ is more common and more dangerous among the poor than among the rich. Still stranger is the conclusion that appendicitis is more dangerous to British spinsters than to married women of the same age.

The records of the British medical profession seem to show that appendicitis is on the increase among all classes of people, but the doctors are mystified because the malady seems to be picking especially on the nation's spinsters.

Since England got into the war in a big way there has been a noticeable increase in appendicitis among all classes of people and both sexes. The reason for this, according to one medical authority, is the strenuous physical exertion which thousands of Britishers are making to meet Hitler's blitzkrieg.

Unusual efforts on the part of people who lead sedentary lives usually aggravates any physical weakness.

Funeral Services for Napoleon

A remarkable funeral service was held for Napoleon Bonaparte in St. Louis cathedral, New Orleans, on December 19, 1821. Having heard of the emperor's demise four months late, a group of French citizens inserted an advertisement in a local newspaper calling on interested parties to meet for planning funeral services It read in part.

"It belongs only to a severe and impartial posterity to determine the position which Napoleon will occupy amidst the great men of ancient and modern times."

Amidst official frowns, they went ahead secretly with their plans. Fogliardi, a distinguished artist of the day, designed an elaborate cenotaph, and on the day of the funeral ceremonies it was raised to an equally impressive catafalque in the cathedral. A cantata was written by Davesac, and music composed by a young Italian, A. C. Collegari, a newcomer to the city.

Fox Terrier Gamest Dog

The smooth fox terrier is probably the gamest bunch of dynamite in dogdom. Alert, lovable, companionable, as well as courageous, tenacious and attractive, he has been called the gentleman of the terrier world. Its lineage can be traced back to the middle of the Nineteenth century. There are photographs in existence of a dog called Jock who won prizes at shows in the year 1862.

It is extremely gentle with children, and while one could not say in justice to the breed that it is noisy, it will give tongue and continue barking until satisfied the stranger on the premises has moved on. As a watchdog it is excellent, and owing to its smooth coat it is not forever in the need of stripping and trimming.

Family Units Show Increase

Remember way back when . . . in 1940 we had a census? If you do, you may remember that the figures showed 7 per cent more population since 1930. But you possibly may not know that family units have increased much faster—more than 16.3 per cent since 1930.

This family increase is regarded as most significant because the number of occupied dwelling units closely approximate the number of private households. According to this, there can be no doubt that increasing numbers of Americans are thinking in terms of homes.

Scientists Devise New Treatment for Insanity

Until about seven years ago, the pre-frontal lobes of the brain were the least understood region of the cerebral hemispheres. With all other brain areas recognized for their specific functions, such as sight and hearing, or control of the arms or legs, the pre-frontal lobes remained uncharted. "The silent areas," neurologists called them, and save for the necessary removal of cancerous growth, left that part of the brain strictly untouched.

Today it is a different story. Scientists have learned that the frontal lobes are the organs of imagination and anticipation. They know, too, that man can get along without the facilities of this part of his brain. And through this discovery has come a new treatment for sufferers from certain types of hitherto hopeless insanity characterized by pathological forms of imagination and anticipation.

These unfortunates may, in some cases, be brought back to useful life by the surgical removal of the frontal lobes of the brain.

The pre-frontal association areas of the brain are concerned with the future. Thus they are the breeding place of worry. The new operation, called frontal lobotomy by brain surgeons, is a daring attempt to remove the patient's cares by the actual destruction of their organic origin.

Chewing Cubed Carrots Show Efficiency of Teeth

How's your C. Q.?

That is—how's your chewing quotient?

If you know the answer to that question you will know how efficient your teeth are—and whether there is anything wrong with them.

You can find out through the expedient of chewing carrots—the plain everyday raw variety.

You may check your C. Q. by chewing cubed carrots and having the result tested by efficient dental assistants.

The test is conducted as follows: First you chew 10 regulation weighted carrots cubed (small size); second, you chew them 15 times; third, this residue is emptied into a container, rinsed 10 times through a four-inch mesh screen and the residue weighed; fourth, percentage of chewing capacity computed from original weight of 10 cubes and residue after rinsing 10 times.

The result will show you how good a chewer you are and more technically will show the dentist how efficient your teeth are. Experts can tell from the test whether your teeth are hitting on all 32, missing the mark—or just missing in the socket!

Here's how you're rated: Extra good chewing, 90 to 95 per cent; good, 80 to 90 per cent; average, 75 per cent; poor, 50 per cent or below.

Ragweed Pollen Anywhere

Ragweed pollen throughout the country in an average season would form a cone 1,035 feet around the base and 345 feet high, but the catch is that the pollen can never be collected and the sneeze epidemic will go right on. A recent research by a Chicago laboratory and the United States weather bureau disclosed that the highest percentage of pollen was found in Indianapolis, Ind., and Peoria, Ill , with Seattle, Sacramento, Miami, Reno and Portland, Ore., with pollen indexes of zero. But according to O. C. Durham, Chicago botanist, pollen can be carried almost anywhere by high wind. Air pollen density, according to doctors, is determined by smearing a sticky substance on a glass slide which is exposed to the air. The number of grains of pollen is counted at the end of each day and a basis is established for an index.

Cure for 'Dope' Addicts

Two doctors of Grace hospital, Detroit, have been experimenting in "frozen sleep" as a cure for morphinism, or drug addiction and recently announced the experiments as successful. They are Dr. J. M. Berris and Dr. M. K. Newman. These eminent physicians have declared that medical science has proven that morphinism, or drug addiction, to be purely a psychic condition, one in which only the mind and not the body is affected. They say, "By making a morphine addict's mind blank for a period of several days—as is done in the refrigeration treatment—the condition entirely disappears and the brain returns to normal."

Treasure in Old Papers

Documentary records of the British Board of Trade, in the two years following the Revolutionary war, have been acquired by the Library of Congress in Washington. The records include 1,344 handwritten pages comprising the minutes and documentary records, disclosing accounts of trade relations between the 13 colonies and Great Britain, following the close of the war. The penned leaves of the record reveal the many new problems in trade relations between this country and Great Britain; the navigation acts which closed the ports of British North America and British West Indies to them; Jamaica with its rum and sugar industries; the rise in the cost of lumber and increased labor costs, and topics dealing with smuggling and contraband operations.

Underdressing Dull, Boresome, Says Expert

Don't let your determination not to be overdressed influence you too far in the other direction that you turn out to be the kind of woman who is always underdressed.

Overdressing has a bad effect on the spectators. But underdressing has a demoralizing effect on the wearer herself. It's nothing short of embarrassing for any woman to find that she's the only woman in the party who is not in evening clothes. Having to wander around in a day dress amid dozens of women in floor-length dinner dresses, however simple they are, is enough to make her want to roll up in a quilt and hide in the closet.

It's a mistake to wear fancy gloves, a flowing veil, gobs of jewelry, and a corsage of flowers at the same time. But it's just as much a mistake to wear nothing except a plain silk shirt, a plain felt hat, and sensible shoes and gloves with a severely tailored black suit.

Some of the accessories ought to be unusual or at least a trifle exciting. A gay corsage or a flashing lapel jewel or a huge, sparkling pin might be added. Something ought to be done to give an otherwise strictly tailored conservative costume a lift.

Plain, tailored hats are not meant to be worn with plain, tailored dresses any more than necklaces and sparkling bracelets are meant to be worn with dresses with rhinestone embroidery or of glittering fabric.

The chic woman doesn't overdress, but neither does she underdress to the point where her costumes are just plain dull and uninteresting.

Nigrosine Simplest Way Of Dyeing Leather Black

According to the United States department of agriculture bulletin on Home Tanning of Leather, one of the simplest and the best means of dyeing leather black is the use of nigrosine. Make up the dye solution in the proportion of one-half ounce of water-soluble nigrosine dissolved in 1¼ pints of water. Be sure to get water-soluble nigrosine. Evenly mop or brush this solution over the damp leather after draining.

If water-soluble nigrosine is not available, a fairly good black may be secured with iron liquor and sumac. To make the iron liquor, mix clean iron filings or turnings with one-half gallon of good vinegar and let the mixture stand for several hours. See that there are always some dissolved filings in the vinegar. For a medium or large hide put from 10 to 15 pounds of dried crumbled sumac leaves in a barrel containing 35 to 40 gallons of warm water. Stir well, and when cool hang in it the wet chrome-tanned hides. Leave the hides in this solution for about two days, pulling them up and mixing the solution frequently. Take out the hides, rinse off all bits of sumac, and evenly mop or brush over with the iron liquor. Rinse off the excess iron liquor and put the hides back in the sumac overnight. If not black enough the next morning mop over again with the iron liquor, rinse and return to the sumac solution. Scrub thoroughly with warm water, then rinse several times in clear water.

Rotating Tires Reduces Wear

One way to save on tire wear is to change the tires around every 2,000 miles.

A plan of rotating the tires on various wheels can be followed whereby each one of a set of tires travels but 8,000 miles, although the total distance traveled by the car is 10,000 miles.

The idea is to move the four tires and the spare around the car clockwise. The first change puts the spare on the left rear wheel, the left rear tire on the left front, the left front on right front, right front on right rear and right rear on the spare rack. Subsequent changes follow the same scheme. This plan, however, is recommended only in cases where all the tires are of the same make, size, design and age.

Johnson's Vertigo

After all these years, modern medical specialists have come forward to vindicate Dr. Samuel Johnson, crusty old English philosopher, wisecracker and lexicographer. They say he was not as eccentric as legend makes out.

One of the "crazy" things that Johnson did was to touch every post he passed on his walks abroad. The experts now say that the explosive old doctor suffered from high blood pressure at a time when the ailment was not understood and that frequently he was beset by dizzy spells. The more he walked the greater his vertigo, so he made a rule to touch the posts to steady himself.

Radio Serves as Phone

An attachment can be obtained for a radio which, by turning a switch, converts the radio into a house telephone. By running a cord from the radio in the living room to a little box in an upstairs bedroom, for example, it no longer becomes necessary to shout back and forth from downstairs to upstairs. Another invention eliminates the changing of phonograph needles by actually reflecting the music on a beam of light from a tiny mirror to a photoelectric cell. The scraping needle is gone.

FORMER KLEMME PEOPLE VISITED CALIFORNIA

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Ing. Lauritsen of 1739 South 15th Street, Sheboygan, Wisconsin, in which they enclose the amount for a year's subscription to The Times.

Mr. and Mrs. Lauritsen recently returned from California where they had spent three months. They said they enjoyed the California climate and the scenery. A blackout was on their list of experiences while on the coast.

ENTERTAINED AT DESERT LUNCHEON AND BRIDGE

Mrs. H. D. Ramsay was hostess to two tables at a desert luncheon and contract bridge at her home last Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. George Lawhorn won high score for the afternoon, and Mrs. A. H. Dulmes won the second high score.

Dear Voters:

Though I did not have any opposition in the Primary ection on Monday, yet I feel very grateful to the people Hancock County for their expression of faith in me.

It will be my desire to serve you in such a way that ay merit your support in the fall election.

War Effort Strengthened By High School Graduates

Armed Services, Industry and Farms Lure 1942 Students; Vocational Training Now Becoming Increasingly Important.

By WILLARD E. GIVENS

Executive Secretary, National Education Association.

IT HAS been estimated that over one million boys and girls will leave high school this spring with their diplomas.

It is this same group of boys and girls, the youth of the nation, who were figuratively being spoken to when a commencement speaker said to a group of graduates before him:

"You have seen more history than you have read."

During the first half of 1942, the pages of history have been turning fast, recording the names of men and their deeds in the greatest drama of all ages.

And now today, not only the high school graduate, but all those who have read the story of man's upward struggle from the early dawn of history to the present time, recognize the climax of history in which they are now living. Each and everyone—especially the high school graduate—is seeking to find the proper place, the suitable niche in it.

The Significance of Today.

Only to the man who is in some measure educated is it granted to know what is going on about him and to estimate its significance.

There is an old story of two peasants of Brabant who were weeding their crops on a sultry June day in 1815 when the guns of the Iron Duke greeted those of Bonaparte at Waterloo. One of the peasants lifted his eyes from his hoe and scanned the horizon. "Soule," he said, "it thunders; it will rain today!" As the guns of destiny broke the silence of their fields, these two peasants went on hoeing their vegetables, almost as ignorant as their beets and cabbages of what went on anywhere else in the world but in the limited sphere in which they moved.

The mental isolation of mankind in the not-so-long-ago unhappy days of the human race when one class of men was privileged to enjoy the culture and refinement of wide knowledge, and another class was doomed to live and die in vulgarity and poverty, is banished. Universal education has banished it. The high school, especially, is responsible for making this vastly different world from the one which existed a century and a quarter ago when Europe was rocked as it is today by the clash of arms and ideals—and only a few knew the issues and fewer still had a part in resolving them.

Today, high school students see themselves in the setting of time and events. In their hearts is a stirring that finds its expression in a common question, "What is my place in all this?"

Some of the boys may volunteer at once for service in the armed forces The army has just announced that volunteers 18 and 19 years old may select training in the combat branch of their own preference—infantry, cavalry, artillery, tank corps, air corps, signal corps, or corps of engineers Others will wait the decision of the Selective Service system as to where and when they may serve best.

Many graduates will continue their education under the direction of the navy, which has in operation plans by which graduates may go on to college and pursue studies in which they may earn college credits and at the same time prepare for more effective service in the navy From this group, the huge two-ocean battle fleet now building in our shipyards will secure many of its commissioned officers

War Industries to Hire Many.

Some thousands of these high school graduates, boys and girls, will at once enter war-industries to help manufacture the guns and tanks and planes upon which the fighting men on far-flung battle fronts depend. The graduates may enter these industries at once, or they may enroll in one of many different types of training for more skilled service in the factories producing the material of war.

These training opportunities range from the elementary vocational schools where the simpler skills of the assembly line are acquired, to the technical and engineering schools of our great universities which are turning out recruits for highly responsible positions both in the armed forces and in industrial ranks

The high schools themselves in many city school systems, and in some of the village schools serving farm areas, are equipped to offer a high grade vocational training Some graduates who have taken non-vocational courses in high school will immediately begin such courses, if available, in the schools from which they have been graduated, or they will seek that kind of training in neighboring communities.

The federal government in June, 1940, appropriated $15,000,000 to equip and staff the rapidly expanding vocational departments and schools of less than college grade which had undertaken to train workers for defense industries. The need of workers was so urgent and the plan of meeting it so successful that subsequently other sums were appropriated for this purpose.

By March, this year, approximately 2,463,862 workers had been prepared for the war industries in this manner This number is in addition to those trained for similar occupations in the vocational courses that constitute the normal service of the schools.

The demand for the graduates of these vocational courses is much greater than the supply and is increasing. According to the War Production board, over ten million additional war industry workers will be needed within the year ahead to staff plants now being built or expanded.

The vocational training activities in Oakland, Calif., are typical of those in many cities near great shipyards or other centers producing the machinery of war. On April 1, 1942, there were 199 classes in "defense training" in the Oakland schools, enrolling 3,901 students This was 473 less than the number of students the Oakland schools were prepared to accommodate in this kind of work.

During January, February and March an average of 500 trained workers a month were placed in war manufacturing from this school system. There have never been sufficient trainees enrolled to meet the demand for riveters, chippers, caulkers, ship fitters, sheet metal workers, electricians, ship carpenters, joiners and other skilled trades.

There is opportunity of some kind today for youth everywhere. All can join in the "great adventure" in some capacity. This is true for girls as well as for boys. Many girls are taking their places in the war industries. The great expansion of offices in Washington and other centers of administration of the war effort issue calls for typists, stenographers, clerks and secretaries. Many girls are enrolling in nursing courses which lead to direct or indirect service, for some of which officer's commissions are available, in the armed forces.

The kinds of military work for girls to choose from are numerous, and announcements of further opportunities are expected from time to time.

Ofttimes the impulse to seek service far afield is ill advised. There is also the home front. Whole states must be prepared to resist invasion from land, sea or air. Civilian defense is vital First aid, air raid duty, auxiliary fire and police service must be manned and administered

In hundreds of agricultural communities high school graduates will immediately lay aside their diplomas for cultivator handles and hoes. There is much truth in the slogan that "Food will win the war." The provision of food stuffs and the use of foods dictated by modern knowledge of nutrition for both civilian and soldier are of vital importance.

Many of the opportunities may be seized without leaving home or community. The alert and eager high school graduate will look about him for unfilled places in the ranks, step in where he is best qualified and serve.

The student selected by fate for graduation in 1942 faces towering handicaps as well as opportunities. For many of these graduates, school days are ended. In any case, educational careers will be interrupted or diverted from original purposes.

The Test They Face.

Ambitions must be modified, new emphasis placed upon ideals and duties. The high school graduate of 1942 faces the severest kind of test which can be given to individuals—the test of flexibility, adjustment to untoward circumstances This applies to the minor as well as to the major enterprises of life

The contrast is still greater if we compare this generation with grandfather's as an illustration of change in our national life To that elderly gentleman now toasting his slippered heels in retirement by the fireplace, Horace Greeley's advice, "Go West, young man," was an inspiration There was an immeasurably wealthy West to conquer. Grandfather saw the finishing touches given to the world's greatest economic empire, as the ingenuity, energy, and determination of a New world, assembled from the tribes from the Old, trimmed off the last frontiers from the American wilderness.

Looking beyond the present strife, there is the citizen-in-the-making getting ready for the years ahead. Complete and final victory would be unavailing if we lost in peace what we had won in war. There is a tremendous task of reconstruction ahead of all the world. There is the rubble to clear away; but much more important there are new structures to take the place of the old.

The vision and capacity of today's youth will determine whether they live in the ruins of a past or in new edifices builded upon the ideals of freedom and liberty.

Many high school graduates, such as these at the Hannah Penn, junior high school, York, Pa., will be able to take their places without much further training in the ranks of those who are planning to defend their communities from death dropping down during air raids.

A mechanized army calls for the utmost inventive and operational skills which the American people can produce. These Denver high school boys will know how to operate an electric semaphore if they should serve in the signal corps of the army.

Victory vs. Luxury

"John's older brother who finished high school in 1941 burned up the tires of his old jallopy on the highways at sixty miles an hour, either pleasure or business bent. John will ride a bus or walk to "go places and do things." Susan who graduates in 1942 will find that permanents, fluffy evening dresses, silk and nylon hose were luxuries that her older sister of 1940 did not bequeath to her. Youth, like the rest of us, must sacrifice some of the refinements of existence, and before the struggle is over, may forego some of the necessities."

Problems of Education Aired at Conference

At an annual meeting of the American Council of Education, Chicago, Ill., the following statements were made by educators:

Roscoe L. West, president, State Teachers college, Trenton, N. J., said: "People know intuitively that education must focus on getting folks ready to live better in their community than they would have lived otherwise. And by community I mean the nation and the world."

William J Hamilton, superintendent of schools, Oak Park, Ill., spoke on this problem which faced education "There is evidence that during the post-war period, conditions pertaining to the support of the public schools will not be improved. The demand for social security is already being given much consideration as the principal factor in the new social order and may supersede education in importance . . . public education will become involved in a confusing mass of legislation."

DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

RRs VS. SHIPS

It hasn't made headlines, but a battle royal has been raging between WPB Czar Donald Nelson and Transportation Czar Joe Eastman over the freezing of steel for the construction of railroad cars.

With less and less shipping moving along the coast, and more and more traffic by rail, the question is one of the most important facing the country.

What happened was that the War Production board froze all construction materials already on hand in railroad construction shops. The intention was to transfer these materials for use in building other types of cars.

However, Joe Eastman claims that these materials, chiefly steel, already had been bought and cut out for certain cars, in certain shapes, so the order merely will make the materials go unused, with car shops closing down.

Already, Eastman argues, certain plants of Pullman Standard are idle, at a time when all plants should be used to capacity.

Meanwhile railroads are groaning with traffic. Sugar is now being hauled by rail as much as possible from Florida to avoid submarines. Oil is clogged up in the producing fields for lack of railroad transportation. And with the sinkings of several Chilean ore ships, more iron ore has to be hauled from interior U. S. iron mines.

In view of all this, Eastman complains bitterly that Nelson won't release the steel and let the car foundries do the job.

INFLUENCING EUROPEAN LABOR

Here is one inside reason why Roosevelt leans toward labor. Basically, the President always has been pro-labor, and continues to be, even though he has become fed up with some labor activities in the past year.

But in addition, U. S. war strategists are convinced that the chief hope of revolution in Europe comes from labor. And most of the psychological warfare strategy being devised here is aimed at influencing labor in Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria and the occupied countries.

Although not generally known, the nucleus of the old Social Democratic party which tried to create a real republic in Germany is still intact. When Hitler came into power, they moved to Czechoslovakia. After the Sudetenland seizure, they moved to Paris After the downfall of Paris, they moved to the U. S. A.

Fifty Social Democrats from the old Reichstag are now in this country co-operating with U. S. officials.

Furthermore, it is labor in the European occupied countries which is able to assemble or make radios. German labor listens to the radio far more than other classes Some labor groups even have published very small "underground" newspapers on hand presses and these are distributed by hand.

German labor resents the long hours in munitions factories, the small pay and the lack of food, more than any other group. Also labor is about the only group which was not taken over completely by Hitler. The Communists, his chief opponents, now have long been underground, but secretly active.

To European labor Roosevelt always has been one of the world's greatest leaders. And one thought in the minds of war strategists is to show Europe that the rights of labor here will not be thrown completely overboard during war.

WALLACE'S FAVORITES

The men who came to Washington with Henry Wallace in the early days of the New Deal realize now that they picked a winning horse. Almost to a man, they have moved up to important posts in the government.

Claude Wickard was head of the corn-hog section in Wallace's AAA. Now he is secretary of agriculture.

Milo Perkins was a lowly assistant to Wallace, holding down a desk in the outer office Today, he runs the Board of Economic Warfare, as important as a cabinet post.

Paul Appleby was an assistant in the inner office. Now he is undersecretary of agriculture at $10,000 a year.

Chester Davis was head of the AAA. Now he is director of the Federal Reserve bank in St. Louis.

R. M. ("Spike") Evans was an aide to Wallace, now head of AAA.

Sam Bledsoe, Roy Hendrickson, and Whitney Tharin were newsmen covering agriculture. Bledsoe is now an assistant to the secretary.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Secretary of War Stimson is held in the warmest personal esteem by army commanders. Hard-working and open-minded, he never meddles in military operations and backs up his subordinates 100 per cent. Stimson is always at his desk by 8 a. m., and rarely leaves until evening, when he always takes home with him a big bundle of papers that he works over after dinner.

Good explanation of "Your Army" and how the draft works, has been written by George H. Jiler of the Bridgeport Post.

PATTERNS

SEWING CIRCLE

APPEALING because of its complete simplicity, Pattern No. 1545-B wins instant attention as a dress of many special virtues for women of larger sizes. The design is suitable for a street or business frock in a printed or monotone crepe—and equally appropriate as a house dress in a washable plain or printed cotton. Every line of it is gracious for women—the single button detail in front which draws notice to the charming, flattering low neckline, the pieced treatment of the skirt which narrows the waist and tapers the hips to a new slenderness!

Darts at the shoulder and gathers at the waistline control a fullness through the bodice which make this a comfortable dress to wear, too.

Barbara Bell Pattern No 1545-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 5¼ yards 39-inch material. 5 yards ric-rac trimming

Dress of Slimming Lines.

THERE are few fashions which do quite as much for the figure as the dress which looks like a suit, an appealing version of which is presented in Pattern No. 1560-B. In this style you get a smooth fitting top which whittles the waist, trimly outlines the feminine curves of the bosom and controls a slim effect through the hips. You will like the neat detailing too, in the low cool neckline edged with ric-rac, the row of tiny buttons for the front closing and the prettily shaped pocket flaps. The skirt has panels, for slender fitting through the hips and across the back.

Farm Prospects Bright Despite War Restrictions

Experts See Co-operative Solution to Farm Labor Problem; Shortage of Tools Greatest Headache.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

As Washington takes a look ahead across the fields and pastures and dairy farms of the nation, the prospects for the farmer seem pretty good. He is going to have some tough problems but they aren't insoluble And there are good times ahead. The ceilings on retail prices will leave room for price rises which will turn to the farmer's advantage.

Congress has yet to decide whether the point at which the ceiling on farm prices is to begin can be lowered to parity or whether it will be held at 110 as the law now holds.

Price Administrator Henderson is firm for the lower figure. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has endorsed this view which the President set forth in his fireside chat. But congress will decide.

Meanwhile, behind closed doors the problem will be threshed out as to methods to be used when the lowered retail prices roll back through the processor right up to the barn gate

This will be the point where the department of agriculture steps in with its technical knowledge and experience to supplement and probably to modify some of Mr. Henderson's ideas. For one thing cannot be forgotten: the farm products of the nation have still to be changed over to some extent from the things that are not essential to the war effort to the things that are essential to the war effort. This cannot all be done by the waving of a big stick; there must be left for the farmer a certain price motive for this changeover on his part. And how to keep prices up for the products needed and down for what isn't, is a complicated problem which cannot be settled entirely by an arbitrary system of retail price controls in a market of increased demand and limited supply.

One hardship which the farmer shares with the rest of the producers, is the difficulty of getting the tools he needs to produce with, when munitions have the first call. That is the thing that is causing the most headaches in Washington right now.

There is the question of farm machinery; of fertilizers and sprays, of transportation from the farm to the primary market, from there to the processor and finally into distribution.

And another bottleneck which backs right up to the barn and the city is the lack of processing facilities. I understand that if the pig crop now in the making proceeds at the present rate there will not be enough square feet of killing space in America to handle the hogs when they come in. Some of you will recall that in 1924 embargoes had to be placed on certain slaughterhouses to keep the pigs from piling up at their doors.

However, there is more experience stored up in Washington heads than there was then and greater ability, equipment and incentive to make use of it.

One thing that is being done is to get the farmers to begin feeding their hogs earlier so that the peak period of slaughter can be flattened out and all the pigs won't come to market at once.

Experts who have studied the situation say that the farm labor problem is by no means insoluble. It exists but it is going to be licked with the help of women, school children and part-time help from men in the small towns in rural communities who are willing to close up shop and help with the peak load at harvest time. This has already been done in some communities—fruit picking, for instance.

On the whole, the prospects are that the farmer will be much better off than he was after the last war. Then he took his extra money, made down payments on more land, mortgaged what he had to buy still more and when the depression came lost everything. There are no signs of a land-buying boom now. The farmer, once bitten is twice shy, he has begun to lay away this extra cash for the rainy day that he, of all people, knows is coming.

Farmers have already made rainy day payments to the tune of $5,000,000. This is the amount reported by the Federal Land banks as the amount which can be used in the future to apply to their long-term installment loans. Every farm over a series of years has its "rainy days" in which income falls below normal or in which the farm family has reverses of one kind or another. These rainy day funds are bound to prove helpful in many ways, and, as President Roosevelt said, those who comply with the suggestions for paying off debts and curtailment of installment buying "will be grateful that they have done so when this war is over."

When A. G. Black, governor of the Farm Credit administration, saw that this year's crops were going to bring more money in than they have for many years he began selling this "rainy day" idea to the borrowers. They were sold to the tune of $5,000,000. Some farmers have already paid up four or five years' installments on their long-term loans. They will be sitting pretty if rainy days come. "Farmers sometime wonder," says Governor Black, "whether, in these days in which they are being urged to buy war bonds as a patriotic duty, they should lay aside funds with the Federal Land banks with which to meet their own private debts. Well, remember that the Federal Land banks invest the funds received from future payments in government securities. The farmers realize that they are accomplishing not one but two things in placing their cash in the future payment fund—they provide for their own security and stop payment of interest on that part of their loan equal to the funds deposited. They have the assurance that the money in the interim will be working for Uncle Sam.

"Buy bonds of course," says Governor Black, "but also reduce your farm mortgage indebtedness while you have an opportunity."

And that is just what the farmer is doing.

Concepts of War

How does it feel to register for the second time?

When the men from 45 to 65, especially those near enough the top of the bracket to have served in the first World war, went to the school house and signed their registration card, they did it with quite a flourish. Of course they knew they would probably never be called for military service but just the same it gave them a sort of a "we did it before we can do it again" feeling. They felt, if the feelings of one of them who is making these observations are typical, as if there was quite a lot of fight in the old dog still.

But any one of them who paused to reflect a moment must have realized what a wholly different attitude many of the boys of 1942 have compared with the draftees or the men who enlisted in 1917. A quarter of a century ago America had only the quaintest conception of war. It was based chiefly on romance. It had little or nothing to do with the experiences soldiers in previous wars had encountered, still less of the experiences they themselves were to encounter, such as for instance trench warfare under sustained bombardment or aerial attack.

To the men of 1917 fighting a war was, besides being a patriotic duty, more or less of a sporting thing. But the writings and the teachings of the last 20 years have served to root out the idea that war is a chivalrous thing. To many of the modern generation it seems contemptible and patriotism doesn't appear to be involved.

There is one thing that many people fail to understand. One has to live through war conditions to understand war. This understanding makes it possible, paradoxical though it may seem, for a normal person to adjust himself to the utterly abnormal conditions about him. To live under a code contrary to that which he has been taught; to bear up under discomfort, delay, suffering and danger. This factor evolves from a crowd psychology which produces a mass patience, self-reliance, courage and self-sacrifice.

Horse Is Important Source of War Power

Tips Are Given for Better Care of Helpful Animal

By J. L. EDMONDS
(Professor of Horse Husbandry, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.)

With horses being a more important source of farm power than in many years, here are some tips on making the horse a more reliable and cheaper source of farm power.

1. Use a variety of feeds to fill all the requirements of a ration—nutrients of the proper amount and proportions, bulk enough for safety in digestion and a high degree of palatability.

2. Feed according to individual needs Horses probably vary more than other farm stock in individual feed requirements.

Courtesy U S Department of Agriculture.

This span of Maryland horses is working the same as ever. But their value to the owner, and the nation, has increased considerably.

3. Feed according to the job. Failure to adjust feed to the work being done causes the waste of much feed and occasionlly results in the loss of good horses.

4. Use only feeds of good quality. Horses may safely eat considerable quantities of cheap, coarse, rough feed if it is wholesome.

5. Be punctual about feeding times. The horse is a creature of habit and shows his appreciation of punctuality, regularity and cleanliness in feeding by increased thrift.

6. Home-grown rations are usually cheapest. Very satisfactory rations may be composed entirely or almost entirely of home-grown feeds.

7. The weight of the horse and the presence or lack of thrift and spirit are tests of the adequateness of a ration. Horses at severe work usually do not need more than a pound of hay daily for each 100 pounds they weigh, but the grain ration should be approximately 1¼ pounds daily for each 100 pounds weight.

8. Frequent watering and regular salting are very essential in hot weather.

9. Parasites of the digestive tract are best treated by an experienced veterinarian. Many farm colts and horses are too heavily parasitized to respond to good care.

10. Start horses to work gradually while the weather is still cool. Be a good horseman. Groom horses regularly.

11. Trim and level feet regularly. This may be done with regulation horseshoer's tools.

Hints on Farm Buildings

Farm buildings supported on wood posts frequently settle because of decay or the work of termites. Uneven settlement often is the cause of damage to wood framing.

To prevent uneven settling of farm buildings supported on wood posts, engineers of the U. S. department of agriculture suggest that the posts be treated against rot and insects and set on masonry footings—either stone slabs or concrete—below the frost line. Posts used in repair of buildings should also be treated and set on masonry.

In jacking up a plastered farm building that has settled unevenly, engineers of the U. S. department of agriculture suggest that the jacking be very gradual and uniform to prevent the walls from cracking.

Building foundations that slope with a hillside are likely to shift, say engineers of the U. S. department of agriculture. Movement can be stopped by under-pinning so that the new footings are horizontal, like steps. These should extend below the frost line.

Increase of Dairy Cows

The number of dairy cows in Ohio and in the United States increased 3 per cent in 1941, and the number of dairy calves and heifers was the largest on record. The increase in cow numbers in 1942 probably will exceed the 1941 increase.

Cheap garden, field, or lawn seeds usually are the most expensive that can be purchased. Low germination weed contamination, and dirt are the three chief factors that make some seed sell for less.

PLEDGE FOR AN AMERICAN

I would rather pay taxes to Uncle Sam than tribute to Hirohito.

I would rather be socked by Washington than hocked by Tokyo.

I would rather give till it hurts than to be blackjacked when my feelings won't make any difference.

I would rather go all out for America NOW than to find myself "all in" under the Japs and Nazis.

Valley Forge was tough, but any existence under Japan or Adolf would make it seem like a Valhalla.

A democracy fumbles, hesitates, muddles and bungles, but I still prefer it to any form of government that concentrates on dirty work to such an extent that it gets most of the high marks in gangsterism.

I would rather be exasperated by Washington, D. C., than silenced by Tokyo or Berlin.

I would rather excuse some of the blunders by my form of government than not be permitted to hear about the blunders of a new form of government.

I prefer to co-operate with my American leaders in every way rather than to take a chance on a leadership in which what I want to do will make no difference whatever.

I think the need of the moment is a switch from the More Abundant to the LESS ABUNDANT LIFE, and that it should be made while there is still a choice.

I believe that The Forgotten Man is in danger of becoming The Forgotten Manikin unless he wakes up and becomes the Patriot Who Never Forgets.

I would rather get suggestions from Roosevelt than orders from Hitler.

I prefer instructions from the White House to orders from the Reich or Diet.

I would rather perish in the spirit of MacArthur than survive under the yoke of the Nipponese or Nazis.

I think the 44-hour week of work should have no place in our calculations when defeat in this war may mean 100 years of slavery.

I would rather work overtime just now, regardless of the money, than to work on a non-stop basis for the rest of my life without being consulted.

When I know that American prisoners of war are toiling in road gangs in Japan for a bowl of rice a day I am resolved not to impede their rescue by quibbling over another 20 cents an hour and time and a half for giving up my Sunday auto excursion.

Whenever my impulses prompt me to squawk, "But I'm not getting a square deal," I am resolved to pull out a little card upon which I have written "What about the men of Bataan, Corregidor and Wake Island?"

A SONG FOR TODAY
(To the tune of "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?")

Once I had some toothpaste, long ago,
Gosh, I sure was a boob!
Now I'm out of toothpaste, moanin' low—
Brother, can you spare a tube?

Used to have my whiskers shaved each day,
Now I look like a Rube;
Shaving cream costs more than I can pay—
Brother, can you spare a tube?

I'm all-out for Vict'ry, beard and all,
Let's slice those Japs into cubes!
Meanwhile, can't you hear me sadly call—
Brother, can you spare some tubes?

Mrs. Roosevelt says she may have a White House vegetable garden this year. All we can say is that it ruins a railroad trip if you have to worry about weeding.

Our fear is that the First Lady, becoming quite confused, may get the timetable and the seed store folder mixed. It is pretty exasperating to find that string beans leave on track eight daily except holidays and carry a diner, while the 8:15 for Chicago must be planted in rows one foot apart and watched for bugs and worms.

Hancock Farmers Raising Food To Defeat The Axis Powers

HANCOCK COUNTY FARMERS ARE ALL OUT TO HELP WIN THE WAR

Farmers of the State of Iowa and the North Central Region are going to receive payments this year for producing the things we need and not the things we do not need In other words, our Farm Program is an all out production program to produce food for our army and navy and our allies abroad, which we think is the greatest weapon of all.

We farmers cannot make bombers or tanks or battleships, but the thundering factories and smoking steel mills cannot make food, and without food for men, bombers cannot fly, ships cannot sail, and tanks cannot roll That's what we mean when we say farmers are IN the war.

With the icreased income that the farmers will receive in 1942, I feel sure that they are going to invest a very good portion of their increased income or AAA checks in War Bonds.

The letter which follows was received in the AAA office from one of our cooperators who has a boy in the army who is now on foreign soil ready to give his life for our cause:

"Dear Sirs: I do not wish to receive my government check this year. Please convert the money coming to me into government bonds. I know of no better way to show my gratitude to my President and to my country which stepped in and litterally saved me and thousands of farmers like myself from financial ruin and misery during the depression.

"I do not consider this a sacrifice nor do I want you to consider it so It is regretable that some folks entertain the idea that they sacrifice anything as long as they have not given of their own life Loaning money to our government and country is not a sacrifice, it is a blessed privilege to show a small degree of gratitude to our country to which under God (and I thank God that I do not need to say 'under Hitler') I owe all that I have and above all a free existence

"Neither do I wish to excuse myself with this act from any further obligation in bond buying The boy I have left and myself have been trying to do our part in purchasing bonds and hope to be able to double the amount we have purchased so far by the end of the year. I look upon all bond buying and all converting of government paychecks for farmers as a blessed privilege to kiss the hand that is feeding us and safeguarding to us the blessed heritage of freedom"

JAMES TOWNSEND,
Chairman, Hancock County
USDA War Board.

NORTH IOWA BREEDERS COOP TO ELECT DIRECTORS

The members of the North Iowa Breeders Cooperative will meet on Thursday evening, June 11 at 8:30 o'clock, at the grade school building in Kanawha This artificial breeding cooperative has over 1,000 cows signed and more than 100 members have signed up with the association. Any farmer wishing to have a part in the election of directors of the association should be sure to sign and pay his membership before the meeting.

The association is interested in improving the livestock in the two counties of Wright and Hancock. Breeders of Holstein, Guernsey, Shorthorn and Brown Swiss cattle should inquire of the nearest agricultural teacher or county agent in the two counties for the particulars of the association The bulls the association will use will be among the best that can be obtained The breeder is free of the ever-existing menance of keeping a bull He will have the council of a registered veterinarian in the breeding of his herd.

RECORD YEAR FOR PICNICS IN STATE PARKS

One Of The Many State Park Picnic Areas In Which Iowa School Children Held Their Annual School Picnics

May was "school picnic month" in Iowa's State Parks, and 1942 has been a record year in spite of the cold weather in May. The wild animals and birds have become accustomed to the parade of humanity. June, July and August will find thousands of Iowans in the Parks on Sundays and holidays enjoying family re-unions and gatherings around the picnic tables and ovens provided by the state to make picnics a real pleasure.

Are you making full use of the State Park nearest you?

Bossy Meets War Production Challenge As Dairy Industry Supplies Vital Foods

Industry Observes Sixth Annual June Campaign.

CHICAGO.—June dairy month brings a picture of 26,000,000 cows on nearly 5,000,000 farms in the United States, each performing an important function in winning the war. Quietly at work in the barns and on the pastures from Maine to California and from the Canadian border to the Gulf, these 26,000,000 animals are daily producing a third of a billion pounds of milk.

That means an average production of 166,666 tons of milk every day in the year. If placed in ten gallon cans, 3,921,569 cans would be required to hold an average day's milk production in the United States. This is enough milk to fill 6,666 big 25-ton tank cars. If these were all put together in one big milk train, we would have each morning a train of 25-ton milk tank cars 57 miles long.

The flow of this life-giving stream of food rated by nutritionists as the No. 1 protective food is of vital importance to our nation at all times, but especially so this year. The Allied nations and the soldiers of the United States must have milk and its products Factory and munition workers have greater need than ever for milk and milk products. Office workers, housewives, school children and all other classes of the American population are coming to realize, as never before, their need for greater quantities of these vital foods in order to keep America strong by making Americans stronger.

Dairy Program.

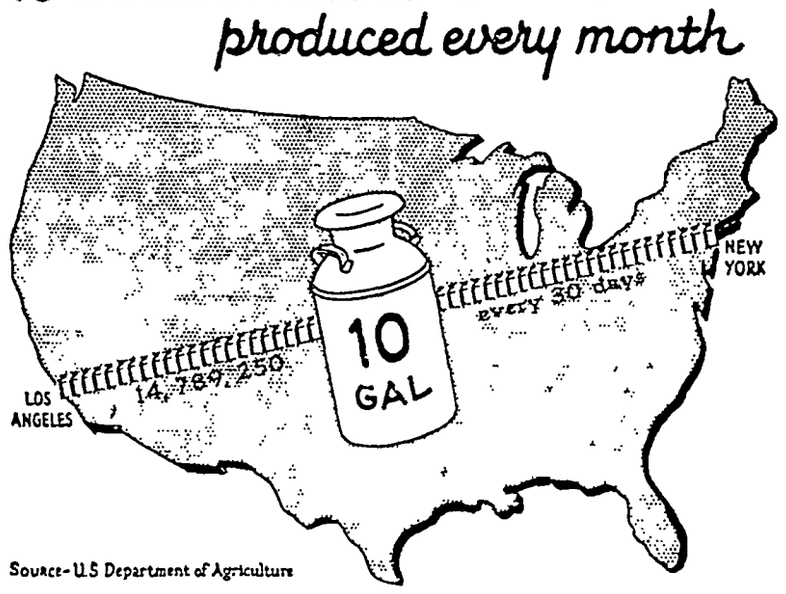
Today the National Dairy Council program, which the industry has sponsored for 23 years, is finding new recognition and new support A national nutrition program is expanding and materially strengthening the realization of the fact that good nutrition is necessary to optimum health, vigor and vitality. This national nutrition program has been in operation for more than a year.

Just how are these 26 million cows and those responsible for the product meeting this challenge and this opportunity?

We need not wait for that answer. Those "bossies" and their masters are meeting the challenge. Starting with an average production of 104 billion pounds of milk during the years 1935 to 1939; there was 111 billion pounds of milk produced in 1940, 115 billion 500 million pounds of milk in 1941, and the production for 1942 is estimated at not less than 120 billion pounds of milk to be produced in the United States. In other words, for each and every day of the year, including Sundays and holidays, there is being produced more than 44,000,000 pounds of milk over that of five years ago. That is the equivalent of a fully loaded milk train of 50,000 pound capacity cars, 7½ miles long over and above their normal production

Terrific Handling Problem.

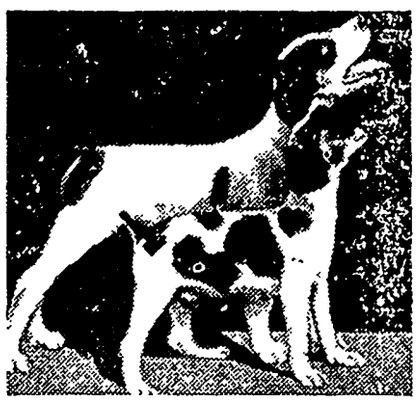
Stated in terms of ten gallon milk cans, if these were filled and placed side by side, we would find that we had every month a line of filled milk cans 3,150 miles long over and above the amount of milk that was produced in this country in the same period during the preceding five-year period. Producing such a volume of milk in addition to the regular supply is no easy task. Just the job of hauling milk to fill 7½ miles of 50,000 pound capacity tank cars from the farm to the milk station or dairy plant each morning, is enough to stagger the imagination of the average individual, but that is simply a little "before breakfast chore" as compared with the extra effort necessary to raise the feed, do the additional milking and cool and care for that extra 7½-mile milk train load of milk each morning.



As its contribution to feeding the democracies, the dairy industry of the United States has increased its production from 1935 to 1939 by nearly 15,000,000 ten-gallon cans of milk—enough cans to make a row from Los Angeles to New York.

Dry Milk Solids.

For many years, the cream from about 45 billion pounds of milk each year has been used for the manufacture of butter, including both the factory and the farm-made product



Milk made the difference—both dogs had the same food, but the larger one received a daily milk ration.

Of this, about 30 billion pounds of milk have been farm separated with the remaining skimmed milk being kept on the farms for feed for calves, pigs and chickens. One of the severe re-adjustments which the industry has been called upon to make in order to furnish sufficient dry milk powder to the United Nations has been to shift from farm separation of much of this milk to the delivery of whole milk.

Manufacture of dry milk solids is gaining rapidly and in March reached an all-time high of 49,800,000 pounds. While the speeding up of the manufacture of dry milk solids has necessarily been delayed longer than seemed desirable on account of the vast amount of changes in practice necessary, both on the farms and in the plants; yet, it is now gaining momentum rapidly. Production today is approximately 120 per cent of 1941.

The three states of Wisconsin, New York and California produce more than one-half of all the dry milk solids in the country at the present time. Other states important in the manufacture of dry milk solids are Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Idaho and Vermont, in the order named.

The increase in the manufacture of dry milk solids has forced severe changes in both farm management practice and in the operation of butter factories. Farmers have had to adjust their operations to new methods of feeding. Creameries have been obliged to put in new equipment, to train new personnel and to re-vamp their operating and merchandising plans. This is in addition to another difficult problem which the butter making industry must face every year and that is, the varying seasonal production. During the year 1940 to 1941 butter manufacture varied by months from a low of 115 million 700 thousand pounds in November to a high of 205 million 300 thousand pounds in June.

North Central States.

Most of these changes have been brought about in the North Central states where butter production is the heaviest—Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin rank first, second and third in the order named as the "big three" in the butter industry in the United States. After that come Michigan, Nebraska, Missouri, Illinois, Ohio, Kansas, Indiana, California, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Washington. These 15 states produce more than 85 per cent of all the butter made in the United States.

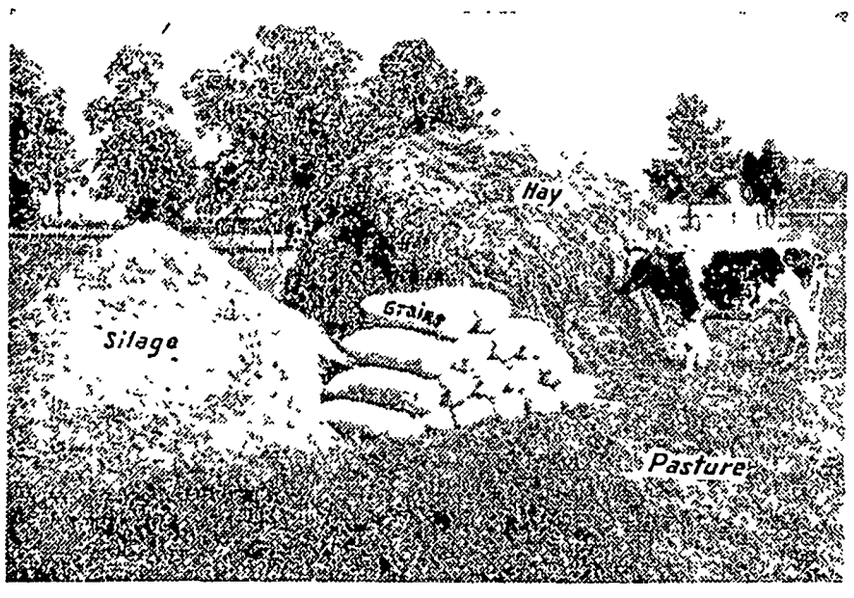
Cheese is another important dairy product, the manufacture of which has been materially affected by current conditions. Largely as the result of the war and the demand for American cheese abroad, production of this product has been stepped up enormously. The government request in March, 1941, for 250 million pounds of cheese amounted to an urging, on its part, for almost 50 per cent increase in production. The industry has met that request and more. Nearly 300 million pounds of cheese had been provided for "lend-lease" purchases from March 15, 1941, to April 1, 1942. Cheese production is now running about 150 per cent as much as a year ago.

Cheese is a product containing practically all the ingredients of fluid milk, and as such, it is one of the first on the protective list of foods Its value and its importance are gaining recognition rapidly. In the production of cheese, Wisconsin alone produces more than half of all the cheese in the United States. Following Wisconsin are New York, Illinois, Indiana, Oregon, Ohio, Missouri, Texas, Michigan and Minnesota in the order of their importance.

Evaporated Milk Industry.

War conditions have had an equally important bearing on the evaporated milk industry. To fill the demand for a concentrated milk product for the United Nations, the government asked for a step-up in production sufficient to supply 25 million additional cases of evaporated milk This called for an increase of more than 50 per cent in manufacture. It called for changes in farm management plans, for adjustments in evaporating plant operations, for the training of personnel and for shifts of merchandising methods fully equal to those the cheese industry met Here again the goal was equalled and more Approximately 30 million cases of evaporated milk has been furnished for "lease-lend" operations. In this industry, too, Wisconsin leads with almost 30 per cent of all the evaporated milk production in the United States Ohio, California, New York, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, Indiana, Washington and Pennsylvania follow in the order named

During June hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of publicity in newspapers and trade publications, in food and drug stores, radio programs, publicity stunts, advertising material at point-of-sale, soda fountains, as well as educational programs, combine under the leadership of the National Dairy council with the efforts of nutritional authorities to make of this the most gigantic effort to bring home to all people the realization of the need of better health and the place of milk and its products in achieving that goal.

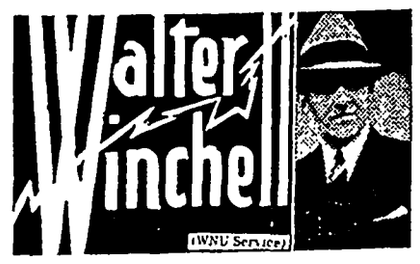


A dairy cow weighing 1,000 pounds (providing she maintains her weight and produces 7,605 pounds of milk a year) eats approximately the following amounts of feed in one year: two acres of rich pasturage in five months of summer; 6,300 pounds of silage and 2,730 pounds of alfalfa hay during the seven remaining months; and 1,700 pounds of grain throughout the entire 12 months.

Ice Cream Consumption More Than Doubled

Long regarded as the "all American" dessert, ice cream is rapidly coming to be recognized not only as an economical food, but since it also contains all of the ingredients of milk, as one of the best protective foods. Within the past eight years, consumption has risen from about 4½ quarts per person per year to over 10½ quarts per person per year in 1941. That figure is rising rapidly. Ice cream takes the output of nearly one million cows.

In the manufacture of ice cream, Pennsylvania leads the nation closely followed by New York. These two states produce more than one-fourth of all the ice cream in the United States Illinois, Ohio, California, Michigan, Massachusetts, Texas, Wisconsin, Indiana, Missouri, Minnesota, New Jersey, Iowa and Maryland follow in the order of this productive importance.



Newspaper Man Stuff:

WHEN A REPORTER CRUSADES against dirty elements in a community or country there is very little glory connected with it, but he puts himself in great personal danger . . . Donald R. Mellett of the Canton (Ohio) Daily News was killed by gangsters because he exposed their activities . . . In 1922, George Dale of the Muncie Post-Democrat fought the K. K. K. One night a few of them attacked him and almost beat him to death. He shot one of his attackers with a gun he wrenched from his hand. Kluxers in high places railroaded him to jail. And it wasn't until 1926 that the State Supreme Court ruled in Dale's favor . . . For many years the Butte (Montana) Daily Bulletin slugged courageously against the no-goods, regardless of how powerful they were. Because of that, they had to keep loaded rifles in the city room—and every reporter had a gun laying beside his typewriter . . . This reporter has also never stopped firing his typewriter guns against the slimey members of our community and country, in spite of all kinds of threats. Yet some people wonder why we tote a .38.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Wireless: See how the Axis whimpers when you get tough. Churchill slapped a couple of chips off Adolf's shoulder, and Berlin cried its eyes out. "You ask for gas," taunted Winston, "and gas you'll get." The Berlin press whined next day, "Please, mister, you got us wrong" . . The overseas exchange between Oliver Littleton and Donald Nelson, with Quentin Reynolds chairmaning, was no encouragement to Nazzy eavesdroppers. They talked great big production figures that won't make it an easy summer for the Fritzies . . Another exciting bulletin was the item from Burma—how the Chinese tricked the chesty Japs into over-running second base And putting the ball on them with a thump that just about laid the skull open . Byron Price is a sensible censor. Too tight a clamp down on radio news, he said, would make the public suspicious of the war effort . . . The March of Time flubbed on the Malta episode. Bad timing more than anything—since the show went on the air before it really got going in Malta.

The Story Tellers: Gen. de Gaulle was in the doghouse with the brass hats before the war started. Elliot Paul, in his book, "The Last Time I Saw Paris," mentions that de Gaulle pooh-poohed the Maginot Line, the darling of the army clique. He foresaw that Hitler would skip around the end . . Scott Feldman surprises you in The Woman with a tip that the best way to get a stage job is to troupe for a little theater. There's always a Shubert or two lurking there, he says, to hire you for a hit Imagine Lee Shubert going TOWARD an actor! . Filmster Joan Davis, according to Lupton Wilkinson in This Week, "lives in a purple house with yellow knobs at the corners, sleeps in a Du Barry bed with mauve and lilac streamers. The glass in her boudoir mirror is tinted peachbloom." What's she looking for? Nightmares in technicolor?

Nazi propagandists keep repeating that they love peace. Every time Hitler or another Nazi makes a speech, they insist that they are peaceful And the tragic part of this is that this propaganda bullet aimed at America was manufactured by an American press agent! . . When the Nazis first came to power they never stopped boasting to the outside world about their warlike attitude . But when this press agent was in Germany, he told the Nazis to base their propaganda on disarmament and peace . . . You've probably guessed his name—Ivy Lee And so it was this tip by a press agent that made many Americans and people in other democracies believe Nazis really wanted peace Strange as it seems, we might not have had a war if democracies weren't lulled to sleep by Nazi peace talk.

The Front Pages: The Herald-Tribune editorially declared war on Laval & Co , and advised the State Dep't that Vichy has ratted on the USA from the start It okayed Jap bases for attacks on China, the paper reminded, and cautioned Hull that Laval's word wasn't any better than a police court package thief's . . If Vichy wants to be chummy, how come those uniformed brats demonstrated in front of the U. S. embassy Monday?

Barry Faris of INS once pointed out why reporters should never pigeonhole their stories . He said: "Stories are like vegetables. Use them quickly or they spoil."

He was blind . . But . ry day he had his secretary read every item in a newspaper. He wanted to know what page an item was printed on, how much space did it fill, how much was devoted to headlines, what were the cross-heads, were any boxes used what about the illustrations . . And that's the way one of America s greatest publishers guided one of the country's greatest newspapers for many years . . . His name: Joseph Pulitzer. The news-

WAR FLASHES

Belgian anti-Axis saboteurs have blown up one of the largest synthetic fertilizer plants in their country. This is a serious blow to the Nazis, who have been using the output of this plant for food production in Germany.

For more than a month there have been no cereals of any kind on the Sofia market. Also the lack of feed, commandeered by the Nazis, is so severe that thousands of horses have died of starvation.

Four small Buffalo concerns are demonstrating that where there is a will there is a way to aid war production. Three of them, tombstone manufacturers, have obtained contracts to sandblast castings for battleships and machine gun mounts. The fourth, which formerly made wig-wag turn signals for trucks, is now making armaments parts.

When Nazi stooge Quisling recently issued a call for enlistments in a select "Quisling Guard" only 35 in the whole of Norway responded.

The labor shortage in Italy has become so acute that all males between 14 and 70 and all females between 16 and 60 have been required to register for "war work service."

CONGRESSIONAL GRAB

Even Washington, where congressional boodling is an old story, was startled when some 300 senators and representatives took "X" rationing cards giving them an unlimited supply of gasoline.

The capital well knows that few members of congress have sufficient "official business" to warrant an "X" rating Also, after the way the boys got their fingers burned in the attempted crude "bundles for congress" pension grab, it was thought they had learned their lesson —for this session at least.

But it seems they haven't, for the gas grab is only part of the rationing ducking story.

OPA has said nothing about it, but the inside fact is that a number of the congressional statesmen have privately demanded that the drastic tire restrictions be lifted for them so that they can get tires for campaigning purposes.

Further, none of these politicos said anything about extending such a concession to their opponents. They want tires for themselves, but their rivals must abide by the regulations without any special favors.

So far OPA has turned a deaf ear to the tire demand.

Note: One reason why "X" cards were dished out so freely on Capitol Hill was that a number of congressional wives acted as registrars.

FAST THINKER

Popular pastime at Selective Service is swapping stories about draftees. Here is the latest making the rounds:

A prospective draftee was taking his physical examination and the doctor directed him to "look at the chart on the wall and tell me what numbers you see."

"What wall?" asked the draftee blankly.

After looking him over a few minutes the doctor told the registree the army couldn't use him. He put on his clothes and departed. But on the way home, he stopped off to see a movie. When the lights went on at intermission, he was startled to find the examining physician seated beside him.

But the draftee was equal to the occasion. Nudging the doctor he asked innocently, "Can you tell me if this is the bus to Alexandria?"

JAP OIL

Navy experts are closely watching Jap efforts to rehabilitate the destroyed oil wells and refineries in the Dutch East Indies and Burma.

Orders have been issued that samples of oil, grease, gasoline and fuel oil from captured Jap equipment be rushed by the fastest route to the Engineering Experimental station, Annapolis, where analysis will attempt to ascertain from what region, and even from what well, the original crude was obtained.

Nearly all oil wells and refineries were destroyed when the Allies were forced to retire from the Netherlands Indies and Burma, but the Japs are working feverishly to get the fields back in production. So far there has been no sign of any Jap use of this oil.

Note: A quart is needed for a thorough analysis, but if no more than a smear can be found, the navy wants it

Ersatz Rubber Problem Still National Headache

Total Supply May Dwindle in Year's Time to 50 Per Cent of Needs for Essential Military Operation.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

I leaned over the rail of the radio gallery in the United States senate the other day and looked down on a fiery debate on the agriculture supply bill.

The touseled head of Vice President Wallace, presiding over the session, I could see almost directly under me when I leaned over. Unlike many of the men who preside over the senate or house, he was keenly interested. His eyes never left the speakers. Naturally. He had been a farm boy. He had edited a farm paper, he had been secretary of agriculture.

It was not the main subject of the debate that interested me at the moment but a digression. Tall, silver-haired Senator Gillette from out where the tall corn grows and where both corn and men grow tall, had the floor. He had digressed to speak about the utilization of surplus products for the manufacture of articles which have become scarce because of the war. Specifically, the manufacture of synthetic rubber from grain alcohol.

The senator from Iowa walked back and forth between the desks, trim in a slate-blue suit, tense in manner, an accusing finger continually pointing from a long, straight-stretched arm. He had just come from a hearing of a senate subcommittee of which he was chairman where they had heard testimony by Dr. William Hale, president of National Agrol company, to the effect that "if opposition of the big petroleum companies could be eliminated, we could make budtabiene synthetic rubber for five cents a pound from surplus farm commodities."

Senator Gillette was bursting with indignation — or so at least he seemed from his words and the voice in which he spoke them.

"We had demonstrated to us," he said describing the committee hearings, "that plants for the utilization of farm products can be established at one-tenth the cost of the critical materials in one-third of the time."

O'Mahoney on Monopolies

To illustrate opposition to such efforts he told a story of how a Polish scientist, an expert in the making of synthetic rubber who had come to this country, was suddenly ordered to keep his mouth shut and spirited away where he could not be found. He charged that this "sordid romance" as he called it was the work of men in certain agencies in Washington who, while they might be as patriotic as anyone else, were still protecting monopolies which they represented to the farmer's disadvantage At the word monopoly, Him, dynamic Senator O'Mahoney was on his feet to expound that subject which is his pet—the evil of the monopoly, and after him Senator Wheeler rose to echo the charges.

The senators' remarks had their effect. Immediately the War Production board was heard from. A WPB spokesman declared that Donald Nelson "had been working like hell" on the whole rubber problem. The next day Arthur Newhall, WPB rubber co-ordinator, called a press conference and set forth in detail what the WPB was doing and planning to do to meet the rubber needs.

Shortly after Senator Gillette's speech the WPB stated that it had ordered preparation of a plan for nation-wide rationing of gasoline so that those states where tanks were still flowing would be restrained from the use of gasoline and in turn the use of rubber tires which make up America's greatest rubber stock pile.

Rubber From Dandelions

One possible source of rubber which offers the greatest theoretical possibilities and therefore is looked upon with the greatest doubt by the realists who have seen many tall promises collapse, is about to be tested—it is the humble dandelion. Not the one that ruins your front lawn but an imported Russian variety.

The rubber experts of the Bureau of Plant Industry are going to give the Russian dandelion a chance. They have received a shipment of seeds by air from the Soviets, where it is claimed that these dandelions yield 30 to 50 pounds of rubber per acre on an annual basis.

The plant looks much like our dandelion but is much larger and it is from the large roots that the rubber is made. The weeds will be planted and carefully watched in order to keep them from spreading and becoming a curse instead of a blessing.

Meanwhile the military men are pessimistic. They want the rubber and they are afraid the garage door will be locked after the tires are stolen—or worn out.

They claim they will be short of necessary rubber in a year from now. According to unofficial estimates, by the end of next year the supply of crude and synthetic rubber in the country will amount to just about half, or perhaps even less, than the needs for essential military operations and transportation, exclusive of civilian use.

A Philosopher Faces Death

One Frenchman with the soul of a philosopher and the pen of a poet faced death over his beloved France in the spring of 1940 and found the meaning of life. He was Antoine de Saint-Exupery, and between the covers of his latest book, "Flight to Arras" (Reynal & Hitchcock, Inc.) he has put down as significant an autobiography of a few hours in a man's life as can be found.

It was in the last days of May, 1940, "a time of full retreat, of full disaster," that Saint-Exupery found himself. Filled with a sense of futility, he saw airplane crew after crew "being offered up as a sacrifice . . . as if you dashed glassfuls of water into a forest fire in the hope of putting it out" He stood in the midst of a world that was cracking up so completely around him that "death, in such a tumult, had ceased to count."

Then came his turn to be "offered up." With a photographer and gunner he was ordered out on a sortie at 30,000 feet and a reconnaisance flight at 2,000 feet above the German tank parks scattered over a considerable area around Arras. He took off, weighed down with the sense of the futility of it all and his inability to understand why he ought to die in such an empty gesture.

At six miles above the earth, when consciousness would drift gently toward oblivion if the oxygen line fouled, when controls froze and stray German fighter planes spat contemptuously at him as he looked down on a "world in decomposition," Saint-Exupery struggled fruitlessly with the philosophical meaning of his venture.

Then swooping down to within 2,000 feet of the German anti-aircraft guns around Arras, he suddenly found the meaning of it all. Surrounded by an "ack-ack" fire that "drowned (him) in a crop of trajectories as golden as stalks of wheat," flying at the "center of a thicket of lance strokes . . . threatened by a vast and dizzying flutter of knitting needles," he found himself bound to the earth in a "coruscating web of golden wire" And in that moment, encircled by flame through which there appeared to be no escape, he was suddenly released from himself. He was stripped of the fear for his physical body. Suddenly he knew that "Man does not die . . . there is no death when you meet death . . . when the body sinks into death, the essence of man is revealed."

And when Saint-Exupery thus found himself he found, too, that he was a part of that larger concept —Man. That his ties were not alone with his friends and his village and even his country, but beyond his country with all other countries. He became aware that "He who is different from me does not impoverish me—he enriches me," that "Each man bears the sins of all men."

In this understanding he found that "It is Man who must be restored to his place among men. It is Man that is the essence of our culture. Man, the keystone in the arch of the community. Man, the seed whence springs our victory."

(Because I am an ex-soldier I was afraid to try to assay this book which made a deep impression on me. So I asked a colleague, Pauline Frederick, a child during the last war, to write of it. I can tell you it's strong medicine. A tonic—if you can take it.)

Cleanliness First Rule For Farm Creamery

Lasting Care by Farmers Brings Profitable Results

By PROF W. H. E. REID,
(Dairy Department, Missouri College of Agriculture.)

After all is said, the fact remains that the kind of cream a farmer produces depends entirely on the care it receives on the farm and the frequency with which it is delivered to the butter-maker.

Cleanliness is the first commandment in the decalogue of the cow-keeping farmer Every precaution should be taken to prevent the entry of dust or other foreign matter into milk at the source. If surroundings are unclean when milking is done, dirt is likely to get into the milk. A clean barn and air free from dust are imperative.

Clipping the cow's flanks and udder is fine, but wiping with a clean, damp cloth helps a lot too in getting rid of loose hair, dust and dirt.

Scrap that old-fashioned, rusty, open-faced pail with the open seams that harbor dirt and bacteria Get a modern, well-tinned pail, one with a minimum of exposed surface to catch dirt. Keep that pail clean!

Sanitation Comes First.

Always strain the milk before separating. Use a filter type of strainer with cotton filter pads. Don't use a pad more than once. Cheesecloth does an unsatisfactory job, and when used more than once is downright dangerous.

A well-kept mechanical separator will guard cream against contamination and yield the maximum amount of butterfat. Water separators should never be used

Run milk through the separator immediately after milking. Be sure the separator is thoroughly clean. It can't really be clean unless it is washed after each use.

Just rinsing or flushing is not enough. All utensils should first be rinsed with cold water—that makes the whole job easier—and then washed in hot water with washing powder and a brush. Do not use soap, and never use a dishrag. Then flood all utensils with briskly boiling water, right out of the teakettle. Just "hot" water won't do the job. Do not wipe utensils. Invert and place on a rack or table in a sunny place.

Cooling Very Important.

Cooling is highly important. Germs and mold don't grow readily in cool cream. Cool cream immediately and keep it cool until it is sold. A simple cooling tank which provides a flow of cold water around the cream is the most satisfactory.

Even keeping the cream covered with a clean, wet burlap sack tucked under the lid handle will do a fair job.

Never mix warm cream with cooled cream. This not only causes a bitter flavor but also hastens deterioration.

It is also important to get cream to market quickly. The quicker you get the cream to market the less time there is for germs and mold to multiply. Deliver or ship cream at least twice a week in winter and three times in summer.

Tainted Dairy Products

Wild onions, garlic and other milk-tainting weeds cost American dairymen thousands of dollars loss each year. Those obnoxious pasture weeds impart undesirable flavors and odors to milk and cream.Tainted butter, milk and cream are strongly objected to by customers everywhere. No matter how good the quality otherwise, butter made from such cream is poor, offensive to the taste, and is almost unsalable.

Since wild onion is one of the first green things to appear in pasture, this particular perennial is especially bothersome in early grazing season. The best solution of the problem is to avoid pasturing milk cows on pastures with an abundance of onion in the spring and to handle the pasture so as to give grasses opportunity to grow by keeping cows off until grass has a good start. Heavy grass provides less opportunity for onions to get started.

If only weedy pasture is available the best plan to prevent weedy-flavored cream is to keep cows in milk off the weedy pasture for three to five hours before milking.

Fertilizer Suggestions In Case There Isn't Manure Available

Manure has no substitute as a general garden fertilizer. However, if the manure is not available, then it will be necessary to furnish plant nutrients in the form of chemical fertilizers. On soils of average fertility, complete fertilizers may be used safely at the rate of one ton per acre, if applied broadcast. If applied in the furrow, the applications should not be greater than 1,000 pounds per acre.

THOUGHTS ON THE MINUTE MAN

The Minute Man was a minute-man regardless of hours.

He was ready to fight any minute and nothing less than five years was considered overtime.

He came into being at Bunker Hill (which was not a golf course) and at Lexington (which was not a sedan).

He would have thought he was being mollycoddled if all he had been asked to give up was comfortable transportation and the two lumps of sugar in his coffee.

The Minute Man would have thought himself a Five-Minute Egg if he felt it necessary for his government to mention his war obligations every time there was any mention of indigestion tablets, beer, whisky, cigars and toothpastes.

Rationing was such a self-cultivated habit with him, even in time of peace, that in time of war he regarded it as impeding the national effort if he admitted he had an appetite for fresh meat.

The Minute Man wasn't so called because he watched the minute hand on a clock; when his country was in peril he didn't even watch the hour hand!

The one tool he kept at hand at all times was his rifle, and he was his own night and day shift.

His life was so hazardous that he thought saving his scalp was more important than saving money; and he would have been a little sickened by the thought that he would be recorded as doing his part if he merely bought war bonds

The Minute Man thought the minutes important.

And the only price he fixed on them was in terms of life and death.

In time of war he thought his rights fully protected if, at the end of every minute, he still had his gun and could replenish his powder.

The Minute Man never dreamed of 30-minute radio programs to arouse his patriotism; to have listened to a 15-minute air appeal to his Americanism every few hours would have made him feel insulted.

The Minute Man wanted his news straight and his battle reports undiluted; and the one thing his government never had to ask was, "Shall we tell him now or do you think it would upset him?"

The Minute Man was a man every minute.

He won against incredible odds after years of heroism.

He made secure a great nation for nearly two centuries.

No leering, fetid jests did they employ—
They used no jokes from smoking room or pit,
And yet down through the years they brought us joy

No gags dug from the sewers of Broadway—
Clean, wholesome comedy, such was their style
And they would have been out of place today.

For they were comics to traditions true,
Who never dug for laughs beneath wet planks!

Providing a new foundation for better understanding of the upper atmosphere, "the most perfect reproduction" of the Aurora Borealis, or Northern Lights, ever produced by a scientist was claimed recently by a University of California at Los Angeles physicist.

Announcing results of months of research, Dr. Joseph Kaplan, a professor of physics, revealed that, with the assistance of Dr. Sidney Rubens, he has successfully completed experiments in which he was able to reproduce both the nitrogen and oxygen lines of the upper atmosphere on a single photographic plate.

Previously, he reported, one or the other element has been reproduced singly, "but never together to give a complete picture of the spectrum of the Aurora Borealis."

"Now we have a starting point for really understanding what goes on in the upper atmosphere," Dr. Kaplan said, "and it is hoped that many more problems of the upper air can be investigated."

Practical applications of his experiments may be three-fold, the physicist declared.

1. Knowledge of the upper atmosphere may help solve radio transmission problems.

2 It may provide a more extensive knowledge of radiation from the sun—which some scientists think may become an important source of power to the world.

3. Study of our own atmosphere may help astronomers to understand the atmosphere of distant stars.

Human Body Is Managed Better Than Democracy

The human body runs itself better than democracies, it was cited recently in a medical discussion at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, founded in 1848.

The reactions of the human body were cited as an example for democracies in meeting changing conditions such as the current world crisis, because it "runs itself better than the world." In its ability to meet emergency, the human body, it was pointed out, has evolved a self-regulated internal economy which keeps it in a fit state for action, and keeps it prepared for extra effort when confronted by critical situations.

The scientists suggested that the organization of the physiologic body might well be studied in connection with disturbances of the body politic in the interest of meeting disturbing forces in democracies, such as economic upheavals, financial panics and the general run of disturbing forces.

The current crisis with its rush to produce tools, buildings and machines was compared with the preparedness of the human body to provide defense reactions for emergency.

Quick-Frozen Foods

Foods have been quick-frozen so successfully, are so convenient for quick meal preparation, retain vitamin value so much better than foods preserved by other methods that the industry has grown by leaps and bounds!

New containers have been developed to provide the household with adequate storage space for frozen foods, enabling homemakers to buy large quantities of these foods at lower cost Farmers have built quick-freezing units in their homes and community locker plants have been established in rural sections. Universities as well as commercial houses are working to promote better frozen products and more economical storage facilities.

Remember that no vegetable should ever be boiled rapidly. Cover the pan used in cooking vegetables, bring to boil, then reduce heat to keep product simmering.

Mona Lisa, Mrs. Siddons

Mona Lisa and Mrs Siddons are the subjects of two of the world's most famous portraits Mona Lisa was the third wife of a Florentine, Francesco Del Giocondo. She was painted by Leonardo da Vinci during a residence at Florence from 1503 to 1506 Though he worked on the portrait for four years he never considered that he had finished it. This Mona Lisa, or "La Joconde," is the pride of the Louvre. It was stolen from the gallery August 22, 1911, but was subsequently recovered.

Mrs. Sarah Siddons was a celebrated English actress, born of a famous stage family. She lived from 1755 to 1831, and for 30 years, until her retirement in 1812, she reigned in London as the greatest actress of her time. Her most famous role was as Lady Macbeth. "Mrs. Siddons as the Tragic Muse" is one of Sir Joshua Reynolds' best known pictures.

Why Nazi Planes Explode

A correspondent, recently returning from England, was asked to explain the fairly frequent reports that "another German plane exploded in the air almost above us" He replied that the current theory is that the Nazi planes blow up when their oxygen bottles are struck by British missiles. It is not believed that the explosion of the planes in midair is caused by the premature ignition of bombs by gunfire, the bomb fuses being well protected.

President Grant Never Member Republican Party

Ulysses S. Grant was elected President by the Republicans in 1868 without ever having been a member of that party. He never cast a Republican ballot until after he had been that party's President for eight years. His last vote before he reentered the army in the War Between the States was cast for a radical pro-slavery Democrat.

There had been a bitter feud between Grant and Andrew Johnson, who became President after Lincoln's assassination. Johnson tried to get Grant out of the country by ordering him to Mexico, but Grant refused to go. Johnson then made an attempt to overthrow Grant by calling Gen. George Henry Thomas to the command of the Union army. Thomas, who had been born in Virginia, declined to obey the order because he felt he was being used as an instrument to displace Grant.

As a result, Grant served notice that he would not permit Johnson to accompany him in the inauguration ceremonies. This is one of the few instances where a retiring President has not been present at the induction of his successor Neither was Johnson at the White House to welcome Grant to his new home.

The real nightmare of both Grant's inaugurations were the inaugural balls The first was held in a new wing of the treasury building. The guests had to descend steps to get to the ballroom, and no provision had been made for checking wraps or for carriage calls. Women were almost unprotected from the hazards of mismanagement. The supper was a failure.

Those who got into the supper room simply stayed there hungry, sleepy and many so tired that they lay on the floor to rest It was there that Horace Greeley lost his famous white hat and his gray overcoat.

Plates on Shoes Arouse School; Ban Protested

A furor was created at Soldan high school at St. Louis by protests about students who wore steel plates on the heels and toes of their shoes to keep them from wearing down.

They made so much noise walking through corridors and classrooms that school authorities requested the students not to wear the plates in the school building.

At least one student protested the ban as "undemocratic"

H P. Stillwagen, principal of the school, denied any strict orders had been issued He said "that when several hundred students came to school wearing steel shoe plates, the clatter could be heard the full length of the building." He said: "We courteously requested the students not to wear the plates."

How Gossip Started

To associate "gossip" with God would at first sight seem sacrilegious, yet, strange indeed in the way of words, the two are closely connected

For "gossip" stems from the Anglo-Saxon godsibb, which is a combination of God and sib relation, the whole meaning "akin to God" or "a kinsman of the Lord"

This accounts for the earliest meaning in English of gossip as a godfather or godmother, one, that is, who sponsored a child, a sense exemplified in the usage of the word by Selden in the line

"Should a great lady that was invited to be a gossip, in her place send her kitchen maid, it would be ill taken."

The next natural evolution in meaning of "gossip" was its now obsolete sense of a friend, companion or intimate, and finally, its modern significance of one, frequently a confidante, who tells tales out of school.

Bacteria in Cheese Okeh

The aging or ripening of cheese is the result of bacterial or mold action. Don't get scared—of the many thousands of kinds of bacteria there are, only a very few are disease producing, less than 100 in fact The rest are harmless or beneficial, and it is the beneficial sorts that set to work on cheese. What they work on is the casein.

When casein is coagulated for cheese-making, it is tough stuff; in fact, when coagulated casein is not made into cheese, it is made into billiard balls or glue. If you ever try to wrench apart a wood joint set up with casein glue you may get an idea of why green cheese is difficult to digest

The bacteria and their ferments and enzymes transform this casein into soft and friable forms—almost digest it, in fact. Since cheese must be ripened at a rather low temperature, 40 to 60 or at most 65 degrees, and since bacteria grow slowly at these temperatures, proper ripening of cheese takes time.

Fear Unknown Mystery Most

Men have always been more afraid of mystery than of genuine known dangers. The fear of the unknown caused people to become terrified as the result of Orson Welles' famous broadcast. We thought we were being bombed from Mars and could not tell what caused it

People in London who now know what causes the bombing go calmly to their shelters and often go on about their work Men go bravely to death in battle because they know what causes all the danger, but imagined dangers terrify the stoutest heart.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP HELD AT BELMOND, SUNDAY

A Youth Fellowship Rally was held at Belmond last Sunday afternoon and evening involving eight churches of the Garner Sub-District with Rev. H. W Faris as the host pastor. There were devotions, and discussions of timely topics concerning "A Chritian Philosophy of Life," a supper program, and a stirring address by Rev. Leonard of Belmond. Old officers were retired from office and new ones elected at this Rally.

The newly elected officers to serve next year beginning in October are as follows.

President, Miss Lois Riemer of the Liberty church; Vice-president, Miss Jean Ytzen, Thornton; Secretary - Treasurer, Miss Mary Whalen, Belmond; Pastor Adviser, Rev. H E Harvey, Klemme; and Adult Counselor, Mrs. W. A. Wood, Clear Lake.

The next Rally will be held in the fall at the Liberty Methodist Church with the Youth Fellowship of the church acting as host

Several young people from the Klemme and Liberty churches attended the rally: Melvin Coobs, Barbara Johnson, Elwood Harvey, Jim Thomas, Rev H E Harvey, Lois Riemer, Lorraine Bredlow, Verna Pringnitz, Rowland Pringnitz, Wayne Schoenwetter, Nava Kropp, Naomi Neiman

• MORE TROUBLE

Just to add another problem to the numerous ones they already had, not enough application blanks for rationing sugar for canning was received by the Buena Vista county rationing board A shipment of the blanks apparently were lost enroute from Washington, D. C and women desiring to can strawberries, etc, had to wait patiently for more to arrive.

• SLEEP WALKER

Janice Rutad of Estherville suffered a broken bone in her left heel when she fell from the second story bedroom window of her home Janice apparently opened a window of her room and let herself out of the window, while still asleep, landing on her feet below the window. Janice was still sleeping several hours later when found by her mother.

MANY CHICKENS KILLED ON HANCOCK COUNTY ROADS EACH YEAR

Thousands of chickens are killed every year on Hancock County roads. And this year when we need every bit of food that can be produced, the loss of a 3 or 4 pound chicken under the wheels of a pass ing automobile or truck is really a considerable loss, both to the war effort and from a financial point of view, says County Agent Paul Henderson

Another disadvantage of allowing chickens the run of the farmstead is that of picking up such parasites as coccidia and worms from areas that have been contaminated by the adult flock or young birds grown the season before

W. M. Vernon, poultry specialist at Iowa State College suggests that young chicks can be protected from these hazards by confining them to a sanitary brooder house and a sun pen in front of the brooder house where the chicks can range in the sunshine without the danger of picking up parasites This sanitary sun pen should be enclosed with 1-inch poultry netting and have a floor of deep coarse gravel, wire screen or wood slats so that the chicks cannot pick in the contaminated soil

By keeping the chicks confined they cannot run over the ground and eat earthworms and insect that are infested with tapeworms The sun porch is easily and cheaply constructed

Three Meals Daily Plan Generally Followed Here

The three-meal-a-day plan is the most generally followed in this country. We have never felt the need of officially breaking the interval which is between luncheon and dinner as do the English.

What may be called a typical American breakfast will give us a good start toward getting the proper quota of necessary nutriments for the day. We begin with fruit or fruit juice which gives us some of our mineral and vitamin supply. Children and many adults will be sure to have cereal, either hot or ready-to-eat, and this will be served with milk. From this combination we get some minerals and vitamins, some protein for tissue building and some fuel for the energy which we are going to use up during the day. As a final source we may have eggs or bacon or sausage with toast or rolls.

The eggs should be used at least three times a week for the sake of their minerals and vitamins unless we are using them at some other meal. Sausage and bacon supply savoriness which stimulates appetite and gives us a feeling of well-being. In sausage, we will find more of the protein which will give us a start toward what we need for the day.

Doing without breakfast is a bad habit which should not be encouraged. The stomach needs food after its 12 or more hours of rest.

Orthopedic Expert Says Army Shoes Don't Fit

The United States government, which is spending thousands of dollars daily for army shoes and has numerous inspectors examining shoes made for soldiers, has spent scarcely a penny for properly fitting the shoes for the men who must wear them, said H. L. Whitman, shoe inventor and orthopedics expert.

Whitman said every factory making army shoes has from five to eight inspectors checking output. "The government is spending thousands of dollars a day to see that army shoes are properly constructed," he said. "Why has it failed to spend money to see that the shoes are properly fitted to the men?"

He said he recently examined shoes of more than a dozen army recruits and National Guardsmen called to service. "In every case," he added, "I found that the shoes were improperly fitted. Every shoe was from a half-size to two sizes too short."

A scarcity of narrow shoes exists in the army, he stated, with a surplus of wide ones.

Smallest Incorporated Town

The town of Dellview, N. C., owes its incorporation to a band of dogs. Davis P. Dellinger and his two brothers ran a big poultry ranch. Dogs used to raid the coops. The county laws did not seem to afford enough protection. So Davis Dellinger, who was also a lawyer, hit on a plan to curb the depredations.

While county laws may or may not have been lax in dealing with stray dogs, the laws of incorporated towns were not. The Dellingers arranged for the legislature to incorporate their huge ranch into a town —a town of only eight inhabitants, perhaps the smallest burg of its kind. Then they enacted drastic laws for the destruction of ownerless dogs They put those ordinances into effect so vigorously that soon the dog pack was wiped out.

This was in 1925. Later, the poultry business was given up, and the ranch was turned into a farm for the raising of hay and of vegetables. But it was still a legally incorporated town; and with the same population as at first.

Origin of Slang Words

Although many slang words and popular figures of speech are of unknown origin, more than few may be traced to the classics and to mythology, while others are found to have rich historic and romantic backgrounds.

Common expressions that are typical American include "anxious seat," which has a religious background; "tax per nose," originated with Odin, a legendary ruler of Sweden, who assessed a tax of one penny per nose; "well heeled," is a bird that has a good natural spur, or a well-placed steel gaff; and the picturesque "lock, stock and barrel" was given to us by the early American settler whose most important possession was his flintlock rifle, consisting of three parts, the lock, the stock and the barrel.

Glimpse of Old South

As the scene of one of the decisive battles of the world, Vicksburg, last stronghold of the Confederacy, offers the visitor a fascinating picture of the South as it was and is today.

One of the nation's longest and most beautiful scenic highways, U. S. 16 (Ole Man River Trail), follows the Mississippi to Vicksburg where it junctions with another great transcontinental highway, U.S. 80.

A sight not to be missed by the traveler is the Vicksburg National Military park, best preserved and most completely marked major battlefield in the world.

One look at the towering bluffs, overlooking the greatest river in the world, and it is easy to understand why General Grant failed three times before he succeeded in breaking the Confederate stronghold.

REVIEW 4-H PROGRAM IN ANNUAL RALLY DAY

How the 4-H girl can serve America was graphically presented on Tuesday, June 2nd at the Garner High School gymnasium, at the Annual Hancock County Rally day. The girls carried out the theme by reciting the Service Creed and the Litany for 4-H Blessings and by presentation of a series of tableaus depicting the activities of the 4-H girl in shouldering her war responsibilities

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Violent boiling destroys most vitamins. Control heat carefully while boiling food.

Put sugar in the cup before adding tea or coffee and you can use a smaller amount for the same degree of sweetness. The hot beverage immediately melts the sugar and no undissolved grains are left in the cup for the housewife to wash down the drain

To help preserve the color of beets and red cabbage when cooking, use a tablespoon of vinegar to each quart of water

To protect posts against termites, soak them (the posts, of course) in fuel oil before putting into the ground.

Ice Cream—Perfect Dessert for a Shower
(See Recipes Below.)

Bridal Showers

Pretty, but practical—that's the cue for this year's bridal showers. Chances are this year's bride will be an army or navy bride with but a whirlwind wedding with her husband on a short leave, so there won't be much time for the frills and fuss of other years.

Her plans will be sketchy, most probably, and very often they will not include a permanent home or bungalow. That means that bridal showers will be simple and inexpensive and gifts for the bride-to-be will include only things which are not too elaborate, and which can be packed in a small space in case she is to travel or take a small apartment by herself.

What kind of showers, then? Well, there are always the personal showers in which you give her lingerie or other personal toilet items that you know she needs or wants.

Another practical shower is the Kitchen Gadget shower. Get small items like dish mops, kitchen knives, forks, mixing spoons, dish cloths, soap flakes, clothes pins and a few sets of bowls. Glass sets are popular, coming three in a set, fitting together in a nest so they don't take up much room. They're practical plus, too, because they can be used for baking dishes if you get the heat-resistant kind.

Include measuring cups and spoons, custard cups and small skillets and pots in the kitchen gadget shower A new bride will appreciate your thoughtfulness in getting necessities like these for her.

The Kitchen shower is extra nice because you can carry out table decorations in the theme of the shower Make a bouquet of some of the items for a centerpiece and use the dishcloths for doilies or place mats.

Sewing Shower.

Spools of thread in a riot of bright colors tumbling out of an attractive sewing basket can make the centerpiece for this party both novel and economical.

There's a variety of things to give the bride in this kind of shower and none of them will strain the pocketbook—needles, hooks, snaps, darning thread, thimbles, etc.—all these are "musts" on the bride's list.

Recipe Showers.

Is the bride-to-be interested in cooking? Most of them are, and if they are not, they will be soon That's why recipe showers get "most popular" rating often. For this shower you and your friends can gather together your most popular and favorite recipes on cards or in notebooks, or collect several cookbooks to give the guest of honor.

Decorations.

Pretty up your table with pastel and white colors This is the time to use your nicest linen and most fragile china to lend daintiness to the occasion. Color combinations may be white used plentifully with pink, green or pale yellow. Fresh sprays of garden flowers, even in small quantity add charm.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Egg production has been upped 15 to 20 per cent to take care of national and allied needs, so there will be no shortage of this staple item.

Although there have been rumors of a tea shortage, tea will be rationed on a 50 per cent basis to assure plenty for summer, thirst-quenching use. There is enough tea in the country to last eight months, and in spite of the war, shipments are still coming in from India and Ceylon.

The War Production board has allotted enough tin to the pineapple industry for this year's pack and operations for production in Hawaii have been hiked to the maximum. It is expected that supplies will be somewhat curtailed because the government has reserved about 26 per cent of the pack for its own purchase.

This Week's Menu

Bride's Shower
*Salad Luncheon Plate or
*Asparagus Loaf
Tiny Hot Rolls Preserves
*Ice Cream With Green Gage Plums
*Recipes Given

A light, dainty luncheon platter can be served by way of refreshment. Accompany this with tiny hot rolls or muffins and no shower guests could desire more:

Salad Luncheon Plate.
(For One Serving)

½ cup cottage cheese
2 deviled egg halves
2 to 3 slices of tomato
2 to 3 slices of cucumber
2 finger strips of sliced cheese
2 crabapple pickles
Miscellaneous:
2 olives
Slices of hard-cooked eggs
Salad dressing
Paprika

Heap cottage cheese in crisp lettuce cup arranged in center of chilled salad plate. Then around this center, arrange the remaining foods in neat, symmetrical fashion—the deviled eggs opposite the crabapple pickles, the overlapping slice of cucumber next to the apples and opposite the overlapping slices of tomato on the opposite side of the plate, bread triangles topped with a slice of egg, opposite each other, 2 slices of cheese opposite each the 2 olives. Garnish the cottage cheese with paprika, and pass french dressing with the salad.

If you prefer to serve a hot dish in place of the salad plate, you'll like this asparagus loaf in this versatile combination with cheese and white sauce:

Asparagus Loaf.
(Serves 6)

2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups grated American cheese
1¼ cups fine, soft bread crumbs
1 (1-pound) can asparagus tips
Pimiento strips

Drain asparagus, reserve liquid. Line bottom of buttered loaf pan with half the asparagus tips. Place strips of pimiento between tips. Melt butter, blend in flour and mix well. Add milk and ¼ cup of the asparagus liquid and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add salt, pepper and cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Fold in crumbs. Add gradually to eggs and fold in remaining asparagus tips, cut into one-inch pieces. Pour into loaf pan, place into a pan of hot water and bake 1 hour in a moderate (350-degree) oven. Serve on a platter surrounded with watercress and overlapping slices of tomatoes which have been marinated in french dressing.

Your figure-conscious young guests will appreciate the good news about ice cream. Recent tests show that ice cream has much less calories than other favorite desserts such as cake and pie, but nutritionally it is excellent.

Ice Cream With Green Gage Plums
(Serves 6)

1 quart of vanilla ice cream
1 No. 2½ can green gage plums

Drain syrup from green gage plums. Arrange big spoonfuls of vanilla ice cream in center of a large glass bowl. Garnish or surround with plums. Serve immediately, with a jug of syrup, drained from the can of plums.

Plums may be rolled in shredded almonds or finely chopped nuts, if desired.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for June 14

SUNDAY: THE RISEN CHRIST AND HIS DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24 33-48.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are witnesses of these things.—Luke 24.48.

The glory and gladness of the resurrection morning drove back the darkness of the tomb and replaced the disciples' sadness with holy gladness God's message to His people is one of assurance and hope. The night may be dark, but the dawn will surely come.

Two of Jesus' disciples had been walking sadly along the road to Emmaus when suddenly a stranger was with them, telling them what the Scriptures taught about the Christ—His sufferings and His glory. Their hearts burned strangely within them (Luke 24·32), but they did not recognize Him until He broke the bread of their evening meal—and then He was gone

But now they had a joyous message which sent them hurrying back to Jerusalem to the eleven who had gathered behind locked doors to discuss the reports which had also come to them of His resurrection. And suddenly—

I. "Jesus Himself Stood in the Midst" (vv. 33-43).

What a blessed and conclusive confirmation of their report. He, their beloved Lord and Master, stood there before them, alive and speaking His tender message of "Peace."

The disciples, however, were bewildered and slow to believe. Observe how kind and patient He was with these frightened and unbelieving men And note what a splendid testimony it is to the truth of the resurrection that they who knew Him best expected proof before they believed.

Before we condemn them for lack of faith let us ask ourselves if we would have done better, and let us be thankful that their hesitation made assurance doubly sure. He was really there—alive Partaking of food (which He did not need), and giving them opportunity to touch His body, He demonstrated the reality of the resurrection.

He next gave them a sure foundation for faith

II. "Then Opened He Their Understanding" (vv. 44, 45).

This He did that they might "understand the scriptures." Their minds had become confused and He literally "disentangled" them. We need to have the knots and kinks taken out of our thinking about God's Word. Then we too will understand.

Dealing with the entire Old Testament (divided by the Hebrews into law, prophets and psalms), He thus gave it His endorsement. Men may deny, but Jesus approved the Scriptures of the Old Testament—and we are ready to take His word. "All things must be fulfilled" is His statement concerning Himself. There is our Lord's guarantee that the promises of His second coming, and all that is associated with it, as well as with His future reign, will be fulfilled.

This time of fellowship with the Lord around the Word of God was strengthening to their faith, but it had another purpose. The blessings of God are not for our own satisfaction alone, for it is His will that there be—

III. "Repentance Preached in His Name" (vv. 46-48).

There is a message to go out through His disciples to all nations. He died for the sins of the world. He arose for the justification of those who believe There is remission of sin for those who in repentance and faith turn to Him.

Fellowship with Christ and an understanding of His Word which does not result in aggressive witness for Him is quite useless. We meet Him and study His Word not only that we may grow in grace, but that we may be witnesses to all nations.

To be a witness involves knowledge of a fact, to the truth of which the individual can bear testimony The disciples were called to be witnesses, "not speculators, philosophers, moralists or legislators. They had neither to argue nor to dissertate, nor to lay down rules for conduct, nor to ventilate their own fancies They were witnesses, and their business was to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth" (Alexander Maclaren).

The Christian by life possibly more than by word is to "adorn the doctrine of God," as Paul put it (Titus 2 10), commending it to those round about him Observe that such a witness is to start right at home, "beginning at Jerusalem" (v 47)

It may be difficult in our times to send witnesses to distant lands, for ships are busy carrying the men and implements of war. But right in your Jerusalem there is a spiritual need, in your little town or rural community, in the city where you live, in your home, office, shop, or school. You who read this who are in the service of the country will find a "Jerusalem" in your camp or on your ship.

COMMUNITY MEETINGS ON ANTI-INFLATION TO BE HELD IN COUNTY

Meeting Will Be Held In Klemme Thursday Evening, June 25

Eleven community gatherings will be held in Hancock County during the next 15 days where neighborhood leaders will assist the county agent in discussing the dangers of inflation and how they affect the farm family.

The anti-inflation program is being explained in rural areas by the Extension Service, with the cooperation of other groups and organizations, ane has met with the general approval and widespread interest of all groups.

At the community gatherings the farmers will discuss price ceilings as they affect the things farmers have to sell; possibility for higher taxes and the possibility of wide-spread rationing. Compulsory War Bond purchases, additional land purchases, whether a farmer shoule pay debts or buy bonds and the personal responsibility of each farm family will also be discussed

We are now on the road toward wartime inflation with a vengeance. So far prices have risen fully as rapidly as they did in World War I. But there is more dynamite in the situation now than at that time.

Be sure to attend the community meeting nearest you. Bring your neighbor. The meetings begin at 8:30 p. m. War Time.

Avery and Twin Lake: Thursday, June 18, Town Hall in Goodell.

Concord and Garfield: Tuesday, June 23, High School, Garner.

Ell and Liberty: Thursday, June 25, Community Hall, Klemme.

Amsterdam: Wednesday, June 24, Grade School, Kanawha.

Scrap rubber is vital to the success of the military campaign. Do not distroy rubber, turn it in on the campaign.

KLEMME MEN LAND FIFTEEN POUND NORTHERN PIKE AT CLEAR LAKE

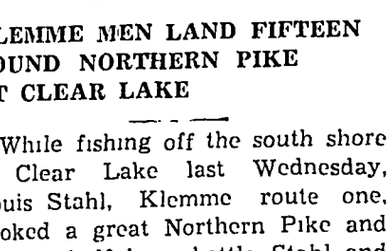
While fishing off the south shore of Clear Lake last Wednesday, Louis Stahl, Klemme route one, hooked a great Northern Pike and after a half hour battle Stahl and his companion, Audrey Griggs, succeeded in tiring the fish and landed him with their bare hands

The fish weighed 15 lbs. and 2 ounces and measured 42 inches in length It is the biggest fish taken out of Clear Lake this year The fish was caught while trolling with a minnow and small spinner.

Griggs skinned and cut his hand when he grabbed the fish through the gills in landing it

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Army's fighter planes are the finest in the world and develop speeds up to 400 miles an hour. They cost approximately $100,000 each, provide fighter escorts for the huge flying fortresses, and combine speed, range, altitude and blistering fire power.



America's plane production plants are working over-time turning out thousands of these fighter planes. War Savings Bonds will help pay for them and the American people are committed to at least ten percent of their income to finance their cost in War Bonds. Every American, buying his share every pay day, will make it comparatively easy to supply our army and navy air corps with these supreme Eagles of the air.

HAWKEYE PRESS CLUB HOST TO PUBLISHERS AT LAKE

CLEAR LAKE—Referring to the invention of moveable type and the printing press as the force which liberated the minds of Europe and brought comfort an consolation to millions, C. H. Plattenburg addressed the Iowa Press Association banquet at the North Shore Country Club Saturday evening.

Mr. Plattenburg spoke of the time when journalism was a personal thing and marked advances in efficiency until now it is, he said, the most powerful force on the continent. He gave a humorous description of "My Day With the Radio" and closed by drawing a lesson in tolerance as exemplified among editors of today and giving a toast to the fourth estate, the noblest, the best and most lovable of all estates, he said.

R. A. Jorgenson, editor of the Klemme Times and president of the Hawkeye Press Club which was host to the IPA, presided at the dinner and introduced the speaker and officials of the IPA.

Presented at the banquet were James McCutcheon, Mt. Vernon, president of the IPA; W. Earl Hall of Mason City, director; and I. C. Kartack, Des Moines, acting secretary Leon Barnes of the Northwood Anchor was introduced as the Master Publisher of 1942; E. B Stillman as president of the Greater Clear Lake committee, which co-operated with the Hawkeye Press Club in entertaining, and Dr. A. B. Phillips, mayor, who welcomed the guests and invited them to come again next year. Mr. Hall, with Mrs. B. B. Bailey accompanying, led in community singing.

War Has Effect On County Road Program Says Engr. Merten

MITCHELL BOCK PRESIDENT OF HANCOCK COUNTY DAIRY ASSOCIATION

Ralph Ruggeberg, supervisor of the Hancock County Dairy Herd Improvement association has released his report on the high ranking herds ane cows for the month of May. The 10 high ranking herds in order were herds of John Knoedler, Edwin Thieman, V. A. Cook, Roy Jacobs, Art Upmeyer & Sons, C. J. Wille & Sons, W. E. Donavon & Son, Albert Abele and son, Mrs. Mabel C. Love and Richard Schubert.

The high ranking herd had an average milk production of 1200 and an average fat production of 49 0 pounds.

John Knoedler also had the high ranking individual cow with 1631 pounds of milk and 81.6 pounds of fat. Second high cow belonged to V A. Cook and produced 1538 lbs. of milk and 69 2 lbs. of fat.

Elected President

The annual meeting was held with Arthur Porter, extension dairyman, Paul Henderson, Hancock county agent, and Ralph Ruggeberg, supervisor, appearing on the program.

The following officers were elected: President, Mitchell Bock of Klemme; Vice-President, C J Wille, Klemme; Secretary - Treasurer, Loren Abele, Liberty township; Directors, Werner Schlawin and Claude Huling.

FARM BUREAU OFFICE ASSISTANT RESIGNS

Mrs. Eunice Kurtz, who has been Farm Bureau office assistant for the past twelve years, will leave for California soon to join her husband who has work in a defense plant there.

Hancock County Farm Bureau members and friends will miss her familiar greeting when they stop at the office.

Miss Anna Jane Olson of Bode, has been secured to take the place of Mrs. Kurtz. Miss Olson started on the job June 15th. The Farm Bureau Board is sure the members will give Miss Olson the same cooperation they have given Mrs Kurtz.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Reece will hold a public sale of their household goods. Watch the Times for advertisement next week announcing the date and list of articles to be sold.

COUNTY ENGINEER TELLS OF 1942 ROAD PROGRAM

By C. F. Merten, County Engineer

We are having considerable difficulty in getting our 1942 road program started and I think the people of the county should have such facts as can be determined at this time.

A road program of approximately six miles of trunk roads and 27 miles of local roads was made out in March and this program was approved by the Board of Supervisors and the Highway Commission. A letting date for the grading of the roads on the program was set for May 4, but before this date arrived orders were received from the War Production Board which prohibited work of this kind, so the letting was cancelled.

Recently new rulings by the War Production Board have been received which permit grading to be done, so a new letting date has been set for June 18, 1942, at which time contracts can be awarded for grading the roads on the 1942 program. You may watch your next weeks paper for an announcement of the action taken at that time. Last years road program was not completed because of the unusually wet season. This grading is under contract and can be done as soon as weather conditions become favorable.

Some of the residents of the county think that all road work should be stopped until after the war, but the people living on the roads to be graded feel that the plan would be an injustice to them as they have waited many years for an outlet. Money is available for the work on the program from gas taxes that have been collected during the past year and no one will benefit from having it lie in the treasury.

The county roads extending into towns are maintained by the county and as these roads have considerable traffic they are usually very dusty. An attempt is being made to reduce the dust nuisance by adding calcium chloride to these roads. First the roads are resurfaced with gravel to which clay binder is added. After the gravel and clay mixture is thoroughly compacted, calcium chloride is spread on the surface of the road. This procedure should form a hard dustless surface. The gravel used was taken from the best pit in the county with all oversize rock crushed to a one inch size.

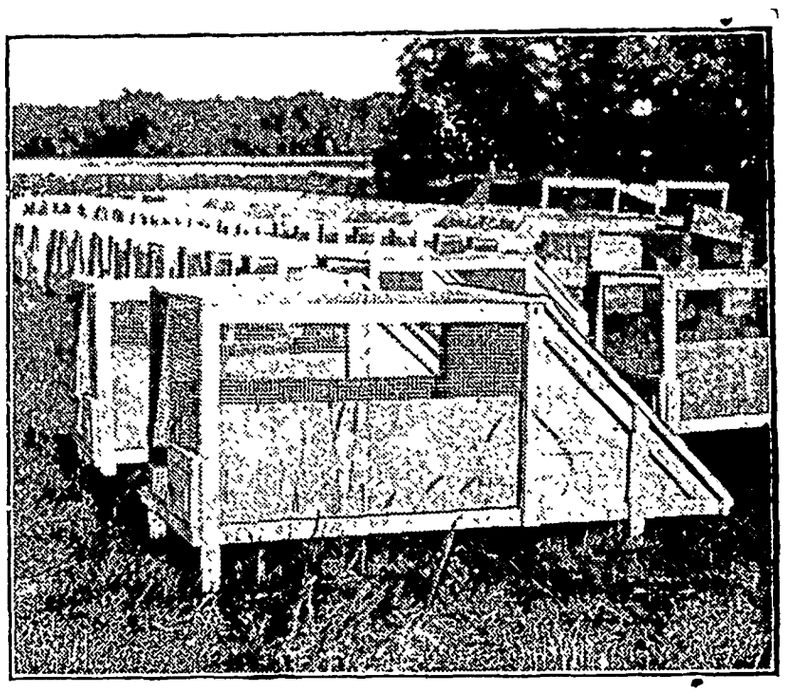
QUAIL PRODUCTION REACHING PEAK



Quail Laying Pens at State Game Farm

The first of more than 10,000 bob-white quail chicks to be hatched this year at the State Game Farm at Boone have been received by co-operators in the quail program. Sixteen sportsmen's groups with 39 brooding units have made application to Taylor W. Huston, Superintendent of Game, for quail chicks. The birds are sent to the co-operating clubs at two weeks of age and are held in brooders from four to five weeks and released on farms in the quail territory on which environment improvements have been made. The first of the baby quail were shipped on June 6, and additional young birds will be sent out each week during the season. The superintendent of the Game Farm Clyde Updegraff, anticipates more than 1200 of the little "bumblebees" to hatch about the 19th of June.

Home Front Strengthened By Army of Rural Women

Wives and Daughters Help Keep Nation's Larder Full.

If victory begins at home, it is up to the women to start it.

So you will find rural women today, individually, in small groups and in large groups, figuring out what needs to be done to strengthen the home front and doing it.

First and foremost, the production of food must not be interrupted, even if husbands, brothers, sons and hired men are all called to the army or accept positions in war industry. Food must be produced and plenty of it. Traveling in almost any part of the country, it is a common sight to see women driving tractors, feeding livestock, milking and doing practically all kinds of farm work. Generally, these are the farm wives and daughters who, with the help of the older men and the young boys, are not only keeping up production but actually increasing it to meet the national goals for vital foods.

To supply extra farm labor, a women's land army has been organized in Maryland, Connecticut and other places. The University of Maryland trained about 30 women who had enrolled in the land army in a four weeks' course in poultry, horticulture, and dairy. Connecticut's land army furnished help in harvesting fruits and vegetables, cultivating the garden and many other chores around the farm.

The women are serious about their responsibility. Visiting some farm homes in central Virginia during the spring the picture of a soldier boy on almost every mantel was noticed—a boy who last year was on the farm and this year is in the army. On a big poultry farm, the son was in an officer's training school while the mother carried on with the same number of chickens, working a little harder and a little longer to send her 150 or 200 dozen eggs to market each day to supply eggs for the army, eggs for munitions workers, eggs for the United Nations—more than 4 billion dozen of them needed in 1942.

Co-operative Endeavor.

If the women are going to work on the farm, they have to save time in the house or get extra help there The women of Marshall county, S D., have established an employment service for domestic help in the home demonstration agent's office so that women and girls who have some time to spare can help in the farm homes where women are taking more farm responsibility. In Texas, community sewing centers and canning centers make efficient use of sewing machines and pressure canning equipment and save time and effort for the housewife Sharing the available equipment is one war measure that farm women's clubs have found very useful.

Women are also successfully entering the cow-testing field. One conservative association in Michigan finally agreed to try out girl testers because they were very anxious to continue their cow-testing work, but, said these gentlemen, she must wear overalls or slacks—we won't stand for shorts on our cow testers

If the home front is to be a strong bulwark supporting our fighting forces, every man, woman and child must understand and contribute Women in rural districts are taking a leading part in bringing this about. In Iowa, a man and a woman co-operator have been selected for every school district of about 16 families. They get the latest information on victory gardens, the buying of war bonds, anti-inflation legislation, and other war activities, and see that all of the 16 neighbors know and understand.

Victory Gardens.

The victory-garden idea was carried to all farm families through these neighborhood leaders. The secretary of agriculture called for 5 million farm home gardens, and this meant a garden on practically every farm. In some states, every farm home was visited and seeds supplied to those who could not afford to buy them. The neighborhood women are also following through with information on care of gardens, control of insects, and preservation of surplus vegetables. Mrs. M. O Lawrence, a Mississippi leader, tells her neighbors: "If all farm families will grow all they and their city children need to eat, it will release all the factory-canned vegetables for those who cannot grow them and for the countries resisting aggression. So, farm wives, let us join hands and do this and help to win the war to save democracy" Another leader in a Virginia mountain community which has been largely on relief reports her activities "I tell 'em to plant a garden, and they tell me 'Why, I'm on relief'; and I tell 'em, 'Maybe so, but you can't eat what ain't.'"

When a survey of the food supply was taken in Summit county, Utah, it was found that in the 500 farm homes 95 per cent had space for a garden, but only 38 per cent had gardens. Armed with these facts, a garden committee was appointed, and leaders selected to visit every farm home. They discussed the garden possibilities—the size of the garden plot, the water supply, the type of soil, and whether the labor was there to care for the garden. Next, letters were sent out listing recommended varieties, giving amounts of vegetables to plant, the time to plant them, and other garden helps. Women in each neighborhood volunteered as demonstration gardeners, keeping accurate records of when the garden was planted and sprayed, the cost in time and money, the amount of produce used by the family, sold, canned, and stored. Neighbors can visit the demonstration garden and find out all about the methods used. Gardens are really flourishing in Summit county, and the women are growing and learning to use new vegetables as their share in keeping plenty of health-giving foods on the home front.

Garden Total Doubled.

South Dakota's garden goals called for just twice as many gardens as had ever been grown there before. When all of the gardens are counted, it looks as if the goal will have been reached with 57,500 victory gardens to supply health-giving vegetables for South Dakota's farm families.

In times of war it is even more essential that the health and safety of children be insured, and this is woman's job. The great increase in hot school lunches and in clinics for school children and preschool children is an indication of a checking-up on this sector of the home front. When the women of Mountain View community, Va., began to check up, they found that some children were coming from isolated farms high up on the mountains and walking several miles to meet the school bus fortified by a very slender breakfast and bringing no lunch. They returned home at twilight, weary and hungry, to an inadequate supper. The women got busy. First, they had a school canning day when anyone who had extra fruit and vegetables could bring it to be canned for the school. They arranged to get surplus commodities from the department of agriculture and a WPA cook They succeeded in getting a nicely equipped school lunch building by using the material from two abandoned district schools and getting NYA boys to build it. Now a nutritious hot lunch is served to 150 children each day in an attractive, light dining room; and the children, according to their teachers, are much more alert and interested in cleaning up their school grounds, collecting salvage, and other community activities, as well as in their studies

School Health Survey.

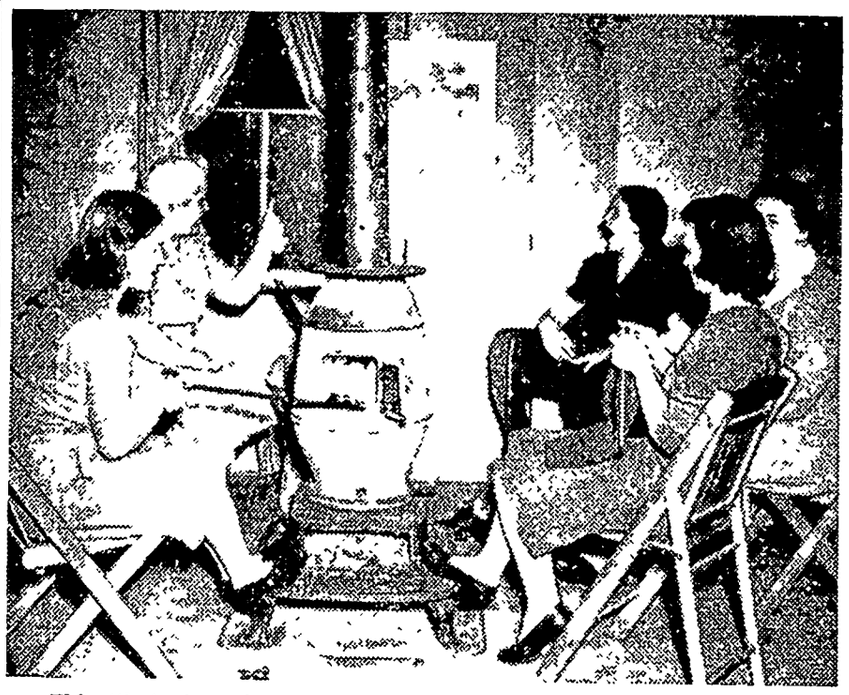
The women of the Potterstown, Ky., homemakers' club, though living in a community where the average income of farmers was less than $300, decided that the health of all their children was their responsibility. Because the school was under suspicion of tuberculosis, they asked the county health department to conduct a survey of the school. The entire student body was tuberculin-tested with reactors X-rayed. Public drinking cups were done away with and sanitary drinking fountains installed. A free hot lunch for all 60 children was established.

As the women look about their own community to find out just how strong that sector of the home front is, they feel the need of more training in nutrition, first aid, and home nursing. In practically every rural community in many states, rural women have conscientiously come into town to take a 20- or 30-hour class In Brazos county, Texas, 120 women enrolled in a 30-hour Red Cross course in home nursing, one woman living in a community 23 miles from the nearest doctor. Epidemics of measles and mumps in Brazos county recently gave these women an opportunity to put their new knowledge into practice.

New Use for Feed Bags.

Women's clubs have found many other ways to help the war along. For example, the home demonstration clubs of Wicomico county, Md., received a request for 100 emergency stretchers to be placed at strategic points throughout the county.

As the stretchers were to be made of three feed bags, letters were sent to local feed dealers and farm families urging them to contribute their empty bags. Three hundred and twenty-five bags were left at the home demonstration agent's office.



This "hot stove league" helps clarify war aims and needs. Though these Virginia women like to discuss the situation in general, they have pledged themselves to be careful in avoiding unconfirmed information. Community clubs such as this are focal points in many rural areas.

This efficient dairy maid is helping farm women meet war production goals. The use of dairy products has been stepped up commensurate with the war effort.

For Future Use

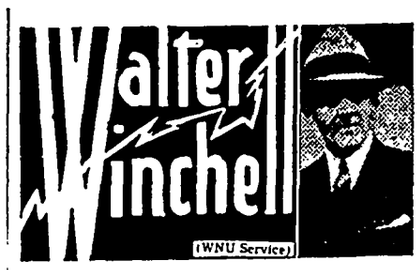
This poultry leader helps the women of her club with their poultry problems. She is shown with a few of her 200 baby chicks which, in the future, will help supply the needed 4 billion dozen eggs for the army, industrial workers, home supply and the number promised to the United Nations.

Women Students Enroll in War Aid Courses

After an extensive survey of the nation's need for trained women in various occupations, the Pennsylvania State college has made available nearly 100 courses for its women students, all closely-related to the war effort.

Among the elective courses recommended for women are journalism, commerce, mathematics, French, German, Spanish, shorthand, typing, horticulture, poultry husbandry, bacteriology, agricultural engineering, psychology, physical education, home economics

These courses are designed to prepare co-eds for such occupations as abstractors, accountant clerks, meteorological assistants, statistical clerks, translators, typists, stenographers in research institutes, fruit and vegetable growing specialists, inspection work at canneries, rearing and marketing chickens, farm and household mechanics, aides in nutrition and chemical laboratories.



Little Stories About Well-Known People:

Pearson and Allen like to tell this story about F. D. R. . . . When he was a young lawyer he was retained to handle a difficult civil case. The rival attorney was an effective jury pleader and he completely outshone his youthful rival in the argument to the jury. However, he made one fatal mistake. He orated for several hours. As he thundered on, Roosevelt noticed the jury wasn't paying much attention. So when his turn came he rose and said: "Gentlemen, you have heard the evidence. You also have listened to my distinguished colleague, a brilliant orator. If you believe him and disbelieve the evidence, you will decide in his favor. That's all I have to say."

The jury was out only five minutes and brought in a verdict for F. D. R.'s client.

This is the reason for the H. L. that goes before Mencken's name. As a youth he had a little printing business and used to print cards with his name on for advertising purposes. But his father smashed all his black letter lower case "r's" —so he had to print his name H. L. Mencken—instead of Henry L., and that's the way it has remained

Years ago in Wisconsin, a young man was chopping wood and accidentally hit himself in the foot with the axe. He moaned and groaned and his face was contorted in pain while his shoe was slowly being removed—so the wound could be treated. However, when the shoe was taken off it was revealed that he wasn't even scratched. One of the onlookers commented that he had a wonderful imagination and would make a great actor.

His name—Alfred Lunt.

When the piano Beethoven composed his music on was exhibited in a European museum, visitors were given the thrill of sitting down and playing it. Everybody took advantage of that honor—except Paderewski. When the museum guard asked him why he didn't sit down and play, he replied: "I do not feel worthy enough to touch it."

Henry Clay, the eminent statesman, knew how to say the right thing at the right time. A pretty young thing once reproached him for failing to remember her name . . . But Clay was equal to the occasion, replying gallantly: "I didn't recall your name, because when we last met I was sure your beauty and talent would soon compel you to change it."

This is one of the best squelches we have ever come across. A friend once told Voltaire: "It is good of you to say such pleasant things about an enemy when he always says such nasty things about you."

To which Voltaire replied: "Perhaps we are both mistaken."

When Marshal Foch visited America he went to see the Grand Canyon. As he stood looking down into the depths of the amazing natural wonder, reporters all around him waited breathlessly for a comment that would go down in history After a few minutes of dramatic silence, the Marshal observed "What a beautiful place to drop one's mother-in-law!"

Among other things, Oliver Wendell Holmes was a doctor, but he wasn't very successful in that profession. Seems that people were a bit doubtful about the flippant medico who posted this sign above his shingle. "Small fevers gratefully received."

Among the better tales about Calvin Coolidge's brevity is this: A reporter was interviewing him. "Do you wish to say anything about prohibition?" he asked.

"No."

"About the farm bloc?"

"No."

"About the World Court?"

"No."

The reporter turned to go. "By the way," said Coolidge, "don't quote me."

Albert Einstein once had the misfortune to be a guest at a very dull party. Throughout the evening yawns ran wild . . . At the end of the affair, the host remarked sympathetically to him: "I'm afraid you were terribly bored" . . Einstein smiled and replied: "No. On occasions like this I retire to the back of my mind, and there I am happy."

For the last five months of her life Marie Dressler's illness let her be up for a few days, then down again—getting worse all the time. Each week, no matter how busy he was, Louis B. Mayer used to take a brief case full of scenarios to her home. Her illness was never mentioned. Mayer merely discussed stories and plans for the future, exactly as if she were still working. Right through the last week of her life, Miss Dressler remained cheerful and happy because of Mayer's thoughtfulness.

Washington, D. C.

HENDERSON'S WARNING

Price Administrator Leon Henderson told the house ways and means committee a lot more during his secret testimony than he afterwards disclosed to newsmen. Here are some items which weren't made public:

Henderson predicted that if the current levels of earnings are maintained, the total national income this year will approximate 117 billion dollars, or 25 billions more than in 1941.

On the other hand, due to the enormous war production demands, the supply of consumer goods will be 26 per cent less than last year.

This wide disparity between purchasing power and available consumer goods, Henderson warned, is the great inflationary "explosive" factor. With a lot more money in people's pockets than supplies on which to spend it, a competitive situation develops that may set off a catastrophic price runaway unless drastically controlled.

17-Billion Excess.

Illustrating this problem, Henderson pointed out that about 31 billions of the estimated 117-billion national income will be absorbed by taxes and savings, leaving 86 billions in spendable money. However, there will be only 69 billions of consumer commodities.

This 17-billion excess, he declared, is what must be kept in check in order to prevent it from setting in motion an inflationary spiral that would smash the nation's economic system.

Tough as this problem is, Henderson predicted that the situation will be even worse in 1943. He estimated that by next year purchasing power will be three times greater than in 1932 while the supply of consumer goods will be only the same as in that year, the pit of the depression.

The price administrator told the committee that the only way disastrous inflation can be averted is by the most stringent government controls.

He said he fully realized that such measures as rationing and price ceilings might cause bootlegging and "blackmarkets." But he expressed the belief that patriotic public opinion would powerfully militate against such lawbreaking.

"In England," Henderson pointed out, "bootlegging of food and other scarce commodities is causing so much public resentment that many are demanding that those who buy or sell on the 'black market' be taken out and shot."

BIG BUSINESS MIRACLES

No one ever would have suspected it, but Harold Ickes, the New Deal's most violent baiter of big business, has been performing some quiet miracles in obtaining big business co-operation.

Not only is he now on good terms with the moguls of the oil industry, including such bitter political opponents as Joe and Howard Pew, leaders of Pennsylvania Republicanism, but he has also been getting co-operation from the railroads and trucking companies.

This is one of the few good things that has come out of the war

Ever since trucks began hauling freight, the feud between them and the railroads has been the toughest problem faced by the Interstate Commerce commission.

But now Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes has persuaded the ancient rivals to make a friendly division of the tremendous oil transportation business whereby the railroads withdrew from short hauls, and turn business over to trucks, thus releasing tank cars for the longer and more economic hauls.

For instance, a railroad tank car, with a capacity of 8,000 gallons, operating between Whiting, Ind., and the west side of Chicago, requires six days to make the "turn around." But a tank truck, capacity 7,500 gallons, can do the same "turn around" in five hours.

Thus, one tank truck, working 24 hours, (and all such equipment is on a 24-hour basis) would relieve the equivalent of 16 or 20 tank cars. These cars, in turn, are being placed on the longer hauls from the Gulf to the East coast.

Result of such economies and overtime operations is that railroads which normally move practically no oil to the East coast, are now moving 650,000 barrels a day. Tankers (ships) normally supply 95 per cent of the East coast requirement, but with the withdrawal of tankers, tank cars are being rushed into the breach.

WIG WAGS

The war department has asked congress for a $10 a month pay raise for West Point cadets. Present rate is $65, the department says it ought to be $75 because the present class will be $250,000 in debt when it graduates.

The marine corps is urgently in need of Japanese translators and interpreters. If you have a working knowledge of Japanese, get in touch with the corps at once, either by writing to Washington or visiting the nearest recruiting station.

Horace Greeley Disliked Being Disillusioned

Horace Greeley, famous editor of the old New York Tribune, was notoriously absent-minded. While he was at work at his desk, a water pipe might spring a leak over his head and drip down on him for hours without his being in the least aware of it.

One cold Sunday morning, Mr. Greeley stepped into the Tribune office after church. Taking off his boots, he sat down before one of the hot-air registers to warm his feet and read the papers.

After a while the janitor happened by and, seeing the boss there, exclaimed: "There's no heat coming up from downstairs, Mr. Greeley. The boiler is being fixed."

The editor glowered at the man. "You fool," he yelled. "What did you want to tell me that for? I was just getting nice and warm!"

How soil building measures improve not only the yield but the quality of seedings and small grains was demonstrated by an experiment carried on by the soil science department of Michigan State college.

The program covered an eight-year period and included crop rotation, the use of commercial fertilizer and a green manure crop plowed under. The rotation—corn, oats, wheat and alfalfa for two years, with sweet clover plowed down once in eight years—is typical for a large number of farms in north-central United States.

For every dollar spent for fertilizer a return of $3.60 was realized, according to a tabulation of the results. In the experiment, 150 pounds of 4-16-4 fertilizer per acre applied to the oats and 250 pounds of 4-16-4 on wheat, seeded to alfalfa, resulted in an increase of 4.9 bushels of oats, 8.1 bushels of wheat and 1 ton of alfalfa hay.

That all the advantages gained from the use of fertilizers cannot be measured in increased yields alone was shown by the fact that a distinct improvement in quality was recorded, with plumper kernels and less shrunken grains. From the particular land devoted to this experiment the farmer exhibits grain samples, and when selecting his show samples he invariably discards grain from unfertilized plots.

Fertilizer applications proved more effective in some years than others. The average oats increase due to fertilizer was 4.9 bushels per acre. However, in 1936 this increase was 9.8 bushels and in 1940 it was 8.9 bushels. The wheat yield showed corresponding variations. In 1938 the increase in yield due to fertilizer was 18 bushels per acre; in 1939, 10.1; in 1940, 19.9; and in 1941, 4.3 bushels. Wheat grown on unfertilized plots was invariably of inferior quality to wheat produced on fertilized plots. Moreover, the lower the yield on unfertilized plots, the poorer the quality of grain.

In another series of tests the 1940 alfalfa yield was more than doubled by fertilizing the preceding barley crop. A plot fertilized with 200 pounds of 0-20-0 and eight loads of manure per acre applied on the barley, yielded 2.11 tons of alfalfa on the first cutting. The yield of plots receiving no fertilizer was .98 tons, and on plots on which manure alone was applied the yield was 1.65 tons.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By FLORENCE C. WEED

Oil Plants

To find out whether oil plants might be profitably grown in this country, the National Farm Chemurgic Council has distributed seeds for test plantings. Farmers from Maine to California have tested the seeds and reported their results which are often favorable. With disturbed world conditions, imports may be still further curtailed and there may be a need for domestic oil to supplant the foreign supply.

Sunflower seed finds a ready market for birdseed and poultry feed mixtures. Our domestic supply of about 7,000,000 pounds is grown in Illinois, Missouri and California. It is an old crop which the Indians on the east shore of Lake Huron raised for their needs. They used stalks for cloth, leaves for fodder, flowers for yellow dye.

Since 1936, a small amount of rapeseed oil has been crushed each year in this country. It is used as a lubricant, mixed with minerals, and finds a place in the manufacture of rubber substitutes.

Safflower has been investigated as a possible oilseed crop for the northern states. It is a quick drying oil and can be used in the manufacture of paints, varnishes and enamels. In India, the blossoms are used for saffron dye and the oil is used for light.

The Perilla plant grows best in the cotton belt, especially in southern Virginia. It is difficult to handle, however, because the seeds burst from their pods when ripe.

We in the Farm Security administration started out to relieve the economic plight of disadvantaged farm people. We learned certain fundamentals—that you build an economically sound life not on credit or even the land itself. You build it on the people.—C. B. Baldwin, FSA administrator, U. Newly Inducted Soldiers Find Army Is Efficient

Businesslike Military Routine Gives Boost to Morale; Recruits Are Anxious to Serve Where Best Fitted.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

I sat the other day in the office of General Hershey, Selective Service administrator, as he leaned back, one ankle drawn up on his khaki knee and listened to him talk about scarcities. Not the kind of scarcities we hear about when the old argument of scarcity-versus abundance of farm crops comes up, although it might have been such a talk for General Hershey is very much of a farmer. It was a talk about the scarcity of men of the ideal age for the army—ideal from the standpoint of adaptability to military life, physical energy, lack of dependents and other responsibility, lack of training that is needed for agriculture or industry.

The general did some lightning calculations that I couldn't follow but it started with the total number of men of ideal fighting age. Then came subtractions for the ones with dependents, the ones needed on the farm and in the factory and the 25 per cent more which it might be expected would have physical disabilities.

According to plans announced now the United States needs for the army, navy and marine corps (including two million for the air force) nine million men. About three million are now in the service.

When General Hershey finished with the figuring I found that there are about 18 million men available for military service from which six million must be recruited if the army plans are carried out. And out of that 18 million there has to be saved back the ones we can't get elsewhere for agriculture and industry and no one is sure how many that will be.

In any case it means that about one out of every three men of military age will eventually be called.

Grave Responsibilities

That is why such a heavy responsibility rests on the shoulders of the draft boards, and behind the draft boards on all employers of labor. That is also why congress has made the effort to get a sharp clarification regarding deferments because of dependents or because of employment needs. Meanwhile every man from 18 to 44 is left in a state of indecision, for of course all these men cannot be called at the same time. A lot of them would be glad to hear the call and get it over.

Last Sunday I had lunch with a young man who had been moving in a sea of uncertainty for months; it was impossible for him or his wife to make the necessary plans to arrange their existence in case he went into the army. Then out of a clear sky he was called. He had been in the army for one week when I saw him and I never saw such a change. It was largely due to relief. He had come home on a furlough granted him to take care of business matters. He was full of praise for army efficiency and had high hopes that he would be able to do just what he had found it impossible to do before, namely, find out the niche into which he would fit, where he would not only be doing the best job he could do for the country but a job which was best fitted to his experience and training and therefore his peace of mind. He was a man who was energetic and active and if he had been chained to a paper-work job he would have been a misfit. He had worried lest, because he was a college man and had to wear glasses, he would get some kind of clerical work rather than a more active assignment.

As a rule you will find, I believe, that the average man of military age feels this way: he is willing to do whatever job his country wants him to do. He wants to do the job he can do best. He doesn't want to break up his education, his family arrangements, his business career if he is not going to be called, yet he wants to plan ahead if he is sure any of these things are going to be necessary. When he is called, and the decision is made and he finds himself in the army and finds that army life and army routine are a lot more businesslike than he thought, his morale goes up like the mercury in August. That is the reason why a lot of soldiers are saying, "What's the matter with civilian morale?" instead of it being the other way around as many people thought it would be at first.

With the launching of more and more Allied offensive action, with more and more American units engaged, the attitude of the predraftee is expected to change. The need of his help will be brought home 1942 will see about 2,250,000 new men joining the army, air force and navy. Every effort will be made to defer those with dependents and to take the older men last. That is the reason for the army's insistence on drafting the 18 and 19 year group. The chief argument against calling the younger men is that it breaks up their schooling. But schooling can be taken up again. Taking family men disturbs the social and economic life of the nation. Taking skilled workers and men who are already fitted into the economic pattern of the nation, disturbs the war effort.

Although few but the most optimistic say so, it may not be necessary to call any more men after 1942—if the war is still going full tilt then another 2,250,000 will be needed in 1943—but there is no use counting our ugly ducklings before they are hatched.

An Old Comrade From Cuidad Trujillo

This is the story of the main base for the military forces invading the Western hemisphere—the first and highly successful invasion of the American continent. It was from here that foreign invaders launched their pitiless attacks which placed the peoples of the western world under a European flag, despoiled their wealth, broke their spirit, destroyed their culture and reduced them to vassalage.

I am speaking of what is now known as Cuidad Trujillo.

The fortress built by the first invader still stands in that city—today this city is probably as far from the war and the rumors of war as any spot on earth. It is the capital city of the island of Santo Domingo where Columbus landed and whence Pizzaro, Cortez, Ponce de Leon, Balboa, and every Spanish invader set forth to crush and conquer the New world.

But first a digression to bring you back by way of Paris to Washington where today's story starts:

There used to be a saying about Paris—that if you sat long enough at a table on the sidewalk in front of the Cafe de la Paix (at that fascinating corner of the Avenue de l'Opera and the Boulevarde des Italiens) you would be certain to see somebody you knew go by, no matter where you came from.

Today Pennsylvania avenue in Washington has become the world's boulevard—only we have no sidewalk cafes. We have only very crowded restaurants. Perhaps the real world rendezvous is the wide waiting room of the executive offices of the White House.

Today, as I sat waiting for the correspondents to line up and show their passes and be admitted to the oval office for the regular semi-weekly press and radio conference, who should appear but my old comrade Oliver Newman, major of infantry in the last war, one-time commissioner (mayor) of the District of Columbia, Iowa farm boy and prince of good fellows.

You ought to see Ollie around a horse—or a mule. What he doesn't know about these critters, whether they are pulling a load of hay, yanking a 75 out of the mud, or stretching noses toward the finish line, adds up to nearly minus.

But that is only a part of the accomplishments which have been many and varied in the field of politics, society, finance, and, shall we say, climatically, journalism.

Anyhow, Major Newman came up and extended his hand. I have met him surprisingly in other less congruous places than the White House. This time he had just returned from his distant post in Santo Domingo where he is advisor to the government, for a vacation in the capital which is half his home.

(Cuidad Trujillo—Santo Domingo—is the capital city of the Dominican Republic island which is situated southeast of Florida, between Cuba and Puerto Rico.)

THE WOMEN'S ARMY
Tramp, tramp, tramp, the girls are marching!

Women in uniform will be the 1942 feature of our war program. Girls will be doughboys.

The bill creating a Women's Auxiliary Army has been passed and one creating a Women's Auxiliary Navy is in the works.

It is soon going to be a question whether to tip your hat to a lady or give her a salute.

There will be 150,000 gals in the new army, and it is fairly obvious that before long there will be so many of them in uniform that a woman dressed like a woman is going to feel conspicuous.

It is all going to be a terrific blow at feminine daintiness and charm. The boudoir is going to look like an army locker room, every clothes hanger is going to have a military garment on it and the male members of the family are going to have their troubles telling which are their hats and which belong to mother and sister.

We fear a big drop in charm. A woman has to have everything to project oomph in flat heels and an army hat.

There will be no generals, majors, colonels, etc., in the Female Reserve. Those responsible for the matter were smart enough to know that chaos might result. But there will be other less militant titles. The ladies will be ranked as directors, assistant directors, first leaders, second leaders, junior leaders, etc. The preliminary battles will be fought over the question who are to be plain everyday members.

The gals will be paid. Directors will get $3,000 a year and expenses, assistant directors will get $2,400 and expenses, and those from junior leaders to first officers will get from $648 to $2,000 a year and expenses.

Expenses will not include bridge losses.

Just what the ladies will do has not been completely decided, but if the boys in the army could get their wish some of them will be assigned to cook, make beds and do the general housework which the boys now have to do.

Nothing would raise the morale of the American buck private like being relieved of the job of making his own bed.

The Women's Army will be noncombatant. (Except within its own ranks.—Ed.)

It may be sent anywhere in the world. And there is this one great consolation: it will not be sent out in those funny spring and summer hats.

THOSE MUSICAL COMMERCIALS

Radio advertisers are going jingle mad. There is hardly a product on the air market today that hasn't been set to music.

You can't tune into the radio these days without finding yourself in the middle of some musical boost especially written for infantile intellects.

There was a time when an announcer would plug a drink, hair oil, bon bon or cigarette in a straight TALK. He didn't need an orchestra to say a good word for a loaf of bread, or a choir to emphasize the value of a can of beer.

He didn't have to set a Mother Goose jingle to music to beat down your sales resistance.

Radio is the most imitative of all the arts. Let some sausage maker come on the air with a sales talk via a male quartette and a dozen other business men will have their commercials musicalized.

Are you a cigar manufacturer? Very well. You'll want something like this to convince the American public that you have the best smoke.

A Bride's Cake to Greet You at the Reception!
(See Recipes Below)

Wedding Receptions

After the "I do's" have been said, and you have remembered to wear something borrowed, something blue, and something new, besides throwing your bouquet to some lucky bridesmaid, you are ready for the reception.

The reception is among the more elaborate forms of entertaining, but because of our wartime status, this year's event will undoubtedly be more simple. Simplicity, however, does not imply lack of charm or graciousness, indeed, it often enhances it the more.

White is the color for brides, so use your linens or damask on the wedding table. Flowers may be white calla lilies in crystal or silver centerpiece, or other delicate pastel flowers used with plenty of white to carry out the theme. Have your candles, white, too, as the occasion is somewhat formal.

At most weddings the trend is to serve other refreshments besides the traditional white cake cut by the bride and the necessary assistance of the groom! If you are baking the cake at home—and it will be good if you do—plan to have a small pastry tube for the frills and decorations with celluloid or paper figures of the groom and bride as a decoration.

Chicken, because of its bland flavor and general adaptability, is the answer to your refreshment problem. Chicken in a molded egg ring makes the table a picture, and your guests can easily serve themselves:

Chicken in Molded Egg Ring.
(Serves 8)

2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup boiling water
¼ cup cold water
1½ cups mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 green pepper chopped
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
3 hard-cooked eggs
Recipe of chicken salad

Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Cool. Add mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt, onion, green pepper, parsley, and 10 eggs, chopped. Cover bottom of mold with one inch of the mixture Slice remaining eggs and arrange slices around side of mold. Add remaining mixture and chill until firm Unmold on lettuce, fill center with chicken salad and garnish with salted almonds and tomato wedges. Serve with mayonnaise or french dressing.

Chicken Salad.

2 cups cooked, diced chicken
Mayonnaise dressing
½ cup diced celery
1 teaspoon onion juice
½ cup shredded, toasted almonds

Marinate chicken in french dressing for an hour. Drain. Add remaining ingredients with just enough mayonnaise dressing to moisten. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Chill well.

Make the reception a really memorable occasion by serving a beautiful Bride's salad, all fruity and creamy with the Egg Mold. Here's how to do it:

Bride's Salad.
(Serves 8)

1 large can pears
1 large can white cherries
½ pound almonds
1 large can sliced pineapple
⅓ pound marshmallows

Drain and cut fruits. Chop nuts and cut marshmallows with a wet scissors. Make the following cooked dressing:

Yolks of four eggs
Juice of one lemon
½ cup evaporated milk
¼ teaspoon mustard

Combine all ingredients and let cook over hot water until the mixture thickens. Cool. Fold in 2 cups whipped cream. Combine with fruit (well drained), add nuts and fold in marshmallows. Place in a mold, in the refrigerator overnight. Serve surrounded with endive or lettuce.

Now, the cake for the reception! This is a light butter cake, delicately flavored as befits the occasion:

Bride's Cake.

3¾ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons double acting baking powder
1¾ cups butter
2 cups sugar
1¼ cups egg whites, unbeaten
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually. Cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg whites, ¼ cup at a time, beating three minutes after each addition. Add flour, a small amount at a time, beating well after each addition. Add flavoring and beat vigorously. Turn into a 10-inch tube pan which has been greased and lined on the bottom, sides and around the tube with heavy, waxed paper. Bake in a slow (275-degree) oven 1 hour; then increase the heat slightly to 300 degrees, and bake 50 minutes longer, or until done. Insert favors, if desired, wrapping each in waxed paper, and pressing into small slits in the cake. Spread ornamental butter frosting smoothly on top and sides of cake. Decorate with simple borders and rosettes of the frosting, and trim with silver dragees. Serve on silver tray or platter with delicate sprays of fern, cosmos, or bridal wreath. Place special bridal favors on top of cake; or, tie small wedding bells or other favors to white ribbons and intertwine through sprays.

Ornamental Butter Frosting.

4 tablespoons butter
5 cups sifted confectioners sugar
2 egg whites, unbeaten
2 tablespoons cream (about)
1½ teaspoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt

Cream butter; add part of sugar gradually, beating well after each addition. Add remaining sugar alternately with egg whites, then with cream, until of right consistency to spread. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla and salt. Spread cake. Make rosettes and borders with frosting forced through the pastry tube. Makes enough frosting to cover the above cake and to use for decorating.

Lynn Says:

Here's help to solve your gift problems for the bride: Linen trousseaus include the following: Sheets, 6 pillowcases, 2 pairs blankets, 2 wool coverlets, 2 bathrobes, 8 bath towels, 8 face cloths and 12 linen hand towels.

For the dining room, the bride should need 2 dinner sets with 6 to 8 cups, 3 breakfast or luncheon sets, 6 to 8 extra dinner napkins, 4 tea napkins, and 2 hot plate mats.

If possible, the bride should have a set of 6 in each of the following pieces of china. If she plans to set up housekeeping on a smaller scale, this list may be reduced to 8 or 12 pieces. China includes: salad plates, soup plates, cups and saucers, dinner plates, sauce dishes, bread-and-butter plates. For serving dishes the following are "musts": 1 platter (for meat and vegetable), 1 covered dish, 2 open vegetable dishes, tea and coffee pot, sugar and creamers.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE TASK COMMITTED TO THE DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 28 16-20; Mark 16·14-20, Luke 24 49-53.

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark 16·15.

Witnesses of the resurrection—that privilege of the disciples carried with it the responsibility of declaring the good news of completed redemption to all the nations of the earth. In doing so they were destined to meet opposition and unbelief, to feel weariness and to know discouragement. So the Lord, before leaving this world for His present ministry at the Father's right hand (Mark 16:19; Heb. 7·25), prepared them by giving them a divine commission, which they accepted and acted upon with the assurance of His power and blessing. The lesson is summarized in the words, "Go ye" (Matt 28 19); "They went forth" (Mark 16 20); "And He . . . blessed them" (Luke 24·50).

I. "Go Ye" (Matt. 28.16-20).

God's plans are never small plans. World evangelization, nothing less, was the goal He had in mind, and to which Christ commissioned this little group of humble folk who were His disciples. It was not only a great commission, but a daring one.

Back of such marching orders there must be authority and power—and Christ had them (v. 18)—all power and all authority. No need to measure or compare, for His is the ultimate and complete authority. This is the One who said, "Come unto me"; then, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men," and who now says, "Go." If we heed one command, should we not absolutely obey the others?

The message is His message, the gospel (Mark 16:15). It is the only message! The witnesses of Christ are not called to educate and civilize the heathen without winning them to Christ. To do so is only to prepare stronger and more skillful enemies of all that we count holy.

But a great program means nothing if it is not carried out; a great commission is only words unless it is accepted and obeyed. We read of the disciples that—

II. "They Went Forth" (Mark 16: 14-20).

The call and command are given in this passage. The power is made clear and somewhat in detail, but the significant thing is that they actually went forth to preach.

The response of these early Christians was immediate and enthusiastic. Would that such a spirit had characterized the church through all the generations since then, for if it had, the commission would long since have been carried out. Dr. R. A. Torrey has estimated that if everyone in a church of 2,000 were to win one soul a year, and each convert win one soul each year, the world would be evangelized in less than 35 years.

But while on the whole the church has failed, there have been valiant souls all down through its history who have given themselves to the business of soul-winning. With them, as with these of the first century, the secret is ever "The Lord working with them." We read that as He was leaving this earth and His disciples, He lifted up His hands—

III. "And He . . . Blessed Them" (Luke 24:49-53).

God has always honored those who in faith have obeyed His command. The whole history of missionary endeavor bears eloquent testimony to that fact.

Sometimes we marvel at the success of a great movement, such as that founded by John Wesley. The answer is that God found a man, or a little group of men or women, willing to take Him at His word and step out in earnest purpose to obey Him. "For forty years John Wesley carried on his mission of canvassing for Christ 'as a parliamentary candidate canvasses for votes in his constituency in the strenuous three weeks before an election'" (Arnold's Commentary). Little wonder that with the blessing of Christ upon his work brings joy to many even to this day

Note that the disciples who had been made sad and despondent by their parting with Christ at Calvary now went away in joy. The joy of the Lord is the strength of the Christian worker It gives him abundant grace and power in the hour of need and makes him a fruitful servant.

A Warm Soul

I saw once lying side by side in a great workshop, two heads made of metal The one was perfect; all the features of a noble, manly face came out clear and distinct in their lines of strength and beauty; in the other, scarcely a single feature could be recognized; it was all marred and spoiled. "The metal had been let grow a little too cool, sir," said the man who was showing it to me. I could not help thinking how true that was of many a form more precious than metal. — Canon Teignmouth Shore.

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

BANDS of ric rac on a slim waisted, full skirted apron! Inspires the sewing urge in you, doesn't it? Every woman who likes to "make her own" will enjoy sewing this useful, fresh flattering apron—a style which can be completed with just two pieces. Not only is the pattern simplified, the apron is designed to put on in a jiffy—it ties in place firmly, the straps stay up and it gives your dress complete protection.

Devil's Metal

No modern war can be waged without nickel. Because of its toughness, people centuries ago declared that it was inhabited by the devil, and called it "Kupfernickel" (copper-nickel), the word being derived from Nikolaus, German for "Old Nick."

Nickel was known about 5,000 years ago to the Chinese and Assyrians, but the first man to isolate it was a Swede named Cronstadt, in 1754. Up to 1883, however, not more than 1,000 tons a year were used, but in that year vast deposits were discovered in Canada, which geologists said contained 200 million tons.

By-products of nickel are often as valuable as the parent metal and include gold, silver, and platinum, and modern methods of refining platinum from nickel have ended Russia's monopoly of this metal.

When armored knights met, it was customary for each knight to raise the visor of his helmet as a means of identification. This gesture has come down through all armies in the form of the salute. Traditional, too, is the Army man's preference for Camel Cigarettes. In the Army, Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard, actual sales records in their Service Stores show Camel is the favorite. Favorite gift with service men is also Camels by the carton. Local tobacco dealers are featuring Camel cartons to send to men in the armed forces anywhere.—Adv.

Household Hints

Inspect the refrigerator every morning before planning the day's menu. That is one of the best ways of checking on the cooked food supply and of utilizing every leftover.

A delicious dessert is a serving of baked apples which have been baked in pineapple juice. Peel and core the apples and bake until they are soft and juicy.

Table salt added to blue water distributes the color more evenly and prevents streaked or patchy-looking clothes.

Unused soap should be made into soap jelly and used for washing stockings, gloves, lingerie and curtains.

* * *

To provide the most adequate serving of omelet allow three eggs for every two servings.

Casualty—1,000 miles from the enemy

ALMOST as fatal as a bullet or a shell is the breakdown in the spirit of a sailor or a soldier.

Our men have the finest spirit in the world. But it must be maintained in the American way.

They must not be made to feel that they are mere automatons, fighting machines, as the armed forces of the dictators have been made to feel.

Life in our navy and army is hard. Discipline is tough. It must be. But there also must be moments when the sailor or soldier is treated as Mr. Somebody-or-other.

That's where the USO comes in. For the USO is the banding together of six great agencies to serve one great purpose—to see that our boys in the camps and naval stations have a place to go, to turn to, a "home away from home."

The duties of the USO have more than doubled during the year. Its field of operations has enlarged to include almost the entire face of the globe.

To carry on its all-important work, it needs funds. It needs your contribution. No matter how small you make that contribution, it needs it. Now.

You are beset by requests for help on all sides. By all means, try to meet those requests. But among them, don't neglect the USO.

Send your contribution to your local USO committee, or to USO, National Headquarters, Empire State Building, New York.

Give to the USO

Herbert V. Reed, Prominent Hancock County Man, Dies

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD AT GARNER TUESDAY AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Mr. Reed Was At One Time A Farmer Near Klemme

Herbert Valdemar Reed, 83, pioneer resident of Hancock county, died at his home in Garner early Saturday morning following a short illness.

Herbert Reed was born at Bigfoot, Illinois, on June 22, 1859.

When he was 4 years old his father enlisted in the Civil war and following the close of the war the family came to Wright county, Iowa, where they homesteaded Mr Reed was educated in the schools of that community and attended a school of telegraphy in Janesville, Wisconsin, in his earlier years

On Dec 24, 1882, he as married to Jennie Spence at Lake Geneva, Wis., and the family came to Iowa and settled on a farm near Klemwhere they lived for about eight years when they quit farming to go into the merchantile business in Goodell in the 1890's.

Became County Auditor

In 1894 Mr Reed was elected county auditor of Hancock county on the republican ticket and served in that capacity until Jan. 1st, 1899 In 1901 he was again back in public office as county treasurer and served one term.

Later he entered business in the town of Garner and conducted a variety store for several years

Mr Reed was always a public spirited man and during his years in Garner served as town clerk for the past 31 consecutive years. He had also served as school treasurer of Garner for 20 years, and for a similiar period of years was the justice of the peace He was identified with every civic and community service and had served as home service chairman of the Red Cross for many years.

Was Active In Lodge Work

He was active in the Masonic and Odd Fellow lodges and held all offices in the Masonic Lodge, and was a member of the Eastern Star and Rebekah chapters. He was a member of the United Presbyterian church of Garner.

Mr and Mrs Reed celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Dec 24, 1932. Mrs. Reed has since passed away.

Three daughters survive. Mrs. Reed, one daughter, Mrs. James Ryan, and one son, Clair Reed, preceded Mr Reed in death. The surviving daughters are Miss Mary Reed of Terre Haute, Ind.; Mrs Chas. King of Council Bluffs, and Mrs Lucille Clark of Pasadena, California. Fourteen grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren also survive

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the United Presbyterian church in Garner at 2:30 p m The Masonic Lodge had charge of the rites at the grave

Interment was in the Concord Cemetery near Garner

KLEMME PARK IS POPULAR PICNIC SPOT THIS SUMMER

The Klemme Park is proving to be a popular place for family picnics, re-unions and gatherings of all kinds this summer

More picnic tables have recently been added and if the popularity of the park continues more will be added, according to one of the town officals.

The Park has abundant shade, and cold, running water

Three Picnics Sunday

Sunday there were three family re-unions and picnics held in the Park the Ell family picnic, Stokesbary family re-union and the Barz family picnic

Shelter House?

One of Klemme's town officials believes that the time is close at hand to plan on building a shelter house in the Park The old band stand would be dismantled and in its place would be erected a rustic stone structure comlpete with fire places, rest rooms etc It would be constructed of native rock and the rock would be donated

It is a project worth giving a bit of serious thought

DISTRICT F. B. LEADERS TO MEET JUNE 25

SUPERVISORS INCREASE HOG AND COW VALUATIONS

Hancock county supervisors who met as a county board of review last week, increased valuations on cows and hogs ranging in various districts from 10 to 50 per cent.

The average county valuation on cows as turned in by the assessors was $36, and the average on hogs was $15.

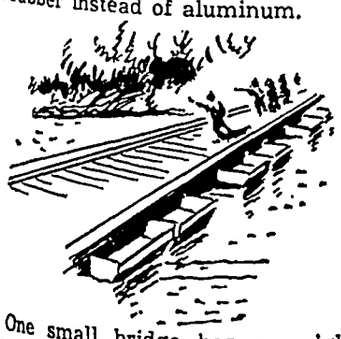
Township clerk have been notified regarding changes made and hearings will be held at the court house in Garner at 10 o'clock a. m. June 22.

ADULT BIBLE CLASS HELD FAREWELL PARTY

The Adult Bible Class of the Reformed Church held a farewell party Thursday evening in honor of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Dulmes.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Our army spells and pronounces it ponton, not "pontoon", as you do. Ponton bridges cost all the way from $15,000 to $700,000. The smaller bridge using individual metal pontons is pictured here. The largest ponton bridge is 1,080 feet long and is made of rubber instead of aluminum.



One small bridge has a weight capacity of 25 tons, using about 2,000 individual metal pontons. The smallest is used only to take troops over smaller streams. But whether our army uses the smaller or largest ponton, our engineers need plenty of them. If you and every American invests at least 10 per cent of income in War Bonds every pay day we can supply our fighting forces with these essentials to a victorious war.

Let Everybody Know You're Investing 10 Percent of Your Income in War Bonds

The attractive red, white and blue window sticker, pictured above, is the new yardstick of patriotism in the War Bond drive throughout the nation. With the slogan, "Everybody every pay day, ten percent," sweeping the country, patriotic Americans on the home front are rallying to their Government's appeal for funds with which to help finance the war. The home which displays the "ten percent" sticker is doing its share toward Victory for America and the United Nations. The stickers are being distributed through local War Savings Chairmen. *U. S. Six Tons Of Scrap Rubber Was Collected Here The First Week

NEARLY SIX TONS SCRAP RUBBER GATHERED IN KLEMME IN ONE WEEK!

The scrap rubber drive is just getting a good start, but up to Saturday night nearly 12,000 pounds of scrap rubber had been turned in at the several places in Klemme

Paul Van Buskirk, Klemme farmer brought in the largest single load reported Mr Van Buskirk brought in 625 pounds!

Although an accurate report on the total of scrap rubber turned in was not available Monday morning, the following figures are approximately correct:

4,220 pounds at the Hancock Co Oil Station; 2,100 pounds at Larson's service station; 1,500 pounds at Kluckhohn's station, 3,600 lbs. Harvey Barz Truck Service

This totals up to 11,420 pounds for the first week

48,564 TONS OF SCRAP RUBBER COLLECTED IN FIRST SIX DAYS OF CAMPAIGN

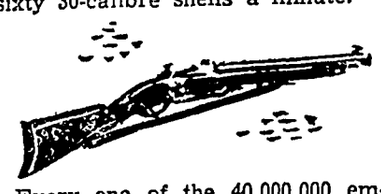
The first six days of the nationwide scrap rubber collection drive yielded at least 48,565 tons, the petroleum industry war council reported Sunday on the basis of incomplete returns, according to a Washington, D C dispatch

The Iowa total based on returns from only 29 of the 99 counties reported 1,603 tons.

The above is but a small fraction of the actual collections.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Garand semi-automatic rifle, which is the standard issue today for the U. S army, is superior to the old Springfield rifle in many respects. We literally need millions of these fast shooting powerful rifles to equip our army. They cost $85 each and are being manufactured at the rate of one a minute. They fire sixty 30-calibre shells a minute.



Every one of the 40,000,000 employed persons in America could easily buy one of these rifles for the army. Not that we need that many, but the reserve could go into shells and other much needed supplies. Buy more and more War Bonds and top the quota in your county by investing at least ten percent of your income every pay day.

STOP INFLATION MEETINGS ARE SCHEDULED

Run away prices and their control by President Roosevelt's seven point program are being discussed at community meetings in Hancock County.

Every farmer and busness man is invited to attend one of these discussions Inflation hurts nearly everyone and helps no one Educational Cooperators are assisting in these discussions. The educational Cooperators are keeping informed on anti-inflation measures.

The following meetings have been scheduled:

Thursday, June 25: Community Hall in Klemme.

Friday, June 26: Center School in Ellington township

Monday, June 29. Grade School in Hutchins.

Wednesday, July 1: at the Center school in Madison township.

The meetings all start at 8:30 o'clock

Keep informed to avoid a re-occurence of the depressions that have followed other wars.

DON'T FORGET TO REGISTER TUESDAY, JUNE 30

The fifth registration will be held on Tuesday, June 30, 1942, between the hours of 7:00 A. M and 9:00 P. M., according to Herman Paul, local registrar.

At this time all men born on or after January 1, 1922, and on or before June 30, 1924, will register.

Mr Paul announces that the registration place in Klemme has been changed from the Town Hall to Dr Dulmes' office.

The Misses Marian Waterman and Jacqueline Kudje have been appointed registration clerks.

RED CROSS NEEDS WOOL SCRAP MATERIAL

The Klemme Red Cross wants you to look around your home for scraps of wool, as the govenment needs wool scrap material to make over into usuable material.

You are also asked to give the local Red Cross such items as buttons, buckles, hooks and eyes, tape etc. that can be used in sewing.

The Girl Scouts, under the direction of Miss Lorraine Buntenbach will organize to canvass the town, so have your material ready when they call.

Mrs. E. J. Schneider is in charge of collecting material in Ell.

Farmers Can Aid Inflation Fight

FARMERS CAN AID INFLATION FIGHT

Taxes, Government Loans And Paying Debts Help To Check Spending

Iowa farmers will have an important influence on inflation. They will have a surplus of approximately 300 million dollars over business and living expenses in 1942 and what they do with this large amount of cash will be of utmost importance, says Edward D Allen, Iowa State College economist

If accumulating inflationary pressure is to be prevented from creeping through price ceilings, the government will have to find ways and means of mopping up the nation's surplus spending power, Allen asserts This can be done by sharply increasing taxes on 1942 incomes and collecting these taxes this year as cash comes in or by inaugurating a national compulsory savings bond program.

Need Heavier Taxes

To be effective in reaching surplus farm dollars the suggested tax and loan programs must dig much more deeply into incomes than anything we have yet experienced, Allen says.

This year Iowa's gross farm income is likely to jumj to 200 million dollars over last year to a record high of $1,100,000,000 or more

To keep these extra dollars out of the market, we may increase taxes, pay debts, buy war bonds or pile up bank balances. Under present Federal income tax regulations, Iowa farmers will not pay much over 5 million dollars in this way in 1942. If tax increases go through as now proposed, the Iowa farm income tax bill may exceed 10 million dollars in 1943 A retail sales tax, not now in the proposed tax bill, would increase the tax bill for farmers about 5 million dollars for the balance of this year State and local taxes will not drain off much surplus farm income this year or next. Thus taxes as now set up, or proposed, cannot be counted on as effective anti-inflation measures.

Mortgages $700,000,000

A second method of keeping dollars out of the land and commodity market is by debt payment Iowa's farm mortgage debt is about 700 million dollars, of which about three-fourths is in loans which may be paid off as rapidly as the borrower chooses.

The third method of draining off spending power is through the purchase of government bonds Last year farmers purchased about 15 million dollars worth of government bonds. However, if the Treasury quotas are to be met, the bond purchases will have to be nearly five times as great as during the past twelve months.

Allen believes it is in the long-time interest of farmers to ask for a severe tax and loan program. More gentle treatment means that more and more dollars will be used to bid for fewer and fewer goods, and that, we shall bow to war's stepchild, inflation.

ROAD NOTES

By C. F. Merten, County Engineer

At a letting held June 18, 1942, the following grading contracts were awarded: The local road grading which was in the program in the north half of the county was awarded to Buns Brothers of Woden, Iowa, at $5,850.00; the local road grading which was in the program in the south half of the county was awarded to Harry Rehm of Garner, Iowa, at $5,200.

The grading of the trunk roads which were on the program was not awarded, but may be contracted for later. Work is to start by July 6, or as soon as the weather conditions permit. These contracts do not include graveling, which will be arranged for later.

The practice of pasturing the road sides has become quite common and many farmers have erected electric fences on the shoulder of the road to control their stock. There is no particular objection to this practce providing it does not endanger the lives of the traveling public. Smooth wire attached to light posts will probably not be the cause of accidents, but barbed wire should not be used.

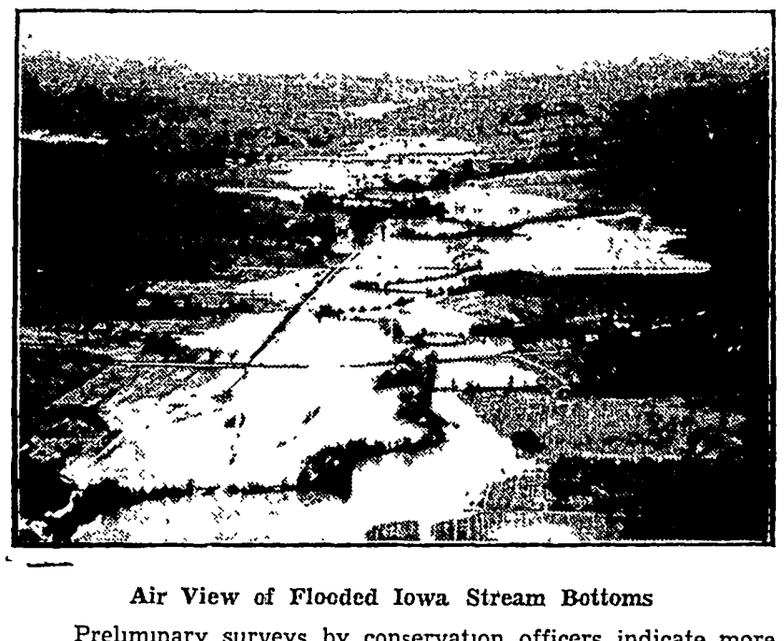
ANTICIPATE HEAVIEST FISH RESCUE FOR DECADE



Air View of Flooded Iowa Stream Bottoms

Preliminary surveys by conservation officers indicate more inland fish rescue work will be necessary this year than any time during the past decade. General high water over the state has deposited thousands of brood fish in the land- locked pools along Iowa's 15,000 miles of streams where they have spawned. Most of these pools will dry up during the summer months, and if the fish are not removed, they will die. The huge task of returning these fish to permanent waters will be carried out by conservation officers with the voluntary aid of interested individuals and sportsmen's groups, and although it will probably be impossible to rescue all the fishes, the major portion will be saved. All interested persons are requested to notify their local conservation officer or the State Conservation Commission, 10th and Mulberry, Des Moines, of drying ponds or sloughs containing game fish that need to be rescued.

The most ironic situation of all, we think, concerns Eugenia Clair Flatto, Grand Hostess of the American Gold Star Mothers' annual convention . . . Before the war, Mrs Flatto had a loyal Jap gardener . . . He had been here for many years—had even fought for this nation in the last big war . . . But, because he is Japanese he had to be interned . . . Mrs. Flatto now has a new gardener, who is acceptable to the authorities—a German, who can't even speak English!

"The trouble with you ladies," said Mr Roosevelt, "is that instead of opposing the christening of a vessel with champagne, you should encourage it. And get a great temperance lesson"

"Why, how can we?" queried one of them.

"Well," he replied, "after the first taste of wine, the ship takes to water and sticks to it ever after."

War Also Brings Livestock Diseases

U. S. Veterinarians Mobilize for Action

(Special to Western Newspaper Union.)

Will American farmers, in this war, be able to keep down the livestock plagues which have cut so seriously into the nation's food production in some of our former wars?

Will we be able to deliver the millions of tons of food needed to help win the war for ourselves and our allies?

These questions are causing serious concern to farm and livestock leaders this spring, and definite steps are already being taken to throw every possible safeguard around the nation's livestock production machinery during this critical 1942.

One of the most important steps in this direction is being taken this month with the mobilizing of the entire veterinary profession from coast to coast, under preparedness committees named by the various state veterinary medical associations.

Another step is the inspection service now being maintained at all important ports of entry into the United States Every animal brought in from a foreign country is given a thorough examination by government veterinarians to make sure that foreign livestock plagues are not brought in to threaten our home herds.

Civil War Epidemic.

That serious outbreaks of livestock disease could wreck certain phases of our food producing effort is evidenced by the history of some of America's former wars. During the Civil war, for example, our cattle population was virtually wiped out in some sections by Texas fever. Cattle in other areas were devastated by outbreaks of pleuropneumonia. Large sections of the swine belt experienced severe outbreaks of hog cholera. As a result, meat supplies for our armies were strictly limited, and "hard tack and sow belly" became a by-word among soldiers of the Civil war.

With livestock disease controls broken down, Europe's great food producing regions are being swept today by severe outbreaks, which are adding their share to starvation conditions in the war-torn regions.

"America is the most healthful country in the world for livestock and we intend to keep it so despite the stress of war conditions," Dr. H. W. Jakeman, president of the American Veterinary Medical association, said this week in reporting upon the wartime program of the veterinary profession.

Steps by which farmers can cooperate in the campaign against preventable livestock disease include:

Raising pigs on clean ground, to avoid infection by disease germs lurking in old hog lots.

Calfhood vaccination to prevent Bang's disease losses. Inspection, aggregation, and treatment of dairy cattle for mastitis.

Immunization of horses against encephalomyelitis before the insect and mosquito season.

Isolation of newly purchased livestock from the home herd for a safe period to avoid spreading diseases.

Prompt diagnosis by a qualified veterinarian at the first signs of livestock illness

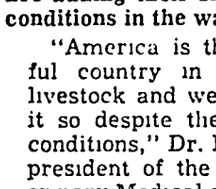
Ready and Able

Agriculture today is in many ways better organized to meet the increased production of farm products which we need to feed our armies and those of the United Nations. Yet care should be exercised to see that soil resources are not depleted for the sake of possible temporary gains. Also that the fertility resources of the soil are not wasted.



Avoid plowing land with slopes of 25 per cent or better; practice contour or strip cropping; plant cover crops for soil protection; these are just a few of the practices suggested. Farmers could do well to consult their county agricultural agents for help on preventing erosion and the depletion of soil elements.

ALFALFA BREEDERS 'GOIN' TO TOWN' WITH NEW STRAINS

Alfalfa breeders are "going to town"—literally—with some of the promising new strains that yield well and are resistant to disease and weather injury. This is because a vacant lot in a town is likely to be the best place available to increase small quantities of seed with reasonable assurance of protecting it from contamination by unimproved alfalfas that will effect the new strains.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THE Bennetts of Broadway and Hollywood — Richard and his daughters, Constance, Joan and Barbara — have never appeared together on either stage or screen. But thanks to Joan's sense of humor they'll do it vicariously in Columbia's "The Wife Takes a Flyer." An old family picture album figures prominently in the script. With the consent of the director, Richard Wallace, Joan filled it with the oldest and funniest photographs of her father and sisters that she could find—and the glamorous Bennetts will appear as a group of sturdy Dutch country folk. Joan's the only one to appear personally; she co-stars with Franchot Tone.

Edmund O'Brien has left RKO Radio, where he's been for the last two years. Universal has bought his contract, and assigned him to the role opposite Deanna Durbin in "Forever Yours." He'll play an American volunteer flier with the Chinese army.

Ann Sheridan, whom Paramount discovered as a Texas kindergarten teacher in 1933, will return to that studio to play Texas Guinan, famous night club owner of Broadway in the roaring Twenties, who greeted patrons with "Hullo, sucker!" She wanted the role, Paramount wanted her for it, Warner Bros. wanted Fred MacMurray for "Princess O'Rourke," so a bit of swapping went on; now everybody's happy.

It isn't often that you can see a government official flitting about the screen in a woman's nightgown, that's several sizes too large for him, but you'll be able to in "They All Kissed the Bride" unless changes are made. The actor's Melvyn Douglas, occupying an important post with the Office of Civilian Defense. He wrote Director Alexander Hall asking that the scene be deleted, but it's part of the plot.

Cecil B. DeMille, when he assembled, edited and produced "Land of Liberty" for the movie industry, reserved the right to designate one war charity to receive $5,000 of the receipts. He recently gave it to the Queen Wilhelmina Fund for Dutch war relief. Appropriate, as he's a descendant of a family that emigrated from Holland in 1658.

In broadcast parlance, a shot in the arm is any new situation devised by a script writer to put new life into a serial. "Valiant Lady" got one recently, but it happened also to be a shot in the heart; Joan Blaine, widowed one week, met a young millionaire the next!

Dorothy Lamour is going back to 1900 when she begins work in "Galveston," a spectacular production which will have its climax in the Galveston flood. Two of her films, "Beyond the Blue Horizon" and "Road to Morocco," with Hope and Crosby, await release.

Success story: Five years ago writer - director - producer Charles Martin paid Martha Scott $20 for playing a small role on one of his "Five Star Final" programs. Later, he gave her more opportunity and more pay. She made good on the stage and on the screen—and when she appeared recently on the CBS Playhouse in his version of "Bachelor Mother" her check was for $2,000.

Here's a bathtub scene that not even DeMille ever thought of. It's in "Cairo." Jeanette MacDonald takes a bubble bath, Ethel Waters is her maid, and they sing "Figaro" from the "Barber of Seville"—Miss Waters jiving, Miss MacDonald going operatic.

ODDS AND ENDS—Ken Niles, "Big Town" announcer, was the first member of his profession to present movie celebrities over the air . . . Eddie Cantor has decided that for the duration his "Time to Smile" broadcasts will originate exclusively from army camps . . . Gracie Allen's home is filling up with toy ducks, sent by listeners for Gracie's air bird, "Herman" . . . Martha Tilton, songstress on the Ransom Sherman show, has been named "Sweetheart of the Auxiliary Fire Fighters" in the Los Angeles area . . . Household Hints

Galoshes should be stuffed with paper and wrapped separately when storing. The idea is to keep the rubber surfaces from touching as summer's heat will vulcanize rubber.

To wash rayons use mild, lukewarm suds, squeezing them through the material. Don't rub or wring the garment. Iron it slightly damp on the wrong side.

Copper and brass utensils are dangerous to use if not kept perfectly clean. Rub spot with hot vinegar and salt, lemon rind and salt, tomato juice, rhubarb juice or hot sour milk.

Empty fruit jars should be perfectly dry inside and out before storing. Mold may grow in a jar with moisture inside.

Chromium plate is a soft metal. To clean simply wipe with a damp cloth.

To "soft cook" eggs properly, immerse in boiling water. Cover and let stand on the hot burner or on the back of the range two minutes. The egg white will be jellylike and the yolk soft, making a digestible and palatable food.

Continued exposure to high temperatures shortens the life of rubber articles, since heat stimulates chemical change, advises a bulletin from the U. S. department of agriculture. Rubber articles in the home, it adds, should be kept away from radiators, stoves, fireplaces, and out of the direct sunlight, "as a hot water bottle hung in a sunny place on the bathroom wall."

Treat Constipation This Gentler Way!

Many folks say that almost as bad as constipation are harsh cathartics and purges. That's because many medicinal laxatives work this way. they either prod the intestines into action or draw moisture into them from other parts of the body

Now comes news of a gentler and pleasanter way of treating constipation, for the millions of people with normal intestines whose trouble is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet This way is by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, a crisp, delicious cereal, and drinking plenty of water. ALL-BRAN, unlike many medicinal laxatives, acts principally on the contents of the colon and helps you to have easy, normal elimination. Canal Zone Ready for All Comers

Panama Jungles Now a Huge Armed Camp.

By CHARLES A. SINGLER
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

OUR canal zone is one of the hottest spots in the Western hemisphere, both meteorologically and strategically, and is becoming increasingly "hotter" as the war wears on and the possibilities of an enemy thrust by land or sea, or by both, become more imminent.

The Panama Canal is not only our proudest national possession, but a vital link in the U. S. chain of defense fortifications. Little wonder, then, that the eyes of Europe, Asia and all America are turned towards this narrow but important waterway which military forethought and engineering skill provided for our nation some twenty-seven years ago.

The Canal Zone is 50 miles long and about 10 miles wide. Approximately 95 square miles of this is under water. The canal itself is about 34 miles in length and 87 feet high. Deep jungle growths crowd densely upon all sides, furnishing ideal concealment for gun emplacements.

All Is 'On the Alert.'

In these lush, steaming jungles where there seems to be no life except that of the countless strange birds and jungle animals that live by the code of tooth and claw, there are many eyes watching; all on the alert. Here brave U. S. boys are waiting for the planes to come, and somehow or other hoping that maybe they will, to relieve the deadly monotony of life in the deep jungle. Here under the concealing drapery of leaves and branches great naval rifles point forever out to sea with their silent threat to all who may come that way, unbidden. These great 16-inch coastal defense rifles out-range the guns of most battleships. Practice is constantly going on, mostly with the use of dud loads, for Uncle Sam cannot afford to waste costly ammunition or the precious rifling of these big guns on a harmless sea.

And here under the same friendly foliage, "ack-ack" guns bristle towards the sky, a hidden challenge to any air armada or lone enemy bomber which may be rash enough to venture near the canal. Jungle foliage also conceals cool hideouts for gunners—caves in which long gleaming rows of shells, some of them inscribed with loving names for the enemy, await the day or night when the call for action comes. In these caves the "day" is 24 hours long. During all this time gun crews stand on the alert, ready to pour a hot welcome into the sullen jungle skies. During the "off" periods the men repair to more comfortable barracks, completely camouflaged, to gain the needed exercise and recreation.

Underground Cities.

In the Panama Canal Zone are also secret island fortresses where underground cities, carved from sheer rock, offer a threat to the would-be invader. Switchboards have been installed, and when the time comes, if it should, tons of red hot trouble will pour from these fortresses to make the invader wish he had stayed closer to home.

Not only does the jungle shroud great naval and anti-aircraft guns, ready for instant action, but also hidden airdromes, full of planes poised for flight, ready to do their bit for Uncle Sam. It conceals keen-eyed watchers on the alert for surprise attacks and treachery. Pearl Harbor has not been forgotten.

Great forts stand at either ocean entrance to the canal, and swift naval vessels are constantly on guard. P-T boats, those swift messengers of death which accounted for more than one Jap warship in Manila bay and which got General MacArthur out of Bataan, are ready to lend their speed and their fighting power to the defense of the waterway. These deadly "mosquito boats," as they are called, carry an anti-aircraft gun that hurls a 20 mm. explosive shell which is bad medicine for attacking planes. P-Ts can also raise havoc amidst surface craft with their deadly torpedoes and blast a sub from the deep with depth charges.

Where 'Walls Have Ears.'

Unseen sentinels move about through the Panama jungle, as ubiquitous as all outdoors, popping up when least expected. No action escapes unseen; no spoken word is unheard. Here is a place where, indeed, "the walls have ears." Landmine units are on the qui vive, waiting to do their share in rendering enemy progress dangerous and slow.

Packed away in the jungle, too, there is infantry—the inevitable infantry—to which we must all pin our hopes to push the enemy back if he should succeed in gaining a foothold in this vital area. With the advent of the new trans-Isthmian highway the speedy movement of troops from one end of the canal to the other—a 48-mile run—is an accomplished fact.

Dangers Facing Us.

These are some of the things that are awaiting those who have lost their respect for territorial rights.

And now, having had a glimpse of the canal's defenses, let us consider briefly from which direction and in what form any thrust at the canal may come.

As the most strategic spot in our hemisphere, and offering an opportunity of bottling up our fleet in either ocean, it can safely be assumed that our enemies will want to smash the canal at the earliest possible date, regardless of all hazards, and will leave nothing undone to attain this objective. Their plans might take shape in the form of small raiding parties or in vast armadas of bombers and fighter planes.

Then, too, we are faced with the menace of secret bases. We must not forget the lesson of the Jap-mandated Marshall islands on which secret bases were built in open defiance of international treaties. The uninhabited jungles of nearby Central and South America might provide aerial hideouts for the treacherous Japs or the deceitful and ever-diligent Nazis.

With Franco "playing ball" continually with Adolf Hitler, islands such as the Spanish Canaries and the Portuguese Azores, or the many small isles that dot the Caribbean, might furnish springboards for hostile wings.

Danger From the Sea.

Airplane carriers, steaming ahead at full speed all night, or for several nights, as in the case of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, offer serious potential dangers. Once within 500 miles of the Canal Zone they could launch their planes in the gray of the dawn. They know full well that just one big "egg" dropped in a lock, would hatch loads of trouble for Uncle Sam. We must bear in mind that without the canal in operation a 50-mile trip becomes a 13,000-mile cruise "around the Horn," either way you take it, with its terrific loss of precious time and greatly increased operating costs.

The battleship Oregon made one such emergency trip during the Spanish-American war, and arrived on the scene in time to turn the tide of battle, but we have neither the time nor the inclination for this sort of thing in this war with the Axis. Nothing must happen to the Panama canal!

Friendly but Questionable Isles.

Let us look in another direction. One thousand miles to the southwest of the Canal Zone loom the shadowy shapes of the Galapagos islands. These islands are owned by friendly Ecuador. These tiny islands, though in friendly hands, are anybody's guess these days, for Jap "fishing boats" have been known to have plied off their shores, and who knows what observations have been made and what soundings taken.

Then there is the menace of the nearby blue Caribbean, in which enemy subs are known to be prowling, and which have already taken heavy toll of our merchant shipping in these very waters, so dangerously close to the canal. Dealing with this menace is the Caribbean patrol of huge navy patrol bombers, 15-ton Consolidated flying boats with sound apparatus to detect subs, and two tons of bombs. These bombers roar out daily on dawn-to-dusk sweeps of the Caribbean and the Atlantic, and may be included as an important arm of the canal defense.

Espionage and sabotage, the long suit of the enemy, may also be listed on the debit side of the ledger in an accounting of the Canal Zone's danger potentials, and all must be dealt with in their own individual way.

An Historic Event.

The most important event in the history of the canal occurred in January, 1939, when the U. S. fleet passed from the Pacific to the Atlantic ocean, and even more dramatic was the return passage of a large portion of the fleet in early May of that year. Both transits were made without the appearance of haste, but in record time.

Contrary to the general belief, the canal does not run due east and west, but zig-zags irregularly across the isthmus. Its operation consists in helping ships, however big and bulky, to ascend three water-steps (locks) from one ocean into the huge man-made Lake Gatun, from which they descend three other water-steps into the ocean at the canal's other end. The locks are so constructed that two vessels proceeding in opposite directions may go through the canal at the same time. Big ships occupy a whole lock, and smaller ships are wedged in like sardines. Once in the locks the ship's crew is shoved aside and the canal crew takes over.

The United States has sovereignty over the entire Canal Zone. Two cities stand guard at either gateway of the canal—Balboa at the Atlantic end and Panama at the Pacific end.

The canal was constructed during Theodore Roosevelt's administration by the U. S. army, with General Goethals as engineering chief and General Gorges in charge of public health. It was opened to commercial traffic August 15, 1915, and was declared formally completed July 12, 1920, during President Wilson's administration.

For Protection of Panama Canal

At left is Edwin C. Wilson, ambassador to Panama. The agreement, which was signed May 18, 1942, involves the use of some 40,000 acres in the republic by the U. S. armed forces.

Small Boats to Dodge Subs by Intracoastal Route

Repeated suggestions that the gasoline shortage in the eastern seaboard states might be partly met by use of barges in the Intracoastal Waterway have brought this sheltered route into the news, especially so since the submarine menace. Intra-coastal Waterway is a 3,500-mile route, mostly land-protected, from Boston along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts to the Rio Grande.

From Boston to New York the depth of the waterway is ample, but shelter from sea attack is limited to that provided by Cape Cod and Long Island, says the National Geographic society. From New York to Norfolk the route that will eventually take shape is by a wide, deep trans-Jersey canal from Sayreville on the Raritan to Bordentown on the Delaware, then through the industry-lined channel of the Delaware's upper tidewater to the Chesapeake and Delaware canal and into the Chesapeake bay.

WAAC ENLISTMENTS

Thousands of determined women, eager to don the WAAC uniform, are driving WAAC officials wacky.

The campaign for enlistments in the Women's Army Auxiliary corps has succeeded too well. Maj. Oveta Culp Hobby and her chief lieutenants, Mrs. Arthur Woods and Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, have a bear by the tail and they know it.

Sad truth is that there cannot possibly be more than 500 WAAC officer-candidates taken in now. No "auxiliaries," that is, non-officer WAAC's, can be recruited until the officers have been trained, possibly around September 15. The greatest number of WAAC's that can be taken in this year is estimated at 25,000, and all of these will be subjected to a minimum of four weeks' training. This leaves some 275,000 disappointed would-be WAAC's out of an estimated registration of 300,000.

Toughest job of all falls upon the chief recruiting officers in the nine army corps areas. It is their job to sort out the WAAC registrants and select the lucky women. Those chosen then must face a series of very stiff aptitude tests.

BOND LOTTERY

Rep. Adolph Sabath of Illinois, genial chairman of the house rules committee, wasn't able to sell the President on government-sponsored lotteries when he called at the White House. However, he was given a novel idea on how to use the lottery principle in the sale of war bonds.

Sabath contended that a legalized lottery, conducted monthly by the treasury, would greatly aid in relieving taxation and raise billions in revenue for the war effort.

Under a bill he is sponsoring, the Illinoisan said, the government would realize approximately $875,000,000 from the sale of a billion $1 tickets, whereas if it borrowed this amount at 3 per cent for 20 years, the interest alone would total $525,000,000.

"It wouldn't be the first time our government has held a lottery," argued Sabath. "We did it in 1776 to help finance the Revolutionary war."

"Yes, I know," said the President, adding that he doubted the advisability of lotteries at this time because of the strong opposition of religious groups. Instead, he proposed a compromise.

"Why not apply your lottery ideas to the sale of war bonds," he suggested. "The Belgian government held bond lotteries for a number of years."

SHAKY CHINA

Chinese leaders in Washington are not shouting it from the housetops, but behind closed doors they are doing some tough talking to the effect that an increasing number of Chinese are getting discouraged about the war and would like to see some kind of appeasement with Japan. Chinese leaders give this as the reason why China must have airplanes—and have them immediately.

The Chinese don't demand a lot of planes. But they do say that even a small fraction of the munitions going to Russia would work wonders in bolstering China.

Here is the Chinese picture now being presented to U. S. war strategists. After five years of war, the Chinese are warweary. Most discouraging thing is the ironical fact that the Chinese are worse off now, with Allies, than they were before, fighting alone. The Chinese were delighted after Pearl Harbor because it meant they had a powerful ally against Japan. But now after six months of it, they almost wish they had been left to hold out alone.

That is why recent reverses in Burma and along the China coast have shaken Chinese determination down to the foundation.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is not weakening. But many Chinese are, especially the well-to-do class, the people who yearn for restoration of normal business, who would rather have a chance to make money and live peacefully even under the Japs than to pay the frightful cost of continued war.

Meanwhile, Japan seems determined to crush China now. Apparently the U. S. bombing raids on Tokyo scared the Japs sick, made them see the danger of nearby Chinese bases, caused them to shift their strategy to cleaning up China ahead of other warfronts.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Heard in the navy press room: A sailor after 20 years' service retired with a sizeable fortune of $60,000. He amassed this sum through careful investment, enterprise, initiative—and the death of an uncle who left him $59,000.

The war department's service of supply shortly will release a new movie called, "The Army Behind the Army," showing America's vast war production machine. The picture will be shown in defense plants throughout the country.

ANOTHER TAX IDEA!

It's all done by suction pump! The treasury department has proposed that congress require that 10 per cent of your wages and other income be deducted at the source and paid to Uncle Sam for income taxes!

No pains! No sleepless nights! No complicated mathematical problems! No troublesome routines! No blanks. (Just come in and bring a gallon of blood.)

Randolph Paul, the treasury expert behind the latest idea, says there will be 28,000,000 novice taxpayers under our new laws, all in the lower brackets, and that, as few of them can save any money for taxes, the only way to collect is to take it at the source. It's a perfect tax-collection plan. Ball-bearing, high-speed and frictionless, it picks up the lint off the rugs and the dandruff off your shoulders.

* * *

A baby can use it as well as an adult.

You pay through the nose. Under federal nose control.

It makes it easier for everybody except the boss and the bookkeeping department. Well, they're too groggy to notice a little extra work anyhow.

Under Mr. Paul's proposal the boss handles the whole business. He does the deducting, answers your squawks, tries to smooth your wounded feelings and then prepares certificates, affidavits and miscellaneous papers to be filed and forwarded to all necessary addresses.

The employer gets carbon copies while the glee club softly sings "Among My Souvenirs."

Not that you don't have to bother to make out a tax blank. You have to do that just the same as ever. The new plan makes it more exciting. If, when you figure up what you owe Uncle Sam, you find the 10 per cent share of your salary has overpaid the tax, you apply for a refund. If you find you're still shy a few dollars you send 'em in.

(And if you're still baffled you retire to a cool dry place and await further advices.)

It probably never will be passed. But if it is, the folks will take it without undue lamentations. War is war and it costs money.

"Bus Lines Pooled."—Headline.

All the road hogging is to be done under one head now.

The government again—this time through Donald M. Nelson—warns that autos may be seized unless every driver cuts down his speed and uses his tires as little as possible. How about having the cops stop and take the names of all those drivers who still ignore all the warnings? And then beginning the seizures from that list?

Uniforms for the women's army have been chosen, and it is a relief to know that they will be standardized so that no lady will refuse to turn out on the ground some other member of the outfit looks smarter.

MYSTERY

I'm full of curiosity,
Which nothing ever throttles,
Why women think, for charm, they need
So many jars and bottles.
—PIER.

All work on theaters and ball parks must be stopped, it is announced by the WPB. Skinny O'Day, captain of the grammar school nine, says he hopes it doesn't mean that his team can't complete that new backstop made of rusty wire.

Add similes: He was as exhausted as a man who just cut his lawn with a power mower.

GANGWAY

Elmer Twitchell is all upset over a rumor he just heard in connection with the ban on cuffs on men's trousers. He hears that Mr. Henderson may order the seizure of all men's pants this summer if the situation gets worse.

A German U-boat commander, judging from his radio message, is worried because American girls can sit on bathing beaches. Is it possible that Schicklegruber is to declare war on Miss America?

As we understand it Washington is now pessimistic because of all the optimism.

Patriot No. 345: The fellow who, reading that Uncle Sam must ban cuffs on trousers to conserve cloth, goes down and orders six new suits before the cuff order takes effect.

* * *

Wooden tires have been successfully used in St. Louis. But it must seem funny to call up a carpenter to fix a flat.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

EVERY kind of cotton goods from dainty chintz to bold plaid gingham is being used for bedspreads. Most of these materials are about 36 inches wide and you will need 11½ yards for a bed 54 inches wide. See diagrams for cutting dimensions.

Cut the center portions first; then the 18-inch side sections for the pillow cover; then the 10-inch strips for the pillow cover and spread. This leaves a 26-inch-wide strip for the side ruffles of the spread. If you make your own seam welting, cover cord with bias strips basted, as at A, and stitched with the cording foot, as at B.

NOTE: This bedspread is from BOOK 1 of the series of booklets which Mrs. Spears has prepared for our readers. This book also gives step-by-step directions for making slip covers, dressing table skirts and 12 different styles of curtains including a simple rigging for draw curtains. If you're concerned about what sort of gift to send a friend or relative in one of Uncle Sam's branches of the services, your worries are over. If he smokes a pipe or rolls-his-own, the answer is a pound of tobacco. Numerous surveys made among soldiers, sailors, marines, and Coast Guardsmen show that tobacco ranks first on his gift list. Local tobacco dealers are featuring Prince Albert in the pound can for service men. Prince Albert, the world's largest-selling smoking tobacco, is a big favorite among many men in the service. —Adv.

Sentinels of Health
Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.
When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.
Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.
The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

minutes of the last meeting
read and approved as read.
ervisor Klipping is appointed a ttee to investigate and cause to be made in D. D. No. 36-2
D. No. 46-3.

On motion and second the Class B beer bond and application of Frank Nemetz are approved.

On motion and second the bond of Harry Rehm, Contractor, is approved.

On motion by Supervisor Klipping and second by Supervisor Eckels, F A. Chisel is appointed special deputy sheriff to act as dog catcher for Hancock County, Iowa, for the year 1942

This being the 22nd day of June, 1942, a date heretofore set for an adjourned meeting of the County Board of Review, the hour for the hearing on certain changes in the valuation of personal property as fixed by the County Board of Review at their regular meeting on June 8, 1942, the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County did proceed to organize as a County Board of Review as commanded by law and did hear the objections to said proposed changes.

After due consideration of the proposed changes and the objections the Board does find the proposed changes just and equitable except the proposed increase in cows in Erin Township, which increase is hereby cancelled.

Be it therefore resolved by the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Iowa, acting as a County Board of Review, that the proposed changes on personal property as set out in a resolution passed by this Board on June 8, 1942, shall be the valuation for the year 1942, except the valuation of cows in Erin Township, which shall be as reported by the Assessor.

The foregoing resolution was offered and read by Supervisor Eckels, who moved its adoption, was seconded by Supervisor Klipping, whereupon the Chairman placed the motion of its adoption and upon roll call the vote thereon is G. E. Klipping, F J Schoun and Penn Eckels, Aye Nays, None.

RETAILERS MUST FILE PRICE LIST BEFORE JULY 1

"July 1st is the dead line for all Retailers to file statements showing their maximum prices for each cost-of-living commodity offered for sale by them," said Robert Adams, State Director of the Office of Price Administration

The General Maximum Price Regulation issued by the Office of Price Administration under authority granted by the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942, provides that every person offering to sell cost-of-living commodities at retail shall file with the appropriate Local War, Price and Rationing Board a statement showing his maximum price for each such commodity, together with an appropriate description or indentification of it

The various Local War, Price and Rationing Boards throughout the State are being supplied with copies of Bulletin No 2 which sets out in detail the cots-of-living commodities and describes the manner of preparation and filing of these reports required by law.

"All retailers," said Mr Adams, "who have not already filed their statements should immediately get in touch with their Local War, Price and Rationing Board and file said statements on or before July 1st The law provides a penalty if this is not done."

From now to the end of next year, the nation will need about 15½ million shearling pelts to make warm suits for our aviators.

Through the Commodity Credit Corporation, steel bins are being moved from Iowa and Illinois to the major wheat states to help provide storage for this year's crop.

Fruit Plate Enhances the Bride's First Dinner
(See Recipes Below)

Cooking for Two

ow that the honeymoon is over, serious business of housekeeping ins. Most brides manage well h the general cleaning routines, marketing and cooking presents e problems.

o bride need feel alarmed, how- , about cooking or marketing for two, for it is often just as much of a problem to market and feed two people as it is a dozen. To help out this year's bride, I've formud a few rules by which she can t guiding her culinary adven- s.

irst, the marketing. How, ex- does one use the food dollar? done by fifths: one-fifth of the ey should go for purchasing ts and vegetables; the next fifth milk and cheese, and the bride uld remember to provide a pint ilk for her brand new husband herself, every day, in drinking ooking. Another fifth goes for t, eggs and fish, and still an- r fifth provides the bread and als. The last fifth is used for hasing fats like butter or en- ed margarine, sugars and ac- ories.

e above yardstick will help the e plan her well-balanced meals. hasing fruits, vegetables, milk, r and cheese will be simple if follows the guide.

e wise bride will buy carefully, ning menus in advance so there be no waste and all leftovers be used in menus.

fore she markets, she makes a looks through the advertise- ts to decide where she can get most for her money. After mak- sure her list is complete, she to the grocers to do her buy- In this way she does not have make too many trips and she save her own time and that of grocer She knows there is a mum on time in wartime.

e bride also deplores waste, cially in buying meats. To aid in making out the meat list for I have made out the following:

lub steaks
ube steaks
T-Bone steak
ib steaks
ound round steak (for swiss teak) ounds pot roast
ank steak (for stuffing)
ound ground beef (for loaf) pound ground beef (for pat- es and casseroles) pound liver
arge frankfurters

hops (butterfly, loin or shoul- er)
pounds spareribs
6 slices thin Canadian bacon pound ham slice ounds fresh loin roast ounds smoked butt (boned) pound bulk sausage or links pound bacon pound tenderloin

ounds rolled rump roast
oin chops

Lynn Says:

ere are the rules by which to stitute honey and corn syrup sugar in your recipes.

using honey, substitute ¾ to up of honey for each cup of nulated sugar, but reduce the id in the recipe ¼ cup for cup of honey used.

using corn syrup, substitute ups of corn syrup for each of granulated sugar. Reduce liquid in the recipe by one- th.

you wish to substitute corn up for only part of the sugar may substitute 1 cup of corn up for each ½ cup of sugar reduce your liquid one-eighth.

ecause of the difference in fla- s of substitute products, be pared to have a slight change avor in the food you prepare them.

Fruit Plate
Cookies Beverage
Recipe Given

½ to ¾ pound steaks or cutlets
2 rib or kidney chops
1 sirloin steak
1½ pounds riblets
1 pound breast or neck meat for stews
½ pound liver

Lamb:
2 shoulder, loin, or rib chops
2 lamb patties
2½ pounds shoulder roast
Small leg roast
2 lamb shanks
1½ pounds riblets
½ pounds cut up lamb for curry or casserole

Poultry:

One broiler usually serves two people. It is very often possible to buy certain pieces of fowl, especially chicken, and you can decide how much of each piece according to your appetite. For frying, a 3-pound chicken is just about right.

A simple dish for one of the bride's first dinners is this Swedish meat loaf. It's simple as first grade spelling to make, and certain to please the brand new husband. If there is some left over, the loaf is very delicious served cold in sandwiches or sliced with potato salad:

Swedish Meat Loaf.
(Serves 2)
⅔ cup twice-ground beef
⅓ cup twice-ground pork
¼ cup grated potato
1 tablespoon grated onion
3 tablespoons milk
Salt and pepper

Mix meat thoroughly, add onion, potato, milk and salt and pepper. Blend thoroughly, and shape into loaf. Place in a buttered loaf pan and bake ¾ of an hour in a moderate (350-degree) oven. Baste at 15-minute intervals. To make gravy (after loaf has baked) take 2 tablespoons of the drippings, blend with 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, a few grains of pepper, and then mix in slowly 1 cup of milk.

Asparagus.

Take ⅔ of a pound of asparagus, clean, add 2½ cups boiling water with ¾ teaspoon salt. Boil uncovered, 15 minutes, drain, and serve with melted butter.

Fruit Plate.

Make a circle of orange slices on a large individual platter. In the center of the wreath, place a lettuce cup, fill with avocado balls, a devilled egg and watercress.

Use halved strawberries for one fruit mound at the side of the plate, raspberries and blackberries for the second berry patch, with a cluster of cherries for further variety.

Select easy-to-peel Valencia oranges for slicing purposes.

Bride's Biscuits are exquisitely simple to make if you use this recipe:

Bride's Biscuits.
(Makes 18 Biscuits)
2 cups enriched, sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 to 4 tablespoons shortening
⅔ to ¾ cup milk
2 tablespoons softened butter or margarine

Sift dry ingredients together, cut in shortening Add milk to form a soft mixture. Turn on lightly floured board and knead ½ minute. Pat out to ½ inch thickness. Spread with 1 tablespoon butter Fold over and spread top with remaining butter. Cut with a 2-inch cutter Bake on a baking sheet in a hot (450-degree) oven 10 to 12 minutes.

ALCOHOL FACTS VERSUS DRINKING PROPAGANDA

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 21:17; 23.32; Isaiah 5 20-23; Hosea 4.11; Joel 3:2, 3; Ephesians 5 18.

GOLDEN TEXT—If sinners entice thee, consent thou not.—Proverbs 1.10.

The facts are on the side of the one who opposes the liquor traffic, and they are so plentiful and so devastating that the industry does not care to face them. Their "best bet" is to use propaganda so skillfully prepared as to disarm the reader. If the propaganda is truthful, it is only because it has to be, and only in that measure.

Our lesson suggests several points in the liquor propaganda, each of which we can prove to be untrue.

I. They Say, "Enjoy Life, That's What We Are Here For" (Prov. 21: 17).

Consider the ads of the liquor trade. They carry the beautiful lady, the brilliant young man, the socially correct surroundings, riches, ease, etc. They suggest that even the grandmother in the home approves the use of intoxicants to bring comfort and pleasure to the breadwinner in the home.

What is the truth? Man is not here for pleasure; he is here to serve God. History demonstrates that the nation that lives for pleasure, especially in connection with the use of intoxicants, is doomed to extinction.

II. They Say, "Liquor Is Not Dangerous" (Prov. 23.32).

It is presented as a pleasant and harmless stimulant, when in fact it is known to science, to police and social welfare workers as a narcotic which not only upsets digestion and deranges physical processes but, most vicious of all, "affects personality by its action upon the certain specific brain area. It disturbs, confuses, slows down, and removes the restraints, the checks and balances which make a well-rounded personality. It is the highest functional level of the brain, the personality level, which is first put into eclipse by the action of alcohol" (Carson Taylor).

III. They Say, "Those Who Oppose Liquor Are Fanatics" (Isa. 5: 20, 21, 23).

The prophet answers that claim by pointing out that those who favor the use of alcohol are the ones who call evil good and good evil, etc. A little study of liquor propaganda as it appears in the advertising of the industry soon demonstrates that fact. Of late they have been trying to convince us that beer is just a soft drink for the home. Any policeman who has seen a man drunk on beer, and any social or religious worker who has seen the destruction it has wrought in the home and in society, knows that is not true.

IV. They Say, "Strong Men and Leaders Are Drinkers" (Isa. 5:22).

Sadly enough, many of our leading men do indulge in liquor, but if the truth were out, it would be known that they are less capable as leaders and weaker men for their use of it. And who has not seen a leader become a poor derelict by the alcohol route, or a strong man become a jittery mental, moral, and physical wreck in the same way.

The work of a nation in both war and peace is done by sober, steady, trustworthy men who have a "clear head," not because they use a certain whisky but because they do not use it.

V. They Say, "The Pleasure Is Worth Price" (Hosea 4:11; Joel 3:2, 3).

The wicked ones who captured Israel felt they made a good trade when they gave a boy for a harlot, or exchanged a girl for wine. The modern system of making merchandise of boys and girls is not as openly crass as that, but when you figure the cost of alcohol to our land, be sure to add in the girls who have gone into iniquity by the way of tavern hostesses and the boys who have lost everything sacred because of "booze."

Remember too that the beer makers are deliberately using this war to cultivate a taste for beer in millions of young men—their future customers—and we are letting them get away with it, right in the army camps.

VI. They Say, "Drinking and Religion Go Well Together" (Eph. 5:18).

The contrast of Paul gives that claim the direct brand of falsehood. Being drunk with wine is the exact opposite of spirituality.

Liquor interests know that if church members can be led to believe that wine at dinner, beer as a soft drink—and an occasional social cocktail—is not incompatible with religious life, they will have effectually shut the mouth of the opposition they fear the most—the church.

Let pastors and church boards deal plainly and drastically with drinking church members, and the church will profit spiritually, and and again become an effective means of stemming the tide of social iniquity which is engulfing our nation

Our Object Now

Our object now, as then, is to vindicate the principles of peace and justice in the life of the world as against selfish and autocratic power, and to set up among the really free and self-governed peoples of the world such a concert of purposes and of action as will henceforth insure the observance of those principles.—Woodrow Wilson.

Somehow Tramp Knew He Wasn't Addressing George

A tramp, coming down a country road in England, stopped a moment in meditation before a sign on which was written: "George and the Dragon." He then entered the tavern to which the sign was affixed and asked for the landlady.

"Noble lady," he began, "have you a meal and some old clothes to spare for a poor, hungry man?"

"Not for the likes of you. Now go!" she said sternly. Then, seeing he desired to get another word with her, "Well?"

"Then please, ma'am, could I speak to George!"

The War isn't fought in Fox Holes alone

IT'S fought in the mind. It's fought with a will to win. It's fought with a belief in a cause worth dying for.

That will, that belief, is known as morale.

Our enemies have had years of indoctrination. They have been conditioned to believe themselves part of a "new order" . . . to which the contribution of their lives is small but all-important. They believe themselves cogs in a vast machine.

Our soldiers do not fight that way—because they do not live that way. Theirs is the belief in the sanctity of the individual.

To maintain their morale in the American way, the USO has devoted all its time and energy since practically the beginning of conscription.

It has done this by staffing and maintaining club houses near all training camps and in our outlying possessions from Alaska to the Caribbean

Today its work is far greater than ever, its need for funds to carry on more than doubled.

The USO needs your help more than ever before!

High government and military officials—including General MacArthur—have praised the work done by the USO and recognized its importance in the war effort.

But it needs recognition from you—recognition in the way of dollars and cents. For the six national agencies which comprise the USO are publicly supported.

Now above all times, to make your dollars count, give to the USO!

Send your contribution to your local USO Committee or to National Headquarters, USO, Empire State Building, New York, N. Y.

On Saving . . . Rubber

A new Government order asks all delivery trucks using rubber tires to reduce their mileage 25% as compared to last year.

We are glad to do this, and we can do this by . . .

- BUNCHING ORDERS

Instead of rushing right out with each separate order, we will allow the orders to accumulate for one or two days, and when our truck drives out to deliver it will have a load of several orders each trip. Thus we reduce mileage and I know our customers want us to help Uncle Sam in this way.

- WE STILL HAVE MERCHANDISE

It's true that, because of priorities and government restrictions, a few items will be out of stock now and then, but we have at this time a good stock of Home Furnishings, beautiful new styles, the latest products of America's leading factories.

- SAME OLD PRICE

Klemme Girl Chosen To Represent Hancock Co. At Ames

ADALA WILLE TO REPRESENT COUNTY AT AMES SCHOOL FOR IOWA FARM YOUTH

AMES, IOWA: Adala Wille, of Klemme, has been invited by Dr. Charles E. Friley, president of Iowa State College, to attend the annual Iowa Farm Youth School at Ames, July 15th to August 22nd. The school is sponsored in cooperation with Iowa State College by Bankers Life Company of Des Moines.

Miss Wille will represent Hancock County at the school. Fifty boys and fifty girls have been selected from county 4-H groups throughout the state to attend the six-week course. Goal of the school this year is to help rural young men and women increase their skill and efficiency in order to make the maximum contribution to the needs of the fram program.

The course is taught by selected staff members of Iowa State College. Outside speakers have been chosen to speak on several pertinent topics. Classes will be held at the college throughout the week.

Courses taught will include the management of farm animals, and farm crops and farm mechanics for the boys. Girls will study food nutrition home equipment and child care Mixed classes will be held in business relationships, rural organization and first aid. Social activities for the students are scheduled. All students chosen to attend the school are active 4-H members between the ages of 17 and 21 who have completed at least three years of activity with their 4-H Clubs.

Miss Wille is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C J Wille who reside on their farm east of Klemme.

NEIGHBORS AND FRIENDS ASSIST WITH FARM WORK

Garner Leader: Neighbors and friends of Mrs. Katie DeVries, whose husband passed away a short time ago, put in the crops for her and have also been helping to plow corn and beans.

Those who helped her Thursday were Carl Swanson, Clark Lackore, Neil Smith, Dover Kramer, Emmet Hart, Curtis Greiman, Walter Henschen, Werner Schlawin, Juane Johnsen, Johnnie Anderson, Fred Radder and Wesley Alden. Verner Kramer took movies of the men at work.

★ What You Buy With WAR BONDS ★

The 75-millimeter gun is a divisional weapon used by the Artillery as an anti-tank gun. It has been replaced to some extent by the more modern "105", known as the heavier of divisional weapons. The 75-mm gun costs $12,000 and has been converted by our Ordnance into a "howitzer" twice as efficient as in the First World War.

This gun gets maximum power for minimum weight and cost, and the American people are providing the force through the purchase of War Bonds. If you do your share and invest 10 per cent of your income in War Bonds, adequate supply of this excellent gun can be assured our fighting forces. Buy War Bonds every payday.

Lt. Ray A. Jorgenson, Jr. and his bride, both of Lubbock, Texas, were the guests of honor at a patriotic dinner given by Mr and Mrs Joe Liebendorfer at their home in Hampton, Sunday evening.

Red, white and blue flowers in baskets were used for decorations. The dinner was carried out by using the red, white and blue theme

The bride of recent date, cut the wedding cake which was in red, white and blue and was topped by small flags and the figure of gold wings on top. The recently wedded couple were presented with a variety of gifts

Besides the honored couple the other guests were Mr. and Mrs. R Jorgenson, Klemme; Mr and Mrs Lyle Liebendorfer, Mason City, Mrs. Bessie Starboard and Dick Liebendorfer, Hampton.

Eldora's only grain elevator, a 44-year old structure, collapsed on June 5th, as the result of an explosion of dust particles. Eight thousand bushels of grain stored in the building is expected to bring 90% salvage value. The elevator will be rebuilt by Froning Grain Co.

NEARLY 10 TONS COLLECTED HERE UP TO MONDAY NIGHT THIS WEEK

People in Klemme and the surrounding community have done a fine job in turning in old rubber to local collectors and up to Monday night the total amonut of old rubber piled up in Klemme had hit the almost unbelievable figure of 18,865 lbs, or 9 tons and 865 lbs! That is a lot of old rubber in anybody's town.

The Standard Oil Company, with Harvey Barz, Carold Larsen and Gene Kluckhohn collecting had accounted for 10,599 pounds. The Hancock County Oil Association, with Herman Paul as collector accounted for 8,366 pounds.

Drive Extended To July 10

Uncle Sam is not satisfied with the results over the nation and so President Roosevelt has extended the drive to July 10th.

Rubber is needed badly to keep up war machines and more rubber must be salvaged.

Let's all dig around again and turn in even the tiniest scrap: old fruit jar rings, rubber gloves, old door and stair mats, kitchen sink mats, old rubbers and overshoes, old girdles and even the baby's rubber pants!

This community has done a fine job, but let's all turn in more old rubber.

VICTOR GREIMAN STATIONED AT DAYTON, OHIO

Victor Greiman, son of Mr and Mrs. Wm H. Greiman, north of Klemme, who recently graduated in civil engineering at Iowa State College at Ames, is now stationed at Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. Greiman was commissioned a Lieutenant and is now with the U. S. Army Air Corps in the materiel division.

At Iowa State College he was affiliated with Phi Kappa Phi, national scholastic fraternity, and Tau Beta Pi, scholastic fraternity for engineers while in college. He was also a member of the Guard of St. Patrick, engineering group, and Scabbard and Blade, military students' honorary society

Mr. Greiman was president of the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers

THIRTY MILLION GAME FISH STOCKED TO JULY 1

Conservation Employee Stocking Fish In The "Old Swimming Hole" With Local Spectators Giving Moral Support

Fish stocking in Iowa's inland waters during the first six months of 1942 has reached a total of more than 30 and a quarter million game fish. Stockings have been restricted to areas having sufficient food supplies, suitable water depth, and in waters suitable to the species being stocked. However, the stocking program is continuously being enlarged, and in order to provide "fishing near home," a necessity in view of the rubber situation, particular attention is being given to local waters near population centers.

It May Be 90 Degrees in the Shade— But Your Coal Bin Rates a Check-Up

Unnecessary Delay May Bring Hardships This Coming Winter

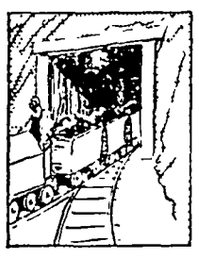
You can't say that you haven't been warned.

You can't say, when the leaves begin to fall, that you didn't have enough time to order your coal.

In another two months—at the most—it is going to be almost too late to get your coal supply. Then you won't be ready when the temperature begins to drop.

During the summer months, when homeowners formerly paid but little attention to their coal bins, there had always been a definite slump in coal production. The producers called the months the normal "off season" period.

This year, though, because of the high rate of war-time production—



despite the lack of fuel purchasing by the home and apartment owners, large stores, and other commercial centers — the mines are now working at 90 per cent of capacity

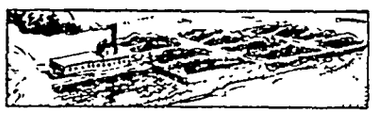
What lies ahead for those who have not purchased their coal during the off-season is easy to see. At the present time American industry has not, as yet, reached its full war-time capacity of production for Victory Fall and early winter will see the nation at this peak period.

They'll Be Out of Luck.

Then, when industry is humming its song of death for Hitler and his stooges, if Mr. Jones, or Mr. Slopolk, or Mrs Andy Tardie have not ordered their coal to keep the home fires burning, it is very probable that they are going to be out of luck They'll probably have to spend some very miserable days until the coal they order LATE arrives.

Why so?

Here's why Increased production to peak records in U. S factories is going to require more coal It stands to reason that if the mines are now working at 90 per cent of capacity (and industry has not yet reached its peak of production nor coal consumption), when the peak does arrive Uncle Sam is going to see to it that those industries get all the coal they want, as often as they want it, and no questions asked



It is true that all will have to forego some former necessities and comforts until this universal war is won. But there is little reason to take on a hardship which is doing no one —even the nation's offensive for victory—any good.

By waiting until it is practically too late to order coal, most of which is then going to the factories, the home owner is deliberately harnessing himself with hardship—besides getting in the way of the nation's wartime progress.

Like a Slow Freight.

Those who delay ordering coal now for this coming winter may be compared to a slow freight train heading towards its terminal with a fast freight right behind it. The latter is delayed from reaching its destination on schedule. Your nation's victory efforts are all being carried on that fast freight train. The dilly-dallying, late-ordering home owner is the slow freight.

But don't forget: Uncle Sam is the dispatcher on that railroad. He's a good one, too. What he's going to do is shove the slow freight on to a siding and let the fast freight come on through.

In other words, those home owners and other consumers who haven't as yet ordered their coal supplies, may have to be sidetracked later this year in favor of Uncle Sam's more important business of winning the war. Cold feet now may result in even colder pedal extremities this winter.

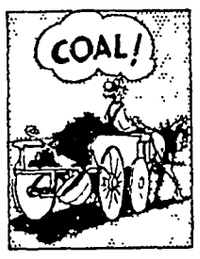
The fact that peak production of American industry will be reached during the coming winter months isn't the only reason why you should be now getting your coal

Even today the railroad yards, the river shipping docks and terminals are jammed to capacity. Railroaders will tell you, with a touch of the Paul Bunyan spirit, that the rails just can't cool off. Rivermen will tell you that no sooner do the waves from one river vessel ease off on the beach, before another swell starts rolling in. When the peak is reached in production you can imagine what the thousands of home owners who wait "until later" to order their coal are doing to add to the groaning weight of traffic on the railroads, rivers and highways.

You owe it to your own comfort this coming winter, but especially to your nation out to win the gigantic struggle with Hitler and his partners, to make necessary provisions in advance.

Get It Now.

Despite the fact that bituminous coal production is now running over 11,000,000 tons a week, there is plenty of coal for all. The idea is to get it when it is now readily available.



During 1942, from 550 million tons to 570 million tons of bituminous coal, and 60 million tons of anthracite coal are required. The smaller portion of this amount is for home consumption.

Even if you have already ordered your coal, or intend getting it in during the next two weeks at the latest, you have not done your full bit to insure warmth for your home, or final victory for your country.

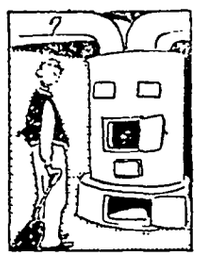
Check Heating System.

This is the time of the year—if ever—to see to it that the home's heating system is cleaned, inspected, and repaired if necessary.

Neglect now, during the summer months, can damage your home heating apparatus more than a winter season of hard activity

Lack of ventilation in the basement, high humidity, condensation, or corrosion can soon play havoc with a heating plant. More than often it does, as shown by the short life of most smoke pipes which last only two or three years

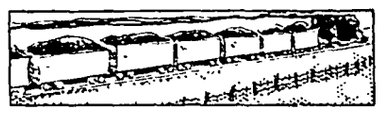
Improper operation, lack of maintenance, excessive stack losses, faulty distribution or circulation, overheating, infiltration, and needless heat losses waste 20 per cent of the fuel used in the average home. With the country at war, with extraordinary demands on transportation facilities, such waste is intolerable



Coupled with the effect on health, lost time due to colds, absenteeism, etc., such neglect of proper maintenance and operation of the heating system becomes almost criminal

Just as you check over your automobile periodically, or have some one do it, so too is it a good idea to have a competent heating man inspect your furnace or boiler.

If the average household gave its heating plant half the care it bestows upon the family car, the national fuel bill would be reduced many millions a year



Coal mining is one of the nation's major industries

The last available reports on the amount of coal mined show that over 51,887,885 tons of coal were prepared for consumption.

Chief soft coal producing states are Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois, and Kentucky. Anthracite (hard) coal is produced principally in Pennsylvania, around Wilkes-Barre and Scranton.

Coal Exports.

Coal exports amount to a sizeable figure, too. In 1940 (latest data available) over 16,456,928 tons were exported. The majority of the anthracite exported went to Canada.

Coke production, a coal by-product, also assumed gigantic proportions. Data shows that over 273,832,410 tons were produced in 1940. The gas from coke production is also used for fuel purposes.

Employment in the coal mining industry has declined ever since 1920. That year there were 784,621 persons employed. Ten years later (1930) there were 644,006 at work. In 1940 the number had further decreased to 543,200.

Crude Oil Production Increase.

Crude oil production in the United States, also, has steadily increased according to statistics.

In 1920 there were 442,929,000 barrels (42 gallons to a barrel) of oil drawn from the earth. Its value was $1,360,745,000. But the figures in 1940 were 1,351,847,000 barrels, valued at $1,352,000,000—a decrease in price.

The United States produced—in 1940—over half of the oil marketed. Russia was next in line with just slightly more than one-fifth of the United States total.

Oil Burner Conversion

The War Production board has acted to speed the conversion of oil-burning equipment to coal by permitting the assembly of small stokers from materials which were in manufacturers' hands on May 31.

At the same time, W. W. Timmis, chief of the plumbing and heating branch, announced the creation of an operations section which will continue an over-all study. This study of the various problems involved in the conversion of oil burners to other fuels has been under way for some time.

Fuel User's Pledge

Every home owner might well subscribe to the following:

1. To conserve heat and fuel.

2. To see that the heating plant is clean and kept clean.

3. To have the heating system inspected by a competent heating man or fuel dealer.

4. To have such repairs or alterations as are essential to efficient operation of the heating equipment made at once.

5. To do everything practical to reduce heat losses.

6. To learn how to operate the heating system properly.

7. To prevent smoke, because smoke means waste and inefficiency.

8. To avoid over, or under heating because either is dangerous to health.

9. To order fuel early, to anticipate needs, to keep a stock of fuel on hand, so as to equalize and conserve transportation and delivery facilities, and to prevent tie-ups and shortages.

U. S. LIFE DEPICTED BY OLD LIGHT FIXTURES

Two hundred years of American life are represented by nearly 100 Eighteenth and Nineteenth century lighting appliances and more than 250 samplers at a public exhibit in the Cooper Union Museum for the Arts of Decoration.

English, Mexican, French, Spanish, Dutch, German, and Italian needlecraft is displayed beside outstanding American samplers to show the variations developed in this country.

Similarly, the lighting fixtures are arranged in chronological sequence, demonstrating the transformation in design that came with changing needs and the commercial development of illuminating oils.

New pieces in Cooper Union's extensive collections of wallpapers, textiles, antique jewelry, buttons, metal work, and pottery are shown for the many visitors.

There are architectural sketches by the late Whitney Warren, internationally known architect, and designs for tiles by William Morris, English poet and craftsman for whom the Morris chair was named. A rare pair of glazed pottery figurines of Belgian origin is also included.

CUTTING NAVY TAPE

Behind Admiral King's forthright order slashing navy red tape 50 per cent and ordering more navy officers out of Washington, was an interesting comparison with the Japanese navy, conducted backstage by some of the President's advisers.

Americans, recently familiar with Japan, have reported that the Japanese navy is staffed by only about 1,000 personnel in Tokyo. In contrast, the navy department in Washington has more than 30,000—not including the navy yard.

The Japanese navy also is reported to have cut red tape and government reports to the bone and it gives widest latitude to commanders at sea. The U. S. navy also gives wide latitude to commanders in distant posts, such as Admiral Leary in New Zealand, Admiral Nimitz at Pearl Harbor But in home waters, especially in anti-submarine warfare along the East coast, insiders say the navy has suffered from a constant stream of reports and orders to and from Washington requiring a tremendous staff for the paper work alone

Now Admiral King offers promotions to officers who will decrease their Washington bureaus rather than increase them.

GASOLINE CZAR

The one-man dynamo who runs the gas rationing system of the U. S. A is a preacher's son and a former professor of economics Though one of the most harassed men in Washington, he is constantly on the verge of breaking into a broad smile.

Only 35 years old, he has gray hair about the ears, thin hair on top, works so late into the night that his wife, mother of a new-born boy, seldom sees him. "I generally make the 2 a. m. feeding," he says.

Joel Dean was born in Vermont, schooled in California, and has a doctor's degree from Harvard, where he wrote a thesis on small loans. He spent a year as European manager of a travel bureau, two years as traveling salesman for International Business Machine, and seven years as teacher and research expert

As a fellow economist, he always admired Leon Henderson, but never met him until he came to Washington less than a year ago.

To effect his own economy in gasoline, he formed a "Drive-In Club" with four other OPA officials. They take turns driving to the office from Arlington, Va, across the river.

When brickbats fly in the OPA office, Dean recalls that his father, a Congregational minister, wanted him to be a missionary on a South Sea island

"Many people," says Dean, "wish that I had fulfilled that mission."

ARMY HOUR PROGRAM

"Jamming" radio programs is one of the recognized weapons of modern warfare But it is a two-edged sword, and the war department radio branch is ready to swing on the Axis if the prize Army Hour, on Sundays, is jammed again

Jamming by manufactured static or other interference is feasible in the United States only on short-wave broadcasts. The Army Hour features short-wave talks from all over the world, made by such noted personages as Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, General MacArthur, General Wavell, and others. The most recent case of jamming was during a talk by a high ranking army officer from the Dutch island of Curacao. A piano banged loudly all the time he spoke.

Winston Churchill's latest speech, which came on the radio immediately before the army hour, was jammed by a gutteral Teutonic voice carefully observing Churchill's own pauses in an effort to escape detection.

These two cases of jamming were traced by triangulation to Axis broadcasting stations. The army proposes to retaliate if this deliberate interference doesn't stop.

WAR FLASHES

¶ If you are a business executive, and uncertain about tax deductions for advertising and pay increases, you can get "informal" advice by applying to the internal revenue bureau under a new treasury ruling.

¶ OPA agents are checking up on private airports on tips that they are bootlegging high octane gas to car drivers. High octane won't run a car by itself, but makes a very smooth-running fuel if mixed with lower grade gas.

¶ Guerrilla warfare in Russia has become so highly organized that every third guerrilla now is armed with an automatic rifle.

¶ The war department soon will break still more precedents. It will start accepting women doctors in the army medical corps. They will be assigned chiefly to the WAAC, and also for general eye, ear, nose and throat work.

¶ The army's new M-1 helmet, that comes far over the cheeks, neck and forehead and is much stronger than the old raky "tin-hat," is now being distributed to all soldiers.

Full Accounting

Admiral Nimitz pronounced Midway a partial accounting for what happened at Pearl Harbor. But Pearl Harbor was more than an attack on the American navy. It was also an attack on the American home.

The navy can settle in full as an ocean force, but the American people must settle in full as a fighting nation. The Pearl Harbor account will be settled when the last concentration camp is a public park. And when a worker in Europe has the dignity of a human being, instead of the standing of a driven slave.

It is America's duty to demand full payment. The question of our future depends on how much the enemy is made to answer for its past. The liberties won on the freezing slopes at Valley Forge were almost lost in a dirty beer cellar in Munich.

While France is bound, while Norway is in prison, and while Belgium is in chains, America will never be fully free. Our monument to Pearl Harbor must be a milestone in world progress. That can only begin to happen when all men realize that the peace cannot be kept while criminal leaders remain in power to start a war.

U. S. Beginning to Realize Value of 'Blimp Armada'

Dirigibles Found Successful in Anti-Submarine Warfare; One Man Given Credit for Stepped-Up Production.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Until two navy training "blimps" bumped into each other some days ago, most people had almost forgotten—if they ever knew—what those lazy looking, cigar-shaped airships were doing in the war.

The dirigible has been unlucky that way—its mishaps get into the papers, its achievements are forgotten. But today a prediction made in March of 1941 is being borne out and the blimp is coming into its own as a vital factor in anti-submarine warfare.

It was in March a year ago that I wandered into the Press club one afternoon and a friend beckoned me to join him at a table where he was sitting with a bronzed gentleman with a very square jaw and a mouth taut as a halyard and the look of the sea and wind in his eyes. It was Capt. C E. Rosendahl and he was saying, in less formal language:

"Believe it or not, as far as the navy is concerned, more fearful than even the swashbuckling airplane are the slinking submarine and the mine . . . our continental coastal sea lanes of nearly 5,000 miles and the approaches to many of our important seaports would be a tempting feasting ground for enemy subs . . ."

Actually that sentence was quoted from a manuscript that he had just written and had with him in his portfolio A leading weekly had just refused it because it was considered "untimely"—what nonsense to think that enemy submarines would ever reach our coastal waters! Later, in September of the same year, the article appeared but to most people the subject was still purely academic.

It is no longer academic. After one of the most determined and for a long time futile battles in the history of naval achievement, Captain Rosendahl, now in charge of the navy's lighter-than-air activities, has won his point. He got the 48 blimps he begged for and most of them are in service. Their record has been so good that there is little doubt that congress will approve the building of 72 more—and perhaps some of the big ones.

The story of Captain Rosendahl is the story of another man in our naval history who "wouldn't give up the ship."

Abiding Faith

He started that program when he found himself in mid-air, aboard one-half of the dirigible Shenandoah, the other half torn loose and hurtling to the earth. He landed his half safely. The accident that shocked the world didn't even jolt Rosendahl's faith. It ismply gave him some tips about strengthening the construction of dirigibles. Later the dirigibles Akron and the Macon were lost, and public sentiment was such that the ideas of dirigibles as practical craft was shelved. There was a renewed interest when the Hindenburg made its successful flights from Germany but when its hydrogen-filled bag exploded a damper was cast on efforts to build an American lighter-than-air fleet. Experts knew that what happened to the Hindenburg could never happen to an American dirigible because America had what Germany didn't have—plenty of non-explosive helium gas.

But Captain Rosendahl kept everlasting at it. Too late to help combat the submarine menace when it struck he had managed at least to start his program. Now it is well under way and he is one of the busiest men in Washington. He won't leave his office for lunch to go farther than the navy cafeteria in the same building. He works Saturdays and Sundays and merely talks wistfully about "getting in some golf."

I visited him in his sacrosanct domain where I hardly dared look at the maps on the walls for fear I would sneak a military secret.

"An observer in an airplane," said Captain Rosendahl, "has to go at such speed that if he turns his head for a moment he may miss an object below him. The blimp can hover and carefully observe air bubbles, oil slicks, and the tell-tale periscope 'feather' in the wake of an enemy submarine. When the blimp approaches a sub it gives it a burst of machine gun fire, drops bombs or depth charges, then throttles down, flies low and keeps the sub under observation until the destroyers or planes which it has summoned appear. In World War I, Allied blimps spotted 49 submarines and dropped bombs on 27. European waters are now covered with too many enemy planes for a blimp to survive. But the absence of enemy planes along our coasts, our unbounded monopoly of non-inflammable helium gas, our geographical situation make the blimp an ideal weapon for American defense."

Blimp Capabilities

As a warship, the dirigible's proponents say, it can be an effective aircraft carrier

A rigid airship can carry ten attack bombers and has a range of 10,000 miles without re-fueling Its planes would not need the heavy landing gear required of planes that land on the ground and therefore their speed could be greatly increased. Furthermore they could be launched at high speed for the airship itself has a top speed of 84 nautical miles per hour

In answer to the charge of vulnerability, the airship's friends say that surface air-carriers are highly vulnerable, too (Japan found that out at Midway) That the airship is vulnerable to only one enemy weapon—planes. The surface carrier can be attacked by the guns of other ships and submarines as well as planes. The airship keeps out of range of gun fire. And the loss of an airship carrier would not be as costly in money, replacement time or personnel as a surface carrier

In peacetime, with America's monopoly of non-explosive helium gas to carry it, the dirigible could do all that the Germans proved could be done with the successful flights of the Hindenburg—and more

Captain Rosendahl has a light in his eye when he talks about that

Amphibious America

America is going amphibious

That sounds professorial. It is really just a natural deduction of what happened at Midway. A deduction that I made in the light of a conversation I had before the battle of Midway with a wind-tanned, salt bitten sailor-man with a lot of stripes on his sleeve. He was kin of the men who made the Yankee clipper queen of the seas, weather-beaten as a piece of driftwood, mellow as old port.

Here is the way he sized up the war in the Pacific, as he saw it before Midway through the calm eyes of experience, tempered by the proofing of memories before a crackling fire that warmed his snug harbor and in whose dancing shadows he reread a long life with his face bared against salt spray.

"As I see it," he said, "our navy has nothing to be ashamed of."

He had read, he said, the books about naval warfare, most of them He reeled off the titles I couldn't follow. But, he said, none of them ever talked about airplanes. And there was very little about submarines. And not much about landing parties, when soldiers on the sea, leave their ships under war conditions and become land fighters—amphibians. This the Japs worked to perfection in their fight on Singapore. The Japs have written several new chapters for the war books.

"I don't know where they learned what they did Some of our fellows preached it. Nobody listened.

"You don't always have to be bigger and stronger than the other fellow," he said, "but you've got to know what he's going to do next. As I read the reports and the newspaper accounts, the Japs had eyes that we didn't. They had planes that we didn't. They knew what we were going to do. What we wanted to do.

"In the battle of the Macassar straits they didn't know, and we licked 'em. And when the history of this war is written you'll find out that there would have been a lot more Macassar straits if the Japs hadn't learned what we were doing before we did it. You'll find that more than once, when they did find out, they ran away."

At Midway, we "found out" and they had to run away.

The United States marine corps has a word for its parachutists. It calls them "paramarines." The men are armed with knives, pistols and sacks of hand grenades.

During World War I, airplane engines had to be overhauled every 50 hours. Today, because their vital parts are machined to within a few ten-thousandths of an inch, they can go 600 hours without repair.

Transportation Pools Requested

Program Planned Has Vital Double Purpose

The Office of Defense Transportation and the United States department of agriculture asked farmers throughout the country to co-operate in a comprehensive program for conservation and more efficient use of farm trucks and automobiles.

Because of the rubber shortage, the limited supply of new vehicles and the increasing scarcity of repair parts, farmers are urged to use their trucks and cars as little as possible.

The two government agencies recommended that farmers not only eliminate unnecessary driving but also form transportation pools both for hauling their produce to market and for transporting needed supplies to the farms

Program's Double Aim.

The program has the double aim of conserving vital equipment and assuring a continuous flow of farm commodities to market

In a letter to state and county war boards urging the conservation of farm transportation facilities, Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard said: "The department is glad to co-operate in this program to the fullest extent, realizing that attainment of agricultural production goals will be meaningless unless there is assurance that essential farm products, when ready for market, can quickly be brought to processing, storage or consumption centers"

Joseph B Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, said: "Farmers can assist in the nation-wide farm transportation program by avoiding trips to market with less than full loads wherever possible, and by making every possible effort to purchase their supplies at times when it will be possible to haul them to their farms on return trips"

Operators of farm trucks also are urged to follow the "preventive maintenance plan" of the ODT in order to prolong the life of such equipment as long as possible.

AGRICULTURE INDUSTRY
Sugar Cane

By FLORENCE WEED

Some of the attractive colorful rooms in modern homes are made with wall board of pressed sugar cane. Time was when no one knew what to do with sugar cane bagasse after the sugar was extracted. Tons were either destroyed or burned as fuel in the sugar mills. Then industrial chemists found a way to press the cane refuse into long fibers, to felt and weave it into long board sheets.

Chemists have also found that a cheap molding compound can be made from bagasse. By grinding the cane to a powder, combining it with chemicals, the substance can be molded into flat panels or floor tiles.

Backers believe that this low cost molding compound will enable the plastics industry to branch out into broader fields such as the manufacture of furniture, building materials and parts for automobiles since it can be made for less than half the cost of the cheapest synthetic compound known.

Farm Notes

The U. S. department of agriculture has announced a program for diversion of up to 5,000,000 bushels of Irish potatoes into starch and dextrine.

PRIVATE PURKEY IN LOVE AND WAR

Dear Oscar—This will have to be just a short note, my dear. I am trying to get into the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps and I got crushed in the rush. My right arm was so twisted I can hardly write. I cannot bear to think of you in the service of your country without feeling that I should also do my bit in some way. It would be fine if I got assigned to duty somewhere near enough to see you often, as I miss you terribly.

More later.

All my love,

Harriet.

Dear Harriet.—Gee but I am serprised about you and the WAAC and I don't know if I like it or not. It is a fine thing for you to do I guess but it sort of makes it look like you did not have complete confidence in me to win this war. I mean all your letters up to this time indercated you was satisfied with the part I was doing and not that you thought you should get in and make sure everything went okay

And another thing, Harriet, is this. We are having enuff trouble corresponding when only one of us is in the army and it wood be twice as confusing if we was both being switched around the globe. It is bad enuff when you ain't sure where I am but it wood be worse if you didn't know where you was neither and vicus versus.

Now, Harriet, if you have made up your mind I serpose it is no sense arguing but all I hope is that you have thought it all over carefully first. I read in the paper that the women's army is to go on hikes and be trained a good deal like any army and I am awful worried about your feet. I remember you never was much good at long walks and I cannot bear the idea of you being out in the hot sun all day with your feet hurting.

I warn you that army life is awful tough on dogs. It is bad enough on a man's dogs witch is tougher than a girl's dogs anyhow and I do not think girl's feet is meant for such work. I warn you also to ask about guard duty and k.p. detail, Harriet. Find out if you got to do these things in a woman's army. And if you have I am sure you wood want no part of it. Guard duty means you got to go out and walk between two posts sometimes all night and you won't see nobody. You will hear the darndest noises and it is two creepy for any girl, espeshully one who is as nervus as you. I remember you are a little jumpy in the dark even when I am with you and so how wood you feel all alone, Harriet?

Now k.p. duty is going around picking up all waste papers, butts, etc., all over the camp and peeling vegetables and it is no job for a girl who is not used to it and I remember your mother always said you hated to help in the kitchen at all and did not exactly like house cleaning either. Of coarse I have not got the lowdown on the women's army and do not know what you wood half to do but I am just warning you.

Sergeant Mooney says you wood have to do all that a man does in a army accept to fight. But I read in a paper that you wood be detailed most to light duties witch I hope is true on account of I have enuff to do worrying about what shape I am in without worrying about you, Harriet.

So think it all over and as the old saying goes look before you become a rolling stone. Write me a long letter.

Love,

Oscar.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

SAME BED WITH FOOT CUT DOWN-THE DOTTED SWISS VALANCE IS STITCHED TO MUSLIN BETWEEN THE SPRINGS AND MATTRESS
HAND-MADE QUILT IS NOT WELL DISPLAYED ON A BED WITH HIGH FOOT BOARD AND NO VALANCE

MOST quilts today are planned as bedspreads and have a color scheme to harmonize with other decorations. If a variety of figured scraps is used one color is generally repeated in each block to give the design unity.

The beauty of any quilt is enhanced if it is set off with a valance around the bed The bed in the sketch had no particular tradition and the footboard was much too high to display the quilt to advantage. What a difference in the effect when the board was cut down and the crisp frills of dotted Swiss were added! Surely, any quilt worth piecing is worth this extra touch.

NOTE: If you have a metal bed that you would like to modernize you will find sketches and directions in Mrs Spears' Book 3 There are eight of these booklets of 32 pages of things to make from odds and ends which accumulate around the house, or from inexpensive new materials. Copies are 10 cents each and with an order for three (No 1 to 8) you will receive a set of three different quilt block patterns including the Whirl Wind illustrated herewith. Send order to.

PRICE SITUATION FAVORS FAMRERS SAYS SOTH

Purchasing Power First Half 1942 Was 110 Per Cent Of 1910-14

If prices farmers pay are maintained at the level of the first half of 1942 Iowa farmers will be in a distinctly favorable position under the national program to control inflation believes Lauren K Soth extension agricultural economist at Iowa State College

Soth points out that during the first half of the year purchasing power of Iowa farm products averaged 110 percent of the 1910 to '14 level, which is the base period for "parity" But the farm price situation under the government's price control program is even better than it appears from this figure Prices of many farm products are not restricted to early 1942 leels but may continue to rise until they reach 10 percent above parity or one of the other minimums set for farm products in the Price Control Act

Farm Prices Up

Of the important Iowa products only hogs and beef have been affected so far They have been affected indirectly by ceilings on the wholesale pork and beef prices Hogs and cattle make up an average of 60 percent of Iowa's cash income Prices of products which constitute the other 40 percent may continue to go up

Though prices farmers pay are frozen at a low level in comparison with prices they receive, that will not help farmers buy goods that are scarce or unavailable, Mr. Soth points out Regardless of what happens to prices, farm families, are going to do without many of the things they want to buy The war production program is reducing supplies of civilian goods, and nothing that is done about prices will change that However, farmers will be in an advantageous position to buy those few goods that are available, to pay off debts and pile up savings.

Reduce Spending

Freezing prices at the March, '42 level is not as absolute as it may sound The over-all price ceiling is only part of the general anti-inflation program It merely represents the goal of the other measures to hold prices in check, the hoped-for result of the national 7-point program The other six points are designed to reduce consumer spending power so as to make price ceilings work. So far these other six points are largely in the planning stage But even if they are carried out with speed and vigor, there will be some price changes, Soth believes.

STRAWBERRY PATCH SHOULD BE MOWED NOW

The strawberry season has passed. Now is a good time to use a scythe or mowing machine to cut off the leaves over the patch Do not cut too close to the crowns Allow the leaves to dry for a short time, then rake them and the old mulch from the patch The litter should be burned as a sanitary measure. Cultivate between the rows of plants to encourage development of new plants Old patches with no rows can be renovated by reestablishing the row but if the patch is more than 3 year sold it is best to set a new patch next spring

SHOCKING!

A dead bull snake was responsible for the black-out, dim-out or general eccentricities of the electric service in Leon recently. Citizens wondered what caused the service to go off and on duty intermittently on a windless, stormless day, but linemen for the utilities company after a lengthy search, located the trouble west of the city where a huge bull snake was dropped over high-tension wires carrying 33 000 volts Every time an end of the reptile struck a guy wire it shorted the circuit. How the snake came to be so high in the air is a mystery that has not yet been fathomed

WAR EFFORT

After 18 years of sheep shearing James Misel, working on the flock of Fred Webert north of Luzerne recently encountered a sheep that really produced something to talk about in poundage of wool A ewe gave up 27 pounds of wool which brought $11 34 in the nearest market.

SEVEN UP!

The Patten brothers, all seven of them, were among the sailor survivors of the U S aircraft carrier Lexington following the sinking of that vessel in the battle of the Coral Sea The Patten brothers formerly were farmers near Lake City Iowa, and later operated a sawmill near Odebolt Their names are Floyd, Jr, Bruce, Ray, Myrne, Allen, Marvin and Clarence

CHURCHES REMEMBERED

Nine churches, Methodist, Baptist and Evangelical, of Bremer county were beneficiaries in the will of the late Mrs. Fannie Ingersoll to be filed for probate July 7 One church of each denomination in Waverly was left $1000 and other churches in the county $500 00 each.

WHOPPER RATION

The Grundy county rationing board issued to a single customer a certificate permitting the allowance in one order of 97,500 pounds of sugar or about as much sugar to be rationed to all the rest of the people of the county for a period of three and a half months. The fortunate customer is the Reinbeck Canning Co., and its quota represents its requirements for this season's pack.

RARE HUNTING

Taking a pot-shot at what he thought was a large hawk on the wing, Sam Phillips of Merrill recently brought down something that was entirely different than he expected Unable to identify the bird, he brought it to town where local authorities stated it to be a turkey buzzard (American Vulture,) seldom seen in North It had a wing spread of five and a half feet.

A deficiency of available phosphates in the soil will delay ripening of tomatoes as well as reduce the yield Most soils are deficient in available phosphorus, and tomatoes will respond to an application of superphosphate to the soil

Two pests that cause gardeners a great deal of worry are the white grub and the cutworm If they do show up there is really very little that can be done about it But for cutworms there is a fairly effective method of control. Mix ½ a pound of paris green with 1 pound of bran and 1 quart of blackstrap molasses and add 2 to 4 quarts of water or enough to make a moist crumbly bait Spread this thinly or in small piles under boards in the garden in the evening If broadcast thinly there is no danger of any animal besides a cutworm getting the bait, but remember this bait is poisonous and must be handled accordingly

Sodium chlorate (Atlacide) is the main chemical that is being recommended by agricultural colleges for killing most perennial weeds Other products for this use are being developed however Fall is the accepted weed-killing period

Game conservation is at least 700 years old According to Marco Polo, Ghengis Khan directed game management practices, including feeding and regulation of hunting, in the thirteenth century

Allowing the old stock to run with the baby chicks is like sowing weed seed in a clean field The poultry diseases and parasites are soon spread over the farmstead

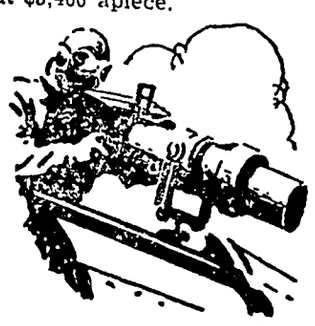
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Aerial Camera for use on Scout and Observation and Reconnaisance planes is essential to both the Army and Navy air forces in planning battle formations and in obtaining information on enemy fortifications and movements. They look something like a cannon, and cost about $3,400 apiece.



The aerial cameraman can plot wide territories in bold relief so that Army or Navy Intelligence can make accurate measurements of enemy territory. We need many of these cameras so necessary to the air arms of the Army and Navy. You can help buy them with your purchases of War Bonds. Invest at least ten percent of your income every pay day, and help your county go over its War Bond Quota.

Magic for Your Meals—Berry Jams
(See Recipes Below.)

Time for Jam

With the arrival of the fruit and jelly season, you homemakers will want to make the most of these garden products for winter use. This year it is doubly important for you to can fruits and jellies wisely, as this will help you not only in conserving the nation's resources, but also assure you of delicious accompaniments to your meals during cooler weather.

Since sugar is used in canning not only as a sweetener, but as a preservative, the government will allot five pounds of sugar per person, in addition to what you receive in your ration, so that you will have sugar for canning.

Ripe Raspberry Jam.
(Makes 10 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
6 cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, crush thoroughly or grind about 2 quarts fully ripe raspberries. Remove some of seeds by sieving part of pulp, if desired.

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a 5- to 6-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, ¼ teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Jam takes slightly less sugar than jelly, and you will work an economy by making use of the fruit in addition to the saving on sugar:

Ripe Blackberry Jam.
(Makes 11 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
6½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, grind or crush thoroughly about 2 quarts fully ripe blackberries (not black caps). Sieve about ½ of ground or crushed pulp. (For Spiced Blackberry Jam, add ⅛ to ½ teaspoon each cloves, cinnamon, and allspice, or any desired combination of spices.)

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a 5- to 6-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire, adding powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, ¼ teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Your Jam Shelf
Ripe Raspberry Jam
Ripe Blackberry Jam
Sliced Strawberry Jam
Spiced Ripe Peach Jam
Cherry Relish
Recipe Given

Sliced Strawberry Jam.
(Makes 10 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, cut about 2 quarts fully ripe strawberries in halves lengthwise; cut large berries in quarters. Measure sugar and prepared fruit, solidly packed, into large kettle; mix well. Bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes.

Remove from fire and stir in bottle fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Spiced Ripe Peach Jam
With Brazil Nuts
(Makes 11 6-ounce glasses)
3½ cups prepared fruit
¼ cup lemon juice
7½ cups sugar
1 cup sliced Brazil nuts
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, peel about 2½ pounds fully ripe peaches; pit and grind or chop very fine. Add ½ to 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves and all-spice, or any desired combination of spices, to ground or chopped peaches. Squeeze juice from 2 medium lemons. Slice Brazil nuts very thin. Add to fruit mixture.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, filling up last cup with water, if necessary. Add lemon juice and mix well.

Bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once.

Relishes are excellent to serve with meats of any kind for they give the meal added zest. Here's a recipe for a real sugar-saver:

Cherry Relish.
2 cups pitted cherries
1 cup seedless raisins
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ cup honey
½ cup vinegar
¾ cup pecan nutmeats

Mix all the ingredients except pecans and cook 1 hour, slowly. Add pecans and cook 3 minutes longer. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal at once.

Sugar Substitutes.

If you feel that you cannot use sugar in all of the canning recipes given here, even with your extra canning ration, here are the rules for substitutions:

If you are using a bottled fruit pectin recipe, you may substitute 2 cups light corn syrup for 2 cups of the sugar. Do not use more than 2 cups of corn syrup in any recipe, however, as this will give unsatisfactory results.

In a powdered fruit pectin recipe, you may use 1 cup light corn syrup for each cup of sugar omitted. But, do not try to use all corn syrup in the recipe instead of sugar. You may substitute corn syrup for only ½ the sugar required. If, for example, the recipe calls for 6 cups of sugar altogether, you may use 3 cups of light corn syrup, but you must also use 3 cups of sugar.

Why get hot and bothered over your cooking and household problems when you can get expert advice on them? Write, explaining your problem to Miss Lynn Chambers, Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: The status of tin available for commercial canning has at last been clarified, and now we know exactly what will be available to use by way of canned goods.

The "Big Four" in canned vegetables, peas, tomatoes, string beans and corn, plus asparagus, pears, peaches, evaporated milk and fish will be allowed unlimited amounts of tin for canning purposes.

"Secondary" products such as spinach, beets, cherries, berries, applesauce, grapefruit, sausage, luncheon meats, beef and others will continue to be canned, but they will be allowed only the same amount of tin as used in 1940, with some exceptions having more or less.

Foods packed last year will last until fall at least, and the goods packed this year will be available even before last year's are gone. There's no need to hoard.

GOD THE CREATOR

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 1 1-5, 24-31; 2.1.
GOLDEN TEXT—In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.—Genesis 1:1

What is to become of this world? That is the question on the mind and lips of everyone as they see all mankind engaged in a struggle which bids fair to wipe out everything called civilization.

In such a time it is good to remind ourselves that man did not make this world, nor is it the product of natural forces. God made it.

God, who is eternal, infinite, knowing all from the beginning, is not moved by the impulses of the moment nor staggered by the catastrophes of a day. He made the world. He made man. He had a plan for them, and still has a plan which in due season He will work out for His own glory.

I. God Made the Heavens and Earth (vv. 1-5, 24-25).

The plain biblical account of creation—"In the beginning God"—stands as a dignified, satisfactory, intelligent explanation of the origin of things, and in bold contrast to the confusing and almost unbelievable theories of men.

The best of scientists admit that they know nothing of the origin of things, and some even confess that they never will know. The answer to the query with which every human philosophy opens is the affirmation with which the divine account in Genesis opens—"In the beginning God."

Space forbids full discussion of the account of creation, but a study of it will reveal its beautiful order, symmetry, and completeness. Science, when it gets beyond theories to facts, finds them confirmed by Scripture. Please do not reverse that and speak of science confirming Scripture. If my watch does not agree with the time of the stars, it is the watch that must be reset.

II. God Made Man in His Own Image (vv. 26-30).

Although man, under the control of Satan, does not give much ground for the observation, it is nevertheless true that he was made in the likeness and image of God. Because that is true, we never give up hope for him. That image, no matter how deeply defaced by sin, still may be touched by redeeming grace and restored to fellowship with God.

The likeness and image of God in man undoubtedly refers to a moral and spiritual likeness. Man is a living soul with intelligence, feeling, and will power. He is a moral being, knowing the difference between right and wrong. He is a self-conscious, personal being.

To man God gave dominion over the earth and all its potential powers. Sometimes one has been hopeful that man was making good progress in the development of the earth's resources for his own good and the glory of God. But one is almost tempted to conclude now that he has used this great God-given opportunity only for destruction and death. Only a revival of real Christianity can bring him back to his senses. Let us pray and work for it.

Observe that the family was established as the center of man's life on earth, as God gave him a "help meet unto him." Woman was taken "not out of man's head that she should rule over him; nor out of his feet to be trampled upon; but out of his side to be equal with him, under his arm to be protected by him, and near his heart to be loved by him" (Matthew Henry).

The decay of family life and the substitution of social or civic units as the basis of life have led to disastrous results. Not only do we need a revival of religion, we also need a revival of the home life of the nation.

III. God's Creation Was Complete and Good (1:31; 2:1).

When men do recognize the hand of God in creation they all too often seem to feel that what He made was very limited and defective. It would almost seem that God ought to be grateful that man has been so clever about perfecting His work, developing it and making it useful. As a matter of fact, God who had all knowledge and whose standards are higher than man's standards could possibly be, looked over His creation and "behold, it was very good" (v. 31). It was a "finished" job (2:1).

Man has destroyed much of its beauty. Sin came in and marred the whole creation. What man's inventive cleverness has developed of the possibilities of this world is only a minute fraction of what is yet available. Instead of boasting, man might well be ashamed of the pathetic slowness with which he has "thought God's thoughts after Him."

Instead of fighting and destroying, he ought to give his energies to building, developing, and above all, to loving God with all his heart and his neighbor as himself (Matt. 22: 37-40). This is God's first and great commandment to you and to me.

Around the House

Wen the corrugations on the wheels of your lawn mower wear out, take a rattail file and renew them. This will give your mower better traction.

* * *

Red raspberry leaves are said by some to be an excellent substitute for tea, now that tea is scarce. They are to be picked and then dried before using.

* * *

When frying in deep fat use a heavy aluminum kettle. It holds the heat and does not tip over easily. Use a wire basket to transfer food from and to hot fat.

Lemon juice sprinkled over alligator pear salad just before it is served improves the flavor.

All salads should be served cold and free from water. Wash lettuce well and keep in refrigerator until you are ready to make the salad.

Spread a thin layer of orange marmalade or apricot jam on baked pancakes. Roll quickly and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar. Serve with pineapple syrup for breakfast or luncheon.

Fine grained sandpaper will remove surface spots from white felt hats and will raise the nap on felt hats that have been caught in the rain. For white straw or fabric hats, try art gum.

The stock left from spinach should be saved and used in vegetable soup. It contains valuable food properties.

What's a musical comedy got to do with winning a war?

PLENTY! We're building an army of men—not machines. And men have minds. And minds need freshening . . . change . . . relaxation.

So one of the biggest undertakings of the USO is its sponsoring of free entertainment, through the cooperation of the movie and theatrical industries, at army camps, naval bases—wherever the fighting men of the USA go to train or dig in.

USO Camp Shows, Inc. is actually the biggest single theatrical enterprise the world has ever seen. It books 264 shows for the boys every week, which play to an average nightly attendance of 50,000.

It contacts movie stars, theatrical headliners, big name bands and their leaders. It routes all these . . . plans their itinerary . . . arranges the most convenient times when soldiers and sailors can take time out to sit and be entertained.

For it realizes that the one great advantage of the American fighting man is his ability to think for himself, to make the most of any situation, to fight as a liberty-loving individual.

And this is one of his great differences from our enemy.

To help carry on the all-important work of maintaining the morale of our fighting forces, the USO needs your help . . . it needs your contribution.

Your dollar has many demands on it this year. Many of these demands must be met—others deserve to be met. And among these latter, the plea of the USO for whatever sum you can contribute merits your earnest consideration.

For we have a war to win, and the USO is directly concerned with the men who must—and will—win it.

Dig deep—for the men who are digging in!

Send your contribution to your local chairman or to USO, Empire State Building, New York.

The Giant Killer

JUST SUPPOSE that you were in New York City and needed a fill of gasoline before you could start for home with your automobile.

HAVING NO GAS rationing card you could not buy at a filling station

POSSIBLY YOU COULD find a "Gasoline Bootlegger" who would sell you enough to get out of town for $1 00 per gallon

THE SUPPLY OF gasoline is short in the eastern states, and the demand is heavy, hence the willingness of a man, in a pinch, to pay the high price.

THIS LAW of SUPPLY and DEMAND is not a man-made law, it is a Natural Law, and it would just as soon break a man financially as to make him fabulously rich. It is indeed a cruel law.

THIS LAW operates in Klemme too, all the time. It never quits We have seen fat hogs sell at 3c per pound, and good sound corn sell at 10c per bushel, all because the demand was light and the crop large.

BUT TODAY, we must feed England and Russia The demand is extra heavy and Hogs, Cattle and Sheep are selling at better than 14c per pound

THIS LAW of SUPPLY and DEMAND is too big of a GIANT for any small group of men to tackle and lick, as this natuarl law operates where ever business is done the world over.

HOWEVER, OUR capable and resourceful President Franklin D Roosevelt has the "guts" to take on this giant round for round

ROOSEVELT WON the first round some years ago, when he scaled the corn.

THEN HE REGULATED production of Hogs, Corn and other crops on our farms so as to offset the depression brought on by the Giant of Supply and Demand

NOW THIS same GIANT threatens us with "Boomtimes" and "Inflation," and our President boldly takes him on for another round.

OUR PRESIDENT curtailed the use of steel, copper and aluminum for civilian use. Then he rationed various items such as Sugar, Gasoline and Tires. He "froze" retail prices at the March 1942 levels. And the President is in the ring right now trading blows with the Giant

BUT, TO REALLY "Knock Out" the Giant so that he takes the "Count" for the duration, the President asks something from our Retail Customers, namely:

Customers should pay up all old and past due store debts at this time Every one should buy War Bonds for 10% of their income. And to pay off as much as you can on any Mortgage debt you may be owing.

WE CAN STILL SELL Furniture and Rugs on time payments at this Store, but our orders are to collect in all old store debts from last year or older at this time.

UNLESS YOU CUSTOMERS co-operate with your Store in paying store debts, the Government may put all Stores on a Cash Basis.

WE HOPE THAT you will all pay up, so that selling "for cash only" will not be necessary. Because, after all, Credit Selling is a great convenience for our customers.

Credit Regulation

Effective May 6, 1942, The Board of Governors of The Federal Reserve Bank amended the restriction on CREDIT BUYING to include OPEN ACCOUNTS.

Under the above ruling ALL OPEN ACCOUNTS are DUE IN THIRTY DAYS, and if not paid in FULL by the tenth of the second month following the month in which goods were purchased NO MORE CREDIT can be allowed UNTIL THE UNPAID BALANCE IS PAID IN FULL.

Also, at the Annual Meeting of The Klemme Cooperative Grain Company held last month, the Credit Problem was taken under consideration, and it was VOTED BY THE MEMBERS that any CREDIT extended must be LIMITED TO THIRTY DAYS.

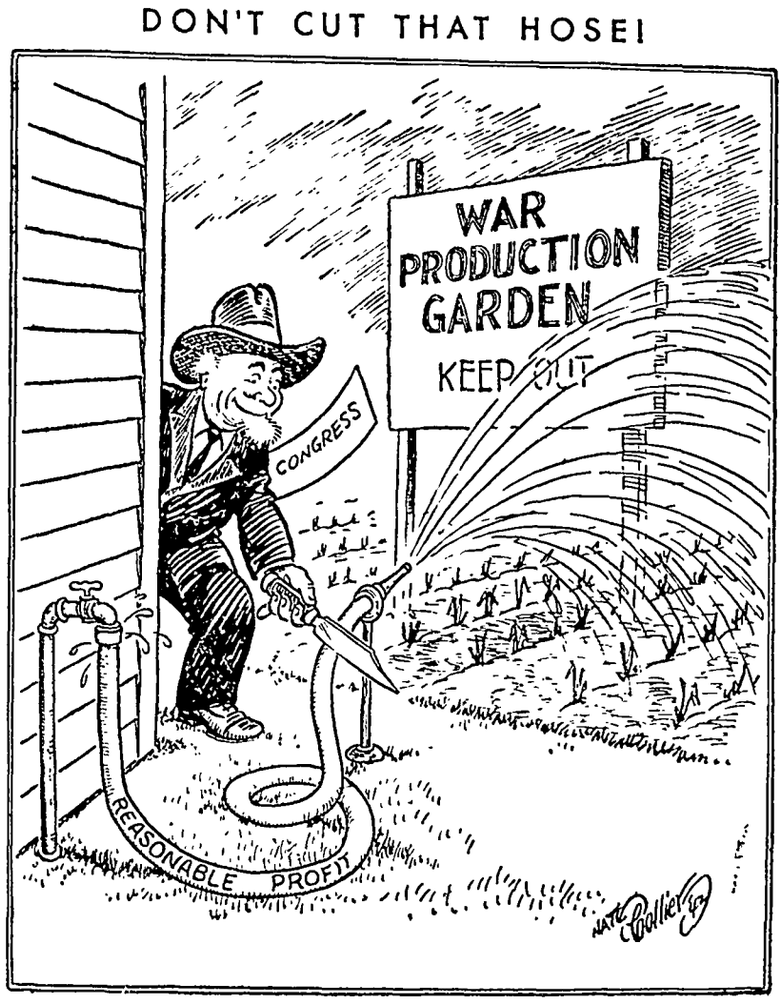
DON'T CUT THAT HOSE!



Goodell Was In Path Of Bad Storm Sunday Evening

STORM DID A LOT OF DAMAGE IN GOODELL AND VICINITY EARLY SUNDAY EVENING

School House Damaged, One Farm Leveled By Strong Wind

A cyclonic wind which started north of Goodell Sunday evening at 7 00 o'clock, caused extensive damage as it swept through Goodell and on south to the north edge of Belmond

The flagpole and porch were blown off the school house in Goodell and a barn at the J H. Morlum farm was leveled by the strong wind

Many large trees in Goodell in the path of the storm were torn up by the roots and windows in all parts of town were shattered

Workmen were called out to clear the streets blocked by fallen trees

The twister cut a path a half mile wide and a mile long in the north part of Belmond, wrecking several old barns, felling trees and damaging house roofs and porches.

Electric and telephone service was off until Monday morning.

VIC SCHOENWETTER FARM DAMAGED BY STORM

The farm home of Vic Schoenwetter west of Klemme, was in the path of a severe wind storm Sunday evening that caused a lot of damage around Goodell and Belmond.

At the Schoenwetter farm the barn roof was blown off and the building twisted and damaged and the windmill was blown down.

Fields of oats in that vicinity were flattened in places and some of the oats was twisted in such a way that it looked almost like the grain had been shocked.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR BIG ANNUAL PICNIC FOR ELL FARMERS

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR HENRY HENSCHEN OF GARNER

Had Been A Resident Of Garner Since Moving There In 1878

Henry Henschen, 83, pioneer resident of Garner and community, died at his home there Saturday.

Henry Henschen was born in Philadelphia, Pa., and at an early age moved with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Henschen, to Warren county, Missouri. In 1878 the Henschen family moved to the Garner community and Mr Henschen had lived there continuously since.

In 1885 Mr. Henschen was united in marriage to Miss Meta Gorath. Surviving are his wife; a son Earl of Garner; a brother Lewis also of Garner; and two half-brothers, Fred of Klemme, and Julius of Corwith.

Mr. Henschen was a mason by trade and for many years was in partnership with his son, Earl. They specialized in building cement side walks.

Funeral services were in charge of Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch, pastor of the Klemme Reformed Church, and were held in the Zion Reformed Church in Garner at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Interment was in the Concord Cemetery south of Garner.

LOCAL FARMER REPORTS SEEING DEER IN FIELD

GOVERNMENT LOOSENS UP ON SUGAR RATIONING

Each Person To Be Given 2 More Pounds Every Six Weeks

WASHINGTON: A permanent bonus of a pound of sugar a person every three weeks was predicted Saturday by rationing officials who disclosed that supplies for the next six months should be at normal levels.

The bonus already has been declared for the initial six weeks period beginning July 10, giving each person two pounds of sugar in addition to the regular dole of a half lb. a week.

The sugar rationing program had been under fire from many quarters on charges that warehouses were bulging with excess stocks.

Although the office of price administration denied that the nation's supply was as high as normal, due to decreases in holdings by wholesalers and retaleirs, one official said imports from Hawaii and the Caribbean were about normal despite the shipping situation. The bonus, he said, might even be increased to a pound a week if deliveries keep up at the rate of the past few months.

After conferring with shipping officials, the war production board estimated that about 50 pounds of sugar would be available for each person during the coming six months. This would be about the normal peacetime consumption.

Despite this possibility of near-normal sugar sales, OPA spokesmen were certain there would be no abandonment of rationing. The hazards of the shipping situation make it imperative, they said, to keep the rationing machinery in operation.

The bonus already decided on will be distributed between July 10 and Augu. 22, in return for ration stamp No. 7. It will mean distribution of some 200,000 tons of sugar, and besides giving an additional supply to housewives it will allow restaurants, hospitals and other institutional customers to get one-third more than at the present time. Industrial users may step up their consumption from 50 per cent of their 1941 purchases to 80 per cent.

TRAPPING IS BIG BUSINESS IN IOWA

A Portion Of The More Than 250,000 Muskrat Skins Taken In Iowa During The 1941-42 Trapping Season

Figures recently compiled show Iowa trappers were paid $903,874.09 by fur buyers for 495,124 raw furs trapped during the 1941-42 trapping season. Muskrat leads the parade of furs both in total number and total value of pelts taken, with 262,007 skins bringing trappers $345,849.24, an average value of $1.32 each. Mink, first in individual pelt value, averaged $6.75 and brought $227,137.50 for 33,650 skins. Skunks were third in total value, followed in order by raccoon, civets, and red fox. Opossums were low pay among eleven listed legal fur-bearers, with an average value of only 27 cents each.

Spirit of First 4th Will Give New Note to Independence Day

Fourth of July Celebration to Be Worldwide in Scope This Year

By CHARLES A. SINGLER

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

"You write it," said John Adams to Thomas Jefferson, "for you wield a pen ten times more eloquent than my own."

And Thomas Jefferson wrote it.

That was 166 years ago. But today the Declaration of Independence gleams among the literary jewels of the world through the sheer beauty of its phrasing and the human dignity for which it stands.

Thomas Jefferson at that time, in the year of grace, 1776, was a young man of 33, known for his clarity of expression and ability as a writer How well he wrote all the world now knows.

In that hall in Philadelphia, learned and courageous men pledged "their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor" that we might be a free nation. Surely enough, the men who signed the Declaration of Independence risked their fortunes, to say nothing of their lives, for those indeed were perilous times. King George of England was not disposed to treat lightly the matter of disloyalty to the crown. "We must all hang together," Benjamin Franklin had said, "or we will all hang separately " But he knew when he said it that it was no joking matter, although millions have had a good laugh since then at the wittiness of his remark.

That First Fourth.

The Fourth of July, 1776, was a hot, sunny day, and in the afternoon a thunderstorm broke Although the Declaration was adopted on the fourth, it was not engrossed until some weeks later. The announcement of the Declaration created a restrained enthusiasm, tempered by a knowledge of the gravity of the step. In this respect it closely resembled our own Declaration of War against Japan, and then against the entire Axis, when a peace loving nation, fully in accord with these declarations of war, waited tensely for developments.

The document was proclaimed to the people in the state house yard on July 8 At the same time the liberty bell was rung to summon the populace Within a few weeks after the great bell tolled, King George's army under General Howe was hovering uncomfortably close, and soon thereafter the long and bitter chapters of the Revolutionary war were being written in privation, blood and heroism.

The first publication of the historical document was on July 8, in Dunlap's Pennsylvania Packet Other printed copies appeared in Newport, Boston and Salem.

A Symbol of Freedom.

The big bronze bell with the familiar rent in its side has been the symbol of liberty and free expression to countless millions of Americans since the new republic embarked on its perilous enterprise in the year 1776 The crack came into the bell when it tolled the funeral of Justice Marshall in 1835. In the raised letters which adorn its crown it is proclaimed that the bell was cast by Pass & Stow in the year 1753 by order of the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania for the new state house "erected shortly before in that city " However, the great bell could make other claims. It could claim—but it does not—that it was the first bell turned out in an American foundry.

This, then, is the background in which the first Independence day was cast, and all should be familiar with it. The spirit of liberty which glowed from the pages of the immortal Declaration has been the guiding star of the American people from that far day to this. The pattern of liberty which was fashioned then has been woven into all of our institutions, as well as into our speech and our everyday lives. Liberty is an essential part of all of us. We draw it in with the very air we breathe.

It is inconceivable that a country nurtured in these fine traditions could ever accept the yoke of a foreign power, or that the flame of liberty should ever burn out on these shores Those who in their arrogance thought that it might planned badly indeed.

Liberty Bell Rings Again.

And so the liberty bell has rung again. Its first reverberations were heard from the U S S. Augusta, in the North Atlantic, at the time the Atlantic Charter was written. The bell pealed still louder when America entered the war. But this time its reverberations were heard throughout the world, guaranteeing to all peoples that freedom which is the divine heritage of all.

This Fourth of July will differ, both in celebration and in spirit, from other Fourths of many years past. Once more America is at war, but this time we fight not alone for our own liberty but for the liberties of conquered countries and for those nations whose liberties are threatened by the aggressor nations.

The Changing Times.

The fishing trips and the basket picnics of last Fourth and earlier Fourths will largely be converted this year into trips to training camps throughout the land to visit soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen in-the-making. Millions who formerly sought pleasure in countless ways in city or country will find strange new delight in wielding the hoe or pushing the cultivator in victory gardens all over the land. Many, too, will glean with pride and satisfaction some of the agricultural rewards of early springtime efforts, to be placed on the Fourth of July table. For never before in the history of our country has there been such a trend towards "grow your own" as in the spring of 1942.

Thousands of boys who celebrated last Fourth in the traditional American way will celebrate it this year in foreign lands. In Iceland, in China, Ireland, Australia and 26 other outposts of our far-flung battle front the Declaration will be duly celebrated. On aircraft carriers, battleships, cruisers, destroyers, subs and minesweepers, on PT-boats and flying fortresses, tribute will be paid to that first grand Fourth of July. And it won't be done with firecrackers!

Widening Range of the Fourth.

While the Fourth of July has been a major American holiday from time immemorial, it has been strictly an American holiday with little more than passing press notices in foreign lands. However, there is reason to believe that those countries which are not under the Nazi heel will hail the Fourth this year as never before It may even become an international holiday after victory is won, at least in those Axis-dominated countries who will owe their liberty to the efforts of America and the other United Nations engaged in the struggle for world freedom.

A 'Quiet Fourth' Expected.

Indications now point to the quietest Fourth in many years Regulations issued last March by the Federal Explosives Control act placed a ban on the sale of fireworks and "torpedoes" of the fireworks variety The measure was designed to save materials needed for munitions and at the same time lessen the danger of fires.

However, this ban has been somewhat modified since then to dispose of stocks on hand. Amended regulations forbid giant crackers and rockets of the "super-duper" variety but allow manufacture and sale of firecrackers not more than five inches long, of torpedoes containing less than five grains of explosives, and all other works within specified size limitations.

During the motoring years that stretch behind us the Fourth has been marked each year with a great flux of auto travel from city and country and vice versa. This year, however, the scene will change considerably because of the rationing of tires and gas. Hundreds of workmen who have been accustomed on the Fourth to drive far into the country will spend this Fourth bending over lathe machines or putting TNT into shells to whittle down the Axis. Auto fatalities which usually reach the year's peak over the Fourth of July holiday will probably be much lower this year.

A Happy Day for Children.

The Fourth has been one of the happiest days of the year for children in the past. However, it must be admitted that the Fourth of July during these later years has become mainly a holiday for the children, and the larger significance of the day has been lost in the rat-a-tat of the firecracker and the boom of the rocket with its spray of colored fire and stars against the darkening evening sky. How the children have pestered their parents around this time to break down all restraints and resolutions for a "safe and sane Fourth" and yield to their implorings to buy them "just a few crackers before they are all sold out!" The celebration for years has started around the middle of June. One could always tell that the Fourth was just around the corner by the crack of firecrackers or the boom of cannon-crackers—noises that would have shocked us into investigation a few weeks earlier Boyish celebrants were everywhere, and measured their patriotism by the amount of noise they were able to make

Many of us can look back to the days when no celebration of the anniversary of Independence was considered complete unless somebody had at least two fingers blown off In those days all smart dogs left for parts unknown about two weeks in advance The Fourth was a day of gayety, of festivity, and basket-picnics, a day when the brass band played on all day long under the shade of the oaks and maples, and the amber fluid flowed freely down parched and dusty throats. These are the dear dead Fourths of long ago

Global War Creating Interest in Geography

Americans in and out of school are rapidly seeking knowledge of regions which the nation's armed forces may be called upon to defend. They want to know how the loss of a seemingly remote country can affect the supply of commodities and food products which the American household has taken for granted. Many have relatives going to battle stations in distant areas.

"The war has demonstrated that the study of geography, even by civilians on the home front, merits far more attention than it has been given here," according to Johnson E Fairchild, instructor in geography and world affairs at Cooper Union "Brightly colored maps," he points out, "greet German children in their kindergarten classes and follow them through every stage of their education, but in this country geography has been relegated to a minor position in just about every primary and secondary school."

GASOLATIONISTS!

According to a Washington report, over 600 men have lost their lives at sea—in an effort to deliver gasoline for pleasure driving in the Eastern States. This means that the gas shortage is no longer a question of burning gasoline. It is now a matter of burning conscience.

Some people and certain newspapers continue to grumble about their loss of gas. But our armed forces have yet to protest their loss of blood. There are so-called Americans complaining today that they may have to walk. There are other Americans, casualties in battle, praying that some day they may be able to walk again.

The measure of their heroism is the measure of the gas slacker's cowardice. The gas slacker has his constitutional rights mixed up with his driver's license He thinks that 10 million Americans are ready to stand behind a gun so that he can sit behind a wheel. It never occurs to him that cheating an ambulance out of its gasoline is as rotten as cheating the wounded out of their bandages.

To the Gasolationists, America is only a road map. But for a man who doesn't need it, a full gas tank means an empty heart.

Why, Mr. Bush, a jeep now lives better than a general used to and some times I gess when the war is over and I get back home I will be squawking how I miss all the comforts of army life. If you keep on doing so much for us you will have to start a drive after the war to raise dough to see that we have as many comforts at home as we used to have in war.

DRAFT PICTURE

If you are registered on the draft rolls, here is the general picture of your prospects under the selective service amendments just passed by congress:

If you are between 20 and 45, unmarried with no dependents, your status is unchanged.

If you are married and now classified as 1-A, your draft board will be directed to shift you to 3-A. That means the chances are strong you will not be called for at least another 8 to 12 months, depending on the trend of the war and on what is done about lowering the draft age to 18.

If you are unmarried, but have dependents and are classed 3-A, you will be moved up to 1-A and headed for induction by fall. The new allowance and allotment act, under which soldiers with dependents get up $22 a month and the government $28, is the basis for this change.

As selective service officials figure it, by offsetting these two switches against one another, the 4,500,000 army which the war department wants to raise by January, can be obtained from 1-As in the 20 to 45 age groups. After that, if the army still needs men, selective service either will have to turn to married men now deferred, or the draft age will have to be lowered to 18, as strongly favored by military chiefs.

That will take congressional action, and until next November, there is no chance of anything being done by congress. Even after November elections there is no certainty congress will be any more eager to act. It will depend on what happens in the elections and the way the war is going. If it is not going well, congress is likely to be more willing to follow the demands of the military and include 18-year-olds.

If that is done, then married exempts will get another breather probably into the summer or fall of 1943. It is estimated that 18-19 year olders will furnish 1,200,000 new soldiers. This would bring the army to over 6,000,000 by next July

If by that time still more men are needed, then will come the turn of married registrants, beginning with the lower age groups.

Note: Privately, military experts believe that before the war is over the U. S. will have from seven to eight million men in the army and navy.

EUROPEAN REVOLT

After returning on the Drottningholm, Leland B. Morris, U. S. charge d'affaires in Berlin, and George Wadsworth, charge in Rome, gave the senate foreign relations committee some eye-opening slants on international conditions in the Axis countries, coupled with a blunt warning. The warning was

"Don't depend on the peoples of Germany and Italy revolting against their masters."

There is only a long-shot chance of an Axis collapse through revolution, the two diplomats reported. The German and Italian people, they said, are under such severe military rule and surveillance, that it would be extremely difficult to plan, much less carry out, revolts at present.

Morris, who served in Berlin about 18 months, also pooh-poohed rumors that the German people are not loyal to Hitler.

"They are weary of war," he said, "but they are still faithful to Hitler. Make no mistake about that. They may not consider him the idol they once did, but they are still behind him. Anyone who thinks otherwise is fooling himself."

Asked about German "morale," Morris replied that from the standpoint of loyalty to the fuehrer, it was good."

Wadsworth said the Italian people are kept in such subjugation and fear by the Germans that it was difficult to get a true expression of their feelings, though the morale of the Italians definitely was not as good as that of the Germans.

"Do you think there is any possibility of a revolt in Italy in the next year?" he was asked.

"I do not," Wadsworth replied.

Presidential Peace Plan Linked With Lend-Lease

Advances Made by America Looked Upon as 'Contributions to a Common Pool' Instead of Loans.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

President Roosevelt has completely reversed the ancient slogan: "In time of peace prepare for war," to make it read, "In time of war prepare for peace."

Because it is an axiom that the man behind the gun has to keep his mind on the gun, and the man behind the man behind the gun has to keep his mind on the man behind the gun, it isn't safe for people as a whole to look too far beyond the barbed wire That is why there hasn't been much talk about the plan. A nation in the death grip finds it risky to turn its attention from the brutal needs of the moment to humanitarian hopes for the future But a formula is being worked out that has the astounding purpose of using the very fires of war to forge a weapon for peace.

Hints of the program were revealed, partly between the lines, in a 42-page document which made up the President's last quarterly statement on the lend-lease operations, and partly in the President's address to the assembled representatives of the United Nations on Flag day. Both references hark back to an idea set forth in an article which appeared in these columns long before we entered the war. That article said that Secretary Hull had a "peace machine" oiled and ready for use when the moment arrived. "Secretary Hull," it stated, "believes that the roots of war grow in the soil of evil economic conditions, that war cannot be prevented unless nations indulge in mutually profitable trade"

Mutually profitable trade, the secretary believes, can only be achieved when there are mutual concessions and mutual benefits—in other words, the basis of world trade must be reciprocal trade, to be brought about by means of the famous Hull reciprocal trade agreements

The President in his last lend-lease report to congress clarified the meaning of "benefit," a meaning which of course has changed since America entered the war—since military co-operation with our own fighting forces has now become a very real factor. The President made it plain that now that "we are at war" the lend-lease principle is it develops "removes the possibility that a condition of finance will affect the full use of all material resources" because the advances made by America are not loans but contributions to a common pool with which the common war is being waged."

So much for the part lend-lease is to play in war. Now to its role in the peace plans. The President said "If the promise of the peace is to be fulfilled, a large production among nations must be restored and sustained. This trade must be founded on stable exchange relationships and liberal principles of commerce"

"Liberal principles of commerce" can only refer to reciprocal trade and the President concludes that the lend-lease settlement will rest on "a specific and detailed program for achieving these ends" which are the material foundation of the liberty and welfare of all peoples."

Practical Peace Machine

That word "material" is important because in it is the promise of a practical peace machine which will supply the very quality, the lack of which doomed the League of nations from the start. All the experts agree that no matter how effective the covenant of the League might have been had it been carried out, it could not possibly have worked because it in the main ignored economic relationships. It was a political machine—and you can't eat or wear politics.

The lend-lease policy, therefore, although a dynamic part of the war efforts of the United Nations, contains in the belief of its authors, the basis for an effective post-war reconstruction plan.

And now we come to the second evidence that its supporters believe make it a two-edged sword, striking for peace and victory at the same time.

The recently promulgated Russo-British 20-year mutual assistance treaty and the Roosevelt-Molotov agreement both contain affirmation of the principles of the Atlantic Charter which in turn lists the four freedoms. One of the four freedoms is freedom from want which at once involves economics and the most intimate interest of man, his personal welfare. At the Flag day celebration at the White House for the first time since we entered the war the President offered to the German and the Japanese people, over the heads of their governments the hope that they might share the benefits of an Allied victory. For the first time there has been a direct official contradiction of the charge continually dinned into German ears by Herr Goebbels that defeat means their destruction. The President offered them the opposite. He said in his Flag day speech·

"We ask the German people, still dominated by their Nazi whipmasters, whether they would rather have the mechanized hell of Hitler's 'new' order or—in place of that, freedom of speech and religion, freedom from want and from fear."

He made an identical appeal to the Japanese people

Without attempting to attack or defend the practicability of the President's plan or the theories upon which it is based, it is significant that an effort is being made First, to use a war weapon (lend-lease) to blaze a trail to peace; second, to provide an economic basis for the post-war restoration and, third, to make use of both of these factors in driving a wedge between the enemy peoples and their governments by offering them hope of something better than what they have.

Meet Rags II, STARS and STRIPES Mascot

Recently I interviewed a war-dog who probably will become familiar to all of you because the exploits planned for him are such as no dog ever had before

He is "Rags II," mascot of the new army newspaper YANK which is the successor to the STARS and STRIPES, the army paper printed in Paris during the last war Rags II is a "successor," too—to the original Rags, who would have been mascot of the STARS and STRIPES if he hadn't been so thoroughly devoted to one of the staff, Corporal "Tip" Bliss, his master.

Rags grew to be a tradition and he is perhaps a solar myth by this time. He could understand English, French and Elizabethan in which he was usually addressed by his master who was a scholarly person.

After marching over most of France and learning some of the less polite corners of Paris, Rags came back to America with his master. Neither ever completely settled down. Tip worked on newspapers and wrote pulp fiction. Rags lived out his cycle as carefree and disheveled as his master. Tip acquired Rags who was a curly black spaniel of some sort at some French port when he landed. The two never parted, until the end.

Rags was never formally inducted into the army and he got very little publicity but his shaggy, waggy memory lives green in the heart of every STARS and STRIPES man.

When YANK was given its send-off at a banquet in New York a few of the old STARS and STRIPES staff were present, among them "Wally" (the cartoonist, Walgren), buddy of Tip and Rags. A part of the ceremony was a presentation by Wally of Rags II to youthful Captain Spence, who is executive head of the new paper.

Afterward when I slipped up to get a few comments from the new Rags who is even raggier than his namesake for he is part poodle, he was finishing off part of a steak right up on top of the main banquet table.

He was friendly, in fact most affectionate, but not loquacious. I couldn't get a word out of him as to his plans. But I figured he had just gone hush-hush like all army people and was afraid that enemy ears might be listening.

However, from other sources, usually considered reliable as the papers say, I found out that Rags II is about to travel to Australia, Iceland, Ireland and perhaps other fronts as yet undisclosed. For YANK will follow the troops and Rags II will follow YANK. He will probably be the most traveled army dog in history.

Sick Soils Have Effect on Animals

Earth Should Be 'Factories,' Not Mines

By DR. WILLIAM A. ALBRECHT
(Department of Soils, College of Agriculture, University of Missouri.)

That sick soils will not build healthy animals any more than they will produce sturdy field crops is significant in view of our national tendency to combat soil erosion by allowing much of the fertility-depleted soil to go back to grass.

In place of giving attention to soil fertility measures that feed growing plants, we have too often adopted the practice of "crop hunting" in the mistaken belief that when one crop starves another can be found that will thrive on the same depleted land But we can't breed crops against starvation any more than a sterile parent can transmit the character of sterility.

Evidences of declining soil fertility are seen in the greater number of deficiency diseases among our farm animals. Veterinarians are constantly faced with increasing cases of strange animal ailments for which no specific body weakness or visible physiological cause can be found. Eye ailments, a tendency to blindness, bad gaits, rounded back lines, inferior condition, poor feeding progress, and even debility and death can be traced to deficiencies in animals' nutrition.

If newer legumes or non-legumes grow more successfully on less fertile land, then such crops must be taking less nutrient from the soil. Thus these crops can offer the animals that feed on them less of protein and of ash which, for animals the same as for plants, are the items drawn from the soil.

Animals Limited in Feeding.

Confined as they are, animals are limited in their feeding by the soil fertility of the farm Supplements such as proteins contain too little of the minerals needed. And when animals protest by rooting up the very earth or climbing the fence in search of better forage, such actions are met by rings in the nose or cumbersome yokes about the neck. Human serfs have been prohibited in this country for about 75 years, but animal slaves can be seen on any trip through the country. Too often they are almost in a state of starvation because their master, the farm owner, neglects his soil fertility.

Our soils must become factories instead of continuing as mines from which the fertility is unendingly drawn. Raw materials such as limestone, phosphorus, potash, and other fertilizing elements, organic matter and other plant nutrients must go back into the soil. In our "soil factories" we must produce more usable nutrients for plant service. Such nutrients must not be hauled off unless equal amounts are restored.

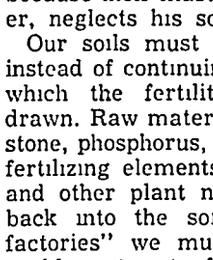
Consumption of Fats, Oils

Recently the United States used approximately 6½ billion pounds of fats and oils in edible products; two billion in soaps, one billion in paints, varnishes, printing inks and linoleum products, and 0 5 billion was used for a variety of industrial purposes.

Cutting Costs

The department of agriculture is strongly urging partnership in use and purchase of equipment.

Two Floyd county, Texas, farmers have been showing their neighbors the value of this kind of joint action. These Farm Security administration borrowers first bought a tractor outfit together in 1940. Sharing the $1,030 outlay and the operating expenses proved to them the advantages of partnership.



Their second enterprise was buying a pure-bred Jersey bull, which cost $150. Then they bought a seven-foot power-take-off mower, a feed mill mounted for transport, and a ground-driven row binder.

The two farmers say that the machinery they joined in buying saved their crops last fall. They figure that what they did as a common sense plan will have to be done by others from sheer necessity.

Urea for Growing Lambs

Farmers were told of tests in the laboratories of a university's division of animal nutrition in which the performance of growing lambs fed urea was compared with that of lambs fed diets containing such protein sources as soybean oil meal, casein, skim milk and corn gluten feed. With rations of a 12 per cent protein level, 50 per cent of the nitrogen as urea is as satisfactory a source of nitrogen as commonly used protein concentrates.

Greatest Air Fighter

By Quentin Reynolds

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Colliers Weekly)

ADOLPH MALAN, a South African flier in the British air force, is the greatest fighting pilot this war or perhaps any war has produced. He has more than 50 victories over German airplanes to his credit, and he is the idol of the RAF. Everybody calls him "The Sailor"

His cleverness in the air consists of always outguessing his opponents. Here's the way he does it, in his own words

"When I'm up there and going into a fight, I say to myself: 'What does that guy think I'm going to do? What is the routine thing, the ordinary thing?' Then I answer that and try something else.

"In air warfare, you've got to think. You can't let your emotions rule you or you'll get killed very quickly

"Sometimes you can't help it A few months ago I was loafing around our airfield I was king of the world. I was passing out cigars That's right—you've guessed it! I'd been married a year and I'd just become a father. It was a boy.

"The christening was set for the next week, and Winston Churchill was going to be my boy's godfather. None of the thrills you get in the air are anything compared to the kick you get when the nurse comes and says: 'It's a boy!' Of course, only the fathers of boys will understand this. And then the man I admire above all others was to be my boy's godfather!

"It was a nice night and my wife and boy were in a cottage only a few miles from the airfield. I looked over that way and could only think that I'd have to leave soon to attend the christening. I was sitting there making plans I was wondering whether I'd make him a sailor or a pilot. I've been both and like both trades. Or maybe politics? A member of parliament and then, who knows, a cabinet minister, and after—

Interrupted Day Dream.

"I've never met a writer who can describe in words the sound of a bomb. It screams through the air and then it lands, and the sound is like nothing on earth. There were a lot of bombs. They landed over in the direction of my cottage!

"I ran to my Spitfire. The boys turned the motor over. I'd never done any actual night fighting. What of it? There were Jerries up there, and for the moment I was on my own.

"It was a moonlight night. A bomb dropped on the airfield. I ran and fell into a ditch to get away from bomb fragments We take cover when bombs fall. Only fools stick their chins up to get hit. I lay in the ditch with my ground crew, and the motor of my Spitter was warming up all by itself. A Jerry bomber flew so low I could see its markings.

"I ran to the Spit and hopped in. I was off in a minute. I wasn't thinking this time. I was in a panic Had any of those bombs hit my cottage?

"Well, if you're a father you'll know how I felt. I followed that Jerry airplane. I let the Spitter out, even though my machine was only half warmed up. I was full out and mad, which is a mistake.

"Just then, without warning, an airplane loomed ahead and without thinking I pressed the button and three thousand bullets hit that Jerry.

"I couldn't bank or slip away. I was on top of him. I pulled the stick back and just cleared him. The oil from his exploding plane covered my face and half filled my cockpit.

Hitting the Bull's Eye.

"He went down in flames and I followed him down. For the first time since war began I felt satisfaction that I'd killed someone who had been trying to kill my people.

"Then I cooled off. I was a fighting pilot again. I looked for more. I found one. I took my time now, and went to work on him. I saw him at 8,000 feet, a fat Junkers 88.

"I waited until I was within 150 yards and gave it to him. He exploded in midair and broke in a thousand pieces and I was glad!"

Like Fighting in the Ring.

Malan has had about 200 fights. Each one has been different. Fighting in the air refuses to conform to a pattern. It's like fighting in the ring: A left jab; a right cross; your right hand held high—these are fundamentals you learn. But you can't learn how to guard against the unexpected blow.

In air fighting, pilots must likewise learn the fundamentals of attack and defense, but then a fight starts and it never goes according to plan. A good flier constantly thinks of new stunts.

One Truck Driver Who Could Follow Instructions

Business being cut by priorities, the boss of the trucking company found it necessary to lay off one truck driver. But that driver was both big and tough. So the boss decided to fire him by mail

And the following day the driver didn't show up. Four days went by and then he was back.

"Didn't you get my letter?" asked the surprised boss.

"I did."

"Well, didn't you read it?"

"Sure. First I read it inside and then I read it outside. Inside it said that I was fired. On the outside it said, 'Return in five days to the Consolidated Trucking company.' So, here I am."

NEW IDEAS FOR HOME-MAKERS

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WOMEN today are not the first to discover a war-time shortage of floor coverings. The glowing Oriental rugs of the Colonial mansion ceased to be imported during the Revolution; and the simple hooked rug made from old clothing began to be developed.

Then, as now, scroll borders around a flower motif were popular. The posies were designed according to individual taste but scroll patterns went the rounds of neighbors who traced the patterns on the burlap or canvas rug foundation. Today wax crayon is generally used for tracing. You will find it easy to make a cut-out pattern by first ruling paper into one-inch squares and then copying the curves in the sketch.

NOTE If you wish to make a scroll pattern be sure to clip this diagram and save it as it is not in any of the booklets which Mrs Spears has prepared for readers, however, Book 5 contains two designs and directions for making original designs To get a copy, send your order to

NEW PARK AREA

The State Conservation Commission has purchased the north shore of Lake Cornelia, near Clarion, from George Linebarger and part of the land north and west of the shore from Earl Hamilton, for State Park purposes, including, in all, about 20 acres.

BOOT FOOT

Ray Pilcher of Ida Grove is pleased to have a temporary, especially tailored right shoe which will take the place for a time, of a foot amputated six months ago The new member will substitute for a foot until such time as an artificial foot can be made Ray is without use of two crutches

ANTIQUE TIRE

In a strange assortment of rubber salvage that found its way into a Cresco filling station was a new unwrapped tire of 1912 vintage designed for a Packard car The tire was made by a Des Moines tire company now out of business. The antique, complete with tube, weighed over 40 pounds. Whereas modern tires average only 20 pounds with tube included

ODD FISH!

"Pal," collie pup belonging to Leo Egan of Rock Rapids, caused considerable commotion in his neighborhood recently when, while sniffing around the Egan's back yard, he got a fish hook entangled with his nose This in itself was not so bad, but the hook was attached to a line and pole A visit to the vet was necessary before the hook was extracted and the dog released from the toils that bound him.

NEXT . . .

Probably a record for youngest barbershop patron in Iowa is the case of Larry Wayne Craig, the 1-month-old son of Mr and Mrs W Craig of Leon. Larry had so much hair that his parents decided to take him to George Fuller's tonsorial parlor for a nifty trim

"OLD SOUTH"

County Auditor Louis Scott Robinson of Mills county who is in the coast guard stationed in Boston Mass., has sent his father in Malvern a bulletin of Old South Church instructing the congregation what to do in case of an air raid during service It was Old South Church that figured prominently in the stirring alarms of the Revolutionary War

THE EXTRAVAGANT THIRTIES

A 200 - pound tire, excavated from cement at a filling station in Clear Lake, where it had served as an ad for a tire repair for 12 years started off the rubber salvage drive in Clear Lake recently.

NEATLY SAND BAGGED

Fremont county jail "boarders" were rushed to the rescue at Payne when the Missouri river went on a rampage for the second time this spring. The five inmates of the jail at Sidney are credited with doing a fine job of sand-bagging the river front where the break through occurred

CAR TROUBLES

Sometime ago Lee Roscoe of Farragut placed an order with a garage to overhaul his car and "to come after it when they got around to it" Well, they did finally get around to it and hauled it away for repairs one day recently, but Roscoe evidently had forgotten the matter, and reported the car stolen. The sheriff found it at the garage undergoing repairs.

Lice are more injurious to young birds than old, which is one reason for keeping the growing chicks away from the old hens

FOR V—

Uncle Sam will get the brass, copper and steel parts of the old chime clock which for 28 years has sounded the quarter hours and hours on the Record-Tribune corner at Indianola. High cost of repair forced the newspaper owners to tear down the landmark that had been erected by a now defunct bank.

FORMER KLEMME WOMAN BURIED AT CLEAR LAKE FRIDAY AFTERNOON

CLEAR LAKE Funeral services for Mrs. George Guretzmacher, 68, who died at a local nursing home Thursday morning following a long illness, were held at Ward's funeral home Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock The Rev Leslie Griggs of Ventura, conducted the rites and burial was in the Clear Lake cemetery

Matilde Schneider was born on March 15, 1874, at Froelich, Clayton county, the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Henry Schneider. She grew to womanhood in that vicinity and in 1905 was married to Mr George Gruetzmacher, who died about ten years ago.

Mr and Mrs Gruetzmacher resided at Klemme and Garner before coming to Clear Lake about 12 years ago She was a member of the Methodist church

They had no children but reared Mrs. Gruetzmacher's neice, Mrs Lillian Statzer, and a foster son, Warren Gruetzmacher, Clear Lake

Mrs Gruetzmacher is also survived by three sisters, Miss Alma Schneider, and Mrs. Edna Beeler, Mason City, and Mrs. Annie Jenner, Los Angeles, Cal., and two brothers, James Schneider, Goodell, and Lafayetae Schneider, Twin Falls, Idaho

Mr George Gruetzmacher was associated with his brother, John in the hardware and implement business in Klemme for many years.

JOHN KNOEDLER HERD TAKES HIGH HONORS IN PRODUCTION TEST

Ralph Ruggeberg, supervisor of the Hancock county Dairy Herd Improvement association, Saturday released his June report for the association. High herd for the month was the herd owned by John Knoedler with an average of 1,160 pounds of milk and 47 2 pounds of butterfat Second high herd was that of Edwin Thieman, while Jack Dethmer's herd was third.

High ranking cow for the past month was a registered Holstein from the herd of Jack Dethmers, with a total milk production of 2,103 pounds and 79.9 pounds of fat. Second high cow for the month was owned by Albert Abele & Son while the third high ranking cow belonged to Mitchell Bock.

Twenty-eight herds on test averaged 849 pounds of milk and 31 1 pounds of butterfat.

C. C. KILGORE PRESIDENT OF KLEMME CIVIC CLUB

At a meeting held Monday night at the Community Hall, some fifty heads of business places in Klemme reorganized the Civic Club and elected Mr. C C Kilgore as president and Mr. Walter Lemke as secretary and treasurer

A chicken dinner was served by the Legion Auxiliary ladies and Mr Frank Senneff, of Britt addressed the gathering, stressing the need of setting up defense measures and taking precautions against possible sabotage.

The club has adopted a new policy of allowing each business place to have one vote in conducting the affairs of the club These members will be known as "voting members" All other members are "social members" and this membership will be open to all other persons engaged or employed in business

The club will meet once a month and will have four banquets each year

The voting members plan to entertain the prospective social members at a chicken dinner in the near future

America's 'Garden Spot' Known for Fertile Land

Called the "Garden Spot of America" because it is located in one of the richest farm regions in the country, Lancaster, Pa., was first settled by English, Palatinate Germans, Scotch-Irish and French-Huguenots It is the center of a large population of members of the "Plain People" sects.

According to a descriptive pamphlet published by the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce, "Here Penn's Commissioners signed a treaty with the Indians in the old Moravian Church on West Orange Street Continental Congress met at Lancaster when the English captured Philadelphia. At an old stone mill on the edge of the city the famous 'long rifles' were made for the Continental Army. Cannons were cast in the Lancaster County iron foundries of 'Baron' Stiegel, also famous for his glass."

Lancaster also boasts of other claims to fame such as Wheatland, the home of James Buchanan, fifteenth President of the United States and only Pennsylvanian to hold that office; birthplace of Robert Fulton; Donegal Church and Historic Witness Tree and other spots of historic interest.

Poultry Bones Kill Dog

Poultry bones are, sooner or later, fatal to the dog who is allowed to eat them. When chewed to a pulp, their many sharp points are liable to pierce the throat or the walls of the stomach or the intestines, as thoroughly as would a handful of pins. For a while, your dog may be able to avoid this fate, after a feast of such bones (often he disgorges them and thus is saved) but in the course of time they will get him. That is known to all dog men.

The question was put to three noted scientists and to a professor at a veterinary college.

All of them said that any kind of cooking has the effect of "calcining" poultry bones making them brittle and giving them needle points when they are crushed by a dog's teeth. Raw fresh poultry bones are softer. They can be chewed and digested usually without harm.

Rice Stem-rot

Rotations of four to six years apparently will not eliminate the rice stem-rot disease from the soil, is the opinion of E. C. Tullis of the United States department of agriculture and E. M. Cralley of the Arkansas Agricultural Experiment station here.

The scientists found that the stem-rot disease of rice can remain viable in uncultivated rice soil for as long as six years, when infective material was stored under normal outside conditions. Even after two years infective material was obtained from stubble in the field. When stubble was stored in the laboratory under less favorable conditions, infective material was recovered after 2½ years.

The 1942 spring pig crop is estimated at 62 million head, or 25% larger than the 1941 crop This would make the crop 15% larger than any previous one, the largest of which was the 1933 crop.

Paul Bunyan Enthusiast Tells of 'Double Winter'

An old-timer, who likes to spin yarns of the great Paul Bunyan, sat in the back room of a store in Bemidji, Minn.

A severe cold wave, driving down from the Arctic, had dropped the temperature to 30 degrees below zero.

"Bathin' weather," the old-timer sneered.

He cocked his feet on the stove rail and inquired:

"Ever hear about Paul Bunyan and the Year-of-the-Two-Winters?"

And then, over the crackle of the fire, he told of a winter so cold that the snow turned blue.

The tale is only one of many that compose the legend of the mythical Paul Bunyan.

According to old timers:

Bunyan built Lake Huron as a corral for milk whales when he learned whales were mammals.

He started the Mississippi river by emptying a pan of dishwater.

He built a fire under a lake in which he had dumped a carload of peas and a herd of oxen, and made pea soup for his logging crew. (He brought a paddle-wheel steamer from New Orleans to cruise around the lake and stir the soup.)

He brought the Swedes to Minnesota after selling the state to the king of Sweden.

And went through the longest, coldest winter ever heard of.

It was so cold the snow turned blue, and it grew progressively colder until next fall, when winter set in again.

Loggers in Paul Bunyan's day grew beards to protect their faces, and the beards grew to tremendous lengths.

"Some of the boys had the ends of 'em knitted into socks," the old-timer said.

A low-lying cloud bank was swiftly converted into a mountain of solid ice. That was the first of the glaciers.

The mercury in Bunyan's thermometer dropped so low it was three years climbing back to zero. Snow fell so heavily that Paul had to dig down to find the forests, and loggers were lowered on ropes to fell the trees.

"It was so cold," the old-timer said, "the wind froze up in sheets."

Bunyan then had it sawed and stored in chunks for summer.

U. S. Has 'Brain Jitters,' Says Mental Specialist

One out of every ten persons in the United States either has been, is or will be at least slightly unbalanced mentally, in the opinion of Dr. F. H. Zimmerman, veteran superintendent of the Colorado State Hospital for Insane.

The fast pace of modern life and mental strain during a decade of economic depression has given the nation "brain jitters," Dr. Zimmerman declared.

Dr. Zimmerman blamed "the efficiency of modern medicine" for part of the upswing in insanity.

"Life expectancy has been increased in this country from 40 years to a new world high of 60 years," he said. "Insanity is more frequent as humanity grows older."

Latest national statistics, Dr. Zimmerman said, show that the pace of life in the nation's capital apparently is hardest on the mind. The national average of persons confined in state mental hospitals, he said, is 288 for 100,000. Washington, D. C., tops the nation with 849 for 100,000 and West Virginia, near-by, is lowest with 168.

Intelligence or Looks?

Being intelligent is fine for the co-ed who wants to get good grades, but it won't help her get her man, according to tests in popularity conducted by psychology students at Arizona State college. Instead, the tests revealed, she should develop herself in the art of entertainment if she expects to gain a man's affections. The tests, conducted in a class of more than 50 students, showed that ability to entertain was the most sought-for trait not only in women but in men as well. Dr. John J. Harton, head of the psychology department, said the most amazing part of the survey was not that ability in entertainment was found to be the most desirable quality but that intelligence was ranked as the least important trait in the list of eight. As far as men were concerned, a woman's physical appearance was an all-important factor.

Another Arizona 'Ghost' City

Clemenceau, Arizona's last hope for rebirth as an important center of the nation's copper industry recently vanished and the community appears destined to join the ranks of Arizona's "ghost" cities. The decision that seemingly spelled ultimate abandonment of this mining community was told in a few brief words—that the $5,000,000 copper smelter would be dismantled. Clemenceau sprang into existence when the price of copper shot upward in 1917. Around the smelter chimney, a moderately thriving community grew up.

When times were good, the population included more than 1,000 workers.

Two years ago the plant was ordered shut down and since that time, many of the workers have refused to leave, existing the best they could and awaiting the signal that would start the furnaces again.

Seek Better Outlets For Southern Products

Southern farmers, who have been growing more and more fruits and vegetables since 1931, also have a growing problem of getting the produce to market. On a tonnage basis, production in six southeastern states increased more than 30 per cent in the seven years up to 1938, according to the bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture. More and more of this increase is going into the eastern markets. New York city and Philadelphia in 1938 received nearly one-third of their supplies from six southeastern states, in comparison with about one-fourth in 1931.

There has been a marked shift in the way these fruits and vegetables move to market. While tonnage was increasing more than 30 per cent, rail and boat shipments went down 17 per cent. Motor-truck receipts of fruits and vegetables in New York and Philadelphia from those six southern states were equal to more than 17,000 carloads in 1938—about seven times the figure for 1931.

The South needs an adequate market system, says the bureau, to provide for its expanding fruit and vegetable production and for the shifting methods of transportation. The bureau of agricultural economics, co-operating with the various states, has been studying ways to improve the handling of these perishable commodities, and to develop a marketing channel where no adequate channel exists.

New Flour for National Diet Developed by U. S.

Nowadays everyone talks of business, home, recreation in terms of the national defense program. And the program has speeded up production in many fields. Besides guns, munitions and war equipment, for instance, there's a noticeable speed-up in nutrition experiments.

The latest development along these lines is a new flour for the national diet. And government experts say it will restore vitamin B to "the staff of life." This vitamin flour is in the last stages of perfection in the offices of the department of agriculture. But it still is unnamed.

Authorities say that the new flour will not be a compulsory diet item. Millers and bakers and grocers will still be permitted to mill, bake and sell the old white flour, and housewives will use it. But any flour sold under the name to be picked must meet the standards that are being written into the definition.

The public will be urged to eat this flour, at least as the main part of the breadstuffs that go with the daily three meals. And that brings a short discussion of the need of vitamins. Doctors and research workers have spent years delving into every possible angle of the subject. And their findings are conclusive enough to prove that vitamins are not a fad.

Meat on Daily Menu

Through ages long past, meat has been an important part of man's diet. Centuries before man knew that meat was a rich source of protein, vitamins, phosphorus and iron, he ate meat to satisfy his natural craving for it.

Now, nutrition has become a science which shows us what we should eat and why. Recent advances in this science make it clear that from a nutritional point of view, even though a charge account at a grocery store has replaced a bow and arrow, the important place meat has always held in the diet of man is both desirable and justified.

And why should meat be a part of the daily diet? First of all, it is an unexcelled source of protein. Protein is one of the essential elements we need in our body for growth and to build or repair body tissues. The protein of meat is unequaled not only because it is present in large quantities but because the protein of meat contains so many of the amino acids necessary for health.

Grand Coulee Dam

Motorists visiting the Northwest during the coming season should visit Grand Coulee dam, 94 miles west of Spokane, Wash.

Grand Coulee dam is 98 per cent completed and it now towers far above the construction trestle from which visitors view the dam. About 10,500,000 cubic yards of concrete are already in the barrier and only about 35,000 yards remain to be placed.

The dam is 4,200 feet across the crest, 550 feet wide at the base and 32 feet wide at the top. It contains 25,000,000 tons of concrete and steel. A highway will run across the crest over a series of bridges spanning the drum gates.

Electric Toothbrush

With the invention of a mechanical toothbrush human beings are going to be relieved even of the slight effort now required to scrub their molars. The electric toothbrush cleans the teeth with rapid "up and down" motions in the manner prescribed by dentists as the bristles are vibrated. The apparatus resembles an electric razor in appearance with the exception that either a short-handled brush or a rubber gum massager is inserted in the handle. And one electric toothbrush safely can be used by all members of the family by obtaining individual brushes and massagers.

Nutrition in Foodstuffs Is Subject of Research

With the second unit of the new federal nutritions laboratory at Cornell university in Ithaca, N. Y., now under construction, one of the most comprehensive research projects destined to step up the nutritional values of foodstuffs and improve human well-being will be started this year.

An appropriation has been made available for three laboratories and greenhouses on the campus. In these experimental buildings the department of agriculture will center investigations extending throughout the nation.

Prof. L. A. Maynard, head of the department of animal nutrition at Cornell and long recognized as one of the outstanding authorities in the research fields, has been appointed director of the laboratory. He will work in conjunction with Dr. E. C. Auchter, chief of the federal bureau of plant industry.

The research program will attempt to inject a new note into the production of foodstuffs for animals and man. One of the early steps will be a survey of mineral resources in the soils of the United States—not the minerals that are used as precious metals of industrial materials—but the vital elements that human beings must get from foods, which in turn obtain them from the soil.

One of the objectives of the program is to determine the exact amount of the mineral necessary for the improvement of the plant life, and consequently the animal.

Ancient Indian Mummies Found in Arizona Cave

Three perfectly preserved mummies, complete with the feathered robes and trappings in which they were interred during the Thirteenth century, have been discovered in northern Arizona by University of Arizona scientists.

Headed by Dr. Emil Haury, of the university staff, a party made the discovery in virtually unexplored regions in the northeastern section of the state while searching for evidence and remnants of the great Pueblo culture of 700 years ago.

The mummies were found in a holy shrine called the Painted Cave, apparently a place of worship for the Pueblo tribesmen.

The bodies—one of a woman and two of children—were wrapped in robes of turkey feathers and ornately colored blankets.

Despite the fact that the mummies were almost seven centuries old, Dr. Haury said that some of the feathered robes "were almost perfectly preserved." One, he said, still was soft and silky to touch.

The walls of the cave were covered with designs and drawings representing Indian conceptions of their gods and real-life scenes. Dr. Haury said the Pueblos painted the pictures with their fingers, using a paint made of desert plants and roots.

The mummies were surrounded by bowls of corn, other food and jars which apparently once contained water, interred to help them on their long journey to the "happy hunting ground."

Livingstone Memorial

A marble slab on the tomb of David Livingstone, the explorer, bears the following inscription:

"Brought by faithful hands over land and sea, here rests David Livingstone, Missionary, Traveler, Philanthropist. Born March 19, at Blantyre, Lanarkshire. Died May 4, 1873, at Chitambo's Village, Ilala. For thirty years his life was spent in an unwearied effort to evangelize the native races, to explore the undiscovered secrets and abolish the desolating slave trade of central Africa, where with his last words he wrote: 'All I can say in my solitude is, May Heaven's rich blessing come down on every one—American, English or Turk—who will help to heal this open sore of the world.'"

History of Wrought Iron

Wrought-iron hardware continues to find a place in the modern home. First used in the East in Colonial homes, the earlier designs were wrought by English craftsmen. As a result, hinges, door handles, and other metal which went into the home reflected the English tradition. In Florida and the Southwest the Spanish influence was noticeable, and wrought-iron designs had different characteristics. Either of these Colonial designs may be used in modern homes where they harmonize with English or Spanish precedent. The two types should not be confused by the home owner. When properly related, wrought-iron hardware adds interesting detail to the home.

College Clothes Auction

If a Radcliffe college of Cambridge, Mass., student has to watch her pennies, she can outfit herself at a cost of 63 cents. Miss Rose Yarmudian, director of the school's lost and found department, reports that at a recent auction students bought a hat for 10 cents, a dress for a quarter, a pair of stockings for eight cents, shoes for 15 cents and gloves for five cents. For another dollar the lost and found department supplied them with an evening wrap and bag, a regular pocketbook, a sports outfit, a raincoat and overshoes. Three times a year an auction is held of all things lost on the campus and not claimed.

'Death Ray' Is Used For Killing Bacteria

Scientists are experimenting with a "death ray" so effective that it may come into wide use.

"Unlike most publicized "death rays," the newest one will spend its lethal force on germs, not mankind. Already a scientific fact, the ray may be responsible for a new "germless" air in air-conditioned auditoriums and public meeting places.

At the convention of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, held in Cleveland, Dr. Harvey C. Rentschler, research director for a large electrical company demonstrated his microbe death for the first time.

He explained the ray as a virtual "blitzkrieg" to microbes, a deadly explosive weapon that blasts its germ victims to pieces in one-thousandth of the time required to blink an eye.

In proof of his claims for the "death ray" Dr. Rentschler staged a laboratory "blitzkrieg" in the assembly hall. A highly magnified view of microscopic life in a drop of water was projected on a screen and the engineer-observers saw swarms of bacterial life cramming the projection.

Suddenly there was a sharp, staccato report, like a pistol shot. All life ceased. The bacteria had been literally blasted to pieces by the ultra-violet "shot," as it tore its way across a spark gap.

In the industrial use of the ray for air conditioning, Dr. Rentschler said, a wave length of ultra-violet most fatal to bacteria will be produced by the discharge of electricity through inert gas and mercury vapor between electrodes at opposite ends of a slender tube.

Modest Florida Plumber Likes Big Game Hunting

Modest and mild-mannered J. L. Graham, 60-year-old proprietor of a modest plumbing business in Clearwater, Fla., is a man of simple tastes—simple, that is, except for his favorite recreation.

When Graham goes on a vacation, he gathers up his collection of high-powered rifles and journeys into the depths of the African jungles to hunt big game.

Graham, a spare-framed, white-haired man whose erect carriage and clear eyes bespeak physical fitness unusual for his age, recently returned from a four-month expedition to Northern Rhodesia, locale of the Stanley and Livingstone saga.

He bagged a rhinoceros, two lions, a tiger, a hippopotamus and about 35 smaller animals. The unassuming plumber explains that besides his four African expeditions, he has stalked large game in Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico.

One explanation of Graham's ability to indulge in the sport of tycoons and maharajahs is that the cost of his last expedition, for instance, was $1,100 compared with the $5,000 to $50,000 often spent by big game hunters.

"In the first place, I traveled on a freighter instead of a luxury liner," he pointed out. "I didn't play shuffleboard and deck tennis, but it was a fine trip just the same.

"Then when I started out on the actual hunting trip, I didn't hire a whole village of carriers as do some hunters. I hired only four native boys."

Graham has two explanations of how he affords it: 1. He invests his money wisely. 2. He has remained a bachelor.

Explorer's Idea of Antarctic

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, noted Arctic explorer, believes that the United States is wise to acquire territorial rights in the Antarctic. The vast "down under" continent, he says, may prove to be a valuable source of petroleum, radium and food and in the near future it may become valuable for long-range weather forecasting. "If the land in the Antarctic proves to have the worthlessness which now is ascribed to it, then it will be unique in the history of the world," the explorer said. "Nearly all newly discovered lands have been considered worthless." He said the value of the Antarctic could not be ascertained because no one could look into the future. "Who would have known a hundred years ago that Canada some day would become an important source of radium?" Stefansson asked. "Benjamin Franklin was a wise man, and he was smart enough to make a good-sized fortune. But he knew about petroleum in western Pennsylvania and, despite his wisdom, he could not conceive its commercial value."

Youthful Music Writer

George Garratt, 21, of Mount Lebanon, a suburb of Pittsburgh, has composed 20 unusual selections. He is studying piano, composition and conducting technique. Already played in public concerts in Texas, Detroit, and Chicago, two of Garratt's compositions are being considered for publication by the Composers Press in New York. "Many people ask me if I'm worried when my compositions are played in public without first being published," Garratt said recently. "I'm not, because there is only a slight chance of classical pieces being stolen; there is a much greater chance with popular pieces." The youthful composer's works include "Symphonic Variations," a piano concerto, a suite for two pianos and several short selections.

These Babecued Hamburgers Are Appetite-Tempting!
(See Recipes Below.)

Outdoor Fun

The delicious aroma of meat cooking over a crackling fire, toasted buns, and freshly roasted corn or potatoes in the embers—all these make for plenty of summer fun. Toss together your outdoor cooking equipment, bright, gay colored cloths, napkins, and gather some wood for your picnic. Plan to have lots of hearty, nourishing food to give your picknickers so they will have plenty of that up-and-at-them spirit.

Crunchy green salads packed in jelly glasses or paper containers, steaming hot coffee, baked beans, or macaroni and cheese, and barbecued meat. Dispel the chilliness of cool nights with your picnic outdoors

Hamburgers are old favorites, but you can make them extra delicious by drizzling a tasty barbecue sauce over them while they cook.

Barbecued Hamburgers.
(Serves 8)

- 2 pounds ground beef
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- Pepper to taste
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- 2 teaspoons brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 medium-sized onion, chopped
- 1½ tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- ½ cup catsup
- 1 tablespoon hot water

Have any of the thriftier cuts of beef ground—such as chuck, flank, shank, neck, or heel of round. If meat is quite lean, ask your butcher to grind in some suet. Mix meat thoroughly with salt and pepper. Cook on a greased griddle-grill with thick slices of onion.

Mix rest of ingredients well and drizzle over hamburgers as they cook. This sauce is also excellent over frankfurters which have been pricked with a fork.

To make a new kind of "cheeseburger," add ½ cup grated cheese to each pound of hamburger, mixing lightly.

Hamburger Puffs.
(Serves 8)

- 2 pounds chuck steak, ground
- 2 cups grated raw potato
- 4 tablespoons grated onion
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ peeled clove of garlic, minced
- 4 tablespoons milk
- 4 tablespoons fat

Combine all ingredients except fat. Form into 16 patties. Cook in fat on a greased grill or skillet over medium heat until brown on both sides and done. About 5 or 6 minutes on each side is enough.

Roast Corn.

Have a hot fire and let it burn down until there is a good pile of red embers. Soak the ears of corn in their husks until good and wet and lay them, still in the husks, in the hot ashes. Bake for 30 minutes or until corn is tender. Turn the ears occasionally.

Roast Potatoes.

Bury potatoes in hot ashes and roast as you do the corn, until they are tender. They take longer to roast than the corn. Serve with lots of butter, salt, and pepper.

Marshmallow Dessert.
(Serves 6)

- Small bars of plain chocolate
- 12 graham crackers
- 12 marshmallows

Toast 2 marshmallows over the coals to a crisp, gooey state, and then put them inside a graham cracker and chocolate bar sandwich. The heat of the marshmallow between the halves of chocolate bar will melt the chocolate just enough, and the graham crackers on the outside are nice to hold.

Do you like to go primitive and roast meat over a forked stick or long-handled fork? Then, you'll like:

Kabobs.

For each person, allow ¼ pound round steak, ½ of a medium-sized onion, and a few slices of bacon. Cut the meat in 1-inch squares, cut the onion lengthwise, from top to bottom. Cut the slices of bacon into thirds. Place beef, onion, and bacon on a fork or stick, alternately, and broil over coals until done.

A salad that is both health-crammed and delicious for a picnic is this one made with plenty of vegetables and cottage cheese:

Vitamin Salad.
(Serves 6)

- 1 cup celery, diced
- 2 cups cottage cheese
- ½ green pepper, diced
- 1 cup carrots, shredded (cooked)
- 2 cups cabbage, shredded fine
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- Salt

Toss together all ingredients and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

A cookie treat to take with you on your picnic is this sugar-saving one:

Fruit Treats.
(Makes 12 Treats)

- 2 cups sifted, enriched flour
- 3 tablespoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 to 4 tablespoons shortening
- ½ cup milk (about)
- 1 tablespoon honey or corn syrup
- 2 eggs
- 12 cooked apricots or prunes

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening Beat 1 whole egg and 1 egg yolk, reserving white for tops. Add milk and honey to beaten eggs and add flour to mixture. Stir in only enough to hold flour together Turn on lightly floured board and knead together ½ minute. Roll ½ inch thick, cut with doughnut cutter Place on baking sheet and place an apricot or prune in the "hole" on each one. Brush with egg white and sprinkle biscuits with cinnamon sugar Bake in a moderately hot oven 12 to 15 minutes. Cinnamon sugar Mix 3 tablespoons sugar with ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Why get hot and bothered over your cooking and household problems when you can get expert advice on them? Write, explaining your problem to Miss Lynn Chambers, Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lynn Says:

For best results in outdoor cooking use a small fire. Be sure you have a deep bed of coals before you start broiling or frying your food.

To start the fire, use a soft quick burning wood like pine, spruce, hemlock, laurel, poplar, or aspen. For a good bed of coals, use a hard wood such as maple, oak, ash, beech, birch, hickory, or any available hard wood in your community.

Seasoned wood which has not lain on the ground long enough to become wet or rotted, but long enough to dry out, is best for fires. Wood without bark makes the best kind of fire, as bark will cause a fire to smoulder. To start a fire more easily, use split wood, as it burns more easily than round logs.

You won't be a sissy if you kneel when using a hand axe for chopping or splitting wood. If you use seasoned wood, it can easily be broken into convenient chunks for the fire.

ADAM AND EVE: TEMPTATION AND SIN

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 3 1-13, 23, 24.
GOLDEN TEXT—The soul that sinneth, it shall die —Ezekiel 18 4.

The finished creation of God was "very good," but before long it was marred by sin. Dr Hart-Davies in his book on Genesis speaks of a brick from the walls of ancient Babylon, now in the British museum. It "bears the imprint of one of Babylon's mighty kings. Right over the center of the royal seal is deeply impressed the footprint of a 'pariah' dog which apparently trod upon it when it was soft and plastic. Human nature is like that brick. Man originally was made in the image of God, but over the divine likeness there has been superimposed the dirty disfigurement of the devil's imprint."

We see first in our lesson the appearance of the serpent who is the subtle emissary of—

I. Satan (vv 1-5).

Man, because he was made in God's image, was not a mere automaton, having no moral choice. He was a free being who had to choose between good and evil. Obedience to God is the underlying moral principle of the universe Man was given an opportunity to obey the prohibition of one tree in the Garden of Eden The principle of prohibition in the midst of a world of privilege thus has divine sanction.

Satan provided the occasion for man's fall into sin. He came, not as the cloven-hoofed monstrosity of modern cartoonists, but as a creature more subtle than all other creation His approach in our day is just as smooth and cultured (II Cor. 11 14)

II. Sin (v. 6).

Let us be clear that sin is not a necessity, not a natural weakness of man, not a falling upward in the progress of the race, but a deliberate choice to transgress the law of God. At once it showed its true nature by reaching out and leading another into transgression.

The one who listens to a slander against God can easily begin to doubt His Word, and then it is not difficult to look at what God has forbidden. Then the desire of the flesh takes hold and disobedience follows (cf. I John 2:16).

III. Shame (vv. 7-13).

The breaking of a right relationship with God broke the perfection of man's fellowship with man. Innocence was swallowed up in a sense of shame. But the shame is far deeper than a sense of nakedness. It speaks of a heart marked with sin which makes man hide from God.

Satan had promised Adam and Eve that they should know more about good and evil (v. 5), but all the good they learned about was what they had now lost, and the evil they learned was the sin which now blackened their souls and darkened their lives.

And with them fell the whole human race, for Paul tells us in Romans 5:12 that "by one man sin entered the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."

IV. Sorrow (vv. 23, 24).

Man and his help meet, who had begun with such glorious promise in the garden, now had the great sorrow of being driven out by God. No longer to be trusted, man was kept out by the cherubim, mysterious angelic beings with the awful flaming sword.

Labor, which in the garden had been but a pleasant diversion, became a struggle against a thorn-infested ground. Sorrow was linked with motherhood, and man began to bear the heavy responsibilities of life (see Gen 3 14-19).

But we must not close our lesson without pointing out that in the midst of judgment God provided mercy The promise of man's redemption is written first in God's Book in Genesis 3:15, and from there the scarlet thread of redemptive truth runs right through the Bible to its last chapter.

Even in judging the first Adam for his sin, God thus promised the coming of the second Adam who was to redeem the race. We became members of the first Adam's family by natural birth—without the privilege of choice We become members of the family of the second Adam by a new birth—a spiritual, supernatural rebirth But the latter is by our own choice! (I Cor 15 21, 22, 45).

Wayside Ministering

Jesus was never bound down to the size of his audience. He was neither elated by a big crowd nor discouraged by an audience of one. In fact some of his most wonderful teachings were given to individuals whom he met by the wayside, the woman of Samaria, Zacchaeus, Mary and Martha, the Syrophoenician woman. Nicodemus, the woman taken in adultery, the blind man in the temple, are only a few of those to whom Jesus gave of his best as he passed them on the way.

A FLOUNCING skirt, fitted "long torso" top and kimono sleeves are the leading features of the pretty pinafore frock for girls offered in Pattern No. 1602-B. It buttons down the back—and at the shoulders and is as cool and comfortable to wear on a hot day as a romper suit would be.

Run ric-rac edging around the edges of the kimono sleeves, the neckline and shoulders—and use ric-rac in rows around the full, flaring skirt—the result will be a decorative frock which will call forth ohs and ahs from all who see it. There are panties to match, too—which may also be edged with ric-rac braid.

Barbara Bell Pattern No 1602-B is designed for 3, 4, 5, 6 and 8 years Size 4 dress and panties require 2¼ yards 35-inch material. 6 yards ric-rac

Weight-Concealing Frock.

END your search for a dress which will fit you becomingly even though you have gained unwanted weight with the effectively slimming style offered in Pattern No. 1588-B. First of all, long straight lines from shoulder to hem make the most of your height, minimize your weight. Second, a low neckline reduces bulkiness at the top and furthermore flatters because it is youthful. Third, a gathered fullness (easily achieved) permits a smooth, comfortable fit through the bodice.

Oldest National Flag

The Netherlands' flag of red, white and blue is said to be the oldest of all national flags. It dates back to 1354, when the colors of Holland and Bavaria were combined. That flag is still the official ensign for both the Dutch navy and the merchant fleet

More than 20 nations are said to have gotten their flag ideas from the Netherlands' emblem And the city of New York, first settled by the Dutch, just changed the red to yellow before adopting the ensign completely.

Here's a Gentler Way to Treat Constipation!

Do you think you have to take harsh cathartics or purges every time constipation makes you miserable? You don't—if you are one of those people with normal intestines who suffer from constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet There is a pleasanter and gentler way

All you do is eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly and drink plenty of water ALL-BRAN is a crisp, delicious cereal It works quite differently from many medicinal laxatives. They work by prodding the intestines into action or by drawing moisture into them from other parts of the body. But ALL-BRAN acts principally on the contents of the colon, helping you to have easy and normal elimination. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, see a doctor.

Loosen Up On Sugar More Available Now

EXTRA SUGAR IS NOW AVAILABLE IN THIS COUNTY

According to a communication to The Klemme Times, Ruth Hughes, secretary of Rationing Board No. 41, Garner Iowa, states:

"Stamp number 7 may be used to obtain two pounds of sugar during the period July 10, 1942, to August 22, 1942, in addition to amounts already authorized for stamps number 5 and 6."

There were 4,000 applications for canning sugar and 58,373 pounds were released.

The fall certificates are being made up in the office at Garner, and will be sent out August 1st, according to the secretary.

FARMERS TO GET EXTRA SUGAR FOR THRESHING

Iowa farmers who hire threshers, corn huskers, silo fillers and other special laborers for harvest work may obtain extra sugar from their board, Robert B. Adams, state director of the office of price administration, announced Saturday in Des Moines.

Application should be made to local rationing boards.

The amount is to be computed on a basis of half a pound per week per person.

In making the application, the farmer must declare that the ration books of the hired men have been or will be surrendered to him and that they will not be used, or that the hired men have been issued no books or they aren't available

In the latter case a good reason must be given for their non-availability

NINTH ANNUAL PRIEBE RE-UNION HELD SUNDAY

Eighty-Three Relatives Present At Picnic In Klemme Park

The ninth annual re-union of the Priebe family was held Sunday in the Klemme Park with eighty-three members present

All brought well-filled baskets of food for the picnic dinner.

The afternoon was spent in a social way and a ball game was also enjoyed.

During the business meeting Albert Priebe was elected president for the coming year; Irwin Priebe, vice-president and Mrs. Erwin Haupt, secretary.

All enjoyed a very good time and are looking forward to the reunion to be held next year.

LIBERTY 4-H GIRLS PRESENT PROGRAM AT FARM BUREAU MEETING

A Style Revue was one of the highlights of the Liberty Busy Bees 4-H program presented for the township Farm Bureau meeting at Liberty No 1 schoolhouse on Friday evening, July 10 The Style Revue was under the direction of the leaders, Mrs Victor Huenemann and Mrs Ben Goll and it featured Clothes for the Duration," including dresses which the older girls had made for younger children.

The singing of "Dear Land of Home" by the entire club opened the program Two clever little plays were given. The girls dedicated the song "Home on the Range" to the boys in service, and "Keep the Home Fires Burning" to the folks at home Other inetresting numbers were a piano solo, vocal duet and vocal trio

Near the middle of the program, in order to relax the audience and keep them interested, two of the girls led everyone in a few of the relaxing games which they had learned at the State 4-H Convention in Ames in June Another of the girls gave an interesting report of the State 4-H Convention

As two 4-H girls in uniform displayed the flag, the club members gave the Pledge of Allegiance The program closed with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner"

"BING" REECE ENLISTED IN NAVAL RESERVES

Despite War 4-H Achievement Show Will Be Held This Year

HANCOCK COUNTY 4-H ACHIEVEMENT SHOW TO BE HELD

August 17 and 18 are the dates for the annual 4-H Achievement Show in Hancock County.

The Achievement Show board has decided to hold Achievement Show after considering the request of the office of Defense Transportation that state and county fairs be cancelled for the duration.

The board decided that the show warranted being held again this year because the 4-H members have been feeding and planning their projects for the Achievement Show, and because most of the livestock exhibited by 4-H members is transported in farm trailers and market animals go directly to market in trucks.

Premium lists will be mailed to all 4-H Club Members in the near future. A class is beng added for Victory Garden projects for both boys and girls who are club members.

Every club member should work hard to present a high class exhibit whether livestock, clothing, or vegetables

Klemme Band Will Give Concert In Park Sunday Afternoon

ALLAN BARZ WILL DIRECT BAND AS LEADER GONE TO THE ARMY

Concert Scheduled To Begin At 2:30 O'clock

Allan Barz has volunteered to direct the Klemme Band this summer as Mr B O Onerheim, music instructor and director has been called into the army.

The band plans to give a variety of music in their concert scheduled to begin at 2 30 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Klemme Park.

Allan Barz has played solo cornet in the band for several years He was asked by the Town Council to take over Mr Onerheim's duties for the summer, and the Council asks that all members of the band give Allan their full cooperation in providing a band for Klemme during the summer

Rehearsal Thursday Night

In order to prepare for the concert Allan has called a rehearsal for this Thursday night and wants all band members to be present

Remember, the concert will be this Sunday, in the Park beginning at 2 30 P M

KLEMME YOUNG PEOPLE ATTENDED PICNIC AT IOWA FALLS

The young people of the Klemme Reformed Church attended a picnic of the Tri-County Youth Federation, of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, held at Logdson Park, at Iowa Falls, Sunday afternoon

Twenty-seven young folks, accompanied by Rev. Grosshuesch and Mr Walt Rosendahl, made the trip in Mr. Rosendahl's trucks

Klemme Won Tournament

The main event of the picnic was a Kittenball Tournament that was won by Klemme.

In the first round Klemme defeated Hubbard 1-0 "Hans" Neuhring emerged as the star of the game, when he caught a fly ball that was intended for a double

In the last and championship game Klemme defeated Hampton 5-0.

A picnic supper was served in the Park shelter house.

After deciding to arrange for another such event next year, the young folks returned to their homes.

About 125 were in attendance.

The Agricultural Marketing Administration in Iowa purchased the equivalent of about 11,300,000 eggs in the form of dried eggs in the first 10 days of April. Dried egg production is continuing at a high level in Iowa.

LEGION AND AUXILIARY NEED OLD PHONOGRAPH RECORDS

The Klemme Legion and Auxiliary are sponsoring a local drive to gather old phonograph records of all kinds. The records need not be in playable condition as they will be broken up and recast into late recordings for the men in the armed services.

To give new recordings of popular songs and classical music to the men in camp, aboard ship and overseas the Legion and Auxiliary must have the old records which are gathering dust in almost every American home The Legion and Auxiliary is embarking upon their part in a nation-wide campaign to collect 37,000,000 of these old records, which is about ten per cent of those known to be in the homes of the nation These old records will be ground up, pressed into new discs and made into new recordings for the fighting men.

Leave your donation of old records at Jim Thomas' barber shop, or notify any Auxiliary member.

GOODELL YOUNG MAN IS SUICIDE VICTIM

Merle Steenblock, 27 year old son of Peter Steenblock of near Goodell, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart with a shotgun Friday morning, according to County Coroner Boughton who was called on the case

Steenblock shot himself on a farm two miles east of Goodell where he was employed.

The county coroner reported despondency and schizophrenia as motive for the suicide

MISS AGNES GALBRETH IS BRIDE OF MILO PATET

Former Klemme Couple Married At Fresno, California

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Agnes Galbreth and Mr. Milo Patet was received here Monday by friends of the couple.

Miss Agnes Galbreth, daughter of Rev. Wm. Galbreth of Dike, and Mr. Milo Patet, son of Emil Patet of Klemme, were married at the Methodist Parsonage in Fresno, California, on Monday, July 6th

The bride wore a white embroidered dress with accessories to match and had a corsage of gardinias and rosebuds The groom wore a U S Army uniform.

Mrs Patet was principal of the Klemme high school for several years and for the past year has been keeping house for her widowed father, who expects to retire from the ministry this fall.

Mr. Patet was employed in the Klemme post office until he was called into the armed services several months ago.

At present Mr. and Mrs. Milo Patet are residing in an apartment at 2605 Mariposa, Fresno, California.

KLEMME AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

The Klemme American Legion Auxiliary held their regular meeting at the Community Hall on Tuesday evening.

The Unit voted to assume the responsibility of an assigned child for another year.

Committees for the year were appointed and the new officers were installed. Mrs. Oscar Johnson, County President, of Kanawha acted as installing officer

Mrs. Chas. Brown and Mrs. Knute Folson of Kanawha were guests of the evening

Lunch was served by Mrs W F. Pavey and Mrs. George Buseman.

Green tomatoes have practically the same food value as ripe red tomatoes and can be fried, stuffed, preserved, pickled, or used for pies.

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB FLOAT

Local Sportsmen's Clubs Important In Conservation

Organized groups of sportsmen exist in almost every county. Their principal objective is to increase the hunting, fishing, and trapping opportunities in the community, and their constructive conservation activities are legion. They have taken active part in all phases of the fish and game conservation program in Iowa, including game bird raising, fish planting, stream improvement, winter feedig, predator cotrol, cover planting, and many other community conservation efforts.

Bruce Stiles, Chief of Fish and Game for the State Conservation Commission, has just announced that cooperating groups have been assigned the last of the State Game Farm's 1942 hatch of pheasant chicks and now have more than 32,000 young birds in their rearing pens. The quail hatching season will soon be over, and 1942 will see more than 6,500 sportsmen-raised quail released in the coverts. Cooperating game club fish rescue plans are under way, with a great deal of this hot, back-breaking work to be done by the groups. Every hunter and every fisherman should give due credit to the local sportsmen's club and its efforts in conservation, and although hundreds of sportsmen's clubs' members are in the armed services, the organizations can be depended upon to carry out their programs as in the past.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and irregular habits, improper eating drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acids and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess waste. They have had more than a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Wireless: Elmer Davis will be missed on the networks. His dry tones had a debunking magic that ruined Nazi lies with merely an inflection . . . Radio Rome needs an editor and a rehearsal. H. Denny, the Times man, has been back writing pieces about the Italian situation for over six weeks, but the Rome short-wavers announced the other day that he is a prisoner of Italy . . . It is comforting to notice that the fright note gets more and more apparent in the Berlin broadcasts. They had three versions of American fliers over Rumania, which is the sort of stuttering that tips off a worried mind . . . Bing Crosby's appeal for 10 per cent of your salary for bonds was a corker. To wit: "It's not much to ask, a mere dime on a buck isn't giving till it hurts—because you can't give enough money to hurt. I mean hurt the way some guys are getting hurt. Pay your way. Pick up your share of the check. Funny thing. Freedom ain't free. But whatever you pay for it, it's worth it."

The Front Pages: The Times editorial, "Lidice The Immortal," on the murder of a Bohemian village, will live among the masterpieces inspired by the war . . . A Christian Science Monitor columnist pointed out this oddity in the news. That the king of Greece cooled his heels in Washington while the gov't welcomed a peasant—Molotov . . . ELMER TWITCHELL AND FOOD CONTROL

Uncle Sam has now named a WPBFRC, War Production Board Food Requirement Committee. It will look into the matter of food requirements during the war, with a view to conservation.

A good deal could be accomplished right off the bat by a simple but inflexible rule requiring people to stop overloading the fork.

* * *

We are a nation of overloaders, and if we are to guard against food shortages something's gotta be done to check us up. Watch the average American eat today, in the middle of a global war, and would you suspect he was subsisting during a great conflict? You would not. You would imagine he was trying for a new record at a picnic ground.

* * *

Elmer Twitchell, famous calorie student, pinochle player and stamp collector, has been studying the food situation, and he thinks that if Uncle Sam wants to avoid waste Step Number One should be the abolition of the Three-Decker Sandwich.

* * *

"The upper deck is a mere waste of bread," declares Elmer, "and it also involves a further waste of lettuce. There is little in these modern three-deckers except lettuce, anyhow, unless you want to admit that those tomato slices are food.

* * *

"I am for a National Committee for the Control of Lettuce also," continued Elmer. "If there is one thing which lunchroom men are profligate with it is lettuce. Of course, in many cases this comes under the head of second-hand or reconditioned lettuce.

* * *

"This new Government board should also look into the French fried situation. Boy, there's a food waste for you! The American lunchroom has come to regard French fries as a mere matter of stuffing. They are just plate fillers. They are so greasy that nobody finishes 'em, so the result is more waste. Let us have a 75 per cent cut in French fries at once by all means!

* * *

"Then there is the dining car toast situation. Did you ever try eating the toast you get with a steak sandwich on a railroad train? Mister, it was never meant to eat. Let us do something about this."

* * *

Elmer was getting quite excited. "And then there is the chicken pie situation," he resumed. "Chicken is certainly conserved through the average chicken pie, but nobody eats those onions and potatoes with which they are filled to the exclusion of anything resembling meat.

* * *

"And, by the way, if we want to save food let's soft pedal all this vitamin talk. Millions of Americans are not eating because they want the food immediately involved. They are on a vitamin binge."

SUPPLIES TO RUSSIA

The fates and the weather were good to the Russians last winter. But now another twist of fate and the weather are working against the United States and Russia.

It so happens that the polar ice cap this year has come farther south than at any other time in 100 years. This has pushed the shipping lanes by which U S. convoys carry supplies to Murmansk, closer and closer to Norway and the powerful Nazi bases there

Result is that only 200 miles of sea separate the polar ice packs and the coast of Norway—a very narrow gauntlet for ships to run, facing simultaneous attack from Nazi submarines, airplanes and destroyers.

This is why there have been losses on the route to Russia. It is also why the United States has not been able to deliver all the supplies promised Russia—though it has tried desperately and the Russians have tremendously appreciated the effort

To prey on this shipping, the Nazis have developed one of their strongest bases at Trondheim, Norway There they have not only submarines, but land-based airplanes They also have the advantage during the summer of nearly 24 hours of daylight.

Therefore, convoys skirting the north tip of Norway have to fight a running battle for three days before they can reach Murmansk. It is continuous day and night fighting, with scarcely a wink of sleep for the crews Merchant vessels bristle with armament. Guncrews have been giving a magnificent account of themselves, but the odds are tremendous

FRANCE GOES ANTI-NAZI

It can be no secret to the Nazis that scores of Frenchmen are sneaking out of France to England by small boat or even airplane. Some eventually have found their way to the United States

The story they tell is one of the most encouraging of the war pictures, but it shows our state department to be lagging months behind in its policy toward France.

The people of France, say these heroes of midnight channel-crossings, are so far ahead of the U. S. state department that it would be humorous if it were not pathetic. U. S. food shipments to French North Africa, they say, won't help win over the French people; if anything, will retard the independence movement there.

The French have been won over by much greater issues than food, and are insulted at the state department's idea that they would sell their souls for a mess of pottage.

Here are the major developments which have really influenced France:

1. The behavior of the Germans in France.

2. The fact that Britain was not only able to prevent Nazi invasion, but now is so effectively bombing the continent.

3. The resistance of the Russians.

4. American entry into the war.

Of all these, one of the most effective incidents was the British bombing of the Renault motor plant (Frenchmen had been tipped off to leave in advance), and the dropping of the French flag along the Champs Elysee by a British fighter plane last week.

So when the Big Push does come, it will find an enthusiastic French people anxious to co-operate.

Note: The French fleet, these Frenchmen say, now will not be turned over to Hitler—not because of food shipments, but because the French sailors won't permit it; and the Nazis haven't got the 35,000 naval personnel available to man them.

AXIS OILFIELDS

Behind the frequent Jap bombing raids on North Australia is a very important fact which has escaped the headlines As long as General MacArthur's planes are based on North Australia, the Japs can't go ahead with their long-cherished plans to develop the oil fields of Java.

For long-range U. S. army bombers can carry pay loads to Java and make a shambles of oil tanks and oil wells.

That is why the Japs still want to take North Australia, though since the Coral sea battle they have cooled off on the idea of landing troops in the more populated and richer areas of southeast Australia—which, incidentally, are now strongly defended.

This same principle of long distance raids by U. S. army bombers is cutting into Hitler's oil supply in Rumania. For Rumainan oil tanks are well above ground and easy targets.

To date, Hitler's only source of gasoline, so vital to his tanks and airplanes, are (1) synthetic plants in Germany, and (2) Rumiana. That's why he has to take the Russian oil fields or the war can't continue. So the most valuable help army bombers can give Russia is to blow up Rumanian oil wells.

Our Equal Right

The equal right of all men to the use of land is as clear as their equal right to breathe the air—it is a right proclaimed by the fact of their existence. For we can not suppose that some men have a right to be in this world, and others no right.—Henry George.

It Took a Woman to Solve This Intricate Code

A piece of paper covered with mystic figures and signs had been discovered on the floor of the aircraft factory.

It had been seen to fall from the handbag of a girl worker who had received it from a strange woman at the works entrance. Experts had been called in to decipher the apparent code, but all failed

Finally the manager took it home to study it further. There his wife chanced to see it, and she quickly supplied the solution.

"Why, John," she exclaimed in animation, "wherever did you get this from? It's a knitting system for a perfectly lovely sweater!"

GREENFIELD DOES IT AGAIN

Manuel Giron-Cerna of Gautemala connected with the Maritime Commission in Washington, D C, and a grandson of a former president of Gautemala. General Vincente Cerna, was principal speaker at Greenfield's Pan American 4th of July celebration His father, Dr Manuel Giron was Gautemalian minister to the United States several years ago.

WHAT ABOUT WOP WALLOPERS?

In Logan, to read the newspaper one might think there is a small war going on among the allies One reads of Jap Slappers defeating the Hun Hunters while the Hitler Haters outflank the Axis Annihilaters, but Logan folks in the know, are not unduly concerned, for they know that the headlines only refer to the sot-fball league games

IOWA AFFORDS BEST

Two Iowa home town boys who really have made good in Uncle Sam's army are Major General Edmund Bristol Gregory, 60, Quartermaster-General of the U S Army, born in Storm Lake, and Brigadier General James L Frink, 58, director of the army transport service, born in Ida Grove Before reaching their present high positions, these two big brass hats of the army were stationed all over the globe for your Uncle Sam.

STILL IN STATE SERVICE

Rep David A Dancer of Decatur county who was a candidate for speakership in the last legislature and an unsuccessful candidate for state secretary of agriculture in the recent primary election on the republican ticket, has received appointment as secretary of the state board of education, succeeding Mr Merrill R Pierson, now business manager of Michigan State College.

JOB LOYALTY

Joe Meredith of Bedford worked 39 years for the Bedford Creamery and the Cudahy Packing Co, consecutively without one day's absence from his duties, until two weeks ago when he went to Tacoma, Washington, to work in the west coast shipyards

LIVELY NECKTIE

Mrs. Leslie Young of Waverly stooped to pick up what she thot was her husband's necktie from the floor of the bedroom of her home when the "tie" squirmed in her hand It was a snake, believed to be of the water moccasin type. Her startled cry brought Mr. Young to the scene and the reptile was speedily dispatched.

CRUSHED ICE

More than $1,000 in damage was done to the Choate & Chizek ice house in Clear Lake recently when one side of the two-room structure collapsed and spilled into a side street. What caused the "explosion" is as yet undetermined. The ice house had a capacity of 2,000 tons of ice.

TRAVELING BEET

The Pioneer-Republican office at Marengo had on display recently a five-inch diameter beet that had grown through the tiny slit of a suitcase key lost in the garden of Mrs. Mary Schoeman of that city.

LEGAL

Hatter & Hatter is not the name of a new firm of derby dealers in Marengo but is a law firm with R. E. Hatter as senior member, and Arthur Hatter, his son, as the junior. The elder Hatter once was a member of the firm of the barritters, Havner, Hatter & Roller.

RIPPENTROP IN THE NAVY

Marcus W. Rippentrop, 20-year-old Kossuth county Naval enlistee, startled Navy enlistment officials in Des Moines, by admitting relationship to Germany's Foreign Minister Joachim Von Rippentrop. Young Rippentrop said his grandfather and the foreign minister's father were first cousins, but that it was the foreign minister's branch of the family that had changed the original family name, and that the American branch dropped the title "von" Young Rippentrop lives at Titonka, Iowa.

MIST QUELLER

Ever hear of a fog nozzle? It's a device attached to a fire hose and emits a fine spray used to drive smoke out of a room before the entry of the firemen. The Mt. Vernon fire department is fitting its hoses with the attachment.

STORM CASUALTIES

Eleven white-faced steers on the farm of August Holthaus near Festina were electrocuted during the storm of June 28 when they came in contact with a wire fence that was struck by lightning. The dead animals were strewn along the fence for a distance of a block and a half If the fence had had insulated posts, the chances are that most of the animals would have been saved, as an iron post would have grounded the current.

To All

Coal Users

We do not want to be too pessimistic in regard to the COAL SITUATION. However, we want to pass along this timely WARNING to our customers

The information that we get from reliable sources and what's already transpiring does seem to justify the fact that there is a possibility of a SERIOUS COAL SHORTAGE this coming WINTER unless a lot of Coal can be moved this summer.

We certainly advise you to order your winter supply at once and get your bin filled this summer.

WE THINK IT IS BOTH WISE AND ECONOMICAL TO INSURE YOUR COAL SUPPLY FOR NEXT WINTER

HANCOCK COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS REQUEST TAX LEVY

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors last week requested the state appeal board to levy an emergency tax in the sum of $20,000.

This money will be used to bolster up the poor and general county funds

The Board met Monday to prepare the 1942 county budget for publication

ANNOUNCE TIRE QUOTA

The Hancock County Rationing Board announced that 11 new tires were allowed during the week ending July 8th During that period 13 retreads were allowed

The county new car quota for July is one.

About 3,500 persons are burned to death in fires on farms and in rural areas in the United States each year

THAT'S WHERE BAIT GOES

Here's an unusual fish story, or are they unusual. While angling in Union Grove Lake, west of Gladbrook and using two poles, Mrs F W. Scharfenberg noticed the lines indicated two "bites," at about the same time Pulling in the lines she found that she had caught the same fish twice as it had both the hooks in its mouth.

ANTIQUE NOT RELIC

Frank Warnock who has farmed near Woodward since 1900 still uses a 43-year-old Hayes corn planter to put in his crop The implement is doing fine service after all these years

Crickets and 'Hoppers Thrive on Same Crops

Every spring hordes of Mormon crickets and grasshoppers hatch from eggs deposited during the previous summer and autumn, and then begin their destructive attack upon crops and virtually every type of vegetation throughout 24 Western states. The Mormon cricket is a serious pest, however, only in 11 northern Rocky Mountain and Plains states.

These insects are similar in size, go through the same stages of development, and do their damage during the growing season But entomologists of the federal department of agriculture point out that because of physical differences their methods of attack differ Mormon crickets are unable to fly. They attack on foot. Most injurious grasshoppers also migrate to some extent on foot but after reaching maturity some species are active fliers and migrate by flight in great swarms, destroying vegetation wherever they alight.

The most effective method of combating Mormon crickets is by dusting the migrating hordes with sodium arsenite Barriers with pens to trap the crickets are an effective supplementary control Millions of crickets pile on top of each other in the pens and are killed with a sodium arsenite dust or crude oil solution. Another method, similar in principle, is to dig trenches to trap the crawling cricket army.

Hoppers are controlled by feeding them poison bait The most effective method is to broadcast a moistened mixture of bran, sawdust and liquid sodium arsenite Wherever practicable this bait is applied on egg bed areas to poison the young hoppers and thus prevent migration.

Last year the federal government spent approximately $2,200 000 in controlling grasshoppers This was supplemented by contributions from co-operating states, estimated at slightly in excess of $1 300,000

The cost of controlling Mormon crickets during the same year was nearly $400,000, co-operating states contributing $201,000 Protection was afforded to 1,375 564 crop acres. Crops on only 12,935 acres were destroyed.

Studies at Iowa State College show that hay baled out of the windrow can be safely stored if it has 20 percent or less of moisture If baled with 23 to 30 per cent moisture it may mold and if the moisture content is 35 percent or over it is almost sure to mold.

Indian Belle of 1850's Had 'Modern' Wardrobe

Modern modistes who pride themselves on the "exclusive" nature of their 1940 creations for the business girl would be more than a little chagrined if they examined the wardrobe of the Sioux Indian belle in the frontier days of the Southwest.

Inspection of some of the beautifully ornate Sioux Sunday dresses in the University of Arizona museum in Tucson shows that underneath the beadwork finery and the numerous decorations, the Indian garment very closely resembles the "swagger" type business suit worn by the modern office girl.

The shoulders are padded, with a draped, fitted back, and the skirt is the 1850 equivalent of the present day "swing" types. Even the skirt length of the Indian belle's dress approximates the knee-length models considered so chic today.

The Indian maiden's idea of decorations for her buckskin dress, however, differed radically from the present day accessories. But experts who have seen both the Indian model and the modern fashions insist the Sioux garb is just as beautiful and expensively tailored.

The shoulders and blouse of the Indian dress are solidly covered with red, white and blue designs on wrought silver and turquoise bracelets and a heavy silver belt, joined with buckskin thongs, complete the ornaments on the dress.

The Indian maid herself was well decorated. The straight part in her jet-black hair was painted with bright vermilion dye. Around her neck were furs, otter scarfs, necklaces of bear claws and various ornaments. To complete the ensemble, long waist length strings of shells hung from her pierced ears.

Old Ocean-Sailing Craft Used in Training Sailors

Sailors down Florida way who want to learn the seas as the old salts did still have the opportunity.

On an old sailing craft, a sailor learns the signs of the sun and the stars and how to set his ship for foul weather, things that are almost forgotten in these days of modern seamanship.

With that in mind, the government maintains a picturesque old three-master in the harbor at St. Petersburg for the officers and apprentice seamen selected from the nation's CCC camps for maritime training.

The ship is the old 158-foot Joseph Conrad, built in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1882. It served many years as a Danish training ship but it now belongs to the U. S. Maritime commission, which bought it as a training ship. At first it was stationed at Hoffman's island, New York, but was brought to St. Petersburg when the new training station was established there.

Prize Hunting Story

Officials of the annual Pisgah National Forest deer hunt, in North Carolina, while swapping stories of the last year's event, gave top prize to this one:

An amateur nimrod, on his first day in the hunt, tramped the woods from dawn to sunset and returned to camp empty handed and discouraged. He decided to insure success for the next day and hired a veteran guide. The two set out early. They had gone only a short while when the guide tapped the amateur hunter on the shoulder and whispered: "Quiet now; here come three deer." The hunter clenched his hands on his gun and looked in the direction of the guide's pointing finger. Then he exclaimed: "Gosh! Are those things deer? I passed up a lot of them yesterday."

Migrating Birds Use Sun

What guides birds on their annual migrations has long been a topic for discussion and disagreement among scientists. One of the latest theories, which is advanced by Dr. Stanley C. Ball of Yale university, is that birds navigate by the sun. At least, Dr. Ball says, at the start of their journey and in early morning and late afternoon their route is outlined by the light of the rising or setting sun on treetops and is by no means the straight-line flight popularly imagined. Dr. Ball studied the departure of song birds from the Gaspe peninsula in Quebec. He found they tend to follow the tree lines, especially along ridges. A relatively narrow strip of water or a patch of cleared country will turn them aside many miles out of their way.

Taking Out Those 'Rings'

Rings caused by using cleaning fluid on spots may be removed by the following methods:

Place the ringed material right side up over a cotton pad and rub the edge of the ring lightly with the fingernail or the edge of a spoon or coin. Or rub the fabric between the hands. Materials with a crepe weave often respond to this treatment. If, however, neither of these methods is effective, the fabric may be steamed. Boil a small quantity of water in a tightly closed teakettle. Cover the spout with a piece of cheesecloth to prevent water drops from escaping and spotting the fabric. Hold the ringed spot over the escaping steam just long enough to become moist, not wet. Then shake the material dry and press.

Success of Blood Plasma In Transfusion Announced

Dr. Sidney O. Levinson of Chicago explained recently to members of the American Medical association at a pathology and physiology meeting how blood serum or blood plasma may be used instead of a regular blood transfusion in emergency cases where delay caused by the typing of the patient's blood might prove fatal. The serum and the plasma, constituting as they do the liquid content of the blood without the cells, may be given to any patient regardless of what type his blood may be.

Reporting on experimental studies made by Dr. Frank E. Rubovits Jr., Dr. Heinrich Necheles and himself, Dr. Levinson said that of 47 patients treated with the serum or plasma, all of them benefited by the injections and some made "dramatic recoveries."

Sixteen of the patients, he said, were suffering from shock and hemorrhage, a common condition after a Caesarian operation, and it was the prepared blood serum, which can be kept on hand for long periods of time, which helped them in their eventual recovery. Other cases, he said, were suffering from plain shock, burns or hypoproteinemia, a low protein content in the blood, and although some of them would have recuperated without the injections, the serum was of great aid in their recovery.

Dr. Levinson said that only one of his patients had any reaction to the injection, and that was confined to local pain and swelling.

At the same session Dr. Elmer L. De Gowin and Dr. Robert C. Hardin of Iowa City, Iowa, reported on the effects of using preserved blood in regular transfusions. They have performed 2,423 blood transfusions, 295 of which used fresh blood, and Dr. De Gowin said that no reactions were encountered from preserved blood which have not occurred from the use of fresh blood. The most common reaction, he said, was chills and fever, which occurred in 2 per cent of the cases during or immediately after the transfusion.

Use Airplanes to Locate Center of Old Civilization

How the modern airplane has taken man on a flight into time—going back 6,000 years in one or two hours—is related by Dr. Erich F. Schmidt, of the University of Chicago's Oriental institute. Dr. Schmidt made many such flights in Iran, where he was field director of an archeological expedition. Through aerial observation, he explained, it was possible to find rich areas never before penetrated—centers of ancient civilization.

"From the air," declared Dr. Schmidt, "we have been able to follow routes followed thousands of years ago by caravans. We have found mounds covering ancient cities. Some of these places would have required weeks or months to locate by an overland route. They were found in a few hours by air."

In one venture, Dr. Schmidt said, aerial archeologists flew for 2½ hours to find the route of an ancient overland caravan. It took three weeks of overland tracking to follow this route after it was discovered by air, but it led to a sanctuary of the Assyrian empire period of about 800 B. C. As a result there were uncovered many valuable objects relating to the period.

"The exploration of this place," said Dr. Schmidt, "gave a remarkable picture of the mixture in this remote place of the sophisticated Assyrian and the rough mountain cultures."

Arsenic From Tobacco

Dr. Edwin E. Barksdale of Danville, Va., advises persons unusually sensitive to arsenic not to smoke. Some persons, he reports, develop itching and inflammation of the skin if they absorb any appreciable amount of arsenic. After studying several persons afflicted in this way, he discovered they got their arsenic from tobacco, and could recommend no cure except to stop smoking. The arsenic in tobacco comes from the arsenate of lead with which farmers spray the growing plant to prevent horn worms from destroying it, Dr. Barksdale reported. No other insecticide serves the farmer's purpose so well, he said, because the arsenate of lead has the property of adhering to the tobacco leaf. There is no known way of removing the arsenate of lead during the curing or manufacturing processes, he added. But only the hypersensitive and allergic suffer.

Traffic Nerves

What makes a person a "Jekyl and Hyde" once he sits in the driver's seat of an automobile? In other words why do persons, who are normal, kind and pleasant on most occasions become regular "Hydes" when they sit behind the wheel of an automobile?

Dr. George H. Mount, a psychologist, recently made "at-the-wheel" tests of drivers' reactions using various gauges and apparatus and has reached the conclusion that "jitters" incidental to motor car operation is caused by the sudden shocks plus irritation that increases as traffic thickens. The sudden shocks arise from failure to make a signal, sudden cutting in front of driver, failure to pick up enough speed in an emergency and the sudden swerving necessary to avoid a pedestrian.

Civilian Front Prepared for War Economy

Americans to Face Changes Necessary For Final Victory

By CLIFF LANGE

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Uncle Sam says, "There are going to be some changes made!"

Those changes, on a nation-wide scale, are going to affect 132 million Americans. They will reach into every home in the United States and influence the lives and habits of all.

According to the Office for Emergency Management's division of civilian supply, the next few months will see the effects of war economy in the fields of clothing, transportation, housing and food. Some of the slow, but soon to accelerate, changes are already noticeable.

For many months specialists in the Division of Civilian Supply, working in conjunction with other federal departments, have been gauging and charting the needs of this nation's civilian population. Once these needs have been plotted, they will then be fitted in with the nation's war economy.

Civilians Must Sacrifice, Too.

In other words, it all means this: If it is found necessary to use certain food products for armed forces, or certain pieces of equipment for defense plants, or certain material for defense plant workers, then the ordinary civilians of this nation are going to do without to fill that need.

Lack of cargo space for imports also means that many former products purchased abroad for home consumption are not going to be available for Americans.

Officials in Washington commented on the fact that there have been many rumors about rationing of clothing.

Joseph L. Weiner, deputy director of the division of Civilian supply, had this to say about it: "It appears now that the rationing of clothing can be avoided this year."

That doesn't mean though there will be no changes made. Beside the present style modifications (cuffless trousers, for instance) other garments will not be as "glamorous" as they have been. Frills on clothing are out.

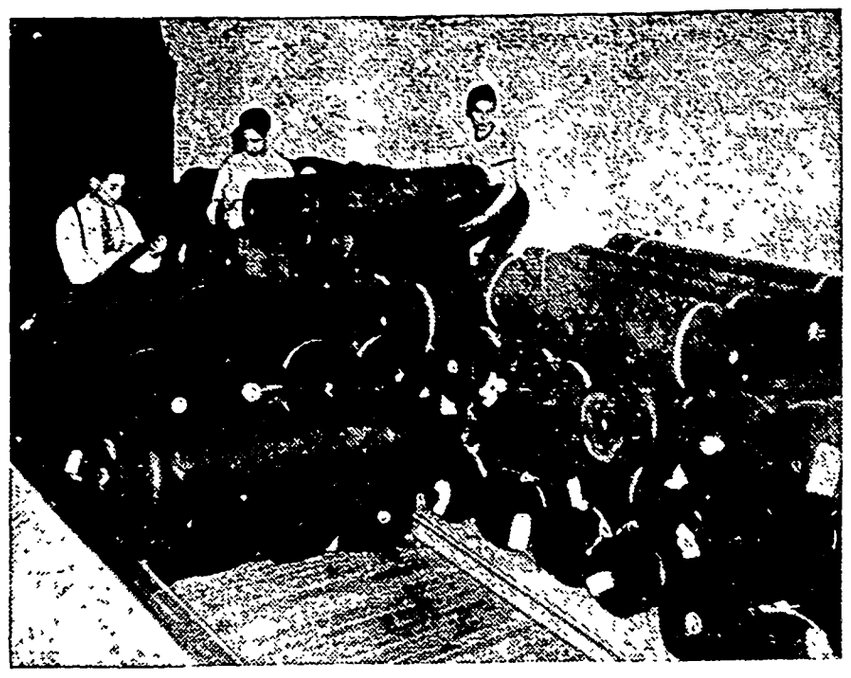
The American people are going to dress for war, even though they are on the home front fighting.

The military demand for wool is going to bring about additional minor style changes. To conserve on wool, cloth manufacturers are going to have to blend their allotted supply of that material with other materials. Americans are going to wear more cotton.

Another problem in the clothing field that is pending is leather. As federal rationing officials put it concerning any possible leather shortage, "There is nothing in the leather picture to get excited about now."

But the problem is still there. There are still plenty of shoes in the stores for civilians, but the demands of the armed forces for shoes increase very rapidly.

All in all, Americans working hard on the home front needn't think that they won't be warmly and adequately clothed this coming winter. They will be even though there isn't going to be the former "dressiness" on their attire.



This picture indicates one of the reasons why the American people are going to have less wool in their clothing. Above you see great bolts of woolen cloth being checked before being made into uniforms for Uncle Sam's fighting men.

Transportation difficulties, too, are going to bring about decided changes in the American way of living during the war.

Everyone knows there is a shortage of gasoline. But they should also know there is a growing shortage of fuel oil.

This means a change in the usual "visiting" habits of not only Mr. and Mrs Fred Jones, but of Little Johnny, Sister Helen, Grandma and Grandpa, and the rest of the family and their relatives.

More Staying at Home.

For instance: With a shortage of gasoline, in fact, a rationing of that fuel, there is going to be more of the "stay at home" attitude. Sister Helen's fellow isn't going to be able to take her out riding. Little Johnny isn't going to be allowed to have the car to drive to the next town to bowl or go sightseeing.

Mom and Pop aren't going to get in the car and drive 40 or 50 miles to the next town to purchase supplies, or go to a show, or visit friends. They are going to do all their purchasing at home, go to shows in their home-town, and visit their friends in town more often than before.

Grandma and Grandpa are going to have to forego their usual Sunday ride or customary visit to old friends over in another section of the county.

All in all, the American family is going to be thrown back on their own more than ever.

It won't take long, though, before they fully realize that the idea of "stay at home" is as enjoyable and beneficial as the "buy at home" plan.

Main Street 'Dim Out.'

It is highly probable, that when more and more electric power is needed, the lights on Main streets—thousands of Main streets throughout the United States—will be dimmed. Many towns will be having "dimouts" instead of the blackouts which cities and towns along the East and West coast are experiencing.

You might think that your tomorrows promise to be dull, what with rationing of many articles, unavailability of others, staying at home, and curtailed railroad and bus travel. You might think so for a short time. But then, when you fully realize what you can do, and what you are doing for the coming victory, it won't be thought of as drab and dull.

You will realize it is in freedom's name that you are doing without many formerly ordinary things of everyday living. You will become conscious of the fact that you aren't standing in breadlines for food, or listening to round after round of propaganda radio programs, or staying indoors after the curfew sounds. Those things are true in a Hitler-dominated nation.

A change in the housing habits of the American people will be noticeable only in those areas where critical victory projects are under way.

Unlike enforced labor in dictator-dominated Europe, American workers are moving voluntarily to those cities where projects are being worked day and night, employing thousands upon thousands of people. Consequently, many towns have found a continually growing housing shortage.

The 'Army' of Cooks

America's women have been drafted, too.

Administrator of the Office of Defense, Health and welfare Services, Paul V. McNutt, and staff, are calling upon the women of America to see to it that the workers and children of this nation get the most wholesome food, prepared appetizingly.

Now watch the Nation's Army of Cooks lead their army to vitality, health, and happiness.

Here are some of their army rules of cooking warfare:

Well balanced meals.

Tasty meals.

Meals with plenty of energy-giving foodstuffs.

Plenty of food without wasting it.

Economical and thoughtful substitution for those foodstuffs not obtainable.

Even trailer-camp towns, laid out on the edge of the towns themselves, are being filled to capacity. Rather than resort to the plan enforced in England, where compulsory billeting of war workers has been resorted to, U. S. officials are appealing to those who own homes in industrial zones to let out their spare rooms to workers. Many former "private" homes are now being rented to "outsiders."

Then, too, most war workers—many of whom have left their wives and children at home—are not in a position to buy a home, either because their incomes are not sufficient, or because they may have to be moved at any time.

As a result federal officials are discouraging privately financed home construction and are seeking priority assistance on those projects that will be made available for rental to workers.

Forego Home Building.

Many prospective home owners will have to forego building their own homes this year, or buying one already constructed. Uncle Sam wants his defense area workers housed properly so that they can continue producing the necessary arms and armament.

More noticeable than in the above mentioned instances are the changes in the eating habits of America's consumers.

More rationing in various foodstuffs other than sugar seem highly probable. Increased rationing doesn't mean, however, that this country will lack a sufficient supply of staples, or that the American diet will lack its necessary and vital elements.

The eating habits of the nation will have to change. Look for many of our imported foodstuffs to become more and more scarce, and probably rationed. Many of the food staples produced or grown within the country will become scarce too Much of the food is going to the U. S. armed forces here in the United States, and wherever they might be stationed in the world.

All in all, Americans today are experiencing in part what their British Allies have experienced for some time. Today the American people are getting their first experience lessons of what is in store for them as the nation moves forward.

That they can take it, there is no doubt. That they can readjust their lives to the conditions of the day is also practically a certainty. That they can carry on as well as—or maybe better than—industry is to be proven. It is going to be interesting to watch America change the world by changing its habits.

Fighting men must eat—eat plenty of good, nourishing food. These new army recruits are getting their first view of what food they'll get while working for world-wide freedom. If civilian America finds that certain of their favorite food isn't to be had, it is being dished out instead, such as here, to American and United Front Allied troops throughout the world. This is an official U. S. army signal corps photo.

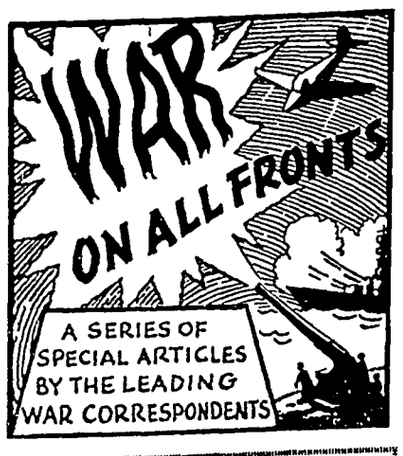
'Wardrobe Stretchers' For Fashion-Conscious Women Can Be Had

Look in the accessory department of the store for the little extras called "wardrobe stretchers," is the word which Miss Barbara Borhek, instructor in home economics, University of Illinois college of agriculture, has for fashion-conscious women.

"The new WPB ruling L85 has made it impossible to buy such things as extra little jackets with a dress or little colorful aprons attached to a dress.

"So for a while at least, it will become more and more the fashion to offer these additions at the accessory counter."

This will be the place, she said, to keep one's eyes open for such tricks as patchwork ruffling for the bottom of a gay skirt, a gingham belt with huge pockets attached and a matching color, a separate wool sleeve yoke for winter color to transform an old dress or a printed tie-on peplum.



Flight Over Panama

By Walter Davenport

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Colliers Weekly)

WE'RE flying high and wide. The Pacific's so calm in the white of the moon, it looks frozen. Our ship's a light bomber—a swift murdering swooper that has us thinking of the beautiful Harpies who snatched those whom the gods condemned This is war, but it doesn't seem like war. Too quiet. You have to remind yourself.

We make notes as we soar, bank, dive, and we hope we'll be able to read them later. Gilky's at the controls—relaxed, nonchalant, his elbow on the shelf of the instrument panel, his chin in his hand. If it weren't for the long, lancing search of his eyes you'd say he was bored. We make a note of that and he senses that we're studying him. He grins at us as suddenly, almost joyously obeying the touch of his hand, the plane peels off to the side, slips laterally, dives at the sea Whatever we were writing then became halfway a slithering pencil line. Gilky thinks that's fun

Gilky at the Controls.

Brig Gen Adlai Gilkeson of Lansdale, Pa., and the United States army air forces, boss of the Caribbean Interceptor command, beloved from the White House down to the last Central American jungle airfield as "Gilk" or "Gilky," throws the ship over as you'd cut at a bush with a switch

We dive at an unnamed ripple in the black and silver swell of the misnamed ocean. It's only a smuggler's craft—one of the long, low motorboats that crawl back and forth between matted Colombia's Solano bay, past the canal and on to Parita bay in the Gulf of Panama. Perhaps he's our friend. Anyway, he waves to us, doffs his hat with a great sweeping gesture.

Waiting for Attack.

Gilky's sore. If ever there's been a man spoiling for fight, it's Gilk. This Panama canal assignment is purely defensive. Land, sea and air forces, such as they are today and such as they'll be tomorrow, walk and fly the isthmus and skitter up and down its shores, waiting, waiting, waiting for the attack. They're sure it will come. Waiting makes them thin and sharp and short of temper. They sit beside the huge detectors, their long-distance ears, mounted and cocked on the hills and mountains. Hour follows hour; days and nights pass by. No Japs. Gilk grows picturesquely profane. He'd rather get licked in a fight than loaf around waiting for one.

"D'ya see that fighter?" says Gilk, before we leave Albrook Field to make our patrol. "D'ya see it?" He points to a long sleek beauty whiskered with machine guns and engined to pace the wind. His voice is wistful.

"Come the Japs to blast the locks," says Gilk, "and I'll wait until I've got all my boys in the air. When the last interceptors are up I'll turn control over to someone and take off in that one myself and get me my ration of little yella fellas. Oh, why don't they come?"

So we're out over the Pacific with Gilk, hoping tonight's the night. This is the place to be if you want to get the Panama picture. Before we strike south we see things that make us laugh, that make us hope, that make us calculate

A Sight to Behold.

We see the shine of the canal, the sweep of Albrook Field, the winding roads of Balboa Heights and the broad, smug, termite-gnawed government houses. Yonder, similarly gloomed down but not blacked out are the United States naval reservation, Fort Amador, Ancon and Sosa Hills Diablo Heights and Corozal; and beyond, the new locks. These districts "dark down" at six when the hot daylight ceases and suddenly it's night. There is no evening, no twilight. Suddenly it's night. But blackout—lights out—doesn't happen until eleven and you wonder why they wait almost until midnight You wonder until you see it from the skies. Actually you can't blackout the canal any more than Londoners could blackout the beckoning guiding Thames, or New York the Hudson river.

Throughout the night, our radio tells us lots of things we may not repeat here. But the suspicion grows that the Japs have a base somewhere in western South America. It is still a suspicion, but one that won't die. We know the spots where they are most likely to be.

The South Americans are helping us scout them. When there is any certainty, we'll blast them. We're tired of watchful waiting, of appeasing. But that's what the canal's defenders are watching closest. Two or three planes, bent on a suicidal raid, might attack.

'The People's Choice'

FIFTY years ago this month occurred an event unique in American political history. For on July 5, 1892, a convention of the Populist, or People's, party nominated Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa for President. Weaver has the distinction of being the only man who was ever the leader of two different "third parties" and as the head of one of them he received the fourth highest number of electoral votes ever given such a candidate.

Born in Ohio in 1833, Weaver was graduated from the law school of the Ohio university at Cincinnati at the age of 22 and migrated to Iowa to practice his profession. At the outbreak of the Civil war he enlisted in the Union army and came out of it a brigadier general.

After the war Weaver returned to Iowa to resume his law practice but was soon called to public office—first as a district attorney and later as assesor of internal revenue.

Dissatisfaction of the farmers with the financial policies of President Grant resulted in the formation, by inflationists who wanted to issue a large amount of paper money without regard to specie payment, of the National Greenback party in which Weaver was a leader. In the campaign of 1876 the Greenbackers nominated Peter Cooper of New York for President but he polled only 80,000 popular votes and failed to receive a single electoral vote.

In the congressional elections of 1878 the Greenbackers did much better. They polled more than a million votes and elected a number of congressmen, among them General Weaver, who served until 1881. In the meantime he was a delegate to the 1880 national convention of his party in Chicago and there became its nominee for President. Because of Weaver's popularity in the West, the Republican party was greatly alarmed over the possibility of his taking away enough votes from them to assure a Democratic victory. But their fears proved groundless for the Greenbackers were able to muster only 350,000 votes and not a single one in the electoral college.

In 1884 Weaver was elected to congress by the Democratic and Greenback-Labor parties, was re-elected in 1886 but defeated for a third term in 1888. Meanwhile, a new "third party" had sprung up to champion the cause of the farmer and the working man and rapidly gained adherents. In the state and congressional elections of 1890 this Populist, or People's party carried the legislatures of Kansas and Nebraska, elected nine members of congress and forced 34 others, Republicans and Democrats, to pledge themselves to carry out Populist ideas about free coinage of silver, issue of paper money to be loaned directly to farmers on the security of their crops, abolition of national banks, government ownership of public utilities, establishment of a postal savings bank, and a graduate income tax and prohibition of alien land ownership.

Most of these ideas were incorporated in a book, "A Call to Action," which Weaver, the former Greenbacker, had published in 1892 and when the Populists held their nominating convention in Chicago that year he became their candidate for President. This time he did better than he had done as the standard-bearer of the Greenbackers. He corralled 1,041,028 popular votes and received 22 electoral college votes. In his own state Weaver received only 20,095 votes but he did much better in Kansas, where Populism was rampant. There he was given 162,845 votes

This was the climax of Weaver's political career. He never again aspired to high political office although he served as mayor of the city of Colfax, Iowa, from 1904 to 1906 and died there in 1912.

During its short career the Populist party gave to American political history more picturesque characters, perhaps, than any party before or since One of them was Mary Ellen Lease of Kansas who as a campaigner for the Populists rejoiced in a variety of sobriquets—"Mary Yellin'," "the Patrick Henry in Petticoats," and "the Lady Orator of the West." But she is best remembered for the advice which she roared at the delegates to the Chicago convention 50 years ago—"What you farmers need to do is to raise less corn and more hell!"

EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to get it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. This evil, arising shows another of its ancient facets—shows itself as an old enemy making all our business relations more secure and pleasant.

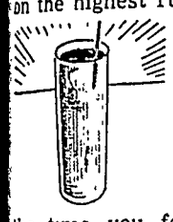
Cool, Ice-Tinkling Drinks Ward Off Summer Fatigue
(See Recipes Below.)

Sugar-Saving Drinks



When the thermometer's perched on the highest rung of the temperature ladder, do you feel your spirits sagging, your energy running low? Yes, the warm weather begins to take its toll just about the time you feel you need push and drive most. But, make a comeback, quickly and easily with a healthful, fruit-juicy drink served in a tall, colorful frosty glass.

An attractively served drink will perk up your spirits more quickly than you can say "Jack Spratt!" Plan to freeze some of those fragrant mint leaves and those few odd berries left over from the shortcake, with water in the ice cube trays for they make a pretty drink. Or, if you like colored ice cubes that prevent your summer beverage from taking on a watery taste, freeze fruit juices diluted with water into ice cubes. You'll like this.

There's a lot more to be said for cool drinks other than their general nice appearance Besides providing your system with the vitamin C, in excellent quantity, and A and B in good quantity, the citrus fruits, oranges and lemons, act as alkalizers for the system. This acts as insurance against fatigue, which is a big thing in warmer weather.

Milk and ice cream are perfect ingredients with fruit juices for cooling drinks Not only do they contain most of the requisites for a well-balanced diet, but they are easy to take and lend themselves in pleasant combination with other foods.

Your biggest problem with summer drinks will come in trying to save sugar. But don't let this stump you, for you can use fruit juices that have natural sugars. honey as a sweetener, and milk and ice cream, which need very little or no other sweetening at all.

Try fruit powders, too, using 1 level tablespoon of the fruit powder with 3 teaspoons of honey to 1 glass of water or milk. Fill the glass with shimmering ice chips and you have an excellent thirst quencher in a drink.

Fruit juices used with ice cream and honey are kind to the sugar ration

Orange Cooler.
(Makes 1½ quarts)

2 cups orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup maraschino cherry juice
1 cup ginger ale
2 tablespoons honey

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Definite news has reached me on the spice situation, so now you homemakers can see exactly what is available in this line.

There's enough to go around freely of: cayenne, red pepper, mustard, chili powder, dill seeds, oregano, paprika, curry, cake spice, mixed pickling spice, celery seed, onion and garlic salt and powder, bay leaves, marjoram, cardamon, anise and black pepper.

Careful use is indicated for these spices: cinnamon, mace, allspice, white pepper, cloves, nutmeg and ginger.

Canning rubbers, lids, jars, etc. are available in sufficient quantity for this season's produce. An extra ration of sugar for canners will be allowed, amounting to five pounds per person for the year.

There's a possibility that coffee, tea, and cocoa may come in for rationing. Homemakers are also advised to save and conserve all fats, grease and oil. If you cannot use the fat at home, keep it well preserved in a cool place to prevent its becoming rancid, then bring to your butcher.

SUMMER REFRESHMENTS
I.
*Chocolate Crunch
*Orange Cooler
II.
*Honey Chocolate Nut Cookies
*Root Beer Flip
*Recipes Given

1 pint vanilla ice cream
2 tablespoons sliced maraschino cherries

Mix fruit juices and ginger ale; add honey, mix well. Chill thoroughly Add ice cream and stir until blended Serve in chilled glasses topped with cherry slices

Orange Ginger Ale Punch.
(Serves 12 to 15)

1 quart orange ice
2 quarts ginger ale
Orange slices
Maraschino cherries with stems
Sprigs of mint leaves

Place orange ice in punch bowl and pour in ginger ale. Garnish with orange slices attractively cut and floated in punch. Add cherries and mint sprigs.

Milk drinks make cool, tempting refreshments, and are just the thing for afternoon or evening snacks:

Orange Quench.
(Serves 1)

¾ cup milk
¼ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon sugar

Combine ingredients and beat until thoroughly blended. Serve chilled.

Root Beer Flip.
(Serves 1)

½ cup root beer
½ cup milk
1 serving vanilla ice cream

Pour root beer and milk into a tall glass. Add ice cream and serve immediately.

Maple Cooler.
(Serves 1)

2 tablespoons maple syrup
¼ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk
Few grains salt

Combine ingredients and beat one minute. Top with whipped cream, if desired.

You will be driving around less these summer evenings for your breath of fresh air, but you will probably spend more time on your back porch, having the neighbors drop in and serving them simple drinks and a few sugar-saving cookies for the in-between-meal snack. You'll enjoy both of these recipes:

Honey Chocolate Nut Cookies.

½ cup butter
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup honey
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup sifted flour
½ cup chopped nuts

Melt butter and chocolate over hot water and stir until blended. Combine eggs, sugar, honey and salt in bowl. Add flour which has been sifted once before measuring. Mix thoroughly, add chocolate mixture and beat until smooth. Add nuts. Drop from spoonfuls on greased baking sheet, and bake in a slow (300-degree) oven 15 minutes. Remove from sheet immediately. The cookies taste better when mellowed, so pack in a tight container between layers of waxed paper.

Chocolate Crunch.

½ pound semi-sweet or sweet milk chocolate
1 cup oven-popped rice cereal

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add cereal and stir until blended. Pack into a pan lined with waxed paper. Allow to set until chocolate hardens, then cut into squares.

JINX FALKENBURG received an urgent request from a group of soldiers at a U. S. military outpost recently; signing themselves as the boys in "Hut #33, Iceland," they begged her to send them a large picture of herself in a bathing suit, as soon as possible. "We want to put it on the wall for two important reasons," they wrote "1—It will give us something interesting to look at 2—It will help to keep the captain's eyes busy when he comes around to inspect our quarters" She sent a picture five feet high!

"Once Upon a Honeymoon" unites three of the screen's top figures in the studio where each has previously scored triumphs—RKO Radio. They're Ginger Rogers and Cary Grant, who've both made plenty of hit pictures, and Leo McCarey, producer-director of such delightful films as "Love Affair" and "My Favorite Wife." "Once Upon a Honeymoon" is the kind of thing they all do best.

J. Carroll Naish is going to be seen as an ape-man, no less, in 20th Century-Fox's "Buried Alive." It's this company's first effort in the horror line, and just the title promises well. John Shepperd and Lynne Roberts will have the romantic leads.

Rosalind Russell is booked for another of those pictures in which she's such a clever and handsome young business woman that she makes business women in the audience green with envy. This one will be "Portrait of a Lady," and the plot (which somehow has a familiar ring) deals with the efforts of a husband to win his wife away from a business career.

"Guerrilla Brigade," the Soviet picture which was shown in New York recently, has been booked by the RKO circuit and is scheduled for national release. This is the first time in some years that a Russian picture has been booked by a major theater chain here.

Those bitter little quarrels between actors and motion picture companies no longer mean what they once did, not since radio's here to stay. When Madeleine Carroll and Paramount disagreed not long ago, the beautiful Miss Carroll merely departed for New York and picked up some engagements to broadcast, at $2,500 each. Paul Muni and his studio parted, so he did a stage play, got $5,000 apiece for several radio performances, then signed with another studio John Garfield and Warner Bros. disagreed, and radio grabbed him.

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

CAIN AND ABEL: A CONTRAST

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 4 1-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous —Hebrews 11 4

The weed of sin is fast growing, and brings forth bitter fruit The disobedience of Adam and Eve resulted in their being put forth from the garden, but that judgment did not terminate the awful plague of sin We see it in this lesson showing forth in their son, as it has in all the sons of Adam down through the centuries

It is a dark picture and one which would discourage us did we not know that redemption has been wrought out by "the second man, the Lord from heaven" (I Cor 15. 47)

We have here two sons of Adam with their differing personalities, a clash and the first murder, and then one man, a vagabond on the face of the earth

I. Two Sons (vv 1-7).

The birth of a child is always an exciting occasion, and one can readily imagine what it must have meant when the first boy ever to be born put in his appearance What joy, what concern for his welfare, what plans for the future! And then, what disappointment and sorrow!

But before speaking of that, let us observe how he and his brother differed in their interests and personalities. It is a surprising thing how completely different two sons in the same family can be

Abel chose the work of a shepherd, much honored in the early history of man. Cain became a tiller of the soil, which with the passage of time has come to be more important than the other

They also had a different viewpoint on worship. Cain was a religious man. He apparently was the first to worship, but he came in the spirit of one who recognized God only as his Creator, the One worthy of his homage. Abel came also with a gift, but his attitude was quite different. His offering spoke of sacrifice, the need of a covering for sin (cf. Gen. 3:21) It was more than homage, it was a plea for forgiveness.

The Lord's acceptance of Abel's sacrifice made Cain angry (v. 5). Here again he differed from Abel, for there was no angry response on his part. Abel had recognized God's desire in worship. Cain not only failed to do so, but rejected God's instruction and His plea (vv. 6, 7).

Jealousy led to anger, and anger (as it so often does) led to

II. Murder (vv. 8, 9).

Instead of repentance and correction, the anger of Cain carried him to the awful conclusion of hatred, the taking of life We tend to think of murder as a crime which only a desperately wicked man would commit. We hardly think of the "respectable" little sin of envy as being the root of murder, but it is, often and sometimes very quickly.

Actually there is no little sin, for it is the genius of sin to grow, to increase, to go step by step, yes, often by leaps and bounds, to its horrible fruition. "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked who can know it?" (Jer. 17 9) Why trust it?

The deceitfulness of Cain's heart is shown by the callous evasiveness of his reply to God concerning his murdered brother. His sin brought God's question. It always does Do not assume that you can hide from Him. It has been suggested that committing sin is like touching a burglar alarm—the bell rings, and one must answer for his act.

"Am I my brother's keeper?" is the perfect expression of the selfish and indifferent attitude of the world. Human beings are regarded as simply those to be exploited, beings upon whom they may prey. For example: Just to make money, men are willing to destroy a fellow man with intoxicating liquor, or break down his decency and morality by selling him indecent books or magazines.

Murder having taken one of the two sons, we find that the remaining one is just

III. A Vagabond (vv. 10-15).

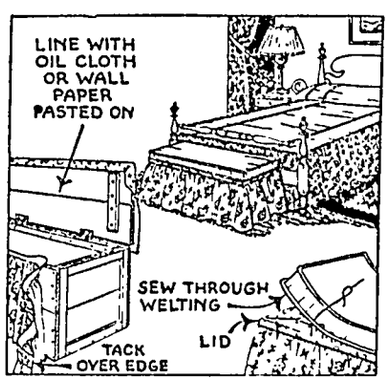
Judgment for sin made Cain a wanderer and a fugitive. Never would he be able to get away from the cry of his brother's blood (v. 10). No wonder he said he could not bear it. But notice that his cry was not one of repentance or contrition, but only of fear, of retribution.

So God shows mercy, forbidding the judgment of men upon Cain. Vengeance belongs to God, and in this first murder He reserved judgment to Himself. Later He put upon man the responsibility of judging and punishing murder by death (Gen. 9:6), but here He put His protecting hand on Cain.

Yet, to be a fugitive, with no real abiding place on earth, and every man's hand against him, was indeed a heavy punishment. One could have wished that it had brought repentance, but it did not. May none of us go the way of Cain.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS



A SMARTLY flounced blanket chest with contrasting cushion is a useful addition to any bedroom. It serves as a convenient seat; and extra covers are right at hand on chilly nights. A pair of these, covered to match spreads, would go well with twin beds.

Plan the size of your chest to fill your needs and space. It may be made of one-inch pine and should be about 15 inches high without the cushion. Make the flounce with double fullness—that is, twice as long as the space it is to fill after it is gathered. The cushion may be filled with cotton padding, feathers or down.

When ironing no matter what the article, the important thing is to iron it until absolutely dry.

Use a whisk broom, kept for the purpose, and hot water to sprinkle the clothes. They will be more evenly dampened than when sprinkled by hand.

* * *

Equal amounts of coffee and heated milk, sweetened to taste, make an appetizing drink.

Old army and National Guard cloth - covered canteens, which may be purchased at army and navy stores, may be used in place of rubber hot-water bottles.

Save all soot that accumulates in fireplaces and chimneys. Applied dry as a dressing on lawns or in liquid form to plants it makes an excellent fertilizer. After mixing soot with water let stand until water is clear. Twice a week is often enough to use it on plants.

True Optimist

An optimist is one who believes in optimism as a practical, workable, philosophy of life. Believing in the goodness of God and the ultimate victory of right over wrong, a real optimist is one who continues to fight the good fight against all difficulties, giving his best, and expressing in a life of action those fundamental ideals of faith, courage, love, and service, which make for happiness, goodwill and enduring success.—Warren Y. Cluff.

Hardware in Whales

So many saws and axes are lost during the process of removing and cutting up whale blubber on whaling ships that most large oil-rendering companies first pass the fat over magnetic separators to remove this hidden hardware.

New Defense Chairman Named By Governor

REV. W. T. WOLFRAM NAMED TO SUCCEED DR. BEMIS

Garner Pastor Selected By Governor For Defense Chairman

The Rev W T Wolfram, pastor of St John's Lutheran church east and north of Garner, Friday received a commission from Governor George Wilson to serve as the county defense chairman, a post recently held by the late Dr Geo A. Bemis

Saturday Rev Wolfram announced that he was calling a meeting of the commanders and adjutants of all the active Legion posts in the county to be held at the courthouse in Garner on Friday evening The meeting will convene at 8 00 o'clock The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the various phases of civilian defense Legion posts in the county should be best qualified to deal with national defense problems, said Chairman Wolfram

Soon after this meeting, (probably in August) a meeting of all township civilian defense chairmen will be called, acording to Rev. Wolfram

BAND CONCERT IN THE PARK WELL ATTENDED HERE SUNDAY

A large crowd was present at Klemme Park Sunday to hear the local band give a concert under the directing baton of Allan Barz, local young man who volunteered to take over the band for the summer as Mr. Bernard Onerheim, the regular director, has been called into the army

The concert was well received and a pleasing variety of numbers was enjoyed by the crowd

Many voiced their opinion that the band music sounded much better from the Park band stand than it does from the stand when they play on the streets.

Concerts Each Sunday

The band will give a concert in the Park each Sunday afternoon beginning at 2 00 o'clock until further notice.

KLEMME GIRL'S ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED BY PARENTS

Rubber Salvage Campaign Goes Over The Top In This County

TWENTY POUNDS PER PERSON COLLECTED IN HANCOCK COUNTY RUBBER DRIVE

State Goes "Over The Top" In National Scrap Rubber Drive

The state of Iowa went well over the quota in the national srap rubber drive, according to latest figures

Hancock county contributed a total of 301.069 pounds of scrap rubber during the National campaign, according to Robert Sinclair of Garner, county salvage chairman The figure represents a bit less than 20 pounds per person in the county, which doubled the orginal quota set for the county

Klemme Goes Over Top

Klemme service station attendants did a fine job during the rubber salvage campaign and deserve a big compliment They turned in a total of 29,960 pounds, or just 40 pounds less than 15 tons!

That certainly should put Klemme and community well over the top.

To assist in the war effort all farmers should make the most of every possibility of using machinery jointly Through such cooperation in small neighborhood groups many labor and machinery shortage problems can be solved

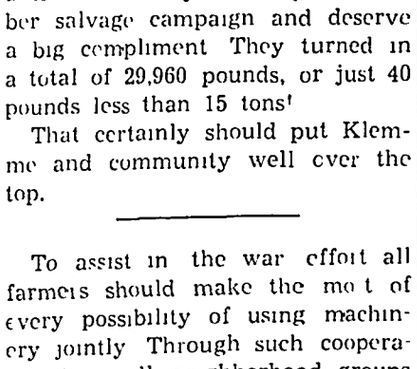
These huge 60-ton heavy tanks cost $120,000, and America's automotive and locomotive plants are turning them out on a never-ending assembly line. Our army uses light tanks, weighing 14 tons, and medium tanks of 28 tons also, but we favor the medium tank over the other two.



These heavy tanks are needed for certain phases of modern warfare, and with their thick armor and heavy-gauge guns they are almost unstoppable. They are considered superior in gun power, in maneuverability and in the power of their huge tractor motors to Axis tanks. RIVER FISHING STILL SLOW

Paul Thompson, Mount Pleasant, And A 41-Pound Flathead Catfish Caught In The Skunk River At Oakland Mills

In spite of heavy rains and muddy water in most areas, the catfish streams in some sections are clearing up and returning to normal. Fihermen in these areas are making up for lost time caused by the 30-day closed catfish season and by high and muddy water conditions. In May catfishing was extraordinarily good. The catfish season was closed in June, and at the July 1 reopening all streams were too high and muddy to provide satisfactory fishing. Flathead fishing is the one bright spot along the rivers at the present time and is now providing good sport in the larger streams in spite of roily waters. July is ordinarily one of the best channel catfishing months; however, this year reports of big channel cat and long strings are decidedly uncommon.

Small-mouth bass are hitting well in the bass streams that have approached normal water stages, but for the most part, the high water has almost completely stopped small-mouth fishing.

Streamlined Distribution Increases Farm Income

Consumers' Heeded, Marketing Plans Are Developed, Standards Raised.

For years Jefferson county, Kentucky, growers sent their Irish potatoes into northern markets to compete with plentiful supplies from other sections of the country.

When the 1941 harvest season opened last July with the northern market heavily glutted, grower-members of the St. Matthews Produce Exchange, Jefferson County Co-operative, prepared to give up potatoes as a cash crop.

In a last desperate effort to salvage their cash crop, R. W. Hite, president of the exchange, called his membership together for a meeting with a group of distributors and restaurant operators. Instead of trying to move the potatoes into overloaded outside markets, the growers agreed with several distributors to seek to develop a market within the state through a "Kentucky Potato Campaign."

The resulting drive enabled the stores to move a large percentage of the crop locally and to boost prices paid the association 40 per cent. Now, instead of reducing their production, the 150 members of the exchange plan a 10 per cent increase this year in line with the federal government's request for greater production of fresh fruits and vegetables to aid the "Food for Victory" program.

The Kentuckians' experience is one of many examples of how growers throughout the country are attacking the major problem created by the increased production called for in the "Food for Victory" drive—finding profitable markets for the great crops of fresh fruits and vegetables now ripening in the fields and orchards of America.

Production no longer is the problem—farmers throughout the nation are responding wholeheartedly to the government's appeal for more fresh fruits and vegetables for America's dining tables. This year's crop yields, intention reports of the department of agriculture indicate, will be the largest since 1933.

Production increases in certain crops and in certain sections of the country are tremendous. Through June 13, the department of agriculture reported, rail shipments of commercial truck crops were 13 per cent greater than a year ago. Movement was heavier for beans, beets, carrots, cauliflower, green corn, cucumbers, mixed vegetables, onions, spinach, cantaloupes, strawberries and Irish potatoes. During one two-week period alone, shipment of commercial early potatoes rose nearly 2,000 cars above the corresponding period of 1941.

Growers Improve Production.

Along the fruit front increases as large as those for fresh vegetables are not likely—it takes years to develop new fruit trees. However, growers are expected to improve production through more applications of fertilizers, better orchard management practices and elimination of as much waste as possible in production, harvesting and processing.

With production under control, the nation's growers now must make sure that their "vitamin bullets" reach the 130,000,000 Americans for whom they are intended.

As Secretary of Agriculture Wickard recently pointed out, production is "only the first step. Food, as one of the munitions of total war, is effective only when it is in the right form, at the right place, and at the right time."

Realizing more than ever that their job does not end with the harvest but instead extends to the consumer's market basket, farmers are paying increasing attention to the necessity of streamlining the distribution system to eliminate waste and to increase their own cash returns. With fruit and vegetable growers throughout the country getting only 35 cents of the retail dollar for their sales through all trade channels, growers are seeking to perform their own operations at the lowest possible cost while at the most economical marketing channels.

Working with distributors, extension directors, county agents and heads of state colleges of agriculture, growers are developing marketing programs and are making organized efforts to raise grade and pack standards to meet consumer demand. Movements of early season poor varieties and immature produce, shipments of which in the past built "consumer resistance" to better grades during peak movements, are being reduced.

Growers are building their home markets, with the active aid of distributors, extension services and agricultural leaders. Retail distributors, chain and independent, at the request of growers, are staging timely advertising and promotion campaigns.

In brief, growers are striving to place marketing on a non-speculative basis and to develop full co-operation among growers, shippers, distributors and state and federal marketing agencies in the job of moving food from farm to dinner table.

Farmers are increasing their marketing efficiency in a variety of ways. In Alabama, for example, thousands of bushels of tomatoes grown in Blount county in recent years were bought by itinerant truckers at unusually low prices. The truckers then hauled the tomatoes 100 miles across country to Atlanta and sold them to wholesalers. Often the wholesalers trucked them back more than 100 miles to Birmingham, only a short distance from Blount county.

Farmers Got Almost Nothing.

Consumers frequently paid sky-high prices for the tomatoes because of the expenses of the trip, various handling costs and profits—yet the farmers themselves got almost nothing. Thus when the A & P last summer guaranteed the Blount Countians a market for their tomatoes if they would set up a marketing co-operative to assure quality and quantity, the growers responded immediately.

With the active backing of the Agricultural Extension service and the marketing support of the stores, 75 growers formed the Blount County Tomato Growers association, bought a second-hand grader and 1,600 tomato crates with an investment of less than $700, and began operations the first of September. Association members averaged $2 50 a bushel the first two months, double the top average in past years.

In New England, New Hampshire potato growers worked out with chain stores a direct farm-to-store marketing operation which returned to the farmers 78 cents of the retail dollar, compared with the national average share of only 52 cents for all grades marketed through trade channels.

In Pennsylvania, 848 grower-members of the Pennsylvania Co-operative Potato Growers association have developed a direct farm-to-retail-store system unique in the annals of farm marketing. The co-operative sells 60 per cent of its output on a "streamlined" basis whereby growers deliver individually to nearby stores

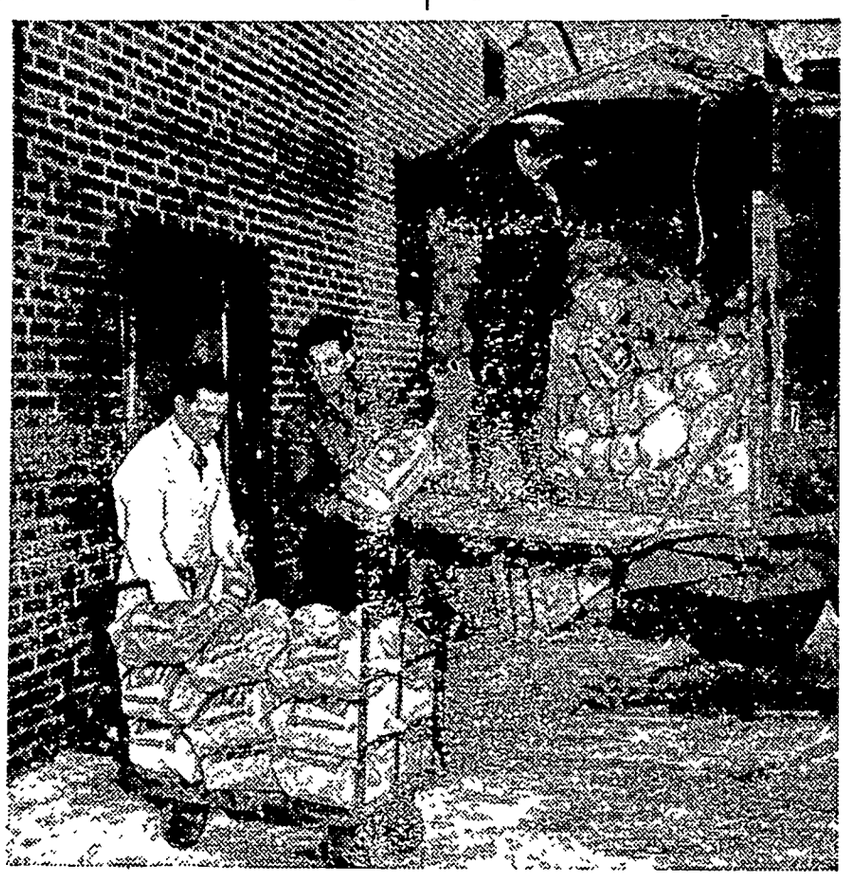
With no middleman save the grocery counter, both farmer and consumer benefit Potatoes for which the grower is paid from 17 to 19 cents per peck are sold to the consumer for only 20 to 21 cents. During the 1941-42 marketing season, the association sold 4,918,499 pecks for $1,324,065

Fruit and vegetable growers throughout the nation face other big problems resulting from the nation's war effort. Transportation, both rail and truck, is becoming more and more of a problem as rail facilities are taxed to capacity.

Working with the extension services, other agricultural leaders and distributors, farmers are moving to solve this problem, too. Movement of produce directly from farm to retail store is being increased. Where possible, farmers are finding markets closer to home for their fruits and vegetables.

232,000 More

Latest figures of the department of agriculture reveal that there were 232,000 more persons employed on American farms on June 1 than on the same date a year ago.



FARM TO RETAIL STORE COOP METHOD

Members of the Pennsylvania Co-operative Potato Growers association market 60 per cent of their output by moving it direct from farms in 45 counties to nearby retail stores. As a result, the 848 growers marketing through the association last year got 80 cents of the retail dollar, far above the national average share. An association truck is shown unloading potatoes at the back door of a large retail store.

DIRECT MARKETING IN S. CAROLINA

Farmers, seeking to solve transportation problems created by the war and also find more profitable markets for their produce, are moving much of their produce as directly as possible from farm to retail stores. Here L. C. White (right), field buyer for the Atlantic Commission company, watches peaches being loaded onto a truck at a packing shed operated by members of the Ridge Peach and Vegetable association at Ridge Spring, S. C. The truck takes the fresh peaches directly to retail stores.

Rural America Losing Youths to Cities

Human tides held back in rural areas by lack of employment in industrial centers from 1932 to 1941 now are flowing cityward at accelerated speeds, in the opinion of Dr A. R. Mangus, department of rural sociology, Ohio State university.

Dr. Mangus recently issued a report of a survey made in Ross county to find what had happened to the 4,629 young men and women who were between the ages of 18 and 27 when the census was taken in April, 1940 The survey made in March, 1942, disclosed that 1,200 of those young men and 800 of the young women left the county in the two years since the census was taken.

The survey also showed that industry took more young men from the county than the number who enlisted or were inducted into the army. A larger percentage of both young men and women left villages with less than 2,500 population than went from farm homes.

BEHIND RAF RAIDS

Few people outside the inner circle know it, but the recent bombing raids on Bremen, Cologne, Essen, have been accomplished in part through the farsightedness of Ed Stettinius Jr., who, long ago saw the importance of high octane gas and demanded that the administration start large scale production.

Stettinius has taken it on the chin regarding the slowness of aluminum production and has admitted he was wrong. (Real reason for the tragic error was his reliance on Aluminum Corporation of America figures). But on two other vital commodities he was way out in front.

One of these was rubber. Stettinius was the first to see the need of building synthetic rubber factories to prepare for the fall of Singapore and began dinning on Jesse Jones for nearly a year before he could get Jesse to move.

The other commodity was high octane gasoline, without which the current bombing raids could not take place. One bomber takes about 1 000 gallons of gasoline to fly from England to Germany and back, so with 1,000 bombers staging a raid, 1,000,000 gallons of fuel is used up in one night.

U. S. PRISONERS IN BATAAN

Ex-Undersecretary of the Interior Jack Dempsey has taken up with the American Red Cross the problem of getting a Red Cross representative in Manila to look out for U. S. prisoners from Bataan and Corregidor.

So far, the Japs have not permitted a Swiss Red Cross representative in Manila, though they have admitted Swiss representatives to Tokyo, Shanghai and Hong Kong.

No excuse has been given by the Japs for not permitting a Swiss representative in Manila, but U. S. officials presume it is because they don't want anyone from the outside world to see what is going on there.

Meanwhile, however, the treatment of U. S. prisoners in Japan and China is reported to be good. The Swiss representatives make regular reports, state that American prisoners have no complaints, that sheets on the beds are changed frequently, and that married men are allowed to go to see their wives every week-end.

ROYAL PRESS CONFERENCE

At King Peter's conference with the press, the Jugoslav monarch was completely poised, though admitting the camera men fazed him a bit. With characteristic zeal they monopolized the proceedings with popping flash-bulbs.

A reporter asked Peter what his outstanding impressions were of the U. S.

"One that stands out is your friendliness," he answered promptly. "Everywhere I have gone I have noticed that."

"Does that include photographers?"

"Well, they are persistent, aren't they? I wouldn't mind if they didn't keep shooting off things in my face."

TANKER-SAVING PIPELINE

American automobile owners don't know it, but indirectly they had the British to thank for the final decision to build a new pipeline from the South to the Middle West.

Secretary Ickes had been urging construction of this pipeline for more than a year—always being rebuffed by the War Production board.

Part of Ickes' argument was that it was foolish to waste American tankers by having them carry oil all the way to England from the Gulf of Mexico. If, on the other hand, tankers could load oil and gasoline at a Middle Atlantic port, they could save 1,000 miles of travel and reduce the exposure to submarine attack. Tankers are getting scarce these days, and the shorter the distance they have to steam, the more trips they can make.

Ickes put forth this argument emphatically at the last hearing before the War Production board, but was rebutted by Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, head of the army's service of supplies. Somervell pooh-poohed the idea that England was hard up for oil or gasoline, said he had just returned from there, and that Ickes' argument was pure poppycock.

Ickes made no immediate reply, but cabled the British government. The British were boiling mad, and the reply he received clinched the matter. The War Production board decided Somervell didn't know much about British oil supplies. The pipeline was ordered built.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

¶ Capitol insiders are betting that before the tax bill finally emerges from congress it will contain some kind of provision for compulsory war savings as an anti-inflation measure Secretary Morgenthau has been opposed to this, but recently seems willing to shift his view.

China's Total War

By Owen Lattimore

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Colliers Weekly)

IF YOU want to know how to win the war, study China.

The Chinese show us what can be done when every man and boy does his part. They do not worry whether that part seems glamorous or important; they know that the sum total of effort is the thing that counts—the millions of little contributions which go into the common pot. The individual Chinese may be only breaking stones with a hammer or carrying earth in a basket, but by the thousands they build an airport in the mountains as well as we could build it with our elaborate machinery. Each knows that he, with hammer or basket, is fighting in a great cause.

Not long ago, in a cave in Southern China, I watched men making rifles. With Japanese planes ranging frequently overhead, this was the only safe place for the machinery. Moisture dripped from the roof of the cave, so the men had to work under tarpaulins.

A 14-Year-Old-Boy's Experience.

One of the most highly skilled workers, handling a delicate multiple adjustment lathe, was a 14-year-old boy. He told me he came from a little farm in northeast China. Two years ago the Japs swept in. The farmhouse was burned, the boy's parents were killed or disappeared. The boy escaped, crept through the Jap lines, and traveled 2,000 miles on foot into South China.

Now this homeless farm kid, by the hardest kind of application, has made himself a first-rate machinist. He not only puts in a hard day's work himself, but studies at night in the factory school which is helped by government funds. Every little factory in China is now a technological training institute.

This boy, and his experience, tell a good deal about the new China. Millions of others, like him, have made their way through the Japanese lines to join the army or to help in production. Millions, pushing into sparsely populated western China like American pioneers, have opened up surprising new sources of coal, oil, iron, and metals to help carry on the war.

Chinese Are Not Slow.

Others, like this boy, have proved that the Chinese are as quick at mastering machinery as any other nation.

The Japanese seized the Chinese factory regions—but they didn't get all the factories. The Chinese managed to carry away into free China some 150,000 tons of factory machinery. They pulled it up the river in junks, they loaded it on primitive carts, they hoisted it up mountain slopes, they carried it on their backs.

China used it as a nucleus to build new industries from the ground up. The Chinese government, through industrial co-operatives, helped finance thousands of little industrial plants employing from half a dozen to a hundred men. Many of these have grown up into thriving private enterprises. So, from almost nothing, in the midst of war, from under the shadow of defeat, China created an industry able to maintain an army of 3,000,000 men.

Under Chiang Kai-shek.

This army, fighting with rifles and bayonets against the massed tanks, planes, and heavy artillery of Japan, suffered heavy defeats and terrific casualties. But, under the strategy and leadership of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, it was never routed. It never fell into panic. It was never encircled.

Chiang realized that his men, without modern arms, could not defeat the mechanized Japanese armies in the flat coastal regions. He fought, fell back, scorched the earth (the Russians learned something from that), and fought again. As he says, "I traded space for time."

Then, when he reached the wooded hills and mountains, where Japanese tanks and trucks could not operate, and where his men could find shelter from the swarming Jap planes, he held. There he still holds.

He showed how to break up the dread Jap "infiltration" attacks, which so baffled the British in Malaya and the Dutch in Java, and turned Japanese advances into traps where thousands were cut to pieces He learned the tricks, habits, and weaknesses of the Jap military machine. I think it would be wise for us to invite some of Chiang's veteran officers to advise our armies in these matters. The swift Japanese method of landing operations, which took some of the United Nations so by surprise, have been used on the Chinese coast for four years

Commercial Air Services Will Benefit Rural Areas

Mail Pick-Up System Proves Successful in 150 Towns; Airplane May Decentralize Population.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Never in the world's history has a war accomplished what this war—still far from over—has already done toward shrinking the globe. Last year four and a half million passengers were carried through the air, reducing travel days to travel-hours between our cities. Average speeds of passenger planes were well over three miles a minute.

Then came the war with planes rolling off the assembly lines at a rate that made mass-production of automobiles pale by comparison. Not all are weapons of war. All the inter-continental airlines in the world at their peak put together, before the war in Europe threw up the barriers, did not represent as many miles as the Airforce Ferrying Command's regular flights which today extend over every continent except Antarctica.

Those are a few comparisons to illustrate how the terrific impetus which commercial flying already had, has been increased by war needs. It is easy to visualize what this will mean when peace comes, a world with the most widely separated capitals crowded together—a completely new geography.

This is what aviation of tomorrow means to the great cities. What will it mean to the rural community?

That, too, is not hard to visualize if we look at what has already been accomplished under our noses without most of us realizing it. One hundred and fifty American towns and cities know what I mean. This group of communities is chiefly composed of the little town, down to those with a population as low as 588. This is the group which is benefiting by just one of the applications of the use of the airplane to small town life—an undertaking that has just celebrated its third anniversary. I refer to the Air-Pick-up Service which brings airmail to the four-corners post office and has already begun to pay for itself doing it.

Many of these points have no airports. Hilltops, public parks and meadows serve. For the mail airplane does not have to stop. It drops a sack of mail and with an automatic electric-driven arm picks up a mail-sack suspended on a rope between two poles. The various routes radiate from Pittsburgh through six states.

Father of the System

Representative Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, one of the most air-minded of congressmen, is the father of the pick-up system. He introduced the bill appropriating the money to the post office department which made this rural air-mail system possible He tells me the Civil Aeronautics board has application for lines covering 2,000 communities in 26 states.

And Representative Randolph has a lot more bills up his sleeve which foreshadow activities to come and which will help bring aviation right down into everybody's backyard, figuratively speaking. One is for the creation of a national civilian air reserve corps.

Another is to provide training for glider pilots and a third is for aviation training for high schools. As chairman of the district committee of the house (which is equivalent to head of the board of aldermen) he has introduced this high school course—just the ground preliminaries, of course—in the Washington high schools. There were 300 students in the courses last semester.

Other plans are being prepared for commercial air service. The war is holding them back but, at the same time it is stimulating both the demand on the part of the public and desire on the part of promoters who recognize aviation's great future. The young folks growing up in the days of a war where aviation is the chief weapon will be ready to take over the controls when America flies for peace.

The Civil Air patrol which is doing yeoman service as an auxiliary to the army and navy air force in patrol duty is also the foundation for an air trucking service which will link the rural communities to the great airlines of the future. Trans-continental air "trains" consisting of an airplane and a string of trailer freight-planes will interlace the skies and great dirigible airships will float from Los Angeles to Tokyo in 79 hours, from Chicago to Friedrichshaven in Germany in less than 60 hours. And from the small communities to main airports the little "sky-trucks," the smaller planes such as the Civil Air patrol now uses will carry the produce of farm and small shop to the metropolis.

As a matter of fact the Civil Air patrol is already doing courier and small package transportation in connection with the war effort. As one Air Patrol official said:

"This probably is the only untapped transportation in the country. It is organized and ready. The light plane uses a minimum of aluminum and rubber on its small landing wheels and burns no more gasoline than the family auto and can be put to many uses."

Just as the pick-up airmail service has begun to pay its way with steadily increased use, so this courier service by light planes is proving its value in the war effort. When peace comes it will be a part of the "farm-to-market" transportation.

Shipments Analyzed

Here is the testimony on this subject from Garnet Hughes, executive officer of the New York wing of the Civil Air patrol. (A wing command is established in each state):

"A careful study was made of the needs of one company engaged in wartime production," says Mr. Hughes, "and frequently sending for small emergency shipments of parts, tools, and materials by truck, motorcycle, or private car. In the month of April, 286 such trips were made. The total road mileage was 14,780 while the air mileage would have been 11,040. The road time was estimated at 422 hours and the air time at only 110 hours. The road cost was estimated at $1,700 and the air cost at less than half this figure. Even if the air cost were substantially more, the saving in time is the main consideration in wartime shipments of this character."

The small plane service will bear the same relations to the main line freight service of the future that the trucks bear to the railroad. They will mean the nearest thing to door-to-door air delivery. They can be used where the big planes cannot land and will be more economical for short-hauls and small deliveries as well as feeders to the main lines.

These are a few of the plans, already in the making which will bring the benefits of aviation to the rural community. Others will be developed the nature of which nobody today can guess. And the effect will be to decentralize the population. The middle-sized town and the small town will come back into their own, for each community will be so near in point of time to its farthest neighbor that none need crowd the other trying to seek the more favorable point in space for its well-being.

The navy's plan for toughening up its flying cadets will be carried out by actual pick-and-shovel labor, 40-mile marches between dawn and dusk, hiking and instruction in hand-to-hand combat. Some 2,500 young fellows will get this sort of training each month, along with the routine academic, tactical and military phases of the courses.

Success Factors For Livestock

Practices Now Have Proven Their Value

By P. E. JOHNSTON
(Department of Agriculture Economics, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.)

Here are some 36 "success" factors by means of which farmers can gear up their livestock production for wartime needs.

All the practices have proved their worth in farm account records kept by farmers in co-operation with this college.

BREEDING (1) Flush at breeding time, (2) reduce feed of sows at weaning time and (3) use proper type breeding stock and select individuals (mark litters and select from best and sort gilts from feeding herd before they get too fat for proper use)

FEEDING· (1) Feed proper rations to sows during gestation period, (2) provide plenty of pasture, (3) put sows and pigs on self feeder, (4) feed balanced rations to pigs and (5) provide plenty of fresh water.

Most Important.

SANITATION: (Eighteen of 24 farmers interviewed stated that sanitation was most important factor of all.) (1) Clean houses, (2) clean sows and (3) clean pastures.

MARKETING: (1) Sell spring and fall pigs when prices are normally highest (August - September and March-April) and (2) deviate from normal if the outlook shows clearly that an abnormal situation prevails at the time

TIMELINESS. To conserve labor and to increase the production of pork, (1) breed sows to farrow at desired time, (2) have equipment ready and guard against rapid changes in temperature, (3) castrate before pigs are four weeks of age, (4) vaccinate at five to six weeks, (5) wean at eight weeks and (6) finish at six months of age, the usual time period.

Farm Hazards

Strangely, agriculture is the most hazardous American industry, with the farm home contributing largely to this amazing total of accidents. Here are some safety suggestions:

Sharp-edged tools be kept away from play places.

Stairways with more than three steps be equipped with hand-rails.

Free use of both hands not to be sacrificed because of heavy load to carry.

And stairways be kept clear of toys, tools, and boxes. The annual cost of farm and rural fires is $200,000,000 Then, too, besides this property damage, 3,500 lives are lost in these fires.

To combat this menace:

Every open fireplace be equipped with a screen.

Kettles, pails, and tubs of hot liquids be kept off the floor.

House dry cleaning be done out-of-doors.

Matches be kept away from children.

And saucepan handles be kept away from the edges of stoves and tables.

Cuts, bruises, and infections should never be regarded as minor, as people have died as a result of a scratch becoming infected.

Lamb Fattening Tests

In an effort to help sheepmen find ways to fatten lambs by adding protein to rations, the Cornell university agricultural experiment station tested seven "protein supplements" on lambs. Each lamb received, in addition to the particular protein-rich feed tested, a standard ration of shelled corn, corn silage, ground limestone and salt.

The lambs fed linseed meal in the ration had better appetites than did those fed the other supplements, which included soybean oil meal, whole soybeans, corn gluten meal, distillers' corn dried grain, brewers' dried grains, and urea.

Averaging the two experiments, the feeding value was slightly the highest for whole soybeans, followed by soybean oil meal, corn gluten meal, and linseed meal.

Wheat Poultry Ration

Bushel for bushel, wheat is the cheapest ingredient in the poultry ration today and more and more poultrymen are feeding wheat.

The reason wheat is so cheap at the present time is that the U. S. department of agriculture is putting about 100 million bushels of wheat on the market. This was done to help livestock, dairy, and poultry producers use this wheat for feed and attain Food for Freedom production goals.

PRIVATE PURKEY IN LOVE AND WAR

Dear Ma—

There is not much to write about and anyhow even if there was the top sarge wood not give me time enough to write about it. I am well and feel stronger than ever witch puzzles me on account of if I did half as much work when I was in civilyun life I wood be a fizzical wreck long ago. I gess it must be that a jeep goes on doing whats asked of him in the army knowing it won't do him no good to kick and he knows he wood get no sympathy if he got run down.

* * *

I see where we declared war on the Ballcan states Bullgaria, Roomania and Hungaria. When it first come over the radio that we declared war on three states extra it sort of jarred me on account of we was already fighting so many states that I am always one or two states behind. But when I found out it was only Bullgaria, Roomania and Hungaria I felt easier. I got no friends in none of them and the only Hungarian I knew played in a orchestra witch was pretty bad. Everybody is in the war now so a few more do not make no difference I gess.

* * *

Well, mom, do not worry about me as from all I hear it is softer being here in the army than being a plain civilyun. The situation back home is very heartbreaking to me. New York and a lot of other cities is so dark nights it is more lonesome going out after dark than it would be to stay home.

* * *

Gas is going to be harder than ever to get, the government is talking about taking tires away from everybody, all parking lots at the beaches have been closed at night and there is talk of forbidding bus travel except on business, so it is just a laugh now when anybody talks about keeping out of the army so he can do as he pleases.

* * *

Gosh, mom, I gess you and pop take more orders right now in a day than I get in the army in a week. All people in civilyun life have got on me is that they don't have to peel potatoes. The radio keeps talking about ceiling troubles back home and I still hope nothing has happened to your ceiling yet, although you did not answer my last letter about it.

I hope you are all fixed on priorities also whatever they are. Everybody seems to be having them. Sergeant Mooney says I need not worry about having them as I had them when I was a boy.

John Bennett is in my outfit and he is always good for a laugh. He says he just ran across the most cookoo jeep in the army. He says he saw him with a homemade fly trap catching flies. At first he thought he was just nuts but when he seen him doing it four days in a row he demanded a explanation and found the nitwit was catching them to feed a pet frog which he keeps in his tent as a mascot.

* * *

It takes all kinds of men to make a army but this is the first time I knew it also took a fly trap and a frog. Well this will have to be all. I get pretty homesick at times of coarse, mom, and I wish I could get back to see you and pop oftener but on the other hand I don't gess I could stand life back in a city with so many restrickshuns and with everybody giving orders about one thing and another.

Your loving son,
Oscar.

UPHOLSTERY repair work is rather costly hand labor. However, if you can clear a corner where you may work on it a little at a time, it is easy to do. Use boxes or an old table to rest the piece on at a comfortable working height. Remove the outside covering first, keeping it whole to use as a pattern; then remove padding, springs and webbing, writing down everything you want to remember about how they were placed; also the amount of webbing used. When the last tack is out, re-web the bottom of the seat, as shown, with strong new webbing and a homemade stretcher. Use No. 4 tacks or regular webbing tacks, and a tack hammer.

INK SPOTS BACK FROM VACATION

A number of people have inquired "What's happened to the Ink Spots?" This scribe just guesses the Spots got lazy and went on a vacation Anyway we were surprised they were missed as we just figured nobody would waste good time reading them.

Anyway we will try to write this column unless fishing gets too good!

So we will just start the column out by telling the following stale story that's going the rounds:

A traveling salesman caught in a torential downpour, stopped overnight at a farmer's house Next morning, looking out at the flood, he saw an old straw hat floating slowly to and fro in front of the house Fearing that someone may have drowned, he called to the farmer's daughter, "Look at the straw hat" 'Oh,' said the girl, 'that must be Grandpa. He allowed yesterday that in spite of hell and high water he was going to mow grass today' "

And one of our readers wrote us the other day:

Dear Editor My grandfather is 85 years old today and he has 25 children Don't you think we deserve a write-up?

Naw, wait until you get the final score!

HOW TO KILL AN ORGANIZATION

Some of the Klemme business men who are crabbing about the way the Klemme Civic Club functions should paste the following nine rules in their hat:

1 Don't come
2 If you come, come late
3 Hold back your dues or don't pay them at all
4 Never ask a friend to join
5 Don't have anything to say when you are called upon
6 If too wet or too dry or too hot or too cold, don't think of coming
7 If you do attend a meeting, find fault with the proceedings and the work done by members
8 Kick if you are not appointed to a committee, and if you are appointed, never attend a committee meeting
9 Don't do anything more than you can possibly help to further your club's interest; then when a few take off their coats and do things, howl that the lodge is run by a clique—Moose News

HUMOR FROM YOUR HARDWARE DEALER

This scribe was prowling around Ed Jacobs Hardware Store the other day and Ed contributes the following yarn

Dear Cousin

Your uncle has a job at last, the first time he has worked in 48 years

We are now rich, $17 25 every Thursday, so we sent to town for one of them there new fandangled bathrooms like you rich people have up North It came and we got her all set up right You should see it

Over on one side of the room is a big long white thing like the pigs drink out of Only you kin git in and take a bath all over at once Over to the other side of the room is a little white gadget hanging onto the wall called a sink This is for light washing like hands and face They also sent us a roll of writing paper but its kind of cheap I think, it rips easy

But over in the corner, WOW! They got a thing where you put one foot in and scrub it and when it gets clean you pull the chain and get fresh water for the other foot

Your cousins,
Lill and Abner

P S Two lids came on the darn thing and we ain't had no use for 'em in the bathroom so Ma is using one for a bread board and we framed Grandpa's picture in the other.

We are all so greatly interested in our Liberty now-a-days that we think our readers will like to know more about our symbol of Liberty: The Old Liberty Bell, so here are some facts regarding this priceless old relic:

WHEN DID IT RING?

One of the most cherished symbols of our American independence is the Liberty Bell, which is preserved in Independence Hall, Philadelphia. It has been rung on a number of occasions, the most important of which are as follows:

July 4, 1776, the bell was rung to announce the adoption of the glorious Declaration of Independence. This was really the birthday of the nation, and marks the most important event in her history.

October 24, 1781, it was rung to celebrate the surrender of Lord Cornwallis and the practical close of the Revolution.

April 16, 1783, it announced the proclamation of peace with Great Britain.

September 29, 1824, it was rung to welcome Lafayette to Independence Hall.

July 14, 1826, it ushered in the Year of Jubilee, the fiftiteh anniversary of the American Republic.

July 24, 1826, it tolled for the death of Thomas Jefferson.

July 4, 1831, it rang for the last time on Independence Day

February 22, 1832, was the last time it was rung to commemorate the birth of Washington.

Later in the same year it tolled to announce the death of the last survivor of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, Charles Carroll, of Carrolton

July 21, 1834, it tolled again for the death of Marquis de Lafayette

July 8, 1835, while being tolled for the death of Chief Justice Marshall, a crack developed in the bell It started from the brim and inclined in a right-hand direction toward the crown

February 22, 1843, when an attempt was made to ring it on Washington's birthday the fracture increased so much that no attempt has been made to ring it since

The Liberty Bell now reposes in a glass case at the foot of the staircase in Independence Hall, where it is viewed by many thousands of people yearly.

OTHO KERAUS WRITES FROM NORTHERN IRELAND

June 1, 1942.

Dear Ray and Mary Jane:

Received your most welcome letter today. I certainly was glad to hear from you again Getting mail is one of our most exciting pleasures over here. I wrote to Buster nearly a month ago so I suppose he has the letter by this time I'm really glad to hear that he is doing so well.

As you know by now I'm in Northern Ireland. I came here in the middle of January with the First A E. F. This is a beautiful country for a tour, but I certainly wouldn't like to establish a residence here. Living conditions are about thirty years behind our own. The people and the customs of this country form a most interesting study Due to our rigorous schedule of training we don't get much opportunity for sight-seeing but sometimes our duties bring us into contact with some historical places. For example, just the other day I had the privilege of seeing an ancient look-out tower built in the days when Charlmayne staged his cosquest of Ireland. If my memory serves me right that was about 800 A. D.

I ran into Raymond Drake the other day He is in my regiment. I don't know whether any of the other Klemme boys are over here or not. I got a lovely letter from Mrs C A. Larsen the other day.

I think perhaps one of the hardest things we had to get used to over here after we landed was the enforced black-out each night. Many a soldier had his "noggin" cracked before he developed his "night eyes." Now, however, it is light until well after midnight and one doesn't have much trouble getting around during the evening.

Nearly everything here is rationed Supplies are issued to the shops the first of the month and there is always a rush to get what one needs before they are gone.

The boys had a circus learning the English monetary system but now they speak of pounds, shillings, half-crowns and pence as though they had lived here all of their lives.

We get cigarettes, candy and toilet articles at our canteen. Food is good, altho necessarily plain. All in all, life over here is not too hard to take, of course everyone is anxiously awaiting for the day when we can get this war over with and go home.

Well, I guess I'll have to close this letter. Hope I hear from you again soon.

Regards,
Otho.

MERLE SCHAEFER TELLS OF NAVY LIFE IN VIRGINIA

The following letter was received by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schafeer from their son, Merle:

Norfolk, Virginia,
Patrol Squadrno 53,
Sunday Eve

Dear Folks:

Thot I would drop a few lines to let you know I am still on deck and o k

It sure has been swell weather here lately. When it decides to rain it does and has it over in about 10 minutes I have never seen it cloud up and rain so fast as it does around here. But it is always so warm and feels good to get wet once in awhile. I usually go swimming every day.

It sure didn't seem like the 4th of July and neither doe we ever know Sundays pass by. Every day is just the same for all of us here But we get every sixth day off so eventually our day off comes on Sunday. I am back working on days again now so can sleep when its cool for a change. It sure is funny how it cools off at night So cool we have to cover up with a blanket Guess the temperature has usually been around 100 lately Anyway we all are sure sunburned well by now.

Dad asked what my work is. Its most anything that has to be done to a plane to keep it in shape There are daily flight inspections, then after 30 hours of flying more things are inspected After 60 hrs the spark plugs are changed and all sorts of less important parts are checked. There are only sixty-four spark plugs in our planes. Two 1200 h. p Pratt & Whitney engines are used They use around 45 gallons of 100 octane fuel for an hour apiece, 65 gallons of oil for each Total fuel supply 1750 gallons So they are far from being small Just like a car, oil is changed after 120 hours. So with six planes so far and six more to come for a full squadron of 12 we don't have any time to loaf any when we are on duty. They have the regular assigned plane crews too. But I am in the structural crew so have everything in general of the structure to keep up The engineering crew takes care of the props, engines, etc My work so far has been checking the control cables, and the mechanisms that operate the retractable floats After take-off they fold up to form part of the wing tips. Most everything is operated by small 24 volt motors from a control in front of the 1st mechanic

I think Keith Stille has been transferred Anyway I saw him about a week ago and then he said that he was leaving the next day. We are to move from here soon, but when and where I don't know.

I will close for now.

Merle.

BUTZ WILL BUILD NEW HATCHERY AT GARNER

Workmen are tearing down the Butz hatchery building at Garner and are preparing to construct a new one in its place.

Verne Butz, manager, plans to build a new block building on the building at the rear of the old frame structure. The new structure will be about 35 feet back from the street.

The new building will provide more room for expanding the business and will also provide a new display room.

The government wants dried milk rather than evaporated milk for shipment because it takes only one-fourth as much shipping space. So there has been a drop in the demand for evaporated milk and an increased demand for the powdered milk.

SAVE GREASE AND MAKE IT HOT FOR THE AXIS

Every housewife can be a "good soldier" on the home front by saving meat grease which can be made into nitroglycerine to blast the axis

Grease should be strained thru a piece of guaze into a can to remove meat scraps and impurities and then turned over to the local meat dealer. He in turn will see that it goes to a rendering plant, from where it will be sent to a plant that manufactures shells

Housewives receive pay for the fat they turn in

ORDER NUMBERS BEING ASSIGNED TO LATEST REGISTRANTS

Order numbers for the boys who registered June 30th, whose birthdays are after January 1, 1922 and on or before June 30, 1924, are being assigned this week by the Hancock County Local Board

The Local Board shall arrange the cards of registrants in the group in a pile according to their respective dates of birth so that the cards of registrants born on January 1, 1922, will be on top the cards of registrants born on January 2, 1922, will follow cards of those born on January 1, 1922 the cards of registrants born on January 3 1922 will follow the cards of those born on January 2 1922, and so on to the bottom of the pile where the cards of those born on June 30 1924, will be located

When the local board has cards for two or more registrants born on the same date, such cards shall be arranged in alphabetical order

This is a good time of year to rid hens of lice. Poultrymen at the Iowa State College recommend dipping the hens in a solution of 1 pound sodium fluoride to 16 gallons of water, or painting the tops of the roosts with Black Leaf 40 just before the hens go to roost In using the Black Leaf 40, a second painting of the roosts 7 to 10 days after the first is necessary

ANOTHER JONAH STORY

Five guinea chicks could tell a story that would be equal to the one of Jonah and the whale, if they could talk Mrs John Hecker of Indianola, witnessed a five-foot bullsnake eating the eggs from the nest of a guinea hen Mrs Hecker's screams frightened the snake away, and brought Mr Hecker to the scene of action Mr Hecker killed the reptile, and rescued the eggs The seven good eggs were placed under a hen and all hatched The snake, at least, had a good knowledge of eggs as he swallowed only the good ones, leaving two spoiled ones

HOG CALLER

At a recent Victory Day celebration in Osceola John Page, 85, years old on his next birthday, won first prize in a hog calling contest Mr Page states that he has entered many such contests and has always won first place

CELEBRATIONS

Mrs Elizabeth Foster of Osceola now 91 years of age, is the only living person so far as is known who attended the first 4th of July celebration in Osceola Mrs Foster was on the scene again this year to help celebrate the Fourth in Osceola

TEMPORARILY BLIND

Mrs Charles Lewis of Laketa was temporarily blinded recently, and for several days could not see at all Her condition has been improving and it is hoped that she will soon be able to see as clearly as ever It is believed that the loss of her sight was caused by a non-functioning nerve, as Mrs Lewis has been in ill health for a number of years

INGENIOUS

A corn plow made from odds and ends of machinery that he had on hand has been working very well for Alvin D Campbell of Ionia It was necessary to spend only $3-50 for parts not available on the farm Included in the parts were two fence braces, portions of three horse-drawn corn plows and the cab of a model T truck Last year the plow was used in farming 80 acres of beans and corn, and this year is taking care of 120 acres on the Campbell farm

ROW OF "RIPLEY FEATURES

A recent "Ripley Believe It Or Not" feature showed a red raddish growing out of a white one Van Woodruff of Waverly can go that one better, he has a whole row of the oddities growing in his garden

TRAVEL AID

Mrs Robert Fowler of Iowa Falls has installed a system of aiding people who wish to go from Iowa Falls to another location. She has placed a blackboard in her sandwich shop, on which those wishing to go someplace and have no ride can write their destination and name; also, those who are driving to another town and have an extra seat or two in their auto can designate this on the blackboard

VICTORY TREE

FISH FOR DINNER

G. E. Sellers of Des Moines furnished fish for dinner for the Guy Lamb family of Madrid Mr Sellers caught a 15-pound catfish in the Des Moines river near Boone.

LUXURIOUS FUN

Vandalism on high scale has taken place in Boone Windows of a local school gymnasium were broken by an air rifle It will cost $115 to replace the broken panes

HONEY AT THE FRONT DOOR

A hole made by a woodpecker in a front porch pillar at the Elmer Hawkins home in Rock Rapids has been taken over for the summer by a swarm of bees. Elmer says he will leave them this summer, and smoke them out in the fall.

WHAT IS IT?

Fred Peterson of Manson displayed some plants that have no name It has tubers and looks like a potato plant, but on one of the branches is a cluster of fruit that looks like small green tomatoes.

LAID LOW

Lightning caused corn to do funny things on the Gordon Tompkins farm near Ladora It struck in the middle of a field and broke off about 200 hills, laying the corn all the same direction Other corn near the spot was unharmed.

FROM WATER TO VEGETABLES

A large storage tank used as a supply tank for water at the Albert Hoepner farm near Reinbeck has been remodeled into a large all-weather vegetable and fruit cave The structure is large and strong enough to be used as a bomb shelter if the occasion should arise Mr Hoepner has installed an automatic water system on his place.

MANY IOWA WOMEN COMPLETED HOME NURSING COURSE

According to figures just released by the Iowa State Department of Health, 20,00 Iowa women have attended home nursing classes conducted in this state since Pearl Harbor was bombed.

Miss Marie Neuschaefer, director of the department's nursing division reports that more than 1000 home nursing classes have been conducted in Iowa.

Iowa creameries last year produced more than a quarter of a million pounds of butter, the Iowa Department of Agricuture reports.

Tobacco Auctioneers May Chant 'Swan Song'

The colorful sing-song chant of the tobacco auctioneer soon may be a thing of the past in the tobacco-growing Southland. The chant may soon become a "swan song."

For more than a hundred years the high-pitched unintelligible chatter of the auctioneer has been closely associated with the auction of tobacco. The high speed developed by these auctioneers has enabled them to cut down to 10 seconds the average selling time required for a pile of tobacco.

But recent changes in auctioneering methods proposed by agricultural leaders would put tobacco selling on a streamline basis by inauguration of "block selling."

Despite the fact that it has grown from a comparatively insignificant crop to one with a farm value of $300,000,000 annually in the United States, leaf tobacco has been sold by the present auction system since early in the Eighteenth century. Virtually all of the domestic crop is sold that way now.

W. P. Hedrick, chief marketing specialist of the North Carolina department of agriculture, has revealed that in addition to experiments in block selling that have been undertaken recently, other innovations that may change the auction system include federal inspection service and daily government crop reports.

The experiments in block selling grew out of the inauguration of tobacco inspection services in 1929.

Under this scheme, and with funds provided by the government, tobacco-grading experts were allotted to various markets throughout the South. These experts examined each pile of tobacco carefully before the sale, tagging each pile according to its grade, of which there are approximately 70 different classifications under the government grading system. Then the grower, armed with a government report giving the average price which each grade brought during the corresponding week of the previous season, could know exactly what price his tobacco should bring.

Thus the federal inspection service, coupled with daily market price reports, gave growers a check on tobacco prices.

Faster American Ships Is Engineering Forecast

The next few years should see heightened activity in American shipbuilding, according to the Engineering Foundation.

The foundation, in a report issued in New York by its welding research committee, said that American ships will be "noted for their relatively high speed and general efficiency" because of an approximate 16 per cent saving in ship weight through welding and improved machinery.

"The saving in weight has reached about 1,000 tons in 6,000 tons, which represents about 16 per cent," the report said. "Approximately 800 tons of this weight decrease may be attributed to the use of welding and 200 tons to the improved machinery weights. The amount due to welding represents about 13 per cent saving in hull weight. There is available, then, an increase of more than 6 per cent in earning power, over 5 per cent of which is a result of welding."

The foundation said that tests had showed that the completely welded hull brought about appreciable fuel savings because of the elimination of laps and consequent reduction of resistance. Savings through welding and use of improved machinery, it said, in some instances amount to 25 per cent.

Woman Adirondack Guide

Slender little Anne Rice of Saranac Lake, N. Y., balances a rifle as neatly as a teacup. She is as much at home in a wild Adirondack forest as in a ballroom, has a guide's license to prove it, and she's indignant about careless hunters who accidentally shoot their companions. The disarming mite of a woodswoman and sculptress—she's barely shoulder-high to the average man—said there's no such thing as a hunter mistaking companions or others for game if he's a sportsman. He'd first make certain he was shooting legal game. "Any shooting accident where a person is mistaken for a game animal is done by a potential game law violator," she reiterated. "Such a person would shoot blindly at a movement of leaves, or a noise, apparently not caring what caused it. He wouldn't wait to see his target—some reason for shooting. The principle of shoot first and investigate later often ends in tragedy."

Wild Hungarian Wolves

Enormous packs of wolves, sometimes numbering as many as 1,000, have descended from the mountains to the plains of the Hungarian-Carpathian region and have become a great danger to the population, according to a report from Budapest. The wolves, half starved, have been attacking herds of deer, and outside Raho the remains of 160 deer were found after a wolf raid. Other herds have fled from the wilderness into the villages exhausted, and inhabitants have put them in stables where they are being fed. The villagers have organized bands to fight the wolves, it is said. One peasant was found torn to bits in a field recently.

(WNU Service)

Letter to the German-American Bund:

Thanks for betraying yourselves. Some of us have been hollering all along that the Bund was a school for traitors. The FBI just snatched eight saboteurs from Berlin who confirmed it. That was very helpful. It may even shut the mouths of certain distinguished American dopes, but don't bet on it. From the beginning we always argued that you had to be a sneak and a cutthroat to get into the Bund. We figured that a guy hired to sell out a country that sheltered, fed and welcomed him had to be a 100 per cent no-good. The dopes claimed you were nice guys—just misunderstood. So thanks again for coming forward and proving yourselves rats.

All eight of the dynamiters under arrest were Bundists, they admitted. So you see where that leaves you, don't you? It puts the official Nazi stamp on your activities. It comes out that the Nazi consuls in New York, San Francisco, New Orleans, etc., directed you. It doesn't jell with your claim that you ganged up for athletics and to improve German-American relations.

But then I suppose you can get a few laughs out of fooling those distinguished American dopes. Those so-called good citizens who squatted on Bund platforms and orated how wonderful you were. I'll bet you felt good that night in Madison Square Garden, when they came right out for you. Remember the incident? Dorothy Thompson (the canny girl) spotted you for scum—so you threw her out. You must have been proud of the way you tamed those Americans, who roosted on the rostrum and let you get away with it. They even agreed that Miss Thompson was a trouble-maker. That must have killed you. Americans calling Dorothy Thompson—from a Bund platform yet—a trouble-maker!

How do you like that $170,000 the eight saboteurs carried over here? That's bad. They had to explain it as bribe money, you know, to pay off the subversives for help to blow up war plants, bridges, stores, etc. That looks like something that involves you Bundists. You can bet your dialects that if the saboteurs know any subversive people, they met them at Bund rallies. See where it leaves you? You have no idea of the record Mr. Whiskers has on you chumps. He used to jot down your license number when you came to a meeting in your car. Ach! Dot Hoover!

The hell of it is this: You don't know just how much J. Edgar Hoover has on you. He's so wily, that Hoover. He puts out so much to the papers, then holds out quite a lot to work on. That's why you don't know when your front door is going to be kicked in and you'll have to explain how come. It was a bad day for you, wasn't it, when you chummed up with those eight? The minute they're in trouble—boppo—they drag you into it. A fine way for the Master Race to behave.

And don't expect a lift from Hitler. You Bundists are cheap labor. He can buy you in herds. He uses you, but the minute you can't take care of yourself he throws you to the wolves. What makes you think your punks mean anything to him when he butchers his own generals when they fail to deliver the goods? Did look how he left Fatzo Fritz shin out on a limb. Fatzo was dumb, but he worked hard. Worked like a dog, but the minute things went wrong what did Der Fuehrer do? He said: "The Reich cannot concern itself with stupid failure" and? He wouldn't even send you a copy of Social Justice to while away the time in jail.

And have you been reading about the Bundist suicides right here in New York? And can you be sure they were suicides? Lots of the Bundists are better off dead, especially since the FBI's roundup. They know too much to tell, in case the Gestapo reached them. So they were found in the river. Or maybe they threw eight stories into Yorkville. How about you, Fritz? And you, too, Otto? Are you too informed? Be very careful. Some bosom pal is going to drop in some night and put you right through the square head—and blow all the data right out of your head. Working for Hitler is a tough way to make a pfennig.

However you look at it, it's a pretty stiff price you're going to pay for strutting around in brown shirts and feeling good about being the Master Race. You can't be very proud of your fellow Aryans for the way they welshed. You wouldn't like the Czechs doing that. Those brave people, unarmed and contemned, told your armed bullies to go peil themselves when they were prepared for a squeal on who sent Hitler to hell. More than 800 of them died before they'd please a

Vegetable Preparation and Processing Guide

Stock Those Shelves

Well-justified pride is yours if you can gaze at the summer's crop of vegetables, nicely put up on your canning shelf for, comes the winter, you have but to open one of those brightly colored jars with tomatoes, peas, beans, beets or carrots or any of the other vegetable favorites and part of that well balanced meal is planned and on its way to the table.

Time was when canning was an unscientific and highly questionable process, but all this is past now, and you can now put up any of the vegetable and victory garden produce, and be certain that it will be attractive to look at, good to eat, and will not be spoiled if you take the simple precautions that make for successful canning.

Safest method for canning vegetables is by the pressure cooker. Your concern here is to be sure to process the exact length of time the vegetable requires, as indicated by the table at the top. If not properly processed, the food will spoil.

Selecting Vegetables.

Young, tender vegetables, freshly gathered, give you the best finished product. Canning cannot remedy tough, over-mature produce, so do not expect it to. Nor, should you expect to can what you cannot dispose of at the table while fresh. Commercial canners use vegetables grown to order, not leftovers, so it behooves you, homemakers, to take a tip from them.

Cleanliness is important. You'll enjoy letting cool water trickle, trickle, trickle over the vegetables to free them entirely of every trace of soil. Any soil left on the vegetable can carry bacteria, and thus be a major factor in spoiling an otherwise good product.

Process the jars of vegetables as soon as they are packed, never allowing them to stand around until you get to the serious business of canning.

Spoilage Factors.

Mold, yeast and bacteria cause food spoilage. They lurk in air, soil and water and must be destroyed by proper processing if the food is to keep in perfect condition. Then to assure food keeping well be sure the jar cover is fastened as tightly as possible. This you can do by any number of available devices.

It is also important when packing the jars, after vegetables have been precooked and you are spooning them into the jars, to wipe off any excess before fastening on the cover. Any small particles which lodge between cover and jar will cause spoilage.

Cooling the Jars.

Proper cooling is important to the good keeping of canned food. Do not set them in a draft, but rather away from one, with jars far enough apart to allow a free circulation of air around them.

Stacking the jars or covering them with a cloth does not allow for free circulation of the air. Jars should not be packed in boxes or in the canning cupboard until they are properly cool.

When the jars are cool, test to see if they are sealed properly, by taking a spoon and tapping the lid gently. If they give off a clear, ringing sound, they are properly sealed. If the sound is low and dull, there's a leak somewhere, and you would do best to re-can the food, and prevent spoilage.

Sterilizing Jars, Caps, Lids.

To dip the jars, lids and caps in hot or warm water is not proper sterilization. Before placing in sterilizer, wash all caps and jars and lids in soapy suds, then rinse thoroughly. Place in a pan on a rack or on a cloth laid on the bottom of the pan and pour warm water over them. Bring to a boil and boil for 15 minutes. The equipment may stay in the hot water longer, until you are ready to use it.

Speed Is Necessary.

The time from which the vegetables or fruit are picked and canned should be pared down to exceed not more than two hours. Changes take place in the composition of the food which makes it less desirable for canning, each hour it is allowed to stand without being canned.

Packing the Food.

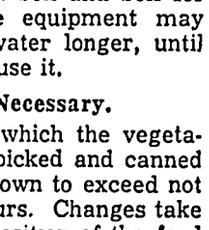
Sandwiching the food down in the jars too tightly prevents the heat from getting around it and will result in improper processing. Especially important is a fairly loose packing with vegetables like corn, peas, greens and lima beans.

If liquid boils away or evaporates during processing, do not replace this other liquid before sealing the jar. Even though all the vegetables or fruits are not covered with juice, they will keep perfectly well, provided the contents are cooked properly and sealed well.

Since tomatoes are technically a fruit and are acid, they are canned differently from vegetables.

Tomatoes.

Scald tomatoes in boiling water 1 minute. Soak in cold water 1 minute. Peel, core and pack into sterilized jars. Add 1 teaspoonful of salt to each jar and cover with boiling water or tomato juice to within ½ inch of the top. Put on cap, screw tightly and place in pressure cooker for 10 minutes at 5 pounds, in a hot water bath for 35 minutes or in the oven for 75 minutes.



Vegetable Soup Mixture.

1 large onion (cut fine)
1 quart tomatoes (cut fine)
2 cups okra (cut fine)
2 cups corn (cut fine)

Combine the ingredients, stirring carefully to prevent scorching, for about 12 minutes. Pack loosely into clean jars and add 2 teaspoons salt to each jar. Put on cap fastening it tightly, and process in pressure cooker 40 minutes at 10 pounds.

If the directions for the vegetables you wish to can are not given in today's column, or if you have any vegetable canning problems, write to Miss Lynn Chambers, explaining your problem to her. Address your letters to her at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Lynn Says:

How many jars will it take? That's the question many home canners are asking when it comes to figuring the number of jars she should have.

Here are hints on some of the common canned goods:

Tomatoes. 3 pounds yield a quart jar

String Beans 1 bushel yields 17 to 20 quart jars.

Greens: 1 bushel spinach yields 13 pints; 1 bushel dandelions yields 15 pints.

Corn: 100 ears of golden Bantam makes about 14 pints.

Beets: 12 pounds yields 6 pints in the stalk, 2 pint jars, if cut in pieces.

Peas: 1 bushel pods yields 14 pints.

NOAH: GOD'S COVENANT WITH MANKIND

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 9 1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—I will remember my covenant.—Genesis 9 15.

God does not forget. He keeps His promises now just as He did in the days of Noah. Since our lesson of last Sunday, a long period of time had elapsed. Generation after generation had come and gone, and all the while man grew more and more wicked. Finally, God saw that He must put an end to the corruption of the human race, saving just one righteous family, that of Noah, with which to begin anew.

He warned Noah of the judgment of the flood, and he in turn doubtless warned others, but finally the day came when God shut him in the ark and poured forth the waters of judgment upon the then inhabited earth. But the same God who shut Noah in (Gen. 7:1), in due time called him out (Gen. 8:15, 16).

Noah had obeyed God, and He now rewarded him. The man who had borne the ridicule was now honored by Him. The experience of Noah brings before us—

God's Three Gifts to a Believing Man:

I. Power (vv. 1-4).

Man is the "lord of creation," not because he has brought about its subjection, but because God gave him that power. It was first given to Adam (Gen. 1:26), and it is renewed here, with the additional promise of the animal as food. This was not to be, however, after the manner of wild beasts (v. 4).

No man ever lost anything by obeying the commands of God, even though appearances may seem to so indicate. The ridicule of those who called Noah foolish for obeying God, had now been silenced by the judgment of the flood, and he stood forth vindicated, empowered by God, with authority over the whole earth.

Faith is still the victory. Men who put their hopes in the kings and empires of this earth have seen them "rise and wane," and even unbelievers are beginning to talk about the necessity of a spiritual anchorage for the souls of men. It is found only in Christ, but in Him is found both peace and power for victorious living.

But we see a second gift of God—

II. Protection (vv. 5-7).

Human life is not as cheap as men would have us think. Their estimate based on greed and lust for power makes man but a unit in a machine designed to build up political power. The blood of those who are not profitable to such an enterprise, is shed in utter callousness.

Those who do such things, need to read the words of God, "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made he man" (v. 6). What a tremendous bill some men will have to pay when they stand before the seat of judgment of our God. Even the animals who kill men are to be slain (v. 5). How much greater shall be the condemnation of the man who violates God's command.

But we see a third gift of God, designed to remove a deep fear from his heart, namely God's—

III. Promise (vv. 8-16).

God made a covenant with Noah and with his descendants and every living creature (vv. 9, 10). This is the third of God's eight covenants with man, beginning with the one to Adam in the Garden of Eden (Gen. 1:28), and closing with the new covenant (Heb. 8:8).

This was a promise of God's grace that there should be no more judgment by flood, and as a sign He chose the rainbow, which, appearing in the very time when rain should fall, would reassure men that a new flood was not coming upon them. What a beautiful symbol!

"I will remember," said God, and He has not forgotten. Though thousands of years have passed, there has never since been such a cataclysm of judgment. How unspeakably precious it is to recall that God has not forgotten a single one of us; that He remembers every promise He has ever made; that He keeps every covenant. And on the contrary, how disturbing it must be to the unbeliever to realize that God has not forgotten his sin and unbelief, nor the judgment which is sure to come.

The story of Noah should stimulate our faith, causing us to trust God, to obey His every command, and to look to Him for His power in our lives, His protection over us, His promise of grace to all who believe.

Faithful in Small Things

Duty, be it in a small matter or a great, is duty still, the command of Heaven, the eldest voice of God; and it is only they who are faithful in a few things who will be faithful over many things. Only they who do their duty in everyday matters will fulfill them on great occasions. —Charles Kingsley.

Arousing the Diety

In Japan, most religious worship consists only of visiting a temple for a few minutes to say a prayer, either alone or with a small group. When entering their sacred edifices, Shintoists clap their hands and Buddhists ring a bell in order to arouse the enshrined deity and get his attention.

Funeral Services Held Tuesday Afternoon For Mrs. Fred Bell

SERVICES HELD AT THE REFORMED CHURCH

Died Sunday At Mason City Hospital Following Opration

Funeral services were held at the Klemme Reformed Church on Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock for Mrs. Fred Bell, 42, who died Sunday afternoon at a Mason City hospital following an operation. Mrs. Bell had been ill for the past few months.

Rev Calvin Grosshuesch preached the funeral sermon. A quartet, Harold Swalve, Allen Barz, Eugene Haberkamp and Cal. Grosshuesch, Jr., sang two songs: "Nearer My God To Thee," and "Abide With Me."

The casket bearers were Arthur Schlawin, Werner Schlawin, Mitchell Bock, Raymond Wille, Kenneth Greimann and Burtis Greimann.

Iterment was at the Ell Township Cemetery near Klemme.

Arrangements were in charge of the Wellcmeyer Funeral Service of Klemme

The obituary which was read at the church service appears at the bottom of this page.

THRESHING WELL UNDER WAY IN NORTH IOWA

Oats had hardly been cut and stacked when threshing began in this community A few rigs were threshing as early as last Thursday

Combining is becoming more popular every year. Not much of the standing oats is combined but combining the wind-rows seems to be the best method here.

Oats are heavy and the yield is high in most fields. Oats test around 34-35 pounds, some better.

SYLVANUS WACKER TAKEN CUSTODY BY U. S. MARSHALL

Britt News-Tribune: A deputy United States Marshal came to Hancock county Monday and took into custody one Sylvanus Wacker, living with his parents in Ell township, south of Garner. Wacker failed to register for the draft at the time set, but some time later decided to register as a selectee. Then when he was notified to appear and take his examination he failed to show up. The Hancock County Draft Board notified the federal authorities. When he failed to appear for induction Monday morning the officers went to the home of his parents and located him making the arrest and taking him to Sioux City.

Miss Jane Wacker, also of Garner, was indicted on October 2, for mailing defamatory postal cards through the mail, was released on $2000 bond and was bound over to the November term of Federal court at Fort Dodge. She was convicted and sentenced when her case came up.

It is advisable to crack or grind corn for hogs. It replaces corn better than oats for dairy cattle.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE CHAIRMAN SAYS "BUY COAL NOW"

Buying Coal Now Will Aid War Transportation Problem

The Rev W T Wolfram, chairman of the Hancock county Civilian Defense Council, has received the urgent request from Washington to impress upon the citizens of Hancock county the duty to buy their coal supplies for next winter, now Therefore he is appealing to you to cooperate with your government in this important matter It is a patriotic deed to empty the bins of the coal dealers in purchasing your coal and filling your bins at home, says Chairman Wolfram Suitable arrangements can be made with coal dealers or with the bank to carry out the government's request, he adds

"Coal will never be cheaper than it is at present You will gain nothing by waiting, but you will help the good cause by acting now. The tracks have to be cleared in fall and in winter for the increased war shipments and troop movements. Mines and railroads are in a position to supply you at the present time, they may not be later and we know that warm homes are essential to national health and good morale

"The government informs us 75 million more tons of coal will be burned this year than last year That will throw a heavy burden on the mines and the railroads Therefore, go to your coal dealer and if he does not have the supply at present, place your name on the waiting list As soon as the car arrives he will notify you to get your supply. We need 100% cooperation by all citizens in every war effort Hancock county will respond and will do its best," Rev Wolfram says

BEN F. GREIMANN RECOVERING FROM ACCIDENT

Ben F Greiman, farmer living northwest of Klemme is still a bit lame but is recovering from what might have been a fatal fall.

About four weeks ago Ben was doing some repairing on the hay track on his barn and was working on that part of the track which extends out from the peak of the barn He was trying to put the carrier back on the track, when a supporting rope suddenly snapped and he was hurtled to the ground thirty-five feet below Fortuneately he grabbed the hay rope about half-way down and this broke his fall, but his right foot and ankle was badly bruised.

His right hand was badly burned and skinned where he grabbed the rope, but otherwise he was not injured.

FALSE ALARM, NO EXTRA SUGAR FOR THRESHING

The Hancock County Rationing Board states: "There is a report around that there will be extra sugar allowed for threshers, but such is not the facts."

There is no extra sugra available for threshing, at least in this county.

BRITT EDITOR WANTS THE NAMES OF ENLISTED MEN

R. R Roberts, Editor of the Britt News-Tribune wants the names of Hancock County boys in military service who were not inducted through the selective service draft. Will display names on the Hancock County Honor Roll at Britt. Write R R. Roberts, Britt, Iowa, giving place and date of enlisment.

Mr Roberts states "What we want is to get the names of every man serving in Army, Navy, Marines, who is a Hancock County boy. Many have enlisted who were not in the drafts and were not registered The only way we can get them is from relatives or a friend We have a board big enough to hold some 1500 names and have about 600 already to start with The painter is working now."

Rev. Muehlmeier Fifty Years In Ministry

FORMER KLEMME MINISTER TO CELEBRATE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY SUNDAY

Rev. A. H. Muehlmeier Has Been Minister For Fifty Years

It will be fifty years this coming August that Rev A. H. Muehlmeier, who served the Klemme Reformed Church in former years, was ordained as a minister of the Gospel. A celebration will take place at Monticello, Wis., Sunday commemorating his 50th anniversary. Rev. Muehlmeier served the Reformed congregations of Monticello for a period of over 30 years. Dr. Paul Grosshuesch of the Mission House, a nephew of Rev. A. H. Muehlmeier, will bring the message.

During his long years of service Rev Muehlmeier baptized nine hundred and eighty-two children, confirmed 725 young people, married 306 couples and condutced 421 funerals.

Served Here In 1901 - 1909

Rev. Muehlmeier served the Klemme Reformed Church as Pastor for a period of about eight years, 1901 - 1909. He was the first resident Pastor of this congregation. Friends of Rev. Muehlmeier who wish to write to him or send a card of congratulations may address their letters to him at Monticello, Wisconsin.

The hog-corn ration in mid-June stood at 18.6 for Iowa. This is extremely favorable when compared with the long-time average.

Hancock County Patriotic Day To Be Staged At Britt

HANCOCK COUNTY PATRIOTIC DAY COMMITTEES HAVE BEEN NAMED

Each Town In County Represented On Some Committee

The following committees have been named for the carrying out of a Hancock County Patriotic day at Britt, Iowa, to be held on either August 20 or 21, 1942, date to be announced next week There will be a parade at 1 00 o'clock, flag raising, induction of selectees and volunteers into armed forces, addresses by men who have been recently in the combat areas of the world, the unveiling of War Memorial to men in service and to those Hancock county boys who will later fill up the ranks of service men A reciting of the American Creed.

These will take place on a mammoth stage erected east of the public school building In the evening a mass band concert followed by an historic pageant in which all towns of the county are taking part.

Entomologists at Iowa State College would like for farmers all over Iowa to send to them all worms and beetles found attacking sweet clover. The Linn county agent found a worm attacking sweet clover there which was identified as the European sweet clover weevil. It has been found attacking red clover and alfalfa to some extent.

NEED FOR FISH RESCUE DECLINES IN MANY AREAS

Picture Shows Test Netting In An Iowa Bayou

Thirty days ago the need for fish rescue work in the overflow waters of Iowa's inland streams appeared to be greater than any time during the past decade. Spring high waters deposited thousands of brood fish in the bayous along Iowa's 15,000 miles of streams, where they spawned. As the floods receded, the bayous were land-locked, and the brood fish, as well as the millions of new fry, were unable to return to the safe parent waters.

An important phase of the Iowa fisheries program is the inland rescue work, which consists of rescuing the trapped fish and returning them to parent streams that do not dry out in the summer or freeze out in winter. This work is done by sportsmen's groups under the direction of the local conservation officers, and by fisheries crews employed by the State Conservation Commission. The immensity of this task may be shown by the fact that during the two-year period ending June 30, 1940, more than 27 million game fish were rescued.

This year, in a large part of the state, Mother Nature is taking care of the fish rescue program by re-flooding the land-locked pools and allowing the fish to reach the parent waters under their own power. In some areas test netting has shown that practically all the fish have returned to the streams. However, sportsmen are urged to watch their local bayous and report any fish rescue needs to their conservation officer.

OBITUARY OF MRS. FRED BELL

(By Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch)

KATHERINE BELL nee WILLE was born December 24th, 1896 in Ell Township She was baptized by Rev. John Gatermann in the Klemme Reformed Church. Her mother died when she was but about 3 years old. During her childhood days she attended the public and religious schools of Klemme She was confirmed by Rev. H. Achtermann in the year 1911 During the years of her youth she was engaged in house work in various homes of the neighborhood.

She was united in marriage to Mr. Fred Bell, March 25th, 1926. Two daughters, Julia and Ruth were born to this union Last year Mr and Mrs. Bell purchased a home here in Klemme. Mrs. Bell loved her home and as a Christian mother believed that "Christ is the head of this house." The family altar and her interest in the religious education of her children, bear witness to this fact. She was regular in Church attendance, was an active and loyal member of the Sunday School, the Women's organization and the Adult Bible Class. During the days of her youth she sang in the Church Choir and later she and Mr Bell were members of the Mixed Chorus.

Mrs. Bell became ill about three months ago. She was taken to a Mason City hospital Tuesday, July 21st, where she was operated on the following day. She fell asleep quietly and peacefully Sunday afternoon, July 26, at 1:30 o'clock, at the age of 45 years, 7 months, and 2 days.

Surviving her and mourning her death are
Her husband. Mr. Fred Bell
Two daughters, Julia and Ruth
Two Brothers, C J. Wille and Carl Wille, Klemme
Four sisters, Mrs. Gretchen Schlawin, Mrs. Naska Bock, Klemme; Mrs. Fred Greiman, Garner; Mrs. Harold Leitzinger, Hayfield
Her step-mother, Mrs. Henry Wille of Klemme
Her father, Mr. Henry Wille, preceeded her in death April 1st, 1940.

Post-War Period In U. S. to Be an Amazing New Age

After-War Years Will See Astonishing Changes in Ways of Living.

Mr. and Mrs. Average American of the post-war era probably will find themselves living in a world full of comforts, conveniences and gadgets that at a present day view have a decidedly Jules Verne flavor.

They may own a home that was erected from the ground up within eight hours and is just as stable as one which before the war required six months to build. The home will have conveniences undreamed of even for comfort-loving Americans. They probably will drive a modestly priced automobile that runs 35 miles on a gallon of gasoline and will negotiate terrain and hills formerly suitable only for the time-honored mountain goat.

If they live on a farm they probably will have an amazing vehicle that can be used to plough, harrow, milk and round up the cows.

When vacation time comes around they may fly over to Cairo or down to Buenos Aires for the week-end. Or they may even make an around-the-world trip during the head of the family's traditional "two weeks off with pay."

These are not fancies conjured from a Lewis Carroll (who authored "Alice In Wonderland") imagination. They are practical potentialities which industrial experts already are forecasting as the logical peacetime application of armament developments

War is a forceful spur to the progress of industrial science and invention. Under its duress there is no time for the cautiously slow experiments which mark the reception accorded new inventions and discoveries in years of peace. New methods, new materials are accepted overnight and are tested in the acid furnaces of combat. The tragedy of modern warfare is an anachronism of progress.

Distance Annihilated.

There is no better illustration of this than the advancement made by aviation as a result of World War I. The airplane represented new potentialities of speed and destruction and as such was seized upon as a weapon of offense by the Allies and their enemies alike In the short period of four years aviation made an advance that would have required a quarter of a century in normal times.

Today, the same situation magnified ten times over obtains. Only recently, Glenn Martin, the noted aircraft designer, announced plans for a 125-ton behemoth of the air capable of transporting 50,000 pounds of equipment at speeds of 200 to 230 miles an hour to be built after the war. This plane, said Mr. Martin, will be "as big as a 30-room house" Meanwhile, another company is reported to have already completed the wooden dummy of a ship that will dwarf the Martin monster —a 160-ton model which could move whole battalions across the continent overnight.

Already in use are new methods of construction which lighten aircraft by hundreds of pounds and so tremendously increase their passenger and freight carrying ability. Naturally, these planes are at present only in military form.

When Peace Comes.

However, when peace comes these Goliaths of the clouds will be interpreted in terms of pleasure and convenience for a travel-loving nation. The almost unbelievable speed which has been developed for military planes—some of which fly in excess of 500 miles an hour—will place far-flung continents and their cities within a comparatively few days or few hours flying distance of the United States. Flying freight trains probably will become the order of the skies.

The increasing public interest in aviation, the training of thousands of young men as expert pilots and the strides made by safety in aviation also presage a new era of private flying. Ten years, even five years from now, plane-rental and fly-it-yourself services probably will be too commonplace to be news. When priorities are no longer necessary, stall-proof, spin-proof planes such as the "Ercoupe" and "Skyfarere" (notable for folding wing features) probably will travel side by side with automobiles along the highways as they shuttle from air field to garage.

As C. R. Smith, former president of American Airlines, recently declared, "In the post-war period, non-stop operation over the ocean will be prosaic with most of the crossing to Europe done at high altitude speeds in excess of 300 miles per hour."

Miracle Car Forecast for Farm Use.

As in aviation so in the world of automotive progress the developments of war will become integrated into America's peacetime pattern of life a few years hence.

In recent tests conducted by the United States department of agriculture and Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., makers and manufacturers of the standard design Jeep, at Auburn, Ala., and Toledo, Ohio, the vehicle gave promise of performing with the same versatility on the farm as it presently is doing on the battlefields of Europe and the Far East.

During these tests the car did everything from cultipacking and harrowing a field in one operation, using 2.12 gallons of gas per acre, to hauling almost a ton and a half of farm produce a distance of 13 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Already known as the "army's miracle car," the Jeep is the descendant of a motor driven platform on wheels known as the "belly-flopper," which was first demonstrated at Fort Benning, Ga., in 1940 At the request of army officials Joseph W. Frazer, president of the Willys-Overland company, and other automotive experts undertook the design of a car which would not exceed 1,400 pounds in weight and should be capable of carrying a 625 pound load.

That a peacetime version of this vehicle which can climb grades that balk a tank and negotiate rough terrain at 40 miles an hour should be developed is, of course, logical and the American farmer will thus inherit one of the nation's most valuable pieces of military equipment.

These automotive principles of high-powered engines which consume a minimum of fuel also will be applied to pleasure vehicles, automobile designers predict, forecasting a light yet powerful car which will require only about one gallon of gasoline every 35 or 40 miles.

On the Sea, Too.

On the sea also the war effort is providing amazing new inventions applicable to the country's peacetime pattern of living. The United States has experimented with an all-aluminum destroyer which they believe will cut through the water at 52 knots an hour.

Seacraft designers declare that the use of aluminum in boat construction may well be the forerunner of high speed passenger transport ships faster than anything previously dreamed of. Row and sail boats so light that a half-grown boy can carry one across country, and fleet pleasure craft that will rival in water the speed of their automotive cousins on land, undoubtedly will make their appearance in the post-war era at prices within reach of the American in the smaller income bracket.

Describing the post-war house which Americans may be occupying ten years from now, Norman Bel Geddes, who designed the Futurama at the New York World's Fair, pictures a prefabricated house which a crew of six men could erect in one eight-hour day. With such a house a family might well eat dinner in a home that had been no more than a pile of materials the same morning.

"We have all the techniques and facilities to build houses such as I have described," says Mr. Bel Geddes. "Today, we have an opportunity to change over from old-fashioned and costly methods to the modern mass production way of building better homes at lower cost." He estimates that at least 2,500,000 new housing units will be required after the war.

Still another noted American architect, Walter Dorwin Teague, declares that we have only to apply to home-building the same techniques of design, manufacture and selling that have provided one motor car for every four people in the United States to produce a type of home which will be within reach of the man in the very low income bracket.

Mr. Teague has designed a house to sell for $1,000 to $2,000 which can be rearranged, even when occupied, as to size and floor plan almost as easily as one changes the furniture in a room. The Teague house not only can be enlarged or reduced in size at the owner's will but also can be moved from one building site to another.

Such a factory-fabricated house, he says, will compare with present day houses as a modern automobile compares with an old-fashioned buggy If the owner of such a house discovers that his job necessitates a move across the continent he will simply take the house down, call a truck and have the house transported to his new place of residence If after six or eight years he wants a new house he will trade in his old one just as he does his automobile

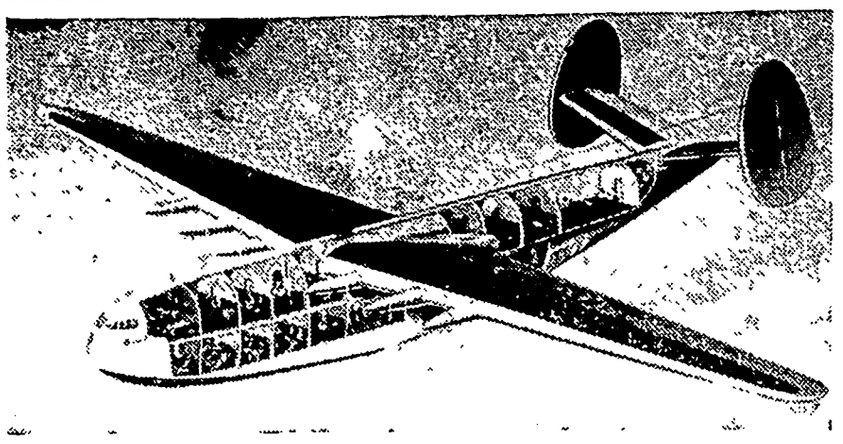
Still another architect who has been studying post-war housing problems, William Hamby, urges that "For better living the post-war home must be improved for the one who has the most to do—the woman."

In a house planned "to take the drudgery out of housekeeping," Mr. Hamby abolishes the usual kitchen and substitutes a streamlined and beautified unit so planned that while the homemaker gets dinner she can also participate in the family's activities.

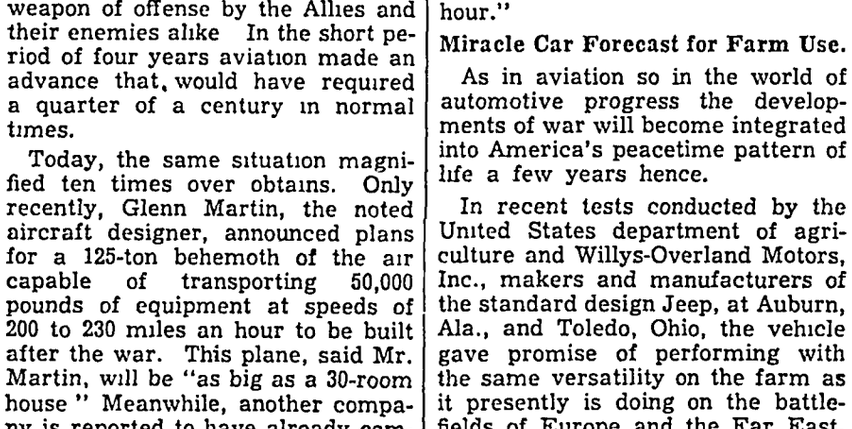
Toward a New Era

Even as the nation devotes the full energies of its industrial power and scientific genius to victory, its citizens can still lift their eyes above and beyond the holocaust of world war to an era that will bring with it a new pattern of living at once finer and more dramatic in its benefits than anything civilization has known before.

Air Leviathan of Near Future



This new design of Glenn L. Martin company's proposed 250,000-pound flying ship is a "preview" of what all will be seeing as it roars across the skies after the war is won. Such planes as these today could haul regiments from coast to coast in a day's time.



This is a modern version of beating swords into ploughshares: converting the army's miracle car, the "Jeep," into an agricultural vehicle of many uses. Who knows, but that some future day Old Bossy, down in the south pasture, will be herded by means of such a jeep?

New Heights of Health for U. S. Citizens After War

From out of the many efforts to improve conditions in the nation's great manufacturing plants as a war measure has emerged a cure for one of the most dreaded of all diseases—silicosis.

Science has discovered that aluminum dust has an affinity for silica and that blown into the air it coats the microscopic particles of silica so that when the latter is inhaled into the lungs its poisonous effects are eliminated and it becomes harmless.

However, above and beyond discoveries of this type there is the even broader aspect of a new high level of health which post-war generations undoubtedly will enjoy because of the far-flung program of education in nutrition now under way as a part of the war effort. Probably for the first time in the history of any nation, Americans will reach new heights of health and well-being because of this newly acquired knowledge of how and what to eat.

In the light of these new benefits and luxuries which await only the end of the world struggle to become realities it is logical to look also into the economic horizons of the post-war period to discover what likelihood there is that the average American family will be economically able to enjoy this new pattern of life already looming on peacetime horizons.

ALEUTIANS IMPORTANT

Behind the army-navy attempts to blast the Japs out of the Aleutian islands is more than natural antipathy to having an enemy on American soil or the fear of an invasion of Alaska.

These are important. But, in addition, events in Egypt may mean that more than ever we shall have to use these vital stepping stones of the Aleutian islands to carry the war to the heart of Japan.

To get the full significance of the picture it is necessary to recall that ever since Pearl Harbor there has been an honest difference of opinion among U. S. war strategists as to whether we should concentrate on fighting Japan in the Pacific or Hitler in Europe

At one time, shortly after Pearl Harbor, high-up U. S. naval advisers worked out an elaborate war plan, which is no longer a secret, for concentrating almost all our naval strength in the Pacific and making a direct attack on the Japanese islands—at a time when the Japs had their lines dispersed to Manila, Singapore and the South Seas.

But the plan meant leaving the Atlantic coast relatively unguarded, also virtually abandoning convoys to Britain and Russia. In the end it was decided that the Russian front was all-important and must be supplied at all costs. The wisdom of this decision seems to have been borne out by subsequent events.

Japs Worried.

However, those who urge the all-out war in Asia have persisted, and their argument has been strengthened by recent developments. One is the fact that the Japs, obviously scared at the prospect of a second front in Asia, are fighting feverishly to clean out the Chinese before China gets important help from us. Fear of a second front in Asia also was why the Japs nipped part of the Aleutian islands.

Main development, however, was the defeat at Tobruk and the serious Nazi threat to the entire Near East; for if the Near East falls, with its vital supply route opened by American railroad engineers from the Gulf of Persia to the Caucasus, then it may be absolutely imperative to open new supply lines to Russia via Alaska and Siberia.

And, even more important, the entire focus of the war, so far as the United States is concerned, may turn to the Far East; for, if Hitler secures the oil of Iran, Iraq and Mosul, it may be the wisest strategy to knock Japan out of the war first—because the Nazis will have the resources to continue for a long time.

WHAT IS AN EXPERT?

When Federal Communications Chairman Lawrence Fly appeared before the house interstate commerce commission recently, he was asked by Representative Clarence Brown of Ohio:

"What is your definition of an expert?"

"Well," replied Fly, "I once heard an expert described as any damned fool away from home."

"Do you pick your experts at the FCC on that basis?" inquired Congressman Brown.

"No," said Fly. "We generally take them from the industry, where they have proven their worth."

"I am asking these questions because of a peculiar experience I had recently," explained the Ohio congressman, and went on to tell how a congressional committee had referred him to an expert on accounting, "a young man who graduated from college in 1939 and was still a trifle wet behind the ears."

A short time later, Brown continued, he called at the War Production board on another matter and was referred to an "agricultural expert." Lo and behold, the expert proved to be the same young man.

"Following this, I again called at the WPB on a matter pertaining to metal," said Brown. "This time I was referred to an expert on copper and, believe it or not, Mr. Fly, it was the same agent.

"And," Brown warned the chairman of the Federal Communications commission, "if I ever come down to your commission and find this chap, you and I are going to tangle."

Our Friends The Greeks

By Frank Gervasi

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly.)

King George II of Greece, a monarch temporarily out of a country but not out of a job, recently visited the United States. Something of the debt which the United Nations owe his tough, liberty-loving people was told during his visit.

Of all the little nations of bewildered Europe that lay in the path of Axis domination of the doomed continent, only Greece, after Poland, loved democracy so well as to fight for it vigorously enough to call what happened a war.

It wasn't war in Holland; it was murder. It wasn't war in Belgium; it was a skirmish. In Poland, desperate though the resistance of the Poles had been, the German campaign proved an enormous exercise in panzer tactics. Only the Greeks had a war for it.

All took their toll of the enemy. Holland, Belgium, Poland — even Norway — cost the Germans and therefore the Axis many men and much equipment. But until Russia entered the war, no foe inflicted such punishment on the Axis as the Greeks did upon the Italians, and later, with the help of the British, upon the Germans.

You can't put a calipers on what Greece did for the cause of democracy and measure it accurately. The war isn't over yet. But it might have been over, had it not been for the Greeks.

There were Quislings in the Greek government. King George knew this. He said so, courageously, at a cabinet meeting held in the last days of Athens, just before the swastika was raised on the Acropolis. Premier Korizis went out and shot himself.

Like Lexington and Concord.

But the Greek people—the goat herders and the tobacco farmers, the wine growers and the tenders of olive groves, the factory workers and the keepers of wine shops—the common people of Greece had no mind to do business with Mussolini or Hitler. The night the Italians treacherously descended upon Greece from their long-established base in Albania—October 28, 1940—those people filled the village squares and the streets with their clamor: "Down with Fascism!"

It was to have been a victorious march to Athens for the Italians. Mussolini's choice of the date—October 28—anniversary of his Pullman-car march on Rome—indicated that.

Metaxas, Greek premier, heard the cries of the people. He was as shrewd a politician as he was an able general, perhaps one of the ablest officers of our times. He saw and seized the opportunity of going down in history as a paladin of democracy rather than a dictator. He chose to fight.

And what was to have been another easy victory for Mussolini's "invincibles," those veterans of one-sided battles against unarmed natives in Ethiopia and barehanded Republicans in Spain, turned into a catastrophic defeat.

Fascism fed on glory. There was none for Fascist arms in Greece. Fascism, gorged on victory, had met costly defeat in Greece.

It dawned on even the staunchest Black Shirts with the Greek debacle that Mussolini was very definitely not always right.

The decline of the Second Roman Empire, that may meet its end one day soon on the sands of Libya, began in Greece because Greeks loved freedom well enough to fight for it.

What Greeks Accomplished.

Something more the Greeks accomplished Italy's mission in the Axis strategy in the Mediterranean region was to have been two-fold. The Fascists were to have marched to Athens and thereby intimidated Jugoslavia, where the treacherous Stoyadinovitch had prepared the terrain for an Axis coup, into the New Order lineup Turkey, which at the time leaned far toward Berlin, was to have been won over by this Fascist triumph, and the Fascists were also to have conquered Egypt.

Hitler attacked the Soviet Union on June 22, 1941. But Greek resistance in the Balkans, which inspired rebellion in Jugoslavia and further complicated matters for the Nazis, had given Russia another seven months' preparation.

Moreover, Hitler was caught on the Russian plains by winter, because his timetable was thrown off schedule by the Balkan campaign.

Hitlerism, some believe, may die in Russia. But if so, it received the mortal wound in the Balkans at the hands of the Greeks.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

stitches with heavy thread through the cover and the wicker are used here and there to hold it neatly in place.

The padding for the inside of the back lends both style and comfort. The cotton batting is fitted and cut on the chair It is then used for a pattern to cut a slightly larger muslin foundation and the chintz, as shown at the upper left. These three layers are then basted and stitched together to make the puffed ridges for this part of the cover. Plain seams are used to stitch the pieces of the cover together.

U. S. Bond Purchases Are Better Than Forced Savings

Federal Taxes Unable to Cover Total of Present War Expenses; Transport Planes' Importance Growing.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Washington, which never hesitates more at offending the electorate than in election year, today is faced with doing that most offensive thing of all—taking away the people's money.

The President's anti-inflation program has not been carried out and nobody dares take the first cruel step to put it into force.

The love of money may be the root of all evil, but the presence of too much money in too many pockets has become an evil, too. The two methods of rooting out this evil are to stop the money coming into all these pockets and to take it away after it gets there. I have had an interesting glimpse into plans for the taking away process through the eyes of some of the men who have some very decided views on that subject.

My story begins in a very ornate corner of the Capitol building just off the senate floor.

Senator Z was opposite me. I always call on him when I want an idea in a couple of pungent paragraphs. He was once a newspaper man himself, and as a timid representative of a news syndicate many years ago I used to beard him in his news den.

"Senator," I said, "what are you going to do about taxes?"

Senator Z's eyes lighted up. He shifted his cigar. "Baukhage," he said and slapped my adjacent knee, "I am not going to do anything—now. When the time comes I am going to do a lot. Let me tell you something. Last January Secretary Morgenthau came and talked to some of us. He said: 'I know it's hard for you folks to vote for a big tax bill in election year. But it's got to be done. And I'll tell you what I want. I want the country to pay for the war two-thirds of the way as we go. I want you men here to make a team and agree to that. Taxes to equal two-thirds of expenditures.'

"So we agreed. But in the five months since then the expenditures have increased so that the balance has been thrown completely out. Instead of paying with taxes two-thirds of current expenses we will be lucky if we can pay one-third.

"And let me tell you this: It is a lot better to make the taxes lower, to leave some money in the taxpayers pocket and force him to buy bonds. I'm not coming out for compulsory savings now for that would defeat itself. I am going to wait until Joe Doaks begins to realize what is happening.

"And let me tell you this!"

"When this war is over, unless the money to fund the war debt is still in Joe Doak's pocket, Joe is going to lose it and the whole economic framework of the country will go to pot. Joe doesn't know that. He thinks the money in the bank is still his. It isn't. It's the bank's. Now Joe won't keep the actual money in his pocket. He'll spend it. Eventually the bank will get it if he does. But if he buys a government bond and puts that in his pocket, he will be safe. So will the country."

"Well," I asked the senator, "when are you going to do something about this, are you going to come out for compulsory savings?"

"No," he said, "but I have a plan, and when Joe Doaks realizes that Henry Morgenthau's voluntary purchase of bonds has fallen down I'll be ready."

Americans Show They Can Do It

Nobody dislikes anything compulsory more than red-blooded Americans, but when an emergency arises, and they feel it is a real, national emergency, they will do what they are told and do it willingly. Three million men did it willingly in the last war when they were told they had to go and fight. Millions are preparing to do it in this war.

Now saving is something that Americans talk about but never have done so much about. In the trying times of peace the insurance agents used to tell me that 90 per cent of the American people had no estate at all when they died and were utterly dependent when they quit work.

Working men and farmers are two of the most independent thinking classes in America today. But strangely enough, the same day that I talked with Senator X in the overstuffed chair in the senate anteroom I ran into P. P is a great friend of the oppressed. He is also a great friend of the laboring man, oppressed or otherwise.

After an exchange of greetings I said to him:

"How do you fellows expect the farmer to be willing to let farm prices be curtailed in any way when wages aren't frozen?"

"I don't," he said, "but I have a great idea. I have been working on Phil Murray about it. It is simple. Let all wage raises from now on be paid in non-negotiable war-bonds. That will stop inflation, for it will keep the money out of circulation."

Well, as I say, I'm no economist but after those two experiences I have begun to get ready to sign up right now for so many bonds a month.

Military Transport Planes For Troop Movements

"Which would you rather try to lick? One wild cat or a swarm of hornets?"

Naturally, I chose, not too willingly even for a purely mental combat, the wildcat.

"So would the Germans;" My lunch partner leaned across the frail restaurant table and pounded it until the tomato-juice cocktails leapt into the air and frightened war-workers looked at us apprehensively.

"You could take a million men across the English channel in ten days in small planes that could be built in six months. They would be as thick as hornets. Those planes could be built without the slightest strain on our war effort."

"That's just an example," my friend went on, "of what we could do with planes if we could get these fossils to build them. Check my figures with the Civil Bureau of Aeronautics if you want to.

"What I am really getting at is this—" my friend went on and then stopped to absorb the agitated tomato juice. Soon he was off again on a most interesting exposition concerning air-power. I tried to keep up with him.

It is hard for a layman to assay these enthusiasts. What they say is always studded with figures quoted from official records. And they usually can quote volumes to prove that people who disagree with them said the same things about Billy Mitchell's ideas all of which have been proved correct.

What my friend was getting at was this: That military transport has been woefully neglected. That only now are we beginning to build transport planes on a scale to meet the demands.

Germany has 10,000 transport planes in service. We only have five plying between China and India. But even a plane carrying 1½ tons could do the work of a hundred and fifty trucks over the Burma road.

I had just heard the surprising word from the lips of a Chinese general that even before the Burma road was destroyed, China was getting very little more in the way of supplies than she is today. Why didn't we begin plane transport then? I thought of the couplet by Pope:

> Be not the first by whom the new is tried
> Nor yet the last to lay the old aside.

I thought we had gone a long way in transport already. Our transports or ferries are over every continent except Antarctica. The Pan American Airlines, which established a regular service across Africa, transporting its own supplies and men to equip the fields, is about to be taken over by the army.

But, according to my friend, we would have been much further along if it hadn't been for "Brass hats who think only in terms of text books that don't even contain the words 'dive-bomber,' or 'glider' or more than passing mention of any aircraft except balloons."

I don't know—perhaps it is time "to lay the old aside."

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

American aircraft manufacturing has increased its annual production rate of warplanes almost 1,000 per month in 25 months.

* * *

More military airplanes will be built during 1942 than were manufactured between the time the first military plane was delivered to the army in 1909 and the first of the present year.

It looks now as if farmers will send to market this fall and winter 5½ to 6 million more hogs than ever before marketed in the period from October 1 through next April.

Milk Distribution Changes Pending

Labor, Transportation, Material Shortages Reason

By T. G. STITTS
(Chief of Co-Op Research and Service, Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C.)

Shortages of critical materials and resources threaten to bring about more dramatic changes in milk distribution methods within the short space of a few weeks than the combined forces of competition and industrial ingenuity have brought about in the past few years.

Shortages of rubber, labor, trucks, machinery, paper and possibly other materials may accentuate the trend away from home delivery, speed up every-other-day delivery, cause zoning of sales areas and may spell the end of special deliveries and particular special services.

These war-time factors overshadow temporarily the longer-run trend toward new methods of distribution which have been going on for several years in the fluid milk indus-

Courtesy U S Department of Agriculture

This little miss from Washington, D. C., knows what is good for her. The millions of gallons of milk consumed each week, both here and abroad in those nations to which Uncle Sam has sent it, is preventing malnutrition which so sorely afflicted war time nations during the last war.

try. These longer-run developments, however, retain a basic importance not only during the war but in the post-war period.

Paper Instead of Metal

The introduction of paper containers, growth of gallon and half-gallon containers, increase in store sales, increased sale of special milks, growth of peddlers, use of retail price-quantity discount schemes and development of all wholesale dealers are among the more important recent changes that were well under way in several larger cities before the defense and the war emergency developed.

From experiences so far, it is difficult to conclude how many of these changes will be permanent. Many of them will be, but others may prove to be unsatisfactory for one reason or another.

AGRICULTURE INDUSTRY
Cotton

By FLORENCE WEED

Cotton seed will soon be more important than cotton lint, according to a cotton economist. This change has come about since science has discovered new uses for linters, hulls, oil and meal.

Linters are the short fuzzy fibers left by the gin. They are used for gun cotton, varnishes, mattresses, fine writing paper, kodak films, smokeless powder and shatter-proof glass. Mixed with chemicals, the linters form plastics that can be molded into thousands of useful articles from radio cases to knife handles. Linters, spun into yarn, make the new rayon fabrics.

Cotton hulls go into bran for cattle, blotting paper, packing materials, baseballs and horse collars. Oil pressed from the seed is sold for food uses and goes into auto cup grease, roofing tar, cosmetics and in emulsifying medicine. Cotton cake and meal, left after the oil is extracted, is used for stock feed and fertilizer.

Cotton cloth has been used experimentally in making hard surfaced highways in 25 states.

Research has produced a cotton cloth that looks like wool and is being used for blankets. A new cording, strong enough for parachute harness and bomb slings, is taking the place of linen, once imported before the war.

Rural Briefs

For best production milking should be done at regular hours. After milking is started, it should be completed without interruption and as rapidly as possible.

Portrait of a Newspaper Reader Mumbling to Himself:

Get the editorial writers sore and they perform at their sockiest. They hit glory on their pieces on the Nazi inhumanities at Lidice. Now they show their teeth again, hooraying Pres. Roosevelt for naming a military board to try the eight Nazi saboteurs . . . Hitler will let out his customary howl about our uncivilized methods, but how can he expect us to hear him? He lost his right to squawk at Lidice . . . Anyway, what did his chumps hope for in case they got caught with trunks full of explosives and bribe money? A scolding?

Another thing—how did the Reich act when a bomb went off under a Munich rostrum a few minutes after Hitler minced off it? The Gestapo lured two Britishers over the border to pin it on them. No crime was ever proved against the prisoners. They were just executed to give Hitler a cue for another tantrum. . . Most of our senators and congressmen in Washington are honest men. Good Americans, reliable citizens. The few legislators who are busy calling their critics smear artists have good cause to worry . . . Election isn't far off, and their critics are giving them insomnia . . . These worried congressmen call their exposers—Communists . . . Hmf! Their most persistent critics are Raymond Clapper, Time magazine, the conservative N. Y. Times and the arch Republican N. Y. Herald Tribune. And 95 per cent of the newspapers in America . . . What some congressmen call Communistic propaganda is actually their voting records and speeches from the Cong. Record.

Once a ball player gets into the big sugar he gets unpopular in the press boxes. Ruth used to take rides when he bickered for a heavier wage. DiMaggio was assailed also for trying to do better. The latest patsy is the Red Sox star, Ted Williams . . . He got fed up with the hoots of the bleacherites and let them know it. For just losing his temper he was practically outlawed . . . Why shouldn't he blow up? Others do, and nobody considers them criminals . . Actors in night clubs carry on steady warfare with the crude ad libbers, but they get cheers when they fight back . . . Maybe baseball wouldn't be such a dull business if they let a few more tempers loose. There are too many coppers running the game . . . Football coaches get all heated up, telling their players to go out and fight. In baseball, apparently, the athletes are instructed to go out there and remember the customer is always right. Not over at this desk!

Hollywoodites are going into the army and navy just like other Americans. Remember all the blah-blah in congress when it was said the actors would rate deferment? . . . Movietown was recently criticized for making films about the war. Now Variety complains because they don't make enough war films. Ho, humph! . . . The dimout doesn't mean much to New Yorkers, but it robs the visitors of the thrill of seeing the Incandescent Belt at its gaudiest . . . The White Way was Broadway's trademark, and the first peep at it always left the looker gasping . . . Best comment of all on the sight was offered by G. K. Chesterton, as A. Woollcott once reported. Chesterton stared and marveled, then said: "What a thrill this must be for anybody who can't read!"

Man About Town:

This is the way Harry Hopkins proposed to lovely Louise Macy . . . The night before Mr. Churchill returned to London Louise went to the home of Mrs. Averell Harriman to dress for dinner, where Mr. Hopkins called for her . . . As they were having a cocktail (prior to leaving for the White House) Mr. H. (a shy sortuvachap) asked Miss Macy to marry him in this manner: "I was just talking to the President and I asked him whether he thought you would say 'yes'—if I asked you to marry me—and the President said he thought you would" . . . Her answer belongs in the history books . . . "As usual," she said, "the President is right."

New Yorkers Are Talking About: Fred Allen's high blood pressure, which sent him hurrying to Mayo Brothers at Rochester, Minn. . . . Lindbergh's definite threat to announce his candidacy for office soon via the page ones.

The Magic Lanterns: "United We Stand" is a stiff reminder to all of us that Hitler thrives on our disunity. It chronicles events from the Treaty of Versailles until Pearl Harbor, highlighting the Axis "divide and conquer" technique . . . "Eagle Squadron" shows Yanks in the RAF, with the blitz and the British reprisals contributing a powerful Sunday punch. Diana Barrymore, Eddie Albert, Robert Stack and others show up handsomely, but the fattest role is played by the high explosives.

THE COMPLETE WEATHER BUREAU SERVICE

(Weather bureaus in New York and many cities are supplementing weather information by issuing warnings, some in rime, against shortening the life of tires by fast driving on hot roads. How about going in for the idea in a big way to boost all drives?)

What's the outlook, hot or cold?
Come across with rubber, old.
Weather Man:
Temperatures are due to soar;
Help your country win this war!
It may get to 93—
Save your tin cans carefully!
If it gets to 98
Walk, don't ride, to keep that date!
There's a heat wave heading in;
Driving swiftly is a sin;
Record heat may be at hand;
Hard on tires, understand?
Subscriber:
This is service most complete;
Rubber melts in too much heat.
Weather Man:
For tomorrow, little change;
For less driving, please arrange;
Showers will bring no relief;
Hot roads bring a tire grief.
Subscriber:
Thanks for all the song and dance . . .
Take those cuffs right off your pants!

AN IDEA!

"There goes the curse of the army," said Lieutenant General Somervell as thousands of rubber stamps were tossed into a collection of old rubber. Which makes one realize that somebody missed a bet when they failed to emphasize rubber stamps in the rubber drive. Rubber stamps are not only the curse of the army, they are the curse of the country. How about a last minute appeal to America to throw its rubber stamps into the war on the Axis? Nothing could be better spared.

Young Suitor Felt Sure The Idea Was Correct

The young man had for some months been calling on Helen. Then at last he came to see her father. Without a tremor he asked for the daughter's hand in marriage, and hardly waiting for a reply, added this announcement: "It's a mere formality, I know, but we thought it would be pleasing to you if it were observed in the usual way."

Helen's father stiffened and glowered, then:

"And may I inquire," he asked, "who suggested to you that asking my consent to my daughter's marriage was a mere formality?"

"Yes," replied the young man. "It was Helen's mother."

Fly Is Paralysis Carrier

Discovery that common flies carry the virus of infantile paralysis has been made by Drs. John L. Paul and James D. Trask at Yale university medical school.

It is now evident that poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis), which cripples 10,000 persons and kills from 500 to 1,000 every year, is a disease of the intestinal tract as well as the spinal cord, and that flies may carry the virus from sewage.

The discovery of Drs Paul and Trask makes the common house fly more than ever an enemy to health and even to life itself, especially among children.

Visiting were a group of Klemme people were at the Clear Lake State Park having a family reunion and a picnic dinner

Came a lull in the festivities and the group fell to visiting It so happened that some of the heavyweight ladies were all seated on one side of the picnic table Opposite sat a group of men seated with their backs to the ladies and probably gazing out over the lake watching the pretty girls All at once the men got up and sauntered away The move over-balanced the table and the ladies on the other side went down, their feet went up and the remnants of the picnic dinner skidded off the table and onto the helpless women They were covered with everything on the table sandwiches, pickles, coffee, mustard, jam and what-not all over their dresses, in their hair and on their face What a mess!

It's going to take those men a long time to convince the ladies it was purely accidental.

There would be a lot of red faces if we published the list of those in this community who have NOT purchased War Bonds. We are sorry to say that some of our so-called "prominent and well-to-do" citizenss names do not appear on the list

And on the other hand we are certainly proud of the way the so-called "little fellow" has responded and we know that some are making a real sacrifice to purchase a couple of dollars worth of war savings stamps each month They deserve a big hand.

LONG DISTANCE FLYERS

Chimney swallows have proven that they can be distance flyers Recently a pair of swallows flew down the chimney at the Ed Bray home in Bedford, where Bray captured them The birds were banded and the bands were forwarded to the Iowa State Conservation Commission It was learned that one bird flew from Memphis, Tennessee, the other from Gainesville, Florida

NOT EDIBLE

Lawrence Lansing of Dyersville recently found some hickory nuts that were petrified into stone

NO WHEAT NO BREAD

Wheat that might later have been made into bread was destroyed by fire recently The fire, caused when a truck back-fired while hauling grain, burned 50 acres of uncut wheat on the Frank Sydow farm near Onawa

DOUBLE CATCH

Mrs Ted Buchanan of Belmond reports that while fishing one day, she became quite disgusted with the idea when she hadn't had even a "bite" Pulling in the line, she found it to be quite difficult. On the end of the line was hooked a tire casing, inside which flopped a large bullhead

NINETY-NINE OUT OF ONE HUNDRED DO IT

On July 4, 1941, a piece from an airplane, flown over Rudy Ulrich's farm near Garner, fell into a corn field Ulrich gave the matter considerable publicity, but did not learn until over a year later from whose plane the piece fell He received a letter recently from C W Heinselman, now with the army air corps, stating that the piece was a section of the ailerons, ripped off in a heavy wind, but the loss did not hamper his landing the ship safely Heinselman had seen the publicity in a daily paper, but neglected writing for over a year He was "barn-storming" at the time.

OLD WAY TO CATCH THE SLY OLD FOX

Two boys, both under ten years of age, Eugene and Slyvarius Wuchter, of near Dyersville, used a method employed years ago for catching animals, to catch a fox As a gray fox was bothering chickens on their farm, one of the boys jumped and landed on the fox's head, the other boy grabbed the fox by the tail and led the animal away from "temptation" The fox was later killed by Mr. Wuchter.

MERE FLIP OF COIN

If the coin had not landed as it did, what is now Grinnell might have been named "Phelps." The Grinnell and Phelps families, both pioneer settlers of the town were naturally considered when it came to naming the town. It was decided that tre flip of a coin would determine what name the town would bear. The coin was flipped, and it was decided that the name henceforth would be "Grinnell," which is is to this day.

FALSE ALARM

An electric fly spray machine was the cause of a fire alarm in Indianola Fog caused by the machine in a grocery store was mistaken by someone for smoke, and an alarm was turned in.

FREE HONEY

Workmen repairing the walls in the Guthrie County courthouse found a large number of pounds of honey stored there, an odd place for it to be found The bees were still at work storing more of the "luxurious" delicacy when they were discovered at the work For very little extra work, the workmen found themselves the owners of several pounds of honey, merely for the taking

MOTORIZED CADDY

Blaine Asher of Spencer has purchased a machine that carries him around the golf course, together with his golf clubs. The little "scooter" is run by electricity and needs re-charging every 36 holes.

OLD STORE BASEMENT HIDDEN BY FENCE

Ed Jacobs has considerably improved the appearance of the lots where his store burned down last fall by having a high board fence erected around the basement at the rear of the former building The fence serves a double purpose as it not only hides an unpleasant view but is a safeguard preventing the possiblity of someone falling into the basement and becoming injured in a fall

The front of the lot next to the walk is also being improved by leveling up the brick walls

Seats with backs were then constructed on top of the lowered and leveled wall making a fine place for the crowds on Wednesday and Saturday nights, to sit and visit.

SUMMER CARE OF COWS IS QUITE IMPORTANT

Five factors are listed as probable causes for the usual lower production of Iowa dairy cows during July, August and September, by Arthur R Porter, extension dairyman at Iowa State College

The factors are shortage of feed, hot and humid weather, lack of water, neglect, and flies

If pastures are short, and nothing else is available, feed hay or silage Grain is needed for cows producing over a pound of butterfat a day

Darken Barn

We can't change the weather but cows can be protected somewhat by keeping them in darkened barns or sheds through the heat of the day and allowing them to graze at night and early morning

Plenty of fresh water should not be taken for granted Because the tank near the barn is full does not mean that the cows have plenty if the pasture is far away.

Fight Flies

Breeding places for flies should be destroyed The darkened barn idea helps prevent fly annoyance Fans and home-made cooling systems are further aids.

Dairymen have learned by experience that it is difficult to regain production after it has been allowed to go down, Porter points out.

Modern Bandit Is 'Sissy' To 'Wild West' Sheriffs

To a pair of chip-jawed sheriffs of the day of the "hoss-hair-trigger" today's gangsters and bad men wouldn't rate a second glance.

"Bad Bills? Humph, they're Sweet Williams," say these two men in whose day the usual history of a gun duel between the law and the outlaw was the man who was fastest with the gun.

Both former Sheriff George Tindall and his successor Fred Thorp of Conconnully, Wash., rate as such historians.

Tindall, a native of Oregon, began his career as an officer in 1887 when he was a deputy sheriff and United States marshal. In 1902, he became sheriff and that year was the beginning of the end of horse thieves and cattle rustlers in the Conconnully territory.

Thorp, his successor, known all over the Northwest as the sheriff that always brought in his man, dead or alive.

When Tindall assumed office, the average population of his region was one person to each square mile —a situation that made cattle rustling a profitable affair.

A conviction on a charge of cattle thievery was hard to obtain, some old pioneers even alleging that many juries had members that were mixed up in the rustlings.

But 10 months after election, Tindall had changed the situation somewhat. Teaming up with a fighting prosecutor, Tindall brought about conviction and prison terms for 22 men in that time—a record never equaled.

Probably the high point of the sheriff's career was the war between the cattlemen and sheepmen. It began when Tindall aided in the arrest of one "Wild Bill" Hughes, a reported murderer.

A deputy sheriff was shot the next night, supposedly by a friend of Hughes—and the war was on.

A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury since no one could be found to testify. The westerners suddenly were cursed with bad memories.

And events similar to the night riders of the tobacco states began. Bands of men rode the hills at night, armed with guns, knives and clubs. Grazing sheep were slaughtered and sheepmen would receive matches in the mail.

The next night after the match had been delivered, hay and feed would go up in flames. It was the end of sheep raising in the region until comparatively recent times.

THREE THOUSAND BULLHEADS PLACED IN IOWA RIVER NEAR KLEMME

Three Thousand Bullheads Placed In East Twin Lake Monday

Fishing should be excellent around Klemme, Goodell and Kanawha as a large consignment of adult bullheads was distributed by the State Conservation Commission Monday.

The bullheads brought here are the result of "rescue" work around Lansing where they were seined from ponds and sloughs along the Mississippi river. The fish were trapped after high waters receded

Fifteen hundred bullheads were consigned to R A. Jorgenson of Klemme who supervised their distribution Five hundred were put in the river near the Arnold school house south of Klemme, another five hundred were turned loose at the Lemke bridge west of town; and another five hundred were placed in the river at the bridge near J. E. Stille's farm northwest of the Lemke bridge.

Fifteen hundred bullheads were placed in the river in the Goodell vicinity Three thousand were put in East Twin Lake

The fish were all large, measuring from about eight to twelve inches long

The fish were brought direct from Lansing in two tank trucks

1942 H. S. GRADUATES ARE URGED TO ATTEND COLLEGE

The question "Should 1942 high school graduates go on to college?" is on the minds of many young people and parents today.

The answer is that they should continue their education by going to college. It is summed up in this way The President of the United States, and others in authority, urge that students continue the normal course of their education unless, and until they are called for active duty, so that they can be well prepared for greatest service to their country This is sound advice There is at this moment a tremendous need for technically trained young people which only the schools and colleges can supply

Beginning in September, 1942, young men entering college will have three general types of enlisted reserve which they may look forward to: (1) The Enlisted Reserve, (2) The Army Air Force Reserve, (3) The Navy Reserve

Be trained, attend college in 1942-1943.

Bull Blocked Colonization

A bull, which the early Norsemen brought to America with them wrecked their attempt to colonize Vinland (believed by many historians to be Rhode Island) The animal frightened the natives and made them so hostile that the Norsemen had to pack up and go home. Prepare for Winter With Delicious Canned Fruit
(See Recipes Below)

Fruit Canning

Plan now to put up those fruits from the market or your victory garden while you can still capture their garden-freshness and summer sweetness. This year's canning will require more careful planning than ever before, for waste in the fruit itself, canning jars, rubbers or sugar is highly undesirable.

Chart your plans before embarking on the canning program. Consider first how much sugar you will have available, with the five pounds per person allotment for people who are canning. Plan this amount so it will do for the jams, jellies, preserves, and sugar syrups for fruit canning.

If possible, can in the early morning hours when you are rested and your mind free from too many other thoughts. You will then be able to follow recipes more carefully, to work with more energy and spirit The day before you will, if you are the bright and alert homemaker, have gathered together your jars, washed them, bought necessary supplies of rubbers and covers and other equipment.

Bring out the preserving kettles and pressure cookers, too. See that they are well scoured, that you have the racks, petcocks, pressure gauge, and steam-tight cover on the pressure cooker well in order.

A hot water bath is best for processing fruits because they are acid. They can safely at high temperatures, and texture, flavor and color are best. Oven canning is good also. For the hot water bath, use a large wash boiler or vessel with tight fitting cover. Fit this with a rack at least ½ inch from the bottom. Fill the rack with enough water to cover jars at least one inch over the top. Count the processing time as soon as water surrounding the jars begins to boil. There should be free circulation of water around jars.

For oven canning, set the temperature at 250 degrees. Set jars on a rack in the cold oven, however. Start counting time when oven is switched or turned on. Do not allow the temperature ever to exceed 250 degrees as this causes liquid to boil away and evaporate.

In placing your jars in the oven, allow for free circulation of heat between them. Do not allow the jars to touch each other, as this will often cause breakage, and do not allow them to come in contact with the sides of the oven.

If liquid evaporates during the processing in the oven, do not fill the jars after you take them out. Some evaporation does not affect successful canning of the fruit.

The Sugar Question.

Fruit may be canned successfully without sugar or sugar syrup with water or fruit juice used in its place. Sugar, however, does mellow and ripen the fruit, giving it a better flavor. You might try making your fruit syrups for fruit canning less sweet than usual if you are short on sugar.

Honey may be used in place of sugar in making the sweet syrup, but the fruit will be somewhat more dark than if sugar is used and the fruit flavor will be intensified. Use honey for each cup of sugar in the substitution.

Lynn Says:

How many jars are you putting up of the fruits? Here's a guide to help you pick out jars:

Cherries: 9 baskets yield 2 pints pitted, 7 pints, if whole.

Peaches: 2¼ pounds (small basket) yields 1 quart.

Plums: 1 14-pound basket yields 25 pints.

Strawberries: 1 crate yields 26 pints, if canned whole; 31 (7½-ounce) glasses of jam.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

Green Beans Scalloped Potatoes
Tomato-Lettuce Salad
Bran Muffins
Whipped Fruit Gelatin
Beverage

White corn syrup is another acceptable substitute, but since it is less sweet than sugar, substitute 1½ cups of corn syrup for 1 cup of sugar.

Syrups to Use.

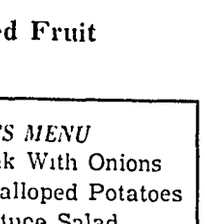
Thin syrups (No. 1) are used for small, soft fruits such as cherries and berries. Make the syrup by using three parts of water to one part of sugar.

Medium syrup (No. 2) does best by sour berries, acid fruits as cherries and rhubarb, and peaches. Boil two parts of water with one part of sugar.

Heavy syrup (No. 3) is prescribed for the large, sour fruits in which you desire extra sweetness. Measure one part water to one part sugar and bring to a boil.

Apples or Pears.
(Hot Pack)

Wash, pare, core uniform-sized apples and cut to desired sizes. (If fruit is to stand long enough to discolor, drop into water which has been slightly salted, until ready to use.) Drain from brine. Boil 3 to 5 minutes in a medium syrup and pack into clean jars, filling with syrup to ½ inch of the top. Put on cap, screw band tight, process in hot water bath 25 minutes, or in the oven (at 250 degrees) 75 minutes. If using a pressure cooker, process at 5 pounds for 10 minutes.



Apples or Pears.
(Open Kettle)

Select uniform fruit, wash, pare and core. Cut into halves or slices. Drop into boiling No. 1 syrup, and boil for 20 minutes. Pack into clean, hot, sterilized jars and seal tight.

Peaches.
(Open Kettle)

Select firm, ripe peaches. Peel or dip peaches in hot water, then in cold and slip off peel. Leave whole or cut in halves or slices. Boil 20 minutes in No. 2 or 3 syrup, and pack in clean, hot, sterilized jars. Seal tightly.

Peaches.
(Hot Pack)

Prepare as above, removing peel and pits Precook for 3 minutes, then pack into clean jars, add syrup to within ½ inch of the top. Put on top, screw on firmly, and process in a hot water bath for 20 minutes, or in the pressure cooker for 10 minutes at 5 pounds, or in the oven (250 degrees) for 68 minutes

Plums.
(Hot Pack)

Use the same method and time as for peaches, except do not peel the fruit, merely prick the skins.

Berries.
(Cold Pack)
(Except strawberries and cranberries)

Wash, stem and pack berries. Pack into clean jars and add No. 2 or 3 syrup Put on cap, screw tightly. Process in hot water bath 20 minutes or in pressure cooker 8 minutes at 5 pounds or in the oven at 250 degrees for 68 minutes.

Cherries.
(Cold Pack)

Wash, stem and pit cherries, if desired. Pack into well cleaned jars, fill with No. 2 or 3 syrup depending on the sweetness desired. Put on cap and fasten tightly. Process 20 minutes in a hot water bath, 10 minutes in the pressure cooker at 5 pounds, or 68 minutes in a 250-degree oven.

If the directions for the fruit you desire to can are not given here, or if you have any query on other canning problems, write to Miss Lynn Chambers, explaining your problem to her. Address your letters to her at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

ABRAM: A PIONEER IN FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 12 1-9, Hebrews 11 8 12

GOLDEN TEXT—Fear not, Abram. I am thy shield and thy exceeding great reward.—Genesis 15 1

Without faith it is impossible to please God (Heb 11.6). The opposite is also true, namely, that faith always pleases God As we read the Bible and consider Christian experience, it is evident that God is constantly longing to show Himself strong in behalf of them who believe Him (II Chron. 16:9).

Abraham was not the first man to walk by faith. Before him came such men as Abel, with his acceptable sacrifice; Enoch, with his walk pleasing to God; Noah, who believed and obeyed; and others

But Abraham was nonetheless a pioneer of faith. He had many other noble characteristics, and was a man of such distinction that his memory is venerated by Jews and Mohammedans as well as Christians Yet his real claim to an outstanding place in history is that by faith he responded to God's sovereign act in choosing him to begin a new nation, to be His chosen people.

We note two important points about faith:

I. Faith Makes Demands.

In the very nature of things, faith calls for action consistent with belief "Faith without works is dead" (James 2 20), that is, not a real faith at all. In Abraham's life (and in our life) faith calls for

1. Separation (Gen. 12 1).

"Get thee out" was God's command to Abraham. To accomplish His divine purpose God had to take him out of the heathendom of his fathers, and start anew. It is His command to His followers today, "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord" (II Cor 6:17)

Who will doubt that this is the crying need of the church today, for instead of the church being in the world seeking to win it to Christ, worldliness has come into the church and devitalized its message.

2. Obedience (Gen. 12 4-6; Heb. 11.8, 9).

"Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken" (v. 4). He didn't know where he was going, but he did know who had called him, and he went. Faith knows God, and obeys Him without hesitation and without reservation.

Obedience is a virtue that needs to be revived, in the home, in school, in society, and especially in our relation to God, for there surely should be no disobedient children in the family of God. He merits and expects obedience.

3. Trust (Gen. 12:7-9; Heb. 11: 10).

An assured reliance on the Word of God is a part of faith. God made a promise to Abraham. He accepted it, and worshiped. Here was no questioning, no bargaining, but simple trust in God's word. In fact, there was anticipation of even greater things to come (Heb. 11: 10).

We need men of vision and that means we need men who by faith can see the unseen, who can see "a city which hath foundations" even in the midst of destruction and disorder. "In God We Trust" must be more than a motto on our coins if America is to survive.

II. Faith Brings Results.

The world wants to know if a thing works before accepting and approving it. Well, faith really does work! It brings 1 Blessing (Gen. 12.2, 3).

God is always on the giving hand. "I will bless," was His word to Abraham, not only for Abraham himself and for the great nation of which he was to be the father, but to "all the families of the earth" (v. 3). How gloriously that promise was fulfilled in the coming of Christ our Redeemer, who also was a "son of Abraham" (Matt. 1:1).

2 Protection (Gen. 12 3).

"I will curse him that curseth thee." That promise to Abraham is still binding and valid. God is not through with Israel The nations and persons who have vented their hatred upon the children of Abraham need to take notice

We need to be reminded that God's protecting care is just as sure over us who bear His name. We too are "safe in Jehovah's keeping," even in what is perhaps the darkest hour in the history of the world. Faith in God brings to us the protection of His almighty hand.

3. Fulfillment of Promise (Heb. 11:11, 12).

The entire promise to Abraham hinged on the birth of a son, something which was, humanly speaking, beyond all possibility. But because Sara, joining Abraham in believing God, "judged him faithful who had promised," it came to pass.

"With God all things are possible" (Matt. 19:26). He delights in doing the impossible in response to the faith of His children. Apart from that fact we might be fearful, yes despondent, but "with God" we say again, "All things are possible."

PATTERNS
SEWING CIRCLE

WHAT a practical idea there is in this cunning small outfit for little girls! Off with the jacket and you have a cunning play dress without sleeves—so that it permits rollicking freedom and plenty of healthy sun tan. It is a dress which your daughter can wear in comfort for hours of back-yard play, beach games and farm life!

The jacket which dramatically transforms the princess frock into a smart street outfit is just waist length, has tiny short sleeves and a simple square neck You'll like the effect if you apply to the skirt two bands of the material you use in the jacket. Band the panties, too, to complete the cheerful ensemble. Pattern No. 1607-B gives you complete instructions for making each of the three pieces.

Big Moving Job

One of the largest single moving jobs on record was the transfer of an artificial silk factory from Hopewell, Va., to Sao Paulo, Brazil, in 1934. There were seven shiploads of equipment and machinery, and some of the pieces were so large that the railroad hauling them from Santos had to move one of its stations out of the way.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS

• Manufacturers and merchants sense the power of the press. Early they began using it to carry their advertising facts and ideas into homes. And they found it a most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers. And the buyers in turn found it profitable to deal with those who were willing to state in print the values and services they offered.

County Supervisor Penn Eckels is appointed by the Board of supervisors to serve as a committee to purchase the gasoline needed by the county for the operation of its equipment, at the session of the board held Monday.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank my friends, relatives and neighbors for the cards, letters and flowers they sent me during my illness. It was greatly appreciated Sincerely,

Mrs. Art Schoenwetter.

HOMEMAKERS NOW SALVAGE FATS, OILS TO AID INDUSTRY

What used to be just "junk' around the house may be just the thing the nation needs in its war production program, Miss Eleanor Eyestone, county home demonstration agent says Homemakers already have started to help in the "Salvage for Victory" program and are urged to search for metal, scrap iron, rubber, manila rope, burlap bags and rags useful in the war effort

Miss Eyestone reports that home makers especially are urged to wage private war on waste of fats and oils Since the war in the Pacific has reduced the supply of vegetable fats from the Far East it is necessary to find substitutes for them as they are essential in the making of glycerine and explosives.

Methods of saving fats and oils include keeping all cooking fat after it has been used bacon grease, meat drippings and frying fats and then straining and pouring them into a clean, wide-mouthed can Tre salvaged fats and oils should be kept in a cool dark place and taken to a local meat dealer when a pound or more has been collected. The meat dealer will pay the homemaker for the fat and get it started on its way to the war industries

Fats should not be allowed to stand so long that they become rancid, as the glycerine content is greatly reduced To help the meat dealer, not less than 1 pound of fat should be taken to him at a time and not on weekends but at a time he is likely to be least busy Neighborhood leaders, local salvage committees and county extension services are cooperating in the "Salvage for Victory" program and will help answer questions and solve any problems that arsie, the home agent added

Services For Liberty Township Lady Held At Garner Today

MRS. GUY L. BRAUND DIED AT HOME IN LIBERTY TOWNSHIP MONDAY

Funeral Services In Charge Of Rev. Herschel E. Harvey

Funeral services for Mrs. Guy L. Braund, 67, of Liberty township were held this Wednesday afternoon at the Bohn funeral home in Garner, with Rev Herschel Harvey of the Klemme Methodist Church in charge Interment was made in the Concord cemetery near Garner

Mrs Braund died at her home in Liberty township Monday, following an illness The Braund family came to Liberty township a year and a half ago and reside on the Reuber farm

Viola May Braund (nee Rhodes) was born at Shirland, Illinois, October 27, 1875 With her parents and family she came to Iowa in 1882, in which state the balance of her life was spent, the principal part in the countryside, and on the farm where she loved most to be She was educated in the Public Schools and the Congregational Church, of which body she was a member

She was married to Guy Braund, to which union six children were born Louis and Earl preceded her in death

The life and character of the deceased is epitomized in the words of her Master, of whom it is written· "He went along doing good" As a daughter, sister, wife, mother and grand mother, neighbor and friend, in all relations and contacts with others she steadfastly sought to do good and serve others. Her faith in God as her Creator and Spiritual Father, and in His Son Jesus Christ as her Saviour and Lord was steadfast, and her reward no one can take from her.

Mrs. Guy L. Braund is survived by her husband; also three sons Chester of Kiester, Minn., Leslie of Garner, and Glen of Joice; and one daughter, Elva, at home. Two sons Earl and Louis, preceded their mother in death.

Farm Bureau Women Will Have Educational Work Program

HOME PROJECT WOMEN PLAN FALL PROGRAM

Plans for a general war emergency program in Hancock county Home Project Work during the coming year were made Wednesday, July 29, by the Home Project Committee working with Mrs. May Larson, Assistant State H D A leader of the Iowa State College Extension Service, and Miss Eleanor Eyestone, county home demonstratio agent.

The major program will be adaptation of all project work to war effort, with such other phases as (1) Planning meals to make the best use of the home food supply (2) Points in business including women's place in farm business and helping her assume full responsibility if needed (3) Bread baking and war-time desserts (4) Home care of the sick—a few fundamental home nursing procedures to meet the shortage of trained nurses.

Special training in (1) Flower Growing, arrangement in the garden and in the home and (2) Conservation of clothing, including care, pressing, storage, equipment, for which township or community groups feel particular need, will be given by Miss Eyestone or an extension specialist War emergency programs already under way in nutrition, production and conservation of home-produced foods, anti-inflation and other state and national projects will be contiued

In an effort to do as much as possible toward the war effort and still conserve tires and gasoline, the women suggested topics for discussion in which men and young people, as well as the women in each community could participate

Subject matter in the major phase of the Home Project work will be given by Miss Eyestone at training schools for educational cooperators representing each 4-square mile district in the county. Each cooperator will in turn take the information back to every farm family in his 4-square mile district.

The educational cooperator system, which was launched on a national scale this year as part of the Extension Service's war emergency program is designed to give out information with a maximum of effectiveness and a minimum of expenditures in such matters as tires, time and gasoline.

The Home Project Work will get under way early this fall. Open meetings will be held to discuss plans for the year's work as it is to be conducted under the Farm Bureau A demonstration or illustrated talk on "Conservation of Materials" will be presented by Miss Eyestone Tea or social meetings to which all women will be invited will follow the discussion. The schedule of Hancock county open meetings will be announced later.

HOUSE CATS DESTRUCTIVE TO WILDLIFE

Common House Cat With Dead Quail

The ordinary house cat has long been recognized by game technicians as most destructive to wildlife. Some even go so far as to state that cats destroy more game than all other predators combined. The worst of the cats, of course, is the one that actually goes wild. These cats call home a nest under some abandoned building or in a ground hog den. There are thousands of such cats in Iowa. For every cat that takes up permanent habitation in the fields, however, there are hundreds of occasional hunters. These are the milk-lapping tabbies who part-time quietly lie in front of the fireplcae. They are truly the Dr. Jekyl-Mr. Hides of the animal world. Even the most docile, home-loving tabby with a warm bird in its mouth reverts to savagery. Try to remove a bird from a cat's mouth, and you will be greeted with angry flashing of eyes and a deep-chested growl that you never dreamed could come from your ordinarily gentle-mannered pussy cat. Cats selected for their mouse-catching ability are useful if kept in their proper place, but they should never be allowed to run in the wild, especially in June and July, when both song and game bird young are most helpless.

OBITUARY OF LEO BRINKMAN

By Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch

LEO BRINKMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs Martin Brinkman, was born November 13th, 1918, at Klemme, Iowa.

His parents brought him to Baptism on March 29, 1919. During his childhood he attended the Public School and the Church School. He was confirmed in the Klemme Reformed Church with the class of 1933 His memory verse was: "I am the Resurrection, and the Life, he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live" John 11, 25. In high school he was a good student and an outstanding athlete. He was chosen as a member of the Seven Eagles Basket Ball Team in his senior year. He graduated with the class of 1936.

After graduating from High School he worked at various places. For a time he was employed at a green house in Sheboygan, Wis., and after returning he found employment at the local Print Shop where he worked for a year and a half.

Leo was interested in the activities of his church. Until the time of his illness he taught a Sunday School Class. He was also a member of the Young Peoples Bible Class

In September 1940, Leo and Miss Mary Nell Jones announced their engagement Throughout his long illness his bride-to be was almost constantly with him to attend, cheer and comfort him

He first became ill in March 1941 He was taken to a Mason City hospital where two major operations were performed For a time he seemed to be on the way to recovery, but in November he again returned to the hospital for treatment. He was taken to the Hampton hospital July 16th, and from there transferred to Iowa City two days later He fell asleep quietly at 2·00 o'clock Friday morning at the age of 23 years, 8 months and 18 days.

Surviving him and mourning his death are his parents, Mr and Mrs. Martin Brinkman; four brothers, Garland, Ronald, Merlin and Martin, Jr.; his finance, Miss Mary Nell Jones; and many more distant relatives, and friends.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Washington, D. C.

PROFESSOR VS. SUBS

Governor Rex Tugwell of Puerto Rico was flying from his post to the British island of Jamaica a short time ago, and just before he stepped into the plane, the young naval pilot said:

"I don't suppose we'll see anything. But we might as well be ready just in case."

So they loaded the plane with half a dozen depth charges. It was a small transport plane, had no regular bomb bay, so the depth charges were merely placed on the seats.

Out over the Caribbean, suddenly the pilot looked down, said, "There she is." Below them with its conning tower above water, was a Nazi submarine.

Both the pilot and Governor Tugwell reached for the depth charges, opened the window. But before they could drop even one, the submarine had submerged. The exbraintruster came home with no submarine scalp in his professorial belt.

EYE TRICK

The war has spawned a number of rackets, designed both to gain deferment for unwilling draftees and to aid others in passing their physical examinations. But the most ingenious to date was uncovered by the navy department.

A Washington doctor has been restoring 20-20 (perfect) eyesight to applicants for commissions — long enough to enable them to pass their "physicals"—by injecting a high-powered drug. The trick was brought to light during an examination of a young commission-seeker with defective vision.

He had been examined three times and each time was told to go home and practice eye exercises. But his eyesight remained 31-9, far below the required standard. After the third test, the applicant was told he would be given one more chance. If he flunked again, he would be rejected.

When he returned the fourth time, he amazed the navy eye doctor by passing with a 20-20 mark. Doubting that the exercises had achieved such a phenomenal result, the doctor decided to make a check. He sent the applicant into an adjoining room and kept him there five hours.

Then he was given another examination. This time his vision was found to be 31-9 again.

The applicant finally broke down and admitted that his temporary perfect vision had been due to a shot in the arm given him by a Washington doctor. This doctor, he said, had told him to make sure he was examined within "four or five hours" after the injection, as its effect would last only that long.

NAZI FOOD SHORTAGE

Word from inside Germany makes it clear that Nazi officials are anticipating a hard winter, even if Hitler does take the vast granary of South Russia. They have already completed arrangements for emergency food distribution, in anticipation of serious shortages.

The plan calls for community feeding throughout Germany. It would mean that families would no longer sit down to dinner in their own homes, but would line up at a community feeding center for a government handout.

Under this system, the hausfrau would not buy her own provisions, ration cards would be replaced by meal tickets, and one-dish meals of the "stew" type would be handed out several times a week.

Under this system, the Nazis will be able to distribute food supplies more efficiently, with greater use of substitutes, and with equal treatment for all.

Hitler may not see the irony of it, but this system brings him to communism, from which he professes to be so eager to "save Europe."

New Unity Given French As U. S. Pledges Its Aid

State Department Declaration Gives Added Hope to Struggling People in Resisting Nazi Oppression.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Features, 1343 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Half way between July 4, America's Independence day, and July 14, the anniversary of the acceptance of the French constitution, there falls a date that some day may be celebrated as a milestone in Franco-American history.

On July 9, 1942, the United States government in a cautiously worded statement "recognized" what was described as "the Contribution of General de Gaulle and the work of the French National Committee in keeping alive the spirit of French traditions and institutions."

The announcement made by Secretary of State Hull pledged "the lending of all possible military assistance to the French National committee as a symbol of French resistance in general against the Axis powers."

The important phrase in that sentence, perhaps in the whole document, is "resistance in general." Packed into those three words is the picture of a group of men who until July 9 had been carrying on one of the most tragic struggles in the history of France, carrying it on without much help or hope from the Allies. New life, new hope began for the French forces of "resistance" against Germany.

It brought new unity to a movement of French patriots scattered over the face of the earth.

Few people realized it, but this guarded action of the state department probably laid the first solid paving stone in the road that will one day lead to Berlin.

Of course, very little can be said of what the "Free French" movement means where it is vitally important—within France.

But it is claimed that an almost perfect intelligence system is now operating within France. The Germans know that what they do and frequently what they plan cannot be concealed from the French if it takes place in France.

Immediately after the fall of France, Frenchmen spontaneously began "resistance." That resistance has now been definitely organized and is directed from London by De Gaulle although groups in France work in separate channels. There are three main organizations: Liberation Francais; Combat; and Frenc-Tireurs.

The first form of "resistance" to the Germans was the appearance of little printed labels on walls, on automobiles, on boxes and lamp posts. Just short messages attacking the Germans, calling for resistance. Then the courageous met and found ways and means to help each other or help agents of the Allies to thwart the Germans. The more aggressive began to steal dynamite and blow up shops and railways.

Labor Unions Unified

By this time General De Gaulle had gathered bout him leaders and organizers. They were soon able to get in and out of France and the organization work began.

I am informed that for the first time in history the French labor unions have become unified and are working together solidly. The old socialist party has been reformed, the old leaders have been displaced and the group bears the name of the young socialist party. Naturally the communists are now cooperating fully.

The "resistance" inside France is carried on by groups and individuals of every social and political stratum.

Even the recognition of the Free French as the de facto governors of the Pacific islands, African possessions and the islands of Pierre and St. Miquelon off Newfoundland still left the Free French movement as a whole, outside the pale of cooperation. All this time the representatives of Vichy remained in their embassy in Washington but the representatives of the National Committee (Free French) took headquarters in an office building. Indirectly they were aided financially because an arrangement was made whereby American lease-lend supplies furnished to Great Britain could, at the discretion of the English, be advanced to the Free French. But the French movement lacked moral support, the organization within France still felt that it was working with little British support and almost none from the United States. In fact we seemed to be playing ball with the other side—the Vichy side.

The preparation for the invasion of France has now begun with new zeal.

The Free French have complete plans under way for establishing civilian government in territory which will be occupied by the Allied forces. This is essential for when the invasion comes a certain amount of chaos is expected at first and co-operation between an invading force and the civilian population is essential. Organization for this cooperating is beginning.

The United States government did not recognize General De Gaulle as the head of the French state. But according to representatives of Free France in Washington the official recognition of their group as "the symbol" of "resistance in general" was a powerful forward step in giving new sinews to the effective Allies of the United Nations inside France, paving the way for a successful opening of the second front. It brings the first real hope since the fall of France for the rebirth of the nation.

Easier Now to Look Backward, Not Forward

Perhaps because a person can't look very far ahead these turbulent days a lot of people are beginning to look backward. At least that is the opinion of Conklin Mann, who recently traced the geneology of Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill back to a common ancestor who came over on the Mayflower and then discovered that General MacArthur was related to both of them.

Mann was in Washington recently and he had a number of interesting things to say about family trees. He is really an advertising man but his hobby has made him an expert and he is now the editor of the "Record," published by the New York State Geneological society.

"The United States has always been pedigree conscious about its cattle, horses, pets and virtually all growing crops," Mann said to me. "Now, the war is making us pedigree-conscious about ourselves. With countries and peoples involved in the struggle or seriously affected by it, the whole country is 'root conscious.' "

Mann believes that the reason for the renewed interest in the subject of geneology is that the stupendous turmoil through which the world is going has sent people back to fundamentals and, he says: "All roots are fundamentals."

"Just having lived in this country a lot of generations doesn't make a man an American," said Mann. "Two great influences have made America what it is today.

"One is a philosophy of life that we define as the American Way—a broad, liberal, generous policy of freedom of thought and action for the individual. The second thing is the flesh and blood men and women who have had the stamina to build up and defend the American Way.

"An American in the true sense of the word is anybody who understands the American Way, lives by it and supports it with his full energy and life."

"Establishment of the blood relationship of Churchill and Roosevelt," says Mann, "makes the characters themselves that much more interesting and bringing to light details of their family history makes the nation's history that much richer.

"And now comes the added discovery that the popular hero, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, though a third generation Scot in family name, is also related to both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill through his New England born grandmother."

Personally I agree with Mr. Mann. Geneology is a good thing if we don't take the part it has to do with ourselves too seriously.

Arrangements for the aerial transportation from theaters of war of sick and wounded military personnel are being made by the army air forces, the war department has announced. Aloft With Helium

By Paul Schubert

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly.)

Blimps are back on the job as one of the most useful cogs in the anti-submarine machine. All along our coasts as fast as hangars can go up and the big silver sky scows can be provided, we are expanding our blimp establishment and working it to the limit.

I took part recently in the escort of two very precious vessels protected not only by a blimp but also by a navy destroyer. We up in the blimp, kept our station easily. Some times we would forge ahead at 25 knots or so until we were abreast of the destroyer sometimes we would circle and drop astern. It was a grand day, blue sea and bright sun and we were a martial procession, with all hands at battle stations and all the ships' guns trained out ready for action.

Suddenly the destroyer put her rudder over, heeling deep as she shot off to starboard at full speed. We skated around revving up our motors while she blinked a submarine warning.

Hunting a U-Boat.

"Open the bomb hatch the skipper yelled. Forward in the bomb bay, the chief boatswains mate searched the sea in hawklike concentration.

It was war, at spitting distance off the Atlantic coast, the old story of hunter and hunted. And as we hunted the U-boat, the ships we had been escorting zigzagged away from the danger zone.

This isn't the place to say what we did and what we accomplished. The thing to say here is that if it weren't for the Atlantic antisubmarine activities U-boat sinkings would have mounted to astronomical proportions. As it is, thanks to blimps, destroyers, converted yachts, patrol boats and army bombers, the Nazis have paid a heavy price.

These blimps are big gas bags shaped like elongated teardrops with a cabin attached to the underside, steering and elevating rudders at the pointed tail, and a couple of aircraft engines mounted on struts at either side of the cabin.

They have changed very little in 25 years—grown bigger, thats all, and the engines are better. The cabin is now stream-lined.

Helium Keeps 'Em Flying.

The gas bag that holds—or helps hold—this thing up in space is just a big envelope pumped full of helium, the noninflammable gas which has almost as much lift as hydrogen and is infinitely safer. The fact that other countries make less use of blimps than we is not because they wouldnt like to, but because any dirigible inflated with hydrogen is a death trap in these days of incendiary machine gun bullets—and we are the only country with an adequate supply of domestic helium. This doesn't apply to Britains barrage balloons, since these blimps carry no crews and can be hydrogen-inflated without danger to life.

Ships of the Air.

There are two standardized sizes of blimps, the smaller version being used for training pilots and crews, while submarine hunting is done in big patrol blimps whose lift is great enough to carry a heavy weight of bombs, machine guns and supplies, plus fuel for a long cruise and a crew of eight or ten officers and sailors.

The cabin of a patrol blimp is about the same size as a motor-bus, but is longer and slimmer and shaped to eliminate wind resistance. The seats along both sides are cushion-padded for comfort a couple of double-decker folding bunks back aft make it possible for men off watch to turn in during extended flights.

The control room is forward, shut off by a sliding door; a gangway runs the full length of the ship, all the way aft to the slender stern.

All the equipment is light in weight, utterly simple but sturdy enough to be practical. The navigator has a chart table forward on the port side. There's a compact but adequate radio installation, an instrument panel for the engines and even a pint-sized galley, made up of an electric hot plate and an electric coffee maker.

Merrily We Roll Along.

A blimp is a ship. She feels like a ship, she acts like a ship and she's run like a ship. The moment she takes to the air, after being hauled out of the giant hangar in the predawn darkness, she rolls, rocks, yaws and tosses for all the world like a fat-bellied fishing smack.

Motors roar. She climbs up to cruising altitude and steers across country toward the coast. As she passes over the surf line, dimly visible in the half light below, and goes to sea, all hands put on inflatable rubber life jackets.

Common Sense Will Help Smash Summertime's Heat

Dress Lightly, Eat Little but Often, Relax, Don't Get Too Much Sun at One Time, Is Way to Keep Cool.

By CLIFF LANGE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Don't let the heat get you down!

Don't let it keep you from working, or eating or enjoying your spare time. Don't let it keep you from sleeping and getting that so very necessary rest.

Science and 1942 ingenuity have gone a long way helping you combat the heat waves. Combine this with the basic aid of forgetting the temperature, and you'll be well on the way to whipping those red hot, "mid-summer blues."

True, you can't do much about lowering the sizzling temperature. You can do a number of things to help keep yourself cool as you go through your daily routine.

For instance, the first thing to remember to do is to "dress cool." Don't wear heavy, tight fitting clothing.

Clothing has been devised—from the time when animal pelts were the style both for man, woman and grown-up children—as a protection from the elements whether sun, rain, snow, sleet or biting wind. Don't use winter style of dressing for the summertime. Shed some of those clothes!

You ladies who are handy with the scissors, needle and thread can whip together some dandy summer work, play or "visiting" dresses easily enough these days. There is still plenty of dress material to be had.

Ready-made dresses are also plentiful, and reasonably priced, too.

Take a look at your favorite store. You'll see both plenty of dresses, and material to make them.

There is no reason, either, why the men, young and old, shouldn't be dressed to combat the heat. Many men, when asked why they are dressed so "hot" in the summertime, usually give an answer which seems to suggest they "hadn't thought about it" or "were too busy" to do anything about it. Meanwhile they continue working with the sweat rolling down their temples.

Men are slow in changing to new, even a more comfortable style of clothing. Those that aren't so conservative aren't getting shoved around by the heat this year like their more backward brethren are. They were more willing—i.e., the married men, the fathers—to see their daughters going around in shorts, rather than themselves. When really it was the men, not the women that needed them!

Maybe, when shortages in cloth, dress goods begins to appear, which it hasn't, as yet, it will be the usual thing for the men to be wearing them. What difference does it make whether they are worn driving the tractor, working in a factory, or rolling a truck down the highway.

Like clothing, food in the summertime has much to do about keeping one from being knocked out, figuratively or actually

Don't eat so much "heavy" food even though you do have to eat plenty of food, either because of your job, or your nature. "Eat but little, but often" holds more true for summertime than any time of the year.

That "little, but often" holds for the so-called light foods which you see advertised in your grocery, meat shop, fruit store and delicatessen

In the summertime is when "acid conditions" get you quicker than any other season. It is such a condition which affects you both in your ability to work, and capabilities of enjoying your activities during the heat of the day.

Check up on yourself. See how much of the food you are eating is "acid" producing If you aren't sure, ask your doctor. He'll be able to tell you without much ado. A trip straight to the druggist from his office in case he has prescribed for you either to counteract an acid condition, or prevent one, is then in order.

If you haven't noticed already, at the druggists you'll see many preparations to prevent, allay, or stop the personal outward discomforts due to the heat.

Talcum powder, salt tablets, soaps, sunburn salves and oils—such are just a few of the many articles available which are almost a necessity around the home during the torrid time

It is during these hot months when the very youngest, and the oldest suffer the most Infants, not being able to express their displeasure at being uncomfortable in any other way than their only way, a reasonable crying spell, or a healthy wail, should be closely watched.

They should be dressed with a minimum amount of clothing. Either next to nothing, or nothing. The coolest side of the house, or out on the porch, or in the shade beneath the tree is the spot for them.

The old folks even though less apt to complain about the heat are more susceptible to it than those who complain They, too, should be made as comfortable as possible. They, too, are the ones who should be reminded that what they formerly used to do, "just to help out," shouldn't be done in the hot weather. For there is a debilitating effect of the sun quickly noticeable on the aged and weak.

One of the pleasures of the summer months are the outdoor picnics, the family reunions, the parties and fishing trips both for the youngsters and the grownups.

Although rubber restrictions will cut down on many of the long auto trips on such picnics and outdoor excursions, it won't —at least it shouldn't for the ingenious—cut down on the outings held in the nearby woods, or even in the side, or back.

It is on such picnics, and side-yard excursions that real summer time meals, old style "Dutch Lunches" can be served Meals having salads, cold cuts, cheeses, lemonade, iced-tea, iced-coffee, and other fruit juice drinks.

The little extra equipment needed for such meals that break the monotony of eating indoors all the time is available at any of the local retail stores It used to be during the not far past days that it was thought necessary to travel 15 to 50 miles to a favorite picnic spot. There there would be the steak fry on the fire pits, or the weiner roast.

Today, with plenty of room available, alongside or behind the house, or in the field or woods near home, there is no reason why similar "picnic" equipment isn't available. The war hasn't stopped, in fact, couldn't stop, American ingenuity.

Many times, too, in the desire to cool off there were long trips to distant pools, or "favorite" spots on lakes and rivers. Today, when rationing has stopped that there is no reason why the shower equipment at home shouldn't be given an extra workout.

You know, just because it used to be only the kids who had a good time with the outdoor shower is no reason why you couldn't enjoy one, too. Of course if you dislike the idea of imitating the kids and enjoying the whirling spray, why not rig up an outfit for you and the rest of the older persons.

Such an outfit could be dropped from one of the trees in the yard, or attached to a post used for the washline.

This war has brought the people of the nation more closely together than at any time since the advent of the automobile. This year there'll be more local entertaining, visiting, and genuine social life than ever before.

Common sense will take care of most of the heat's oppressiveness. That which can't be taken care of should be treated as a matter of fact. A matter of, "Well, this is the summertime. It should be hot."

This summer has seen, and will continue seeing until the days cool off, plenty of local picnics in which various successful means to combat the heat have been achieved.

You can do more about taking care of the heat by actually doing something to counteract the effects of it. Talking about the weather, about "how hot it is" isn't doing you any good, nor the person saying it.

You got to help yourself, and those not able to help themselves, if you want to let Mr. Sun continue working while you do.

Best Way

This is one of the nation's favorite ways of cooling off. It doesn't make any difference whether you swim in a private pool, a park, river, pond lake or sea—it does the trick.

The summer sun, in seeming retaliation, shows its resentment on thousands of swimmers every day by giving them a severe case of sunburn, or blistering.

Enjoy your swim, but don't take too much of the sun at one time.

Uuum-Humh!

And this is an ice cream cone. It could be vanilla, peach, lemon, tutti-frutti, or perhaps pineapple. It doesn't make that much difference, though.

The man behind the ice cream cone is important. That man is hot. He wanted to do something about it. He did. He bought that ice cream cone. He is now about to give it a genuine workout.

When he was a little boy he learned that this was one of the more suitable ways of cooling off. He also learned that the hotter the weather the more you eat of them, and also the quicker you have to eat them or they drip over your hands.

—King Cold—

This method of keeping cool (or old, if you prefer) is just one of many hundreds of ways available. This young fellow has a look of doubt, a stiffness of form which causes a person looking at him to wonder whether this is the best method to defeat the heat of summer. Perhaps it is just a spirit of contemplation which has overcome him—lifted him above all mortals, away from mundane thoughts. Or what?

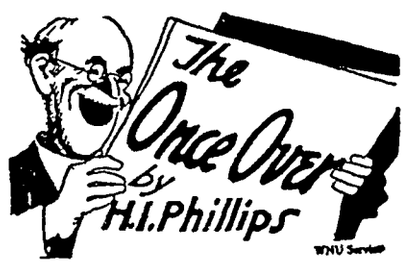
'War Nerves' Even Disturbing Children

The war has created for children many serious problems which American parents and teachers must face, Dr. Clifford E. Erickson of the school of education, Northwestern university, asserted in a lecture in the summer session series at the Evanston, Ill., university.

Basing his conclusions on research studies and confidential documents regarding the effect of the war on English children, Dr. Erickson warned that under present conditions it is impossible to protect children from many life situations which have formerly been "tabooed."

"In many cases we can no longer keep children from knowledge of death, dying, disease, wounds, birth, sex, and human nature in the raw," he said, adding that as a result children are emotionally disturbed.



AMERICA GOES BACKYARDISH

This is going to be a backyard summer. The slogan is "See Your Own Landscaping First!"

* * *

The gas and tire crisis is going to reintroduce to millions of Americans the attractions of their own homes.

Merchants report boom sales of hammocks, swings, lawn games, rustic furniture, porch comforts and outdoor grills. One big department store reports a run on shuffle board sets, croquet sets and archery equipment. Believe it or not it is even advertising "six-foot stilts as great fun for grown-ups."

* * *

So many target games are being bought, together with the archery sets that it is a question whether or not more people won't be hurt at home than were formerly hurt on the open roads.

* * *

People who have gone for life in their own backyards insist that they have discovered it possible to enjoy all the comforts they used to drive miles to get. With a 50 per cent cut in indigestion, no interference from the motorcycle cops and 90 per cent fewer family disputes.

* * *

The great joy of spending an entire Sunday in one family group with no battles regarding detours is being widely discovered.

And it is amazing how many people are discovering that a hotdog cooked on a backyard grill tastes better than the ones in the roadside stands. Not to mention the additional exercise setting up the grill, getting the charcoal and rushing for salve to apply to burned thumbs.

* * *

Imagine the complete change in American habits: a whole Sunday without any interference by traffic lights!

* * *

The fine thing about a charcoal grill is that it has no carburetor adjustments and no defective windshield wipers.

* * *

And it has no body squeaks or funny noises under the chassis.

* * *

And this is what makes a charcoal grill such a genuine relief: you only use one to the yard and no woman driver is going to back into it.

* * *

That the hold-out system of collecting the income tax will go through is certain. Out of almost every man's salary a percentage will be deducted at the office and turned over to Uncle Sam. Can you remember away back when the bookkeeping department in a business house lived a normal life?

* * *

Have you got a rubber stamp?
You know how it tends to slow;
Give it to your country now—
Let it help to slow the foe!

* * *

"General Spaatz Named Head of AEF Air Forces."—Headline.

Eisenhower? . . . Nimitz? . . . Stratemeyer? . . . Spaatz? Boy, will this be confusing to the Germans!

A man who killed a neighbor for leaving the radio on too loudly has been let off with seven years in prison. The judge must have lived in an apartment, too.

* * *

President Roosevelt says it may be necessary to confiscate all auto tires. The President now looks at the common citizen and says, "I wouldn't mind being in your shoes."

* * *

If tire confiscations become a fact it may be necessary to reword that old campaign pledge: A two quart garage and four cars on every tire.

THE WORRIED AUTOIST

I have four tires on my car—
They're all a little worn;
And every night I have a fear
They won't be there next morn.

I pat each one and gently say
"Goodnight, and bless your heart!
Let's hope there'll be another week
Before we have to part!"

They seem to look at me and sigh,
Before the doors I slam,
"Well, anyhow, it's one more day Unseized by Uncle Sam!"

Things to do

Pygmy Shrew

The world's smallest mammal is the American pygmy shrew, cryptotis parva, which is an inch and a half in length and weighs one-seventh of an ounce, says Collier's. Although resembling a mouse, it is not a rodent, but an insectivore; and its litters contain from five to seven young, each about the size of a pea. Incidentally, this animal twitches its snout so rapidly that photographs of it, even when taken at 1-200th of a second, are blurred.

Such a Racket Couldn't Be Kept From Landlord

The landlord was showing a prospective tenant the premises. Everything seemed to be satisfactory, when the landlord spoke up. "You know, we keep it very quiet and orderly here," he said. "Do you have any children?"

"No, just my wife and myself," was the reply.

"Do you have a piano, a radio, or a phonograph?"

"No."

"Do you play any musical instruments?"

"No."

"Do you have a cat, or dog, or a parrot?"

"No, but I feel that in all fairness I must tell you my fountain pen scratches when I write with it."

Are Women Better Shoppers than Men?

GRANTING a woman's reputation for wise buying, let's trace the methods by which she has earned it. Where does she find out about the advantages and details of electrical refrigeration? What tells her how to keep the whole household clean—rugs, floors, bathroom tiling—and have energy left over for golf and parties? How does she learn about new and delicious entrees and desserts that surprise and delight her family? Where does she discover those subtleties of dress and make-up that a man appreciates but never understands?

Why, she reads the advertisements. She is a consistent, thoughtful reader of advertisements, because she has found that she can believe them—and profit thereby. Overlooking the advertisements would be depriving herself of data continuously useful in her job of Purchasing Agent to the Family.

For that matter, watch a wise man buy a car or a suit or an insurance policy. Not a bad shopper himself! He reads advertisements, too!

HOW THE FLAG SHOULD BE DISPLAYED

With Old Glory being displayed so often these days, we think it is a good idea to again print the correct rules for displaying the Flag according to legislative action on a resolution containing all of the existing rules and customs as follows:

The flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flagstaffs in the open However, the flag may be displayed at night upon special occasions when it is desired to produce a patriotic effect.

It should not be displayed on days when the weather is inclement

It should be displayed during school days in or near every school house

When carried in a procession with another flag or flags the United States flag should be either on the marching right, or if there is a line of other flags, in front of the center of the line

The flag should not be draped over the hood, top sides or back of a vehicle or of a train or boat.

No other flag or pennant should be placed above or, if on the same level to the right of the United States flag except during church services conducted by naval chaplains at sea, when the church pennant may be flown above the flag

When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs the United States flag should be on the right of the other flag and its staff should be in front of the other flag

When flags of two or more nations are displayed, they are to be flown from separate staffs of the same height The flags should be of approximately equal size International useage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace

When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony or front of a building, the union of the flag should be placed at the peak of the staff unless the flag is at half staff

When the flag is displayed otherwise than by being flown from a staff, it should be placed flat, whether indoors or out When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, or to the observer's left

When the flag is displayed over the middle of the street, it should be suspended vertically with the union to the north or east.

When used on a speaker's platform, the flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker

The flag, when flown at half-staff, should first be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position It should be raised to the peak again before it is lowered for the day.

The flag should never be displayed with the union down, save as a signal of dire distress.

The flag should never touch anything beneath it It should never be carried flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free It should never be used as a drapery

It should never be used for advertising

We suggest that you clip out the above flag rules and file them away for future reference.

A young Klemme mother speaking to her husband about the row of diapers hanging on the line called them "the flag of our union."

The major menances on Iowa highways are drunken driving, uncontrolled thumbing and indiscriminate spooning To put it briefly: Hic, hike and hug!

Outside the storm raged. The deafening thunder rolled and the lightning flashed almost continuously Presently a bolt struck the sleeping head-of-the-house and it knocked him completely out of bed. He arose, yawned, rubbed his eyes, and said, "All right, dear, I'll get up."

Herman says a puncture is only a little hole in a tire found a great distance from his service station.

One of our Klemme bachelors is going to get a pair of strong glasses so he can get a better look at the girl he dreamed about the other night.

Around Iowa

TRAIN SAVED

Anton Lindahl of Ogden found a large railroad spike twisted thru one of the signal cables tied across the railroad track in Ogden. He removed it and notified officials, saving the derailment of a train Officials are working to apprehend the guilty parties.

FREE LESSONS

Boys who will soon be drafted are being given free swimming lessons at the Legion swimming pool in Clarinda The lessons are becoming more popular each week and new prospective swimmers "turn out" for the lessons.

SAVE TIRES

Melvin Glesne, Ralph Hoover, Merritt Hamilton and Robert Stebor of Elkader, made it possible to enjoy a vacation trip this year by pooling their spare tires The four spares were placed on Melvin Glesne's car and the men started for a week's fishing in Canada.

JUST AS HE WANTS IT

Chester Hunt of near Swan is building a new house, doing the work with the aid of his son The lumber for the building is being sawed at a mill on his place, with the logs coming from the farm Black walnut will be used as part of the interior finish of the house Mr. Hunt is landscaping the place as he goes, so that when the house is finished he will have a farm home that will be the envy of many.

FALLING BRICK

Henry Rifen of Iowa Falls escaped serious injury when a brick fell 70 feet, striking him on the head The brick did not make a direct hit, thereby saving him more than a bump on the head

NOT SOLID

When he stepped off the solid board floor onto a section covered with wall board in a garage, Elmer Peterson of Hayfield, fell thru the ceiling onto a cement floor below No bones were broken, but he received many bruises.

ONE A YEAR

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hull of Carlisle celebrated their 56th wedding annivresary a few weeks ago They have 55 descendants counting the "in-laws," there has not been a death in the family or among the descendants since their marriage They have eight children, 18 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

A THRILLING RIDE

Four Parkersburg men had a little more than they bargained for when they went for a motor boat ride recently. The boat, driven by Frankie McDowell, went over the dam in Beaver Meadow Park. The boat did not capsize, and was soon put back into operation again No one was injured.

THEY HAD A CRYING TIME

Discharge of a tear gas gun made it a "crying time" for a number of people attending a civilian defense class in Waverly. George Stephenson of Waverly accidently discharged the gun in the direction of the classroom as he examined it. Dr. L. D. Jay received the most direct hit and all others in the room were shown the effects of tear gas, although the subject for the evening was treatment of boils, pimples and other skin ailments.

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH CHICKEN

A truckload of eggs and chickens was wrecked when it struck a culvert near Laurens. The driver of the truck, Oliver Carroll, from Emmetsburg, was not hurt. The eggs were nearly all smashed but only two chickens out of the six crates were killed.

COLLISSION

Billy Bass dived from a tower into the Winterset swimming pool, colliding with Harold Zink, who was floating.

FAREWELL PARTY BACKFIRES

A farewell party was held for Larry Vint of Rock Rapids who was expecting to leave for service as a civilian flying instructor The morning following the party, Larry received word to delay his departure for ten days. He wonders now what he should tell his friends as explanation for being still in town.

PATRIOTISM IS SHOWN

Marlys and Janice Newhall, of Iowa Falls, show their patriotism very emphatically. They have have formed large "V's" on their backs with the aid of adhesive tape and sunshine. The suntan around the write V makes a very impressing showing for "Victory."

A NARROW ESCAPE

Rachel, the three-year-old daughter of Mr and Mrs. Durwood McArthur of near Algona, suffered several broken ribs and a punctured lung when a tractor driven by her father backed over her body The rear wheels passed completely over her, but luckily she was small enough to pass between the lugs.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE

Dr and Mrs R E. Weber of Bancroft returned home one day recently to find water running out of the kitchen faucet, and the kitchen drain not in proper working order. Therefore, water was all over the kitchen floor, the pantry floor, and even in the basement They do not know how it happened, but believe someone entered the house in search of a cold drink of water, and left the water running

STILL GOING STRONG

Not to be outdone, Mrs Marie Christensen of Titonka, 68 years old this year, went into the grain field and shocked oats for two hours each day for three days.

MODELS FOR OBSERVATION

Paul Reynolds, Montezuma boy, is helping out in the war effort by constructing model airplanes The models are used by the government in assisting airmen and civilian defense workers to recogize airships. He has built 16 models, srowig the designs of United States, British, Russian, Italian, German and Japanese planes.

Nonshrinkable Wool

Wool can be made nonshrinkable, without injury to the fabric, by dipping it for about an hour into a 1.5 to 2 per cent solution of sulfuryl chloride in so-called "white spirit," a solvent widely used by textile cleaners, according to Industrial and Engineering Chemistry.

Blames Sweets for Tooth Decay

Soft, sweet foods were blamed for tooth decay by Aristotle back in the Fourth century B C.

LUCKY FISHERMAN

The Cresco Times reports that Veriel Shook, fishing in an Indiana stream, was greatly excited when he started to reel in his line. He knew by the pull that he had a big one. He was surprised, but not disappointed, when instead of a fish he pulled out a nearly new auto tire; and best of all, it fitted his car.

MBERS FLEW LOW OVER LEMME FRIDAY P. M.

Klemme people got quite a bic ill Friday afternoon when a adron of nine twin motored mbers flew low over the town, ming in from the south.

Some of them swooped down over the depot and were evi- tly "buzzing the town" which aviation jargon means reading name of the town, which can ually be found on the depot.

Anyway the boys in the bomb- like to give the people a thrill coming in low and seeing if y can blow off a few loose ngles from the roofs.

Marine Describes His First 'Look at Infinity'

The earth resembles a relief map from 11½ miles in the sky, according to Lieut. Col. Chester L. Fordney of the marine corps.

Colonel Fordney, who made a trip into the stratosphere with Commander T. G. W. Settle, navy balloonist, in 1933, says that no rivers, lakes or highways were visible but that mountains could be distinguished.

"At times we would lose the image of the earth far below us," said Colonel Fordney. "Clouds looked like a white carpet with blue toward the horizon.

"The stratosphere sky is a beautiful blue as one looks into the space above. It was so inspiring that I later described it as my first look at infinity. It was a sight that gave me my first real conception of space."

Colonel Fordney reports that the radiant energy of the sun is so intense in the stratosphere that outside temperature at the top of the balloon's gondola, which was painted white, a color that reflects heat, was exactly zero, while at the bottom of the gondola, which was painted black a color that absorbs heat, the temperature reading was 104 5 degrees above zero.

There was no sensation of motion in the stratosphere although the instruments showed the balloon was rising at a speed of 120 miles an hour after passing the 35,000 foot mark, where the stratosphere begins, the marine corps officer stated.

Descent from the peak began as gas in the balloon cooled and contracted. The balloon dropped from the 50,000 mark to 800 feet in 40 minutes, or at a speed three times as great as that of a modern express passenger elevator.

Dean Advises Workers Be Given Personality Test

Need for new types of personality tests to show why workers are or are not fitted for certain types of employment was pointed out by the dean of the school of education, Pennsylvania State college

"A large proportion of workers who are fired from industrial jobs are well trained and fully able to do their work, but they have personality difficulties," Dean Trabue said recently in speaking before the National Vocational Guidance association meeting in San Francisco. Neither interviews nor letters of recommendation give adequate indications of the necessary personality traits, he explained. The interviewer's own personality often interferes with an objective estimate, and different interviewers frequently disagree about the applicant's qualifications. Similar objections can be made to recommendations

While a number of good personality tests have been devised, Dean Trabue declared that some of these merely attempt to discover abnormalities and complexes rather than fitness for a particular job. Reliable tests which give more information about normal workers in current industrial occupations would undoubtedly contribute to greater efficiency in our war effort.

Army Buys Race Horses

Horses which once thrilled the crowds at Santa Anita race track in California, and ponies which thundered across the polo fields have now joined the army, the war department announced. Nine horses, the pick of more than 125 recently inspected at the Santa Anita track by the remount division of the quartermaster corps were purchased for about $700 each and will be sent to various depots throughout the country to be used for breeding purposes. Following the outbreak of war, horse racing was abandoned on the West coast, and many owners offered to sell their stables to the war department. The remount division is planning to purchase more race horses for breeding purposes.

Michigan 'Building Bees'

Old-fashioned "building bees" to encourage the improvement of rural shelter in the cut-over section of northern Michigan are being encouraged by the U. S. department of agriculture. The idea is to demonstrate to low-income farmers how run-down properties can be improved at small cost when neighbors work together.

A companion plan calls for the finding of part-time employment for those farmers whose land cannot adequately support the family. Farmers will be encouraged to seek outside income through part-time employment in reforestation, in fire control, and in lumbering on publicly or privately owned lands.

Whipping Post in Maryland

The customary punishment of whipping as a penalty for crime, part of the common law of England, was adopted by Maryland in its first constitution in 1776 and continued through all successive constitutions of the state down to the constitution of 1864, and then it was removed from the statute books, not by direct appeal, but by force of the Constitutional Amendment abolishing slavery.

The only crime for which the whipping post can be applied in Maryland now is for brutal assault on wife, under the Act of 1882, chapter 120, codified in 1939 code, section 11, article 27.

War at Sight Is Not Rule in World of Ants

War at sight is not the rule in the ant world, but rather the exception, despite widespread belief to the contrary, declares Dr. Laurence J. Lafleur, according to Science Service. When two stranger ants meet, instead of instantly beginning battle, they usually merely back off, turn aside a little and go their respective ways.

"Except when slave-making ants make raids on their neighbors and when spring competition for extra land causes wars, the ants of the Northern states are a peaceful lot," he states in a communication to the American Naturalist.

Even the slave-making species are not necessarily murderous in their raids, Dr. Lafleur points out. He cites the observation of the late Prof. William Morton Wheeler of Harvard university, who watched such a raid in progress. Slave-making ants in such raids are concerned only with the pupae, or immature infants, of the species they kidnap and carry off to be their servants. In the attack described by Dr. Wheeler, the marauders, much bigger and stronger than their victims, nevertheless did not kill them, but only carried the defenders out of the nest and set them down outside, uninjured.

Searchlights of Army Always Ready in Field

Mobile 60-inch searchlights of 800,000,000 candle power, developed by the corps of engineers, U.S.A., and operated by the coast artillery, play a vital role in the nation's aircraft defense, the war department points out These searchlights are the result of experiments conducted by the corps of engineers over a period of about 20 years. The great lamps and reflectors throw a beam far up into the skies, and of such brilliance that on a fairly clear night, a newspaper can be read by its light five miles away.

The searchlights are carried, ready for instant use, on balloon-tired trailers, capable of transporting them over the roughest terrain without damage, while gasoline motor-driven electrical generators accompany them on separate trailers. The light is equipped with high intensity carbons mechanically held and adjusted as they burn. The lights require five men each to operate. They are also used for general anti-aircraft defense.

Soldiers' Identification Tags

The two identification tags which every American soldier carries today contain more information than those used in the World war, much of it medical data which might save the soldier's life in the event he was wounded and unconscious, the war department revealed today.

Instead of the aluminum disc of the World war, which sometimes deteriorated under the action of chemicals and acids encountered on the battlefield, the new tag is made of stainless and rustproof monel metal. It is two inches long, one and one-eighth inches wide, and 0 025 inch thick, with rounded corners and smooth edges.

The tag carries, besides the soldier's name and serial number—the only data of the World war disc—the name and address of the person to be notified in case of an emergency, his religion and medical data concerning his record of tetanus immunization, the date on which it was completed, and his blood-type.

Inland Cities Helping Navy

Sixteen western Pennsylvania cities are doing their share in helping build a two-ocean navy. Enough steel and iron scrap, in the form of abandoned street car rails, to produce a dozen destroyers or two cruisers is being dug out of streets in the 16 cities for use by Pittsburgh district steel plants working on defense orders.

The scrap is under salvage in conformity with a suggestion by the Office of Production Management that old rails be used to augment dwindling supplies of scrap for the mills. Rail removal projects now under way or planned in the 16 cities will recover an estimated 8,800 tons of iron and steel scrap—enough to produce 17,600 tons of open hearth steel. Largest project will be undertaken in Pittsburgh, where the Pittsburgh Railway company has arranged with the WPA to remove 1,800 tons of track.

Archeologist Completes Job

What archeologists might be doing some day—if Hitler should be allowed to win—in the ashes of Warsaw, Belgrade, Athens, London, perhaps even Chicago, has just been done by an archeologist in the ruins of a 1,000-year old culture in Ecuador which was shattered by the conquering Incas about A. D. 1450. The Incas used methods which are almost identical with those Hitler employs today.

Donald Collier, a museum curator of South American ethnology and archeology, returned to his post after five months of rummaging in the ruins of a people known as the Canari. They were conquered by the Incas, who slew thousands of them, looted the rest of their property, and shifted the population from its lands and over the mountains to Bolivia more than 1,000 miles to the south. The Incas then moved their own people into the evacuated country.

For Highway Safety, Here Are '12 Commandments'

STATE COLLEGE, PA.—American automobile operators were provided today with "12 commandments" for blackout driving by Amos E. Neyhart, administrative head of the Institute of Public Safety at the Pennsylvania State college.

Neyhart claims that accident tolls will mount during blackouts unless drivers are extremely cautious.

In listing his 12 "do's and don'ts" Neyhart placed first and foremost the warning "stay home if you can." His rules follow:

1. STAY HOME. Don't drive except for absolute emergency if you are home when a warning is sounded.
2. MASK CAR LIGHTS. If you are in areas where blackouts are likely to occur, keep material for temporary masks in your car.
3. DRIVE HOME. When air raid warning sounds, stop your car at right-hand curb, turn off lights while putting on headlight masks, and drive home immediately.
4. LOCK YOUR CAR. If no masks are available, park your vehicle off main traffic arteries, preferably on private property. Turn out all lights and lock car securely to prevent possible use by saboteurs.
5. ADJUST EYES TO DARK. If you must drive, wait from 15 to 30 seconds for your eyes to become adjusted to darkness.
6. OPEN WINDSHIELD. Regardless of weather, open your windshield if possible.
7. DRIVE SLOWLY AND WITH ALERTNESS. Never drive more than 15 miles per hour. Assume pedestrian doesn't see you.
8. USE YOUR HEAD. Prepare for an emergency stop. Keep well to the right of the road. Passing is extremely hazardous in a blackout.
9. TAKE SPECIAL CARE AT CROSSINGS AND TURNS. Practically stop at intersections. The sides of your car are almost invisible. You can increase visibility by placing white adhesive tape on edge of running board and on fenders.
10. ALLOW FOR BLACKOUT HANDICAPS. Watch carefully for traffic signs and signals.
11. NEVER BLOCK ROAD. Leave extra space near fire hydrants and park at least 25 feet from corners.
12. DIRECT LIGHT BEAMS DOWNWARD. Masks should be constructed as directed by the Office of Civilian Defense and should direct your light beams downward. Avoid leakage of lights.

A Quick Review of the Life of Navy Man Perry

Oliver Hazard Perry (1785-1819), American naval officer, was born in Rocky Brook, South Kingston, R. I. Entering the navy as a midshipman in 1799 at the age of 14, he joined his father's ship, the General Greene. He served in the Tripolitan war. In 1811 he was married to Elizabeth Champlin Mason and they had five children.

In 1813 he was assigned to the command of Lake Erie and on September 10 engaged the British in the famous battle which resulted in the capture of the entire British squadron and was to be immortalized in Perry's laconic dispatch, "We have met the enemy and they are ours."

Perry died in 1819 of yellow fever at Port of Spain, Trinidad. In 1826 his body was taken to Newport, R. I. and was buried there in Island cemetery.

Fox Friend or Enemy?

The question of whether the fox is a friend or enemy to man has been submitted to scientific inquiry by Dr. Adolph Murie, of the federal park service, who studied the diets of the fox during an eight-months period on the 1,200-acre reserve of the University of Michigan, near Pinckney, Mich. Rabbits were found to be the fox's favorite food. This is considered a debit by rabbit hunters, but a credit by orchardists and farmers. The fox was found to catch game birds, but in small numbers, and not during the nesting season.

Offsetting this is his liking for June bugs, the cubs devouring great numbers of them. His catching of mice and lemming could be either beneficial or neutral. By killing moles and shrews he reduces valuable insect destroyers. He takes muskrats when the water cover for them is very low. Turtle and snake eating is regarded as neutral, except that destruction of snapping turtles is considered beneficial to fish and water birds.

Gen. Jackson Decapitated!

Over a century after he waged successful warfare without injury, Gen. Andrew Jackson was "decapitated" and suffered other minor "injuries" to himself and his mount.

The bronze and iron statue of the warrior and his horse that have reared in the center of Jackson square, the heart of the historic French quarter in New Orleans since 1856, has fallen prey to time. Rust split a front leg of the horse, ate holes in the saddle and nibbled on the legs of Jackson himself.

A group of playful youngsters recently sent the head of the proud general tumbling into the dust.

Jackson's head once more, however, gazes over the surrounding scenes and Dr. Robert Glenk, curator of the Louisiana state museum, cleaned the edifice with kerosene, repaired the holes and gave the bronze and iron likeness a coat of paraffin oil to protect it from further destruction by the elements.

LOCKER PLANTS IN IOWA

At the present time Iowa has 550 frozen locker plants, this being an increase of 13 over 1940, reports Mark G Thornbug, Secretary of Agriculture These plants are licensed and inspected by the Department of Agriculture.

Over 46% of the Iowa farm families use locker service and they constitute over 70% of the patrons of the plants, although all the larger cities in Iowa have locker systems: Des Moines has 5, Cedar Rapids 3, Ottumwa 2, Mason City 2, and so on.

Amusement in Work

When men are rightly occupied, their amusement grows out of their work, as the color petals out of a fruitful flower; when they are faithfully helpful and compassionate, all their emotions are steady, deep, perpetual and vivifying to the soul as is the natural pulse to the body.—John Ruskin.

Garden—Fresh Vegetables Bring Health to Your Table
(See Recipes Below.)

Summer Salads

Salads with summertime meals form a perfect alliance bringing your family precious pep-giving minerals and vitamins. Vitamins A, B, and C are well represented in crisp celery, golden skinned carrots, rosy cheeked tomatoes, green glowing cucumbers and lettuce. Dress them up with a light liquid salad oil blended with seasonings to bring out the hidden flavoring of the vegetables, and you have a perfect warm weather meal.

 Tossed Garden Salad

Wash and drain dry your favorite salad greens—such as lettuce, romaine, watercress or endive; a combination of two or more may be used. Cut or break into pieces and combine with portions of diced celery, cucumber, green pepper, radishes and minced onion. Chill thoroughly. Then place in a salad bowl; add Basic French Dressing and bits of tomato. Toss lightly until well blended. This type of salad may also be served with just an oil and vinegar combination as a dressing.

Basic French Dressing.
(Makes ¾ cup)

½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon paprika
Dash white pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup mild salad oil
¼ cup cider vinegar
or lemon juice

Combine first five ingredients in a jar and blend well. Add vinegar, cover and shake; add oil and shake again thoroughly. Just before using, shake again. Or simply mix ingredients together in a bowl and beat with mixer until well blended.

Leftover meats and vegetables served daintily in lettuce cups make tempting main dishes for lunch or supper. Have a hot soup, potato chips, thin bread and butter sandwiches and fresh fruit to serve with salad. The next three salads are perfect as a main course.

Veal Salad, Summer Style.
(Serves 6)

2 cups cold veal, diced
1 cup string beans or celery or both
6 hard-cooked eggs
Salt and pepper
4 tablespoons salad oil
1½ tablespoons vinegar
3 tomatoes
Mayonnaise
Lettuce and parsley

Chop eggs coarsely, combine with veal, oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Let stand 30 minutes. Add mayonnaise to moisten. Arrange salad in a mound and garnish.

Jellied Green Pea Salad.
(Serves 6)

1 tablespoon gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¾ cup pea liquor
1 tablespoon green pepper, chopped
Allspice, cloves, nutmeg
Green pepper rings
1 cup tomato puree
1½ cups peas
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced
1 teaspoon chopped onion
Salt
Lettuce, dressing

Fix gelatin with pea liquor. Add puree, onion, salt, spices. Let cool and thicken. Add peas, chopped green pepper. Mold and chill. Garnish with pepper rings, egg, and lettuce.

Royal Meat Salad.

2 cups diced, cooked meat
1 cup diced celery
1 cup Bing cherries
4 hard-cooked eggs
½ cup chopped pecans
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup mayonnaise
Salad greens

Combine meat with celery, pitted cherries, diced eggs, pecans and salt. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving, add mayonnaise and toss lightly. Pile on salad greens and garnish with additional slices of hard-cooked eggs and Bing cherries.

Savory Corned Beef Loaf.
(Serves 6)

2 tablespoons gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1½ cups tomato juice
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated onion juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1½ cups corned beef cut in small pieces
¾ cup chopped celery
3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
¼ cup chopped pickle relish (if desired)

Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot tomato juice. Add salt, onion juice, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Stir well. Rinse loaf pan out with cold water. Garnish bottom with slices of hard cooked egg and cover with a little of the gelatin liquid. Chill in refrigerator until set. Cool remaining liquid until mixture begins to thicken and fold in corned beef, celery and pickle relish. Line sides of loaf pan with sliced eggs and fill with meat mixture. Chill until firm Unmold on platter and garnish with watercress, lettuce or desired greens. Serve with mayonnaise or any desired dressing.

To save sugar, omit dessert and serve a pretty chilled salad with coffee and wafers as a last course. You can prepare this in the cool morning hours and keep in the refrigerator until just ready to serve.

Frozen Fruit Salad.
(Serves 6)

2 three-ounce cakes cream cheese
2 tablespoons cream
⅓ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup orange sections
½ cup seeded and quartered Royal Anne cherries
½ cup chopped nutmeats
½ cup maraschino cherries, chopped
2 tablespoons ginger, in
1 cup cream, whipped

Mix cream cheese and 2 tablespoons cream. Add mayonnaise, lemon juice and salt. Combine orange sections, cherries, and nutmeats, and add to cream cheese mixture. Fold in whipped cream and pour into freezing tray and allow to freeze in electrical refrigerator without stirring. Garnish with orange sections and cherry halves.

Lynn Says:

Save Washing Time: So many new demands are being made on your time these days, it is wise to make the best possible use of each minute. One way is in how you use your washing machine.

For instance, long washing is not necessarily good washing, and it wastes time. Soap undergoes a chemical change after it has been used a little while, suds "break down" and the soil is actually deposited again on the fabric. Then it is practically impossible to get the articles clean.

Only individual experimentation can show how short to keep the washing of each load, and yet be thorough. Tests have revealed one woman taking only half the time of another to wash a practically identical washing, yet doing it better.

Twenty-minute soaking hastens washing by loosening soil. Then remove water by wringing the articles into the first washer full of sudsy water of the right temperature.

ABRAHAM'S INTERCESSORY PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 18 23-33.
GOLDEN TEXT—The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.—James 5 16.

Prayer has been the subject of thousands of books of sermons without end, yet how little it is actually practiced. Conferences are held to discuss it, and they attract large audiences, but at prayer meetings we find only a handful.

We are sure that "prayer changes things," and we agree that it is the most powerful force at man's disposal, but we go right ahead trying to change things in our own strength.

"O what peace we often forfeit,
O what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
Everything to God in prayer!"

Our lesson from the life of Abraham stresses one important phase of prayer—prayer for others.

I. The Nature of Intercessory Prayer.

1. It Is a Privilege.

We speak of the burden of prayer, but let us also recall that it is a privilege. Abraham had been honored by a visit from the Lord. The covenant had been renewed and a son promised (Gen 18:1-16). Then the Lord, because of His friendship with Abraham, shared with him (v. 17) His purpose of judgment on wicked Sodom and Gomorrah.

How glorious to be on such intimate terms with God—to know Him and to know His plans and purposes. Would you enjoy having such fellowship? You may through Jesus Christ and through the study of God's holy Word.

2. It Is a Duty.

Privilege brings corresponding responsibility. The two men went toward Sodom, but "Abraham stood yet before the Lord" (v. 22), to pray for the wicked cities.

Those who know God's plans are to share them in prayer. Those who have audience with the King of Kings are those to carry the blessed burden of prayer for others as well as for themselves.

Are we praying for our nation, for its President and leaders; for our city, for our church, our families, our children, our friends? The deeper the need, the greater the wickedness, the more we need to pray. If we as Christians do not pray, who will pray?

3. It Is a Reality.

Some modern religious leaders would take all reality out of prayer by making it a sort of spiritual exercise which operates only on the soul of the one who prays, giving him new strength and a sense of well being. Undoubtedly the very fellowship with God which is inherent in true prayer is spiritually beneficial; but prayer is objective, not merely subjective. It deals with nations and cities, men and women, problems and sin and sorrow. It concerns every need of man—physical, mental and spiritual.

II. The Spirit of Intercessory Prayer.

1. Unselfish.

Abraham had the assured blessing and promise of God. The cities were wicked and unrepentant. If he had taken the attitude of many church folk, he would have said, "It serves them right Wipe out their wickedness." But Abraham prayed for them in complete unselfishness. Can those who know the spirit of Christ be selfish in prayer?

2. Bold and Courageous.

Note the reverent boldness with which Abraham pleaded the cause of the cities. God is not displeased to have us press our cause in prayer; in fact, the Bible reveals that He frequently answers according to the earnestness with which men pray. He has always honored and used men of holy courage.

3. Persistent.

No one—not even God—likes a "quitter." Remember those who were heard for their importunity? (Luke 11:8; 18:1-8). Many pray like the little boys on Halloween. They ring the bell and run.

Abraham persisted; fifty, forty-five, forty, thirty, twenty, ten—perhaps he should not have stopped even there. God who saw his persistent faith went the rest of the way and saved the only four who could be saved, and even of those, three were infected with the wickedness of the place.

"Let us not be weary in well doing" as we pray, "for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not" (Gal. 6:9).

III. The Result of Intercessory Prayer.

God had to destroy the cities. There are some kinds of violent infection which must be destroyed by fire for the sake of others. Out of the destruction, however, God did deliver the righteous Lot, which was doubtless Abraham's real desire.

God hears and answers prayers. That is not only the testimony of His Word, but of countless Christian men and women down through the ages even to our day. The one who would deny the efficacy of prayer must face an overwhelming flood of authenticated answers.

Give Up "Makeshift" Constipation Remedies!

Why fool with constipation? Why try to combat the trouble after it has already made you miserable?

It may well be that your constipation is caused by too little "bulk food" in your diet, for medical science warns that lack of "bulk" is one of the commonest causes of constipation

If yours is this kind of constipation, those purges and cathartics can give you, at best, only temporary relief Eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly, on the other hand, corrects the cause by supplying the "bulk food" you lack and must have! Enjoy this crisp, crunchy cereal daily, drink plenty of water, and like so many others, you'll "Join the Regulars"! ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, see a doctor.

Birth Rate of Indians Shows Upward Trend

The Indian is no longer the "vanishing American," for his birth rate is increasing faster than the white man's, western Indian service officials disclosed in Salt Lake City recently.

The Indian birth rate in Utah alone is three times the national average for all races and in other parts of the United States is even higher, C C. Wright, superintendent of the Uintah and Ouray agency at Fort Duchesne, Utah, said.

The birth rate among the Utes and Piutes under jurisdiction of the Indian service is 55 4 per 1,000 population, while the national average for all peoples is 16 7 per 1,000.

Another cause for the Indian's revival as a race was attributed to modern science While the white man's death rate remains about the same from year to year, improved methods of sanitation, care of maternity cases, control of children's diseases, and improved economic conditions are slashing the Indian's death frequency.

Addressing a meeting of Indian service officials, Joseph C. McCaskill, assistant United States commissioner of Indian affairs, said that no group in the United States had a higher rate of natural increase than the full-blooded Indian. The Navajos of southern Utah and northern Arizona are increasing faster than any other race in the nation.

The Indian population of the United States reached its lowest ebb between 1900 and 1910, McCaskill declared. Since then the population curve has taken a sudden upward swing.

Figures show that the rate of intermarriage has greatly decreased within the last few years and McCaskill predicted the 1940 census would reveal an almost complete end of intermarriage and a building up of the full population.

'It's a Long, Long Trail'— Through National Forests

If a motorist set out this year to travel all of the highways and truck trails in the 160 national forests, it would take more than four months of steady driving, 12 hours a day, at an average of a little better than 40 miles an hour.

Then if he stopped driving and set off to walk the trails which are used by fire fighters, sheepherders, cattlemen, recreationists, and others of the millions of visitors to the national forests each year, it would take a little more than 15 years traveling 20 miles a day, says the forest service, United States department of agriculture

Even then the visitor would not have seen all of the 273,000 square miles of Uncle Sam's forest lands, although he would have passed some of the 70,000 miles of trout streams and many of the thousands of lakes and would have visited all of the 3,600 developed camping and picnic grounds.

Reptile Roommates

Harvey Camin, 17, of Cleveland, Ohio, has been keeping snakes in his rooms since he was four years old and now sleeps with a number of the reptiles, their cages less than a foot from his head. "My snakes don't hurt me," he said, permitting a Georgia cornsnake to coil itself about his neck. "If one should happen to bite me I just pour a little iodine on the wound." Harvey watches his pets in their homemade orange-crate cages and keeps a book on the reptiles' feeding, intelligence, mating, growth, drinking and peculiarities.

Harvey also has a horned lizard from the Mojave desert, a leopard lizard, three turtles, one crocodile and a number of frogs.

Parents were an obstacle to Harvey's collection for years, but they've become used to the idea now.

Hiking at Age 75

To Niles Smith of Massillon, Ohio, who is 75 years old, a 20-mile hike each day is "good exercise." A liking for window-shopping is the reason for Smith's daily jaunts. He lives almost exactly half-way between the downtown sections of Massillon and Canton, on the Lincoln highway. Since he has difficulty in deciding which city to visit, he often compromises and looks at the shops in both. Streetcars, Smith explains, are not for him. "If you have any regard for your health," he says, "you'll walk" The secret of healthful walking, according to Smith, is to swing your arms. "Exercise every muscle in your body," he advises, "and you'll drive out all the poisons in your body and probably live happily ever after."

Modernized Farm Bathrooms

In thousands of farm houses throughout the country the many benefits and advantages of running water under pressure are being made available through the swift advance of rural electrification. The bathroom in the farm home can now be just as up-to-date and attractive as the bathroom in the city home. With the installation of an electric water system, not only may the bathroom be modernized but washrooms and lavatories for the hired hands may also be easily improved. When the bathroom is located on the second floor it is wise to provide the first floor washroom with a lavatory and a shower compartment.

The Northern Lumber Co. Announces Their 50th Anniversary

July 18, 1942

Yes we admit we are 50 years young and are happy to publicly announce this fact to our friends who have made this long business life possible.

We will not have a celebration marking the event for obvious reasons. We do ask you to join with us on our 50th birthday in rededicating ourselves in the immortal words of George Washington:

"The Love of My Country Will Be The Ruling Influence of My Conduct."

OF INTEREST TO OUR FARMER READERS

Word has been received from Albert J Loveland, Chairman of the Iowa Agricultural Conservation Committee, that limestone must be applied by October 1st to get soil building credit for the 1942 AAA program and that Hancock County will not take orders for limestone after September 1st

Because of gravity of the repair and rubber situation we urge all farmers give close attention to this program. It may be that it will be impossible to deliver much or any limestone in the calendar year of 1943.

Miss Frances Schulz Bride At Church Wedding Sunday

UNITED IN MARRIAGE WITH LESTER NEUBERGER AT METHODIST CHURCH

Klemme Couple Will Reside At Minneapolis, Minnesota

MRS. LESTER NEUBERGER

The Klemme Methodist Church was the setting for a very beautiful wedding ceremony Sunday afternoon at 1 00 o'clock when Miss Frances Schulz, only daughter of Mr and Mrs Frank Schulz, became the bride of Mr Lester Neuberger, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, youngest son of Mrs Lewis Neuberger of Klemme Rev Herschel E Harvey read the mariage rites which were performed at the church altar using the single ring ritual.

While soft nuptial music was being played on the electric chimes system by R A Jorgenson, one of the ushers, Eugene Kluckhohn, brought the two mothers to their places in the front pew

Prior to the ceremony Rev Harvey sang "I love you truly," and Miss Jacqueline Kudje played a violin solo, "Because" They were accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruth Schow of Garner, friend of the couple

As the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played on the chimes, softly filled the auditorium the bridal party entered the rear of the church The bridesmaid, Miss Norma Hippen, neice of the groom, came down the aisle followed by the matron of honor, Mrs Nordahl Anderson of Miller, close friend of the bride, the flower girl, Elaine Neuberger, neice of the groom, and the bride on her father's arm who gave her in marriage at the altar The minister, groom, and best man, Robert Schulz, brother of the bride, had previously entered from a side room and waited at the altar as the bridal party were taking their places

The bride wore a long sheer chiffon gown trimmed with lace, with a finger-tip veil of matching lace and her ceronet was of seed pearls and orange blossoms She carried a shower bouquet of pink sweetheart roses.

The bridesmaid was attired in a long pink taffeta and net gown and she carried a bouquet of sweetpeas and snapdragons. The marton of honor wore a long blue net gown over satin and her bouquet was also sweetpeas and snapdragons The flower girl wore a long flowered batiste dress and carried a small basket of rose petals which she strewed in the path of the bride

Mrs. Schulz wore a brown net dress with white accessories and and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs Neuberger's dress was of navy blue crepe with white accessories with a corsage of pink roses.

The groom and best man wore white linen coats, dark trousers, black bow ties and a lapel boutonnier. The ushers, Eugene Kluckhohn and La Rayne Stille, Rev. H E Harvey and Mr. Schultz all wore ping rose boutonniers

The altar was banked with a variety of beautiful garden flowers for the occasion.

The bridal party left the church as Mendelssohn's wedding march was played on the chimes.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the Schulz home where forty guests were entertained at a three-course dinner served by four girls, the Misses Lois Schulz, Marilyn Back, Marian Waterman and Marie Schmidt. The dinner was prepared by Mrs Emil Patet. The center-piece on the bride's table was a three-tier cake topped by a minature bride and groom. The house was beautifully decorated with garden flowers

Mrs. Neuberger graduated from the Garner high school with the class of '37 and since then has been at home.

Mr Neuberger graduated from the Klemme high school in 1939 and later attended the N. Y. A. school at Shakopee, Minn. for one year, where he learned to be a machinist which trade he follows in defense work in Minneapolis where the couple will make their home.

Sunday evening a large crowd charivaried the newlyweds at the Schulz home and were treated to candy and cigars after which they remained for a visit with the newlyweds.

Those attending the wedding who came from a distance were Mrs. Jim Knutson and chlidren and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan and children of Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Neuberger left Monday afternoon for Minneapolis where they will reside at Sunset Hill, %R. W. Trimm, Route 10.

MRS. E. P. DOW

RITES HELD THURSDAY FOR FORMER KLEMME WOMAN

The Dow Family Lived In Klemme For Seventeen Years

Mrs. E. P. Dow, 72, died at her home in Forest City last week Tuesday morning following a long illness in which she suffered several strokes.

Funeral services were held in the Olson funeral home in Forest City Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock followed by services in the First Methodist Church at 2:00 o'clock. Rev. C. H. Petersen conducted the services and interment was in the Concord cemetery at Garner.

Mrs. Dow was born at Carbondale, Illinois, and came to Garner with her parents, Mr and Mrs. A. B. Schaefer, as a girl. She was married at Garner August 11, 1888 ot E. P. Dow.

The first two years of their married life they lived in Garner and at Rockwell, then moving to Klemme where they lived for seventeen years where they were in the merchantile business under the firm name of Schaefer & Dow. Mr. and Mrs Dow later moved to Rake and were engaged in business there for 10 years.

They moved to Forest City 25 years ago where they have since resided.

Mr. and Mrs Dow celebated their golden wedding anniversary in 1938. Mrs. Dow took an active part in the North Iowa Golden Wedding Club of which Mr. Dow has served as secretary since its organization.

Mrs. Dow is survived by her husband and three children: Elmer of Sheffield; Mrs. Elmer Brooker of Forest City and Marguerite at home.

She was active in the work of the First Methodist Church and its organizations; was a member of the Eastern Star and Art Guild and belonged to the Woman's club for many years.

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG WILL BE GIVEN AT COUNTY PATRIOTIC DAY

A pledge to the flag will be part of the ceremonies at Britt on Aug 20th, Hancock County Patriotic Day. The Britt Post No. 315 of the American Legion furnishes the following as the proper way to make the pledge Those who do not know the pledge will have time to memorize it and to study the proper way of making the pledge, as follows·

Standing with the right hand over the heart, all repeat together the following pledge:

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States and to the republic for which it stands, one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

At the words "to the flag," the right hand is extended, palm upward, toward the flag, and this position is held until the end, when the hand, after the words, "Justice for all," drops to the side.

Everyone is asked to memorize the above.

ANTIQUE RECIPES

The McGregor Historical Society in cooperation with the North Iowa Times is beginning the collection of early household recipes with explanation of their origin This should prove interesting and have a flavor of Old France.

Miss Della Kaduce Married Garner Business Man

MISS DELLA KADUCE AND MR. DUANE KATTER TAKE VOWS AT REFORMED CHURCH

Mr. and Mrs. Katter Will Reside At Garner In Near Future

Miss Della Leona Kaduce, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kaduce of Klemme, and Mr. Duane Walter Katter, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Katter, Garner, were united in the bonds of holy matrimony at the Klemme Reformed Church, Sunday afternoon, August 9th, at 3:00 o'clock, with Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch, pastor, officiating at the altar.

Preceeding the ceremony Miss Irene Becker played on her marimba and as she played Lohrengrin's Wedding March, the bridal party took their place in front of the altar which was decorated with a variety of beautiful summer garden flowers.

The couple was attended by the bride's sister, Miss Velma Kaduce as bridesmaid while Mr. Cecil Katter, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

After the marriage vows had been spoken the party retired as Miss Becker played Mendelssohn's wedding march on the marimba.

The bride wore a street-length reddingcote style light blue dress with dark brown accessories. She wore a corsage of garden flowers. The bridesmaid was attired in a street-length pink dress with beige accessories and she wore a corsage of garden flowers.

The groom wore a pin-stripe brown suit and his best man wore a suit of soldier-brown. Both had red rose boutonniers.

After the ceremony at the Reformed Church, the immediate relatives of the couple were guests at an early evening dinner at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kaduce.

Garden flower provided the decorations and the color scheme carried out in pink and white. A three-tier wedding cake served as the center-piece at the bride's table.

Mrs. Katter has spent most of her life in this community and received her education in the Klemme grade and high schools. When a Junior in high school she was chosen as "Miss Klemme." She is a graduate of the class of 1941.

Mr. Katter graduated from the Hayfield Consolidated School in 1938 and has been assisting his father with farm work in Liberty township. For the past year Mr. Katter has been in business in Garner where he has a saw mill and manufactures wooden crates.

The couple left Sunday evening on a short wedding trip to Minnesota. They will begin housekeeping at Garner in the near future.

A City in Itself, Great Lakes Naval Training Center Is Largest of Its Kind in the World

Thousands of Youths Are Trained There Each Day.

From farms, factories, offices and classrooms of the great Midwest plains area, thousands of men today are on the march.

Since that fateful Sunday of December 7 when Japanese bombs rained on Pearl Harbor, they have been heading toward the naval training station, Great Lakes, Ill., bent on becoming seagoing fighters with Uncle Sam's fleet.

At this great naval training base, 40 miles north of Chicago on Lake Michigan, far from salt water, the navy is undertaking the huge task of transforming "land-lubbers" into hard-hitting men of the greatest fleet in the world.

Greatest of all naval training centers in the world during World War I, the station again bears that reputation. In the near future, 11 camps, each bearing the name of a navy hero, will provide training and living quarters for men on the station.

These camps will be Barry, Bronson, Luce, Paul Jones, Perry, Dewey, Lawrence, Porter, Moffet, Morrow and McIntire, the latter being the hospital area of the station.

Supplying approximately 35 per cent of the enlisted personnel of the fleet, Great Lakes is the headquarters of the Ninth naval district. The district includes 13 midwestern states: North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. Commandant of the district and commanding officer of the station is Rear Adm. John Downes.

Construction of the original training station at Great Lakes was authorized by an act of congress in April, 1904. Seven years later, President William Howard Taft officially opened the station on October 28, 1911. It consisted of 33 buildings located on a 167-acre tract of land and it housed 1,400 men. With the outbreak of war in 1917, 900 buildings were constructed. More than 125,000 men were trained for the fleet during the first world conflict.

The buildings erected during World War I were temporary structures and were dismantled after the signing of the Armistice. Today other temporary structures are being provided to handle the daily influx of recruits in this new war.

A Self-Sufficient Unit.

Extensive facilities of the station make it a self-sufficient unit. There are offices, barracks, mess halls, classrooms, drill halls, gymnasiums, store houses and large hospitals. The station has its own barber shops, hostess house, post office, tailor shop, laundry and shoe shop. There are three swimming pools and ten regulation ABC bowling alleys.

But more important than the buildings and facilities are the men —thousands of Americans ranging from beardless youths to men in their forties who were Bluejackets in 1917 and 1918. Besides being a perfect physical specimen, the Bluejacket of 1942 is A-1 in intelligence, courage and patriotism Anxiously he learns the seafaring lessons being taught by veterans of the fleet. Expectantly he awaits the day when he will graduate from the ranks of a recruit to that of a full-fledged sailor.

Requirements of Recruits.

Fundamentally, a recruit must be between the ages of 17 and 50 and must be no shorter than five feet three inches and no taller than six feet four inches. But would-be sailors who answer this general description are subjected to a rigid and thorough physical and dental examination upon arrival at the station, before they are finally accepted.

Color guard at Great Lakes naval training station.

Primary examinations are given at various recruiting stations and sometimes physical defects are overlooked, because many of the tests required are not available at outlying recruiting centers. Statistics show that between 50 and 60 per cent of applicants applying at recruiting stations are rejected for physical or mental defects, or other conditions.

The physical examination at Great Lakes is of a routine but thorough nature, conducted by medical officers who are specialists in the various fields of medicine. The examination includes surgical, orthopedic, psychiatric, psychological, X-ray, and eye, ear, nose and throat examinations, the results of which determine a man's physical fitness for the service.

Each man is subjected to a photofluoroscopic examination of his chest and to the various blood and laboratory tests. He is also immunized for smallpox, typhoid, yellow fever and tetanus.

In some cases where there is doubt as to the physical or mental fitness of an individual, he is sent to the U. S. Naval hospital here for a period of observation and study. After this period, if the individual is found to be physically and mentally qualified, he is outfitted and takes his place in recruit training.

In cases where minor surgical conditions are discovered, the individuals are sent to the naval hospital, where the conditions are corrected before the recruit is accepted for naval service.

Men From All Walks of Life.

The navy is a great leveler.

When contingents of recruits pour into the naval training station to begin "boot" training, they present a colorful picture in contrast—but not for long.

There are professional men and highly paid factory workers, men in smartly tailored suits, farm boys in overalls, cow hands from the West in high-heeled boots and sombreros, prosperous men and poor men, men with long hair, men with short hair —a cross-section of America.

After recruits have undergone physical and dental examinations to determine their fitness for naval service, the "stripping" process begins. First the "civvies" go into boxes for shipment home. Then the men go through the line.

Each enlisted man in the navy or naval reserve is given an allotment of $118 for uniforms and equipment.

More than 700 experienced stewards, bakers, butchers and storekeepers man huge mess halls on the station, while a veritable army of mess attendants—recruits who must spend some time in mess halls as part of their training—serve the Bluejackets. Twelve general mess halls now are operated on the station.

Cafeteria Style.

Because of the great number of men consuming three "squares" a day, the navy serves its food cafeteria style, in compartment trays. The men "poish off" their meals at long, cleanly scrubbed tables. To facilitate operations at the conclusion of each meal, the sailors stack their trays, dishes and silerware, which are then sent to automatic dish washers for a speedy cleansing

Each mess hall is equipped with a modern galley, butcher shop, vegetable locker, bake shop, refrigerators, bread room, store rooms and issuing rooms.

Fruits and vegetables are delivered daily to insure freshness; carrots, onions and rutabagas are locally grown and locally purchased; cheese, butter, eggs and poultry are trucked in from Illinois and Wisconsin. Dry provisions, such as canned tomatoes, are requisitioned in carload lots from the Navy Supply Depot at Norfolk, Va. Coffee is received in 5,000-pound lots from the Provision and Clothing Depot at Brooklyn, N. Y., where the navy operates its own roasting plant.

Sixteen different varieties of fruits and vegetables are served in general mess: Potatoes, cabbage, turnips, tomatoes, broccoli, apples, tangerines, oranges, lettuce, celery, peppers, cucumbers, onions, bananas and cranberries.

Uncle Sam's Bombers

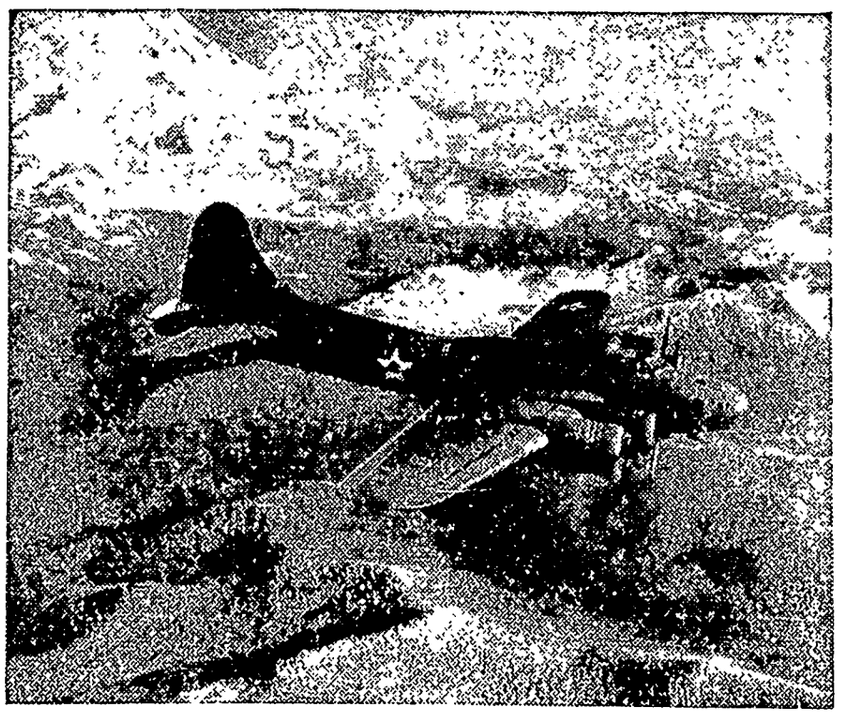
The history of the U. S. army bombing planes begins with the USD-9A De Haviland, finished just too late in 1918 to see action in the First World war. It was powered by a single 400-horsepower Liberty "12" engine, America's outstanding contribution to World war aviation, and had a speed of about 125 miles an hour. It carried a crew of two and a bomb load of 480 pounds. Its range was about 800 miles. While it had a ceiling of more than 18,000 feet, the crude bombsights of the day made bombing at even a few thousand feet pretty much of a hit and miss affair.

The first all-American twin-engined bomber was the Glenn Martin bomber, designed by the U S. army air corps engineers for night bombardment over the Western Front during World War I. It had bomb bays which were opened to release its "pay" load of 1,040 pounds. The Glenn Martin weighed more than five tons. This weight is less than that of a modern single-engine fighter plane, and less than one-fourth the weight of the B-17 and B-24 of today.

A startling development in army bomber design was the high wing monoplane known as Atlantic LB-2 Ahead of its time, and an adaptation for military use of the famous Fokker VII transport, the LB-2 saw service with the army air corps between 1926 and 1931. It was capable of carrying a bomb load of 2,000 pounds

With the advent of the B-3A the army air corps went back to the biplane design The B-3A had a speed of 110 miles per hour and a range of about 750 miles

The modern army bomber came of age with the Martin B-10, which attained a speed of more than 200 miles per hour and had a range of in excess of 1,000 miles. In July, 1934, a flight of ten Martin B-10 bombers flew from Washington, D. C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, and return, a total distance of 8,290 miles, which was covered in 51 hours and 30 minutes flying time.



A "Flying Fortress" of the latest series, a B-17E, wings its way at more than 300 miles an hour to drop its tons of bombs with deadly accuracy on an enemy objective. B-17s hold seven national speed records and have a range of more than 3,000 miles.

Russian Summer Port Now Very Busy

Both the coming of summer and the recent bombing attacks by German planes on Russia's far-northern port of Murmansk have turned attention to Archangel, farther east on the White sea. Archangel is more than 300 miles farther from the North pole than is the ice-free port of Murmansk, and is about 500 miles closer by rail to Moscow, says the National Geographic society in a recent bulletin.

Unlike Murmansk, the harbor at Archangel is frozen over from late October until June, and can be kept open for a part of that period only by the use of powerful icebreakers. The January mean temperature of seven degrees, Fahrenheit, rises to 60 degrees in August.

The port also can connect with the Baltic sea during normal summers through the Baltic-White sea canal, which was completed in 1933.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

U. S. FOREIGN LEGION

Most people don't realize it, but there are many enemy aliens who are officers in the U. S. army. In fact the army, true to the American tradition of the melting pot, is made up of American citizens of almost every national and racial background, including 2,720 German aliens, not to mention 2,700 Germans who are naturalized citizens.

The Italian total is 2,472 aliens and 3,781 naturalized. In addition, there are 644 Japanese in the army, plus 3,000 Japanese-Americans, formerly of the Hawaiian national guard, most of whom are assigned to the 100th battalion at Fort McCoy, Wis.

The army goes on the assumption that any man who wants to fight can be a good soldier. Of course, the "enemy aliens" are checked and double-checked before they are admitted for enlistment. The men who pass these tests are found to be even more zealous for the defeat of the dictators than the average American.

Latin-American Battalions.

To make the melting pot more complex, the army has a Filipino infantry battalion, and is forming a battalion for Norwegians in the U. S. and Norwegian-Americans. Instruction and conversation in this unit will be in the Norwegian language.

Equally eager to fight are thousands of Latin-Americans, especially from the nearer countries, such as Cuba and Mexico. The office of the U. S. military attache in Havana is flooded with applications from young Cubans who want to wear the uniform of Uncle Sam. Most of them would renounce Cuban citizenship if necessary.

But what they do not realize is that if they come to the United States, they are likely to be swept into the U. S. army, whether they like it or not. Within five days after entering this country, aliens must register for the draft, and they had better leave the country pronto if they don't want to be inducted.

Not yet arranged, but highly desirable, is a Latin-American battalion. There are now ten Latin-American countries which have declared war on the Axis, and thousands of their young men want to follow up that declaration with something more than police duty at home.

BACK-BREAKERS

An American diplomat returning from Italy tells this revealing story about the true sentiments of the Italian people.

In his office at the U. S. embassy in Rome he found a clerk, an Italian girl, crying. When he inquired what was wrong, she replied: "Oh, I'm ashamed to be an Italian. You remember what boasting the Fascists did about the Greek campaign? They said: 'We will break their kidneys.' But everybody knows who really beat the Greeks; it was not our army; it was the Germans. But now—have you seen the poster on the streets this morning?" And the girl broke into tears again.

The diplomat looked outside at the poster, which that day was appearing all over Italy. It showed a Greek soldier lying on his face, with a steel bar across his back. On top of the bar was the Fascist insigne, and on the side, the swastika.

The caption read: "We said we would break their kidneys. Mussolini is always right."

Note: All reports from Italy tell of a growing disgust with the Mussolini government, and a growing hatred of the Germans. But the people are too cowed to revolt.

NO-CHAUFFEUR ARNOLD

Trustbusting Thurman Arnold hails from the small town of Laramie, Wyo., and he doesn't see any reason why he should hire a chauffeur to drive his car. So he drives it himself.

One evening, after he and Mrs. Arnold had been dinner guests of Mrs. Evalyn (Hope Diamond) McLean, they were going out the front door, when the doorman said, in his most elegant manner, "Shall I call your car, Mr. Arnold?"

With a dour expression on his face, Arnold said, "You can call it, but I don't think it will come."

¶ There may be a gasoline shortage, but you would never know it at Washington's Congressional Country club. IF IT ever seemed to you that the walls and ceiling of an attic room were coming down on your head you know how the owner of this room felt before she began to experiment a bit with wallpaper and furnishings.

Large samples of wallpaper were thumbtacked in place to test them. Stripes only accented the slant of the walls. Plain papers brought out angles with sharp shadows. Large designs made the room seem smaller Wide borders made the ceiling appear to be even lower. But when a paper with tiny evenly spaced pattern and narrow border was tried all these defects seemed to melt away. The long curtains with ruffles on three sides also helped to make the ceiling seem higher. Pink and white striped material to repeat the wallpaper color was used for the chair cover and dressing table skirt. The chair is a remodeled rocker and the orange crate dressing table has hinged arms. Directions for them may be found on pages 4 and 19 of SEWING, Book 5.

WALL PAPER WITH SMALL PATTERN AND BORDER MAKES ANGLES LESS DISTINCT · CURTAINS FROM CEILING TO FLOOR ACCENT HEIGHT OF ROOM
ROOM WITH SLANTING WALLS AND LOW CEILING

PEARL BUCK, head of the East and West association, which promotes cultural understanding between the Orientals and ourselves, wants a list of movies which really represent American life. She ought to include "Pride of the Yankees," starring Gary Cooper, with Teresa Wright playing opposite him. It's the story of Lou Gehrig's life—shows an earnest, rather shy young man who loved his mother and worked hard, attaining success and the honest admiration and affection of his countrymen. A typical American, we hope.

It's too bad that the dim-out forbade the use of Klieg lights for the opening of this swell picture. Never

If Richard Haydn develops indigestion it will be the fault of the writers of "No Time for Love." That's the new Claudette Colbert-Fred MacMurray comedy, and Haydn eats in every one of his scenes. Might sound like heaven to some, but not to him!

They probably won't give Jerry Bulkley a chance to dance in "Du Barry Was a Lady"; probably won't even know that she's a dancer. She's gone to Hollywood with a group of fellow models, and if they have an opportunity to do more than just look pretty they'll be lucky. New York models aren't very enthusiastic about Hollywood any more; most of them refuse to go. Even $200 a week for three months or so doesn't tempt them, since they may never face a movie camera in that time, and when they come home folks think they just didn't make good.

Sounds strange, but here's what we hear from Metro about an important role in Katharine Hepburn's picture, "Keeper of the Flame." The actor chosen will portray the star's husband, and will appear in seven important scenes before meeting death in an accident. After that he'll still be a key figure in the picture. But—he'll never speak a word. Swell chance to be paid for keeping mum!

The latest addition to the new crop of players recently signed by Metro is William Bishop, nephew of Helen Hayes. He's six feet two, with dark brown hair and eyes, and has won fame as a football player. He's played in stock and in various stage plays in New York; in two of them he supported his famous aunt. He has also appeared on her radio program. A coming star, maybe.

Another newcomer to the screen is Lenore Aubert, chosen by Samuel Goldwyn to play opposite Bob Hope in "They Got Me Covered." Born in Jugoslavia, daughter of a general in the Austrian army in pre-Hitler days, she worked in pictures in Vienna. She was discovered by a talent scout while appearing in a play in Los Angeles. Goldwyn did more testing for this role than he has for any in several years. It's a break for Miss Aubert—she has been signed to a seven-year contract.

Bob Hawk's "How Am I Doin'" show has been on the air for exactly half a year, and in that time 211 contestants have walked off with winnings totaling $15,213. AT THE BICYCLE RATIONING BOARD

Q.—Why do you want a bicycle?

A.—It's the only card missing from my collection.

Q.—Do you want a high-wheel or a low-wheel machine?

A.—Low. Any idea you have that I am going into a revival of vaudeville is false.

* * *

Q.—Have you ever operated a bicycle before?

A.—No, but I come from an old family of bicycle people.

Q.—What do you mean by that?

A.—My dad could ride backwards. And I had an uncle who could stand on his head in the saddle.

Q.—Are there any bicycles in your family now?

A.—Those things I trip over in the dark every night can't be road rollers.

Q.—Give the board three reasons why you should be allowed to ride a bike?

A.—I can't get any gas The other two don't matter

Q.—Do you live near a bus line?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Why not use the bus?

A.—When I coast down hill I want to do it on my own responsibility.

* * *

Q.—Are you aware that there is a shortage of bicycles?

A.—Up until the last year I thought they could only be found in antique shops.

Q.—What do you want to do on a bicycle that can't be done some other way?

A.—Go through a red light and park where I want to.

Q.—Do you regard your having a bicycle as essential to winning the war?

A.—Of course. It will keep up national morale.

Q.—How so?

A.—The people need entertainment and when they see me on a bicycle they will get it.

* * *

Q.—How far do you live from work?

A.—Twenty miles.

Q.—Our records show that it is only two miles.

A.—You forget that it's all uphill.

Q.—Have you thought of pooling bicycles?

A.—What do you mean?

Q.—You take a neighbor to work one day and he takes you the next.

A.—Who do you think I am, Joe Jackson Jr.?

Advance Collections Herald Narrower Silhouette for Fall

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE big news as to fall style trends centers for the most part around the idea of slimness for the skirt silhouette. It's quite all right and definitely style-correct to continue to wear the ever-beloved all-around pleated skirts through the summer-to-fall midseason period, but the moment fashion's swan-song sounds the knell to summer and you know by the calendar that autumn is here in will come such an array of smart and figure-flattering narrow silhouetted skirts you'll yield to temptation at the very first glance. In fact, the new slim, black frocks are ever so goodlooking for immediate wear, and they'll be smart right on through into fall and winter.

These charming dresses, styled as they are with utmost simplicity, are ushering in a new era in costume design, one that patriotically makes fabric conservation its theme. Valiantly and victoriously have designers met the challenge to create beautiful fashions out of minimum yardage. Once you've donned one of these figure-flattering narrow silhouetted gowns, suits or coats, as the case may be, you'll be all enthusiasm for the new order of things, for it is a fact that the narrowed silhouette is one of charm and chic.

A suit tailored of black bengaline or a dress fashioned of sleek jersey in either black or lush colors fashioned after the manner of the smart modes pictured in the above illustration (each is within the new fabric-saving rulings) gives the perfect answer as to what to wear now and on through the midseason days. In fact, these fashions are scheduled to function smartly far into the future.

The suit pictured to the right is an important fashion in that it is tailored of black bengaline, and it's bengaline that fashion-alert women are clamoring for this season for their best looking suit. You'll be starting your fall wardrobe going in the right direction if you buy a bengaline suit. Suits of this kind take kindly to accents of lovely lacy lingerie neckwear and it's also smart to wear accessories which give the vivid touch. The front fullness of this skirt is typically "Autumn 1942" in its styling. The jacket is a newly inspired version which stresses up-to-dateness.

The dresses shown are New York creations which observe all the niceties demanded by discriminating taste. The gown centered in the above picture shows its new-school origin in its slenderness and classic simplicity. The fact that it is made of sleek rayon jersey in a lovely mint-julep green is significant, for much importance is attached to greens on the fall color card. A semi-surplice bodice with draped detail outlines a V-neckline, and subtle shirring is stitched into the front seam of the bias-cut skirt. The hat follows the trend to wide flattering brims.

The dress to the left in the above picture interprets a stunning version of the new pegtop silhouette. Perhaps no word in the skirt realm is being repeated oftener than "pegtop" these days, for most of the newer skirts definitely reflect its influence. Developed of the now-so-fashionable sleek rayon jersey, this dress may be accepted as among the smartest offerings fashion has to make. Its unusual, softly draped sleeves are caught on the shoulders with flattering self-fabric ties. The general air of style assurance of this dress makes it outstanding. The becoming hat with its soft matching veil is of green baku.

Practical Trio

For gardening, tennis, cycling or what-have-you in the way of hard work or sports, here is the ideal outfit. Overall shorts of blue cotton denim, with a calico print blouse and a wrap-around skirt, are ready to meet every demand. It's the type of clothes everybody's calling for now that there's work to be done, something dependably washable, chic and becoming, and attuned to all occasions, whether they be work or play. This outfit will hold good "for the duration."

Helps Give Variety To Work Costumes

In planning and designing practical clothes for the thousands of women now engaged in wartime factory work, every effort is being made to avoid regimentation or suggestion of monotonous uniforms. Thus, much importance is attached to color, as it offers variety and cheer.

Necessarily certain requirements must be observed in behalf of safety. For instance, most factories stipulate that women and girls wear slacks or coveralls or jumper slacks carefully styled so that nothing will catch in the machinery. Covering for the head is required to keep the hair protected. Dresses are out of the picture, with a ban on culottes or skirts. Banned also are toe-less or heel-less shoes and long fingernails. Blouses must be simple, so that no frilly details get caught in the machinery, but they may be, and are, very colorful.

Quilted Fashions

Enthusiasm for things quilted extends to every phase of fashion. Quilting as designers are employing it gives novelty to hats, will give warmth to coats this fall by bright colored quilted linings, is used for large flat pockets and offers clever novelty ensembles which include hat, bag and jacket sets.

For Trimming

There will be a generous use of embroidery this fall and also of applique design. And again designers are lavishing fringe on dressy frocks in unique and attractive ways.

Death In the Desert

By Quentin Reynolds

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly.)

We huddled in our very shallow trenches. We knew that we were in for a taste of the most horrible attack that modern warfare has as yet devised—dive bombing. It was just 5 a. m.

I had come to this plateau in the desert with a colonel, and he had parked our car six feet from the small trench we had found in the center of the plateau. I looked at our car and saw that it had jagged holes in it, and then I heard the planes returning, and it was time to fall face downward in the loose sand at the bottom of the trench.

All five of them dove at once. The bombs dropped all around, and time stood still, and nothing was real except the horrible cacophony of warfare at its worst.

Soon we were beyond wincing when blasts swept around us and bullets and hunks of steel tore into the sides of our trench six inches above us

Only the noise and death which we by now expected any moment were real, and of the two death was the more welcome, even though death had sent his most hideous messenger, the dive bomber, to summon us.

There were occasional three or four minute intervals, when the Huns became bored with their sport. Then we breathed again and talked, although we talked disjointedly.

Memories of Home.

I felt a strange nostalgia and a strange indifference to what the dive bombers would do next. I knew quite well that there was little chance of any of us surviving the next half-hour, because we were fish in a barrel. But it bothered me that I would have to die with this regiment of British infantry.

They were magnificent, and I admired them terrifically, but they were British. I have never made any secret of my love for them and my admiration for the way the British have fought and suffered in this war, but if you are born in the Bronx and brought up in Brooklyn and have worked in New York most of your life, you have but one loyalty, one allegiance.

I felt annoyed that I was not to die with my own mob, with men from Fifty-second street and from Flatbush and from Harlem, with men I'd grown up with, with men I'd worked on papers with in New York, with taxicab drivers and lawyers and bartenders and priests who have been my friends.

More of the Same.

"Dig in, chum," the colonel yelled, and then I realized that for three minutes my thoughts had been 6,000 miles away. They were jerked back quickly enough.

Stark, real terror is an anesthetic. I have been frightened in France and Britain a hundred times and that was bad. This was something different. The feeling we had here transcended ordinary fear.

Then all conscious thought was banished by the hellish noise that came to us from above as the planes dove, releasing more bombs. They kept this up for 45 minutes that was an eternity. Then in the east a turquoise strip appeared on the horizon, merciful heralder of the dawn.

One more attack remained before the dawn banished these malignant creatures of the night. This was perhaps the worst. When a plane dive-bombs it cannot drop the very heavy bombs because it would itself be caught in the upward blast.

And then came the screams of the big bombs they had been saving for last. These were the bombs I'd heard in London a hundred times, and in Moscow, too. They sounded as though some celestial giant were tearing a piece of heavy silk, they sounded like the screaming of a thousand shrill-voiced tortured demons—and then they landed.

Again the world rocked around us and the blast swept through the trench and we embraced the earth automatically because by now our consciousness had been entirely dulled by the noise and the terror of it all. The world rocked and then suddenly the dawn came to blast the darkness from the desert.

I lay there for a while, too dazed and exhausted to know or care whether I had been hit. Then, unsteadily, I climbed out of the trench and fell twice before I could stand. Others around me were doing the same thing.

The smell of destruction hung heavily in the air; it is a burnt odor that always follows bombing. I found that one of my hands was bleeding, and then noticed blood soaking through my uniform at the knee. They were small cuts from bomb fragments and they seemed very unimportant.

WALT SMOKES 'EM OUT

For several years a swarm of bees have infested the Gruetzmacher building tenanted by Walt Kimball who conducts a repair shop and leather store there.

The bees were a considerable of a pain-in-the-neck and Walt decided to do something about it

As he looked the situation over last Friday he got a lot of advice on how to get rid of the bees One man suggested burning the building down, another thought a bear would kill the bees and then claw off the boards to get the honey, while a third suggested that Walt sit on a high ladder with a fly-swatter in his hand and kill them one at a time

Walt turned deaf ears to all of these good suggestions and that evening procured a cyanide gun and gassed the bees.

Not only did Walt kill the bees but he smoked out Mr. and Mrs Melvin Buseman in the apartment above the store, and filled his own store so full of fumes that it was impossible to work there Saturday forenoon

The bees are still there!

LET'S BE MORE PATRIOTIC

Sunday afternoon at the close of the band concert we noticed a few people seated who failed to arise as the band struck up the Star Spangled Banner.

The incident brought to our mind the editorial of Lester Benz, publisher of the Sheffield Press in dealing with the same subject It fits here so we reprint Lester's editorial as follows:

"The other evening a number of men were discussing the disrespect shown the national anthem at the conclusion of our weekly band concerts and the general idea seemed to be that most people were ignorant of the fact that the national anthem was entitled to the same recognition as the flag

"In other words, when the national anthem is played, proper decorum demands that one stand at attention, remove his hat and place his right hand over his heart. The same procedure is followed when the flag passes by. In either case it is proper to face the music or the flag.

"There has been a marked absence of this procedure, not only in Sheffield but in most communities We cannot agree with the Minnesota editor that hats not removed voluntarily should be knocked off True, it is a mark of disrespect which should not be tolerated but in few instances is it willful"

Perhaps it is ignorance of the rules that people fail to pay respect to the flag and the national anthem Men are not the only violators Some women fail also to stand up when the band plays the Star Spangled Banner

Those who are sitting in their cars listening to the band are not exempt, and should step out and be at attention until the anthem is finished

ONLY THE IRISH COULD THING OF THIS ONE

One Irish soldier on duty in Egypt received a letter from his wife saying there were no able-bodied men left and she was afraid she would have to dig the garden herself

Pat wrote in his next letter: "Honey, please don't dig in the garden, as that's where the guns are."

The letter was promptly censored and in a short time a lorry-load of soldiers arrived at Pat's house and dug up the garden from end to end

Pat's wife wrote him in desperation, saying that she didn't know what to do, as the soldiers had dug up the garden.

Pat's reply was short and to the point: "Put in the spuds."

SALVAGE PRIMER

Here's a timely piece of poetry we clipped that just fits in with the scrap salvage campaign now getting under way Here 'tis:

A rubber band, that's what I am
Just doing my stretch for Uncle Sam.
I'm off on leave—for a year, perhaps,
Teaching Nazis and Japs to go easy on maps.

With pencils short, erasers rare,
Stub though I am, please use with care!
To Shakespeare, Keats and early scholars
I'd have been worth a mililon dollars

A paper clip seems pretty small
Ignored, abused, by one and all;
But I am made of priceless steel—
Please draft me for a job that's real

"Waste not, want not!" handle with care!"
"Keep machinery in good repair!"
Thus, you and I, and he and she,
Can share in winning victory.

I'm paper, clean and crisp and white.
Some might not think that I can fight.
But save me, friends, and you'll find out.
I'll help put Hitler's crowd to rout.

Don't treat me lightly, do not scoff!
When I'm used up, don't toss me off!
Bullets, bombs, torpedoes, too,
Are built from light bulbs saved by you.

"OUR GANG" SELLS BONDS AND STAMPS

Klemme's vest pocket size version of "Our Gang," who hail from the South Side, invaded the Main Street and business section of our town Tuesday afternoon, spearheaded by a "tank, dive bomber and machine guns." Casualties by the "invaders" was feared to be heavy for they brought with them a corps of nurses and a doctor.

The "tank" carried banners informing the scared victims to buy bonds and stamps, or else! (Confidentially stamp and bond sales hit a new high mark Tuesday after the "invaders" had withdrawn their forces)

Each one of the "gang" was appropriately dressed for the part: Nancy Johnson and Neva Ann Anderson, Red Cross Nurses. (They carried a big doll on a stretcher) "Doc" Bobbie Arnold, spick and span in long white pants and white coat, followed the nurses. (Who wouldn't? Peter Johnson was the dashing aviator and Willis Bock was the Navy Man on the job His brother Roger, was the engine, the grease-monkey and operator of the formidable looking tank which was heavily armed with a tough looking machine gun. The bomber was on a carrier for an instant take off. Gracka Maria Gerardi, dressed in green cape and whirling a baton, lead the aggregation into "battle."

Coming down Main Street they made a "big push" which got them inside "the lines" at the Quandt Cafe. Ernie Gerardi was captured and depleted of a large supply of food, (ice cream cones) that will put the "gang" in a good position for another big drive.

We nearly forgot to mention Yo-Yo, the dog Just what his part in the parade could be, we have not figured out. Maybe he nipped the legs of those who did not buy bonds and stamps this month. Or maybe its "dog days" and he got in on he parade.

Why not send them to the Patriotic Day at Britt as Klemme's float in the parade?

KLEMME MAN TO ENROLL IN AIRCRAFT SCHOOL

Leonard Lau expects to leave Klemme the first of next week for Akron, Ohio, to enroll in the Goodyear Aircraft School, and after he completes the course he hopes to secure employment in their aircraft factory. His family will remain here until he gets settled. Mr Lau has been employed for a number of years as cabinet-maker at the Northern Lumber Company. He is a graduate of the School for the Deaf at Council Bluffs and the Gaaludet University at Washington, D C.

The Goodyear Company employs many skilled deaf workers in their aircraft factory.

LUMBER FIRM ESTABLISHED FIFTY YEARS AGO

Has Been Linked With Northwest Iowa History

(Estherville Daily News)

Fifty years ago the Northern Lumber Company was incorporated at Thompson, Iowa, by J. D. Spalding of Sioux City, and it was 11 years later, April 29, 1903, that F. J. White and G. A. Lyon, two members of the firm, negotiated the purchase of the W. H. Jensen company yards on Sooth Sixth St. in Estherville where the company now has its general offices and Estherville yards.

It was 74 years ago that Mr Spalding founded the Spalding-Avery lumber company at Sioux City and on July 18, 1892, he founded the Northern Lumber company. J D Spalding was the first president of the Northern Lumber company and was succeeded by Fred White in 1914. George Lyon was the first secretary of the company The present personnel is F. J. White, president; George W. Thompson, vice-president and general manager; and G. U. Noel, treasurer.

Centrally Located

When the company moved to Estherville it operated 13 yards, of which six were sold later. This city was made the headquarters because it was almost centrally located among the company's yards The general offices are on the second floor of the Estherville yard office. At the present time there are seven yards and two farm implement stores located at Estherville, Gruver, Swea City, Forest City, Klemme, Mason City and New Hampton. Farm implements and repairs are sold at Estherville and Klemme. Coal is sold at all the yards except Klemme, while all the yards have stocks of building materials.

The Northern Lumber company's history is closely indentified with the building and development of the territory in northern Iowa and has supplied much of the materials that have gone into business and residential property

Employs 93 Persons

The company's latest report to the state on the old age benefits show that the firm employes a total of 93 persons.

In addition to the general offices and Estherville yards the company owns two buildings, leasing one to the Gamble Robinson company and the other to the Butterfield Produce company.

Ira G. Shoemaker, brother of the late Mrs. George Lyon and former company manager at Mason City, was pensioned by the company May 10, 1940, and now is living in Gig Harbor, Wash. Mrs F. J. White is the daughter of the founder, J. D. Spalding.

DUCK HUNTERS TO HAVE A 70-DAY OPEN SEASON

Federal regulations give Iowa duck hunters a 70-day shooting season instead of sixty days, as in 1941, and they may hunt from sunrise to sunset daily instead of to 4:00 p. m., as last year. The open season will begin at sunrise October 15 and close at sunset December 23.

Daily bag and possession limit for ducks will be the same as last year. The liberalized season, of course, has met with a bavorable response by Iowa duck hunters.

On motion and second Board adjourned to August 17, 1942 at 9 o'clock A. M

F J Schoun, Chairman

ATTEST Fred C Missal, County Auditor.

STARTING A BUSY WEEK

Henry Appel of Grundy Center met up with blue Monday at its worst On awakening he found the battery on the electric fence down and the cow had gotten out of the pasture and eaten the supply of sweet corn After obtaining a new battery in town for the electric fence, he found the battery of his car dead. After this was recharged, the starter wouldn't work In putting in a new starter cable, the battery tester cracked up. On returning home about 10:30 p. m., he heard a loud report coming from his garage This proved to be the bursting of a tire on a truck stored there Henry called it a day.

LONG ARM OF TAXES

From far-away politically agitated India there came the other day a check in payment of Clayton county taxes. The taxpayer, Mrs E. Stanley Jones, has for many years been a missionary in India.

We Suggest Now...

• THE TIME IS HERE TO DO THESE JOBS . . .

• NEW FOUNDATIONS or repair the present one. GRANARIES will soon be loaded. Check their SILLS and SIDE WALLS so they will not spread and leak All grain that runs through a crack is lost forever.

• A NEW ROOF makes it possible for you to take out as much good grain as you put in and saves a cut in price whenyou take this to the elevator later in the season.

• A PIECE OF SIDING may need replacing so fix that now. Renailing loose boards will pay you big dividends.

• IT IS PATRIOTIC TO PAINT because when you "Save the Surface, You Save All." Now is the time to get some of our DEVOES PAINT for all your buildings: House, barn, cribs, machine sheds, granaries and garage. Keep your buildings painted with DEVOES.

• WE CARRY A FULL LINE of Famous 4-Sq. Lumber, Building Blocks, Paint and Varnish, Shingles of all kinds.

KEEP YOUR BUILDINGS IN GOOD REPAIR . . .

Telling time in the Navy is the 24-hour system. Morning hours are from one to twelve, but afternoon hours are from 1300 to 2400 (midnight). So if you ask a sailor the time and he says "seventeen," subtract 12 and you get five o'clock in the afternoon. It's simpler if you ask him what cigarette he smokes. Chances are he'll say "Camel," for Camel is the favorite cigarette among Navy men as well as among men in the Army, Marines, Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) Local dealers featuring Camel cartons as gifts for men in the service from folks back home.—Adv.

HEED THIS ADVICE

If you're cross, restless, suffer hot flashes, nervous feelings, dizziness, distress of "irregularities"—caused by this period in a woman's life—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once!

Pinkham's Compound is made especially for women, and functions to help relieve distress due to this female functional disturbance. Thousands upon thousands of women have reported gratifying benefits. Follow label directions. WORTH TRYING!

WNU—N

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the kidneys. They are apt to be overtaxed and fail to filter excess acids and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess waste. They have had more than a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Summertime Means Picnic Time!
(See Recipes Below.)

Sandwiches Plus

Your fling with summer isn't quite complete without one or a dozen picnics with those sandwiches that taste so good, bubbling hot coffee and fresh, juicy fruit to top off that outdoor meal. You'll have fun with these simple things, even if you don't make a long trip in the family car to some far-away, favorite picnic grounds. Try the back yard, the parks, the beach or even that shady spot down the road a mile or so for this year's picnic.

Scrub your favorite picnic hamper clean and sun-dry it to assure your food freshness and cleanliness. Fill it to the brim with exciting sandwich combinations that your family will get such a surprise when they begin digging into the pleasant recesses of the big basket. Remember the salt for the tomatoes, paper napkins, paper plates, plenty of glasses or paper cups and, yes, a gay checked cloth to add atmosphere to the affair.

Are you in a quandary as to what sandwiches to make? Well, glance over the following combinations for some really tasty ideas in fillings:

Chopped bacon (broiled until crisp) and hard-cooked egg, moistened with mayonnaise or softened butter.

Sliced ham and American cheese, lettuce, sandwich spread.

Cream cheese, finely minced onion, chopped stuffed olives.

Chipped beef, ground fine, mixed with crumbled Roquefort cheese, seasoned with Worcestershire sauce.

Liver sausage, mashed, seasoned with chili sauce.

Summer sausage, ground with sweet or bread and butter pickles, moistened with mayonnaise.

Cucumber, chopped fine, excess moisture drained off, mixed with cream cheese, salt and pepper.

Peanut butter mixed with honey.

Tuna or salmon, flaked, mixed with lemon juice, finely chopped celery and mayonnaise to moisten.

Fillings combined generously with butter are often known as spreads. This facilitates the handling of sandwiches. Just spread the "butter" thickly between slices of bread and your sandwich is made, ready to be wrapped in waxed paper for picnicking.

Cheese Spread.

Blend cream cheese with lemon juice and add 2 tablespoons butter to each package (1-ounce) of cream cheese. To this add one or more of the following: chopped watercress, green pepper or celery; pimiento, green olives, or nuts.

Sardine Spread.

Cream 2 tablespoons lemon juice with ½ pound sweet butter. Spread this on toast or plain whole wheat bread. On top of this place tiny sardines, sprinkle with lemon juice and top with slice of toast or plain whole wheat bread.

"Make-your-own" sandwiches are loads of fun for picnics. Just pack your lunch box with meat loaf or ham loaf already baked at home. Provide the crowd with bread and butter, and let them slice the meat for their own sandwiches:

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Your best bargains during the present can be found in eggs and cheese, so plan to fortify your meals generously with both of these foods.

The campaign to save fats is really getting under way, and it's good policy on your part to turn all excess fats to your butcher.

Economy's yours if you use a variety of meat cuts in planning your menus. Best bargains can be found in the less used cuts such as liver, sweetbreads, heart, kidneys, rump roasts, etc.

Primary or unlimited production in canned fruits is decreed for the following items: peaches and pears (not whole), pectin, fruit cocktail, fruit for salad, and concentrates of grapefruit, lemon, lime and orange.

Ham Picnic Loaf.
(Serves 10)

½ cup quick-cooking tapioca
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 pound lean ham, ground
1 pound lean pork, ground
2 cups milk

Combine tapioca with remaining ingredients in order given. Bake in a loaf pan in a hot (450-degree) oven 15 minutes, then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 45 minutes longer or until done. Serve hot or cold.

Munching on golden, crisply fried, cold chicken is many a picnicker's dream of the perfect outing. This is easily managed if you fry the chicken the night before, let it stand in the refrigerator, then wrap in waxed paper to take to the picnic the next day:

Country-Fried Chicken.
(Serves 6 to 8)

2 3-pound chickens
¾ cup flour
1½ tablespoons salt
1 teaspoon pepper
Lard or shortening for frying
¼ cup butter

Clean chickens and cut in pieces suitable for serving. Mix flour with salt and pepper and place in paper bag. Place several pieces of chicken in the bag, and shake to coat evenly with flour. Take out and fry chicken until brown, slowly, in the lard which has been placed in a heavy skillet. When all the chicken has been browned, dot with butter, cover closely and let cook for about an hour over low heat. Or, if you prefer, after chicken is fried, let cook in a moderate (350-degree) oven until done. Uncover during last 15 minutes of cooking time to brown and crisp chicken.

Potato salad made the old-fashioned way with home-cooked dressing is guaranteed to go over big with the family:

Potato Salad
(Serves 8)

6 potatoes, cooked in jackets
¼ cup french dressing
1 onion, chopped fine
1 cup celery, chopped fine
1½ teaspoons salt
1 recipe cooked dressing

Peel potatoes, and cube. Marinate in french dressing for ½ hour. Combine with other ingredients, and chill thoroughly before serving. Garnish with paprika.

Cooked Dressing.

¼ teaspoon salt
½ tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1½ tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 egg yolks
¾ cup milk
¾ cup vinegar

Combine dry ingredients. Add egg yolks, blending carefully, then mix in butter, milk and vinegar slowly. Cook until thick in double boiler. Let cool before adding to salad.

ISAAC PRACTICES PEACE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 26 18-31
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God.—Matthew 5 9

To talk peace in a warring world seems almost futile, and so it is, unless it be the peace of God In a world largely dominated by the philosophy that might makes right, and in which men demand what they call their rights, taking them even by lawless and violent methods, it is increasingly difficult to proclaim the truth that patience and meekness are not weakness, but are Christian virtues worth emulating.

The story of Isaac is interesting from beginning to end. He was an ordinary man, one of the common people. He had come through varied experiences of victory and defeat before the time of our lesson. Fearing a famine, and apparently not trusting God at the moment, he had gone down from the promised land to the country of the Philistines, there redigging the wells which his father Abraham had dug. The result was that he prospered Ere long, however, envy on the part of his enemies taught Isaac that—

I. Peace in This World Is Temporary (vv. 18-21).

Isaac had prospered, but he was still out of the promised land, and while he was in the land of Philistines he could expect no permanent peace.

We are in the world. We long for peace, and would throw all our influence and service into the cause of bringing a righteous peace to the troubled peoples of the world. But let us not be misled by that desire into the support of unscriptural and impossible peace programs. This world is a sinful world, and as long as that is true, there will be strife and war, that men (as James puts it) may have the gains thereof for their own pleasure.

Our business in such a world is to preach the gospel of grace, winning men to Christ, that they may become men of good-will. Isaac was such a man, willing to yield even what seemed to be his right, rather than cause contention.

Undoubtedly there are times when one must defend his name and his possessions, but all too often those who do "stand for their rights" have wrecked homes, churches, and nations, and have gained nothing but an empty victory.

The peace of this world is temporary. Is there then no real abiding peace and joy?

II. Abiding Joy Is Found in Fellowship With God (vv. 22-25).

When Isaac came up into Canaan, the land which God had promised to him, he found real peace and an abiding joy in renewed fellowship with God. Even so, the Christian man and woman who will step out of a spiritually destructive fellowship with the ungodly world and come over wholeheartedly into the spiritual Canaan of full consecration and separated living, will find true peace and satisfying communion with God.

Our thought, however, has wider application—one much needed today. There is to come a time when this world will have true and abiding peace which shall cover the earth like the waters cover the sea. When the One who has the right to reign, the Lord Jesus Christ, returns to take His throne, then, and not before, will there be true peace.

We await that day with longing which grows more intense as men grow more violent in their hatred. But is there nothing more we can do? Yes, we learn from Isaac's experience that—

III. A Godly Life Is a Testimony to Warring Men (vv. 26-31).

These men were wicked men, even speaking falsehood in their claim of friendship toward Isaac (v. 29). Now that they perceived that God was continually blessing Isaac in spite of their repeated injustice toward him, they decided that it would be well to make a covenant of friendship with him. Even those who follow the way of war and aggression cannot deny the effectiveness of true Christian testimony.

Observe also that by his patience and kindness Isaac ultimately made friends out of his enemies. "It is better to turn enemies into friends than to beat them, and have them enemies still." And so this man with the patient, self-sacrificing spirit brought peace not only to himself, but to those about him, because he believed and trusted God. "When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him" (Prov. 16:7).

What can we do to bring peace today? We can pray that God will help America and her allied nations to turn to Him in repentance of sin, and in a desire to so honor His name that He may be able to give His blessing. When Hezekiah spread before the Lord the threat of his enemy, God undertook for him in a mighty way, because his heart was right toward God (Isa. 37:14-20).

Will he do less for us?

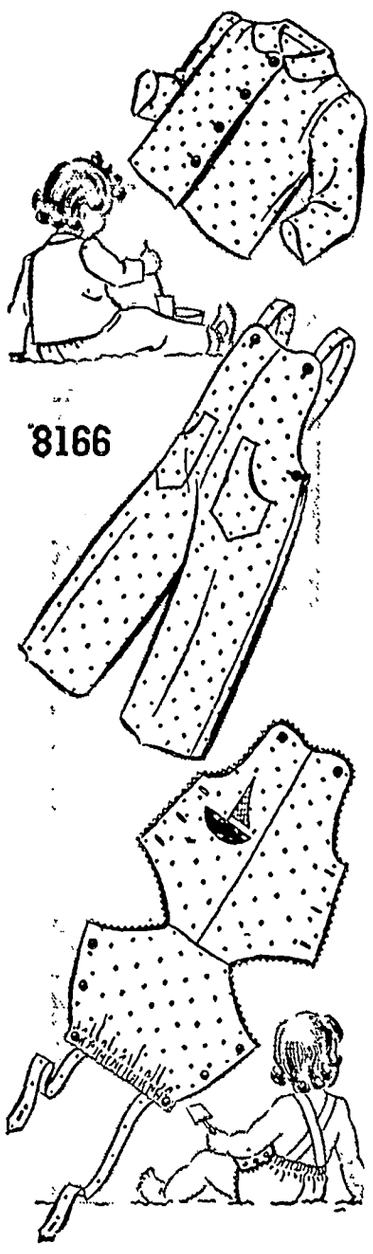
SEWING CIRCLE



YES, your youngster is ready for hours and hours of play when you make her this cunning suit—in a stout durable cotton which "can take it"! We suggest seersucker, poplin, denim or broadcloth. The suit is trimmed down to essentials only—a topper which can be worn tucked in as a shirt, or as a jacket—overalls and an abbreviated romper suit for sun worship. The last named carries a sail boat decoration which can be applied as a bright patch of contrasting color.

No Prospects for the Disagreeing Young Lady

This story was told of Winston S. Churchill by Gertrude Atherton:

"Shortly after he left the Conservative side of the house (of commons) for the Liberal, he was taking a certain young woman down to dinner, when she looked up at him coquettishly, and remarked with the audacity of her kind:

" 'There are two things I don't like about you, Mr. Churchill.'

" 'And what are they?'

" 'Your new politics and mustache.'

" 'My dear madam,' he replied suavely, 'pray do not disturb yourself. You are not likely to come in contact with either.' "

Two Towns Are One

Nogales, Arizona, and Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, are two towns geographically, but only one physically, says Collier's The international boundary line, which runs down the middle of their one common main street, is marked by a barbed-wire fence. Internationalism is so strong that the inhabitants celebrate all American and Mexican holidays.

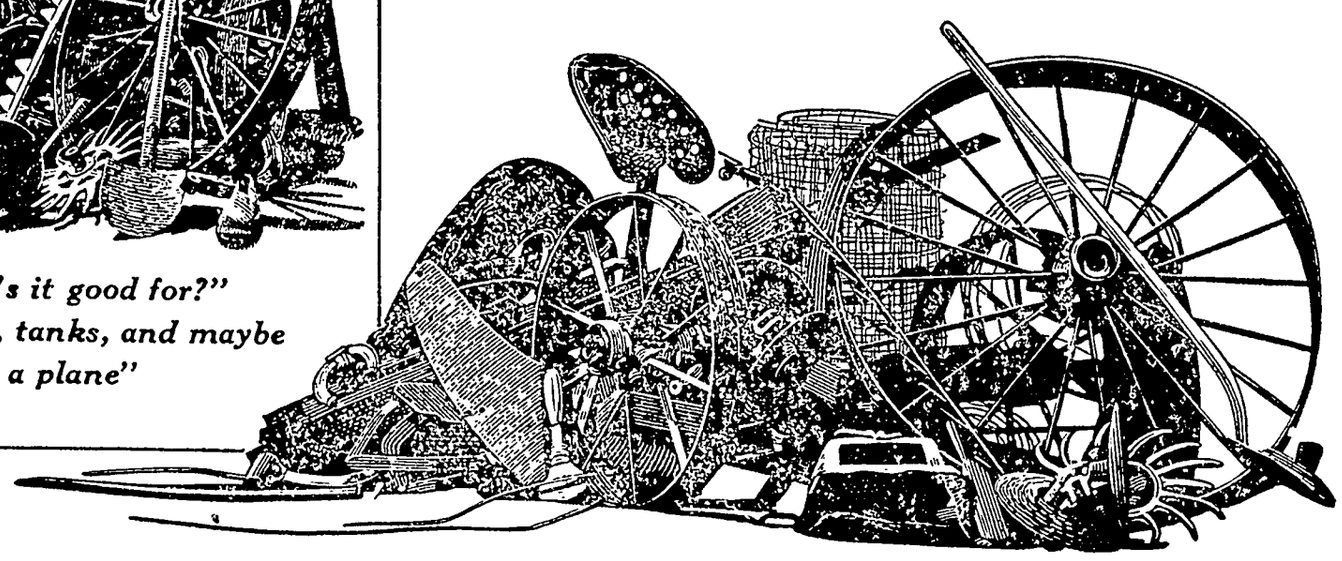
JUNK needed for War



In the barnyards and gullies of farms and in the basements and attics of homes is a lot of Junk which is doing no good where it is, but which is needed at once to help smash the Japs and Nazis.

Scrap iron and steel, for example.

Even in peacetime, scrap provided about 50% of the raw material for steel. It may be rusty, old "scrap" to you, but it is actually refined steel—with most impurities removed, and can be quickly melted with new metal in the form of pig iron to produce highest quality steel for our war machines.

The production of steel has gone up, up, UP, until today America is turning out as much steel as all the rest of the world combined. But unless at least 6,000,000 additional tons of scrap steel is uncovered promptly, the full rate of production cannot be attained or increased; the necessary tanks, guns and ships cannot be produced.

The rubber situation is also critical. In spite of the recent rubber drive, there is a continuing need for large quantities of scrap rubber. Also for other waste materials and metals like brass, copper, zinc, lead and tin.

The Junk which you collect is bought by industry from scrap dealers at established, government-controlled prices.

Will you help?

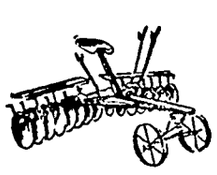
First—collect all of your waste material and pile it up.

Then—sell it to a Junk dealer, give it to a charity, take it yourself to the nearest collection point, or get in touch with your Local Salvage Committee.

If you live on a farm, consult your County War Board or your farm implement dealer.

Throw YOUR scrap into the fight!

JUNK MAKES FIGHTING WEAPONS



One old disc will provide scrap steel needed for 210 semi-automatic light carbines.

One old plow will help make one hundred 75-mm. armor-piercing projectiles.

One useless old tire provides as much rubber as is used in 12 gas masks.

One old shovel will help make 4 hand grenades.

MATERIALS NEEDED

Scrap iron and steel.

Other metals of all kinds.

Old rubber.

Rags, Manila rope, burlap bags.

Waste Cooking Fats—When you get a pound or more, strain into a large tin can and sell to your meat dealer.

NEEDED ONLY IN CERTAIN LOCALITIES: Waste paper and tin cans—wanted only in certain areas, as announced locally. NOT NEEDED (at this time): Razor blades—glass.

Missing

GOODELL YOUTH REPORTED MISSING IN ACTION

Mr. and Mrs Harve Christenson last week received word from the war department and the Red Cross that their son Stanley, age 22, is missing in action

Stanley was graduated from the Goodell high school in 1937 Two years ago he enlisted in the army air corps and received his training in California He was in service in the Phillipines and the message stated he had been missing since the fore part of May, when the enemy moved into the islands

Mr Christenson served in World War I At present he is one of the foremen of the Merrimac Construction company now working at the defense plant at Baraboo, Wis

Stanley has four sisters, Mrs Rudy Malek and Phyllis, both of Chicago, Mrs. Percy Brown of Belmond, and Iris, who is in nurses' training in the Mercy hospital at Mason City

What You Buy With

WAR BONDS

The power of the greatest Navy in the world, our own two-ocean fleet, rests in large measure on its backbone—the Battleships of the Line. They displace approximately 35,000 tons and cost up to $75,000,000. We have something like a score of these huge ships in the Atlantic and Pacific.

Eight huge battleships are under construction and more are contemplated. To finance these modern goliaths of the sea it is necessary for every American everywhere to buy more and more War Bonds. We can do it if everybody does his share Invest at least ten percent of your income every pay day to help your county go over its Bond Quota.

DUCK HUNTERS HAVE 70-DAY OPEN SEASON THIS YEAR IN IOWA

Federal regulations give Iowa duck hunters a 70-day shooting season instead of 60 days, as in 1941, and they may hunt from sunrise to sunset daily instead of to 4 00 P M as last year. Open seson will begin at sunrise October 15th and close at sunset December 23.

Daily bag limit and possession limit for ducks will be the same as last year. The liberalized season, of course, has met with a favorable response by Iowa duck hunters. However, many are dissapointed that the season does not open in the morning 30 minutes earlier. Prior to setting the season, the U. S Fish and Wildlife Service asked the State Conservation Commission for recommendations regarding the 1942 season Important recommendations were as follows.

That the season be from October 1 to December 15, both days inclusive; that shooting start each open day 30 minutes before sunrise and close at sundown; that a daily bag limit of two geese of any species be allowed; that the season on Wilson snipe be closed; that a program to help control the large coot population be put into effect.

State regulations will be adopted at the next Commission meeting.

ABBOTT AND COSTELLO IN LAUGH RIOT AT AVERY

They Are Spy Chasers In Musical "Rio Rita" Starting Sunday

Combining mirth, music and romance, "Rio Rita" opens at the Avery Theatre at Garner for three days starting Sunday with Bud Abbott and Lou Costello cavorting into the twelfth year of their amazing partnership as comedians

Kathryn Grayson and John Carroll offer romance and melody as a background for the antics of the comedians. Miss Grayson in a duet with Carroll sings "The Ranger's Song" and "Long Before You Came Along." Carroll sings the theme son, "Rio Rita' and Miss Grayson solos with "The Shadow Song."

The comedians first appear as stowaways in the rear deck compartment of Carroll's roadster as he arrives in a fiesta town in search of his boyhood sweetheart, Rio Rita The stowaways discover a basket of what they believe to be apples The round red objects are radios destined for the spies, and Abbott and Costello are immediately marked for whatever fate spies mete out to their victims

Their numerous escapes provide the comedy which kept the audience in a constant uproar through the showing.

Starts at the Avery this Sunday and continues through Monday and Tuesday.

LIVE-TRAPPING BEAVER COMMENCED AUGUST 1

Beaver, Mother Nature's Outsanding Engineers, Are Building Many New Dams In Northwest Iowa's Streams And Rivers

Since 1931 Beaver have increased in many northwest Iowa localities to the point of over-population and resultant crop damage. In streams where beaver have reached the saturation point and the normal food supply of cottonwood and willows has been exhausted, beaver have resorted to the cornfields to obtain sufficient food. Crop damage in most instances has not been sufficient to require removal of these valuable fur-bearers. However, in some cases it has been found necessary to control them. The control measure adopted as a policy by the State Conservation Commission is to live-trap the animals and move them into communities where environment is suitable. In almost every instance where the animals were restocked, they have established themselves permanently and have provided a great deal of local interest. Many of the dams the animals have built to provide sufficient water for their needs in the small streams also act as stock water reservoirs and are greatly appreciated by the farmer on whose land the beaver have decided to stay. In 1941 almost two hundred beaver were stocked in various sections of the state. The 1942 program, which began the first of August, contemplates an equal number of removals.

Six Million Farmers Throughout U. S. Producing World's Largest Food Crop

War Material Vital, but Soldiers and Workers Must Get Nourishing Food

Uncle Sam's farm—the whole United States—will produce this year the biggest food crop in the world's history! Harvesting of this planned production for the war effort has begun and the immensity of it all is an all-time tribute to the American farmer.

Off Uncle Sam's farm assembly line every minute of every day throughout 1942 are coming something like 108,000 quarts of milk, 45,000 pounds of potatoes, 73,000 pounds of beef, veal, pork and lard. Think of it! EVERY MINUTE.

If you saw the U. S. navy riding majestically in a sea of milk, chances are you'd call it a nightmare. But could be! Our farmers this year are scheduled to produce 57 billion quarts of milk—more than enough to float not only our navy but every battleship, aircraft carrier, cruiser, destroyer and submarine owned by the United States, Britain, Russia and all the other United Nations combined.

If you are good at mental pictures, maybe you can visualize 50 billion eggs. That's enough eggs to make a line reaching seven times from the earth to the moon.

Or 22½ billion pounds of meat—enough to pave seven four-lane highways an inch thick from New York to San Francisco—seven of them.

Or 91 million acres of corn—an area one-fifth larger than Italy and Sicily combined.

But why all this production of food and fiber? It isn't a part of our victory plan to drown the Nazis in milk or to bombard the Japs with eggs and potatoes.

Farmers Build Planes and Ships.

Well, food and fiber are not merely so many bags of wheat and so many bales of cotton. They are Flying Fortresses and big battleships, like the Washington and the North Carolina; and aircraft carriers, like the Wasp; and General Grant tanks; and workers in the factories and brave men at the front. Those are the crops our farmers are harvesting this year in 3,022 counties of the United States.

Take that swift-winging army Aeronca plane up there. In its wings, tail and fuselage are 650 square feet of cotton linen.

Yes, Uncle Sam's farmers are turning out war crops this year. Corn and wheat, for example. Most of it goes for feed and food, but some is used in making ethyl alcohol which in turn is employed in making explosives, synthetic rubber and other products.

Peanuts and soybeans are used to make oil which replaces other oils employed in cooking, and releases them for use in nitro-glycerine explosives. Oil from soybeans and flaxseed is used in the paint and varnish covering our ships and planes. Flax is a source of linen for parachute harnesses and rigging.

Wool from our sheep makes uniforms for soldiers and clothes for civilians. Aviators' jackets, pants, helmets, and boots are lined with shearling sheep skins. In fact, the average soldier uses 100 pounds of wool a year, against an average of 2½ pounds for civilians.

But vital as are these materials for our weapons of war, they are much less important than the food which nourishes our workers and sustains our fighters. Food is one essential without which no man can fight or work.

Bataan Proved It.

Look at Bataan to see how true that is. Look at Bataan to see the importance of food. According to reports, mule meat and rice were all our forces had to eat from early February until the time of ultimate surrender. We just couldn't get through to them with enough pork and beef to do them any good. And what happened? Our last counter-attack failed, not because of bullets or bombs, but because of sheer exhaustion. A shortage of food and sleep had drained out almost the last dregs of vitality. Bataan fell only after its defenders no longer had the physical strength to stand.

That time, food worked for the enemy. Given the shipping, six million American farmers are determined that from now on food shall work for us. They know that today a tractor used in production of food is just as important as a tank on the battlefield. They know that what they do on their farms is important.

The number of planes, tanks and guns turned out this year will be determined largely by the kind and amount of food our workers eat. The newest type planes need high octane gas no more than our war workers need highly nutritious foods.

Milk and Shipping

In 1942 we are building 8 million tons of shipping—a tremendous amount. But the farmers of Minnesota and Iowa alone will produce more than 8 million tons of milk in 1942.

Better Food Means More Guns.

Good food, in fact, can be translated more or less directly into guns. For example, the British minister of labor has said to our agricultural officials: "Give us the meat, eggs, and cheese, and we'll increase production 15 to 20 per cent."

Again, an appalling loss of production is suffered annually through sickness of workers. In 1941 more than 20 times as many man-days were lost by sickness as by strikes. The most common sickness is the ordinary cold, and the best preventive for it is a good diet.

So, it's the job of our farmers to keep our men fit—as fit as our machines. It's their job to provide the vitamin A which helps fliers see at night; the vitamin B which helps curb sea-sickness, nervousness and digestive troubles; the vitamin C which wards off scurvy, bad teeth, irritability, listlessness and plagues which in the World war took a bigger toll of lives than bombs, bullets, shells and gas combined.

Yes, vitamins and good food are war weapons. But to get them—and especially to get the right amounts of the right things—is a colossal task.

That is why goals are just as necessary for agriculture as they are for plane or tank manufacturers. We want a specific number of fortresses, or medium bombers, or pursuit ships, or training planes.

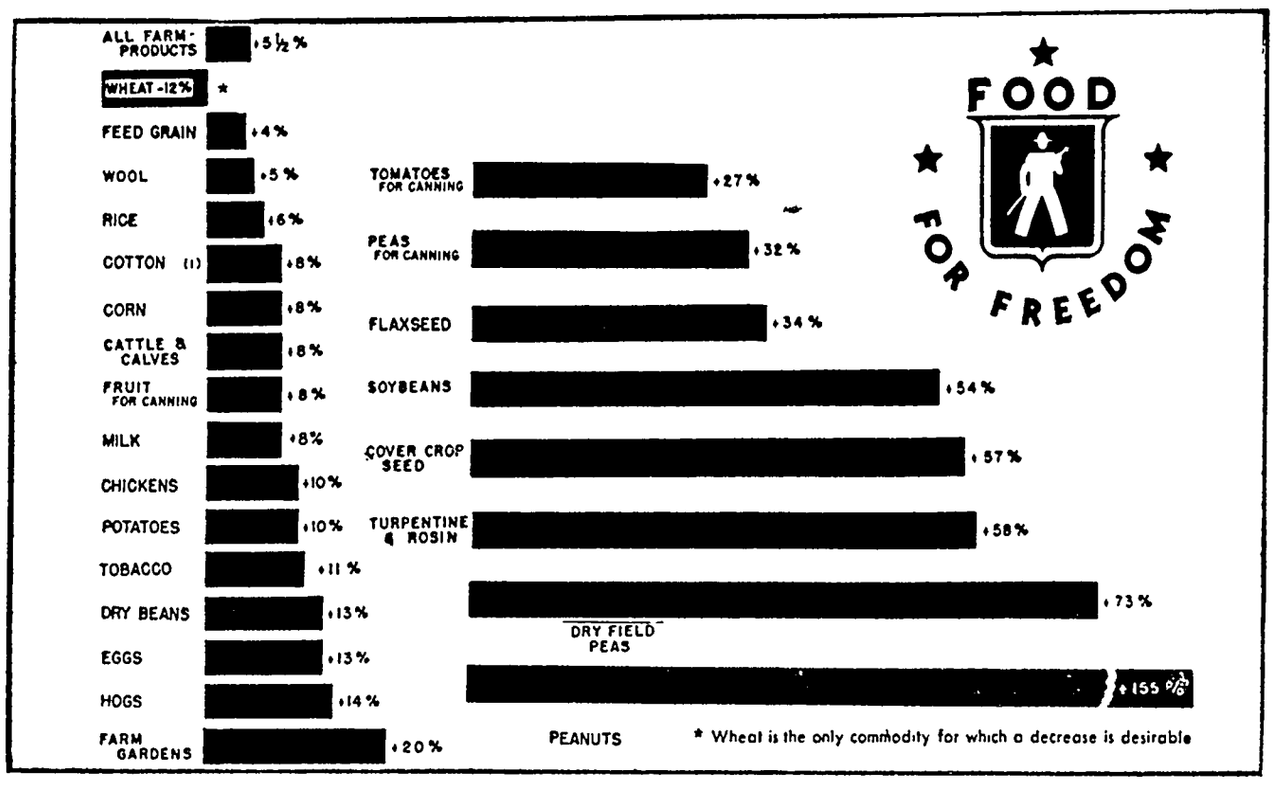
So, too, in agriculture, we want a specific amount of pork, of beef, of milk, and all other farm products. Fortunately, our farmers are ready for the job. Eight months before Pearl Harbor they began turning out war products requested by the British for lend-lease shipment. Three months before Pearl Harbor, farmers were fully organized on a war-time basis.

Farm Production Is Planned Production.

On April 3, 1941, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard called for a big expansion in the products which the British had just made known they would need under lend-lease: evaporated and dry skim milk, cheese, eggs and pork And our farmers set out to see that neither our own folks nor the British would run short.

During the summer of 1941—still several months before Pearl Harbor—the department of agriculture went to work on a plan to get war production goals for all farm products. The production goal idea had been used for years by Triple-A on basic crops, but it was a new departure to apply it to all farm products It meant estimating our own needs, those of our Allies, the allowances necessary for food reserves, and finally the ability of farmers to produce It meant breaking down the national goals into state, county, and finally into individual farm goals It meant the contacting of practically every producer by a Triple-A farmer committeeman.

Size of this undertaking is almost beyond comprehension. The six million farm plants in the United States are more than twice as many as all the other business establishments in the country — factories, mines, oil stations, country stores, city retail shops. To get six million farmers co-operating in war production is by far the biggest job of subcontracting of the entire war. But it has been done—and the United States is the only nation that has gone into this war with plenty of food ammunition.



American farm goals for 1942, showing increase over 1941 production.

Triple-A Committeemen Enlist Farm Cooperation

Even while Japanese bombs were exploding on Hickam Field and spreading ruin over Hawaii and the Philippines, Triple-A committeemen were covering the country enlisting farmer co-operation—voluntary co-operation.

There were shortages to contend with—shortages of labor, shortages of machinery and equipment, shortages of burlap, baling wire, and dozens of other supplies. The state and county war boards have worked with every available agency to keep shortages from holding production.

Most of the goals were set higher than production had ever been before. Only a few were lower. Wheat, for example, was down 12 per cent from the 1941 level because there was already a two-year supply of wheat on hand. We couldn't afford to use land, labor, and materials for a crop that isn't needed, any more than we can now afford to build pleasure cars and luxury gadgets.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

WAGE STABILIZATION

You can write it down that the President will use his executive powers to keep wages in check rather than ask congress for any new legislation dealing with wage stabilization.

There are two reasons for this:

(1) Wage control legislation would be sure to stir up another bitter congressional controversy, as bad or worse than the brawl over farm parity prices. It might even require months to get both houses to agree on a bill satisfactory to the administration.

(2) The President believes that the policy proposed by the War Labor board's recent steel wage decision—limiting wage increases to 15 per cent over scales prevailing on January 1, 1941—plus additional rationing of consumer goods, will be sufficient for the time being to brake inflation threats to the working man's pocketbook.

Inside fact is that the War Labor board is contemplating only one further step in its wage stabilization program, and this is not so much an anti-inflation move as a concession to certain labor groups and a contribution to the prosecution of the war.

Wages in certain industries, including shipyards and tool-and-die plants, are above the 15 per cent increase ceiling set by the board. This raises the question—shall wages in these industries be brought down to conform with scales in other war plants which pay below the ceiling?

The answer is—there will be no reduction in wages. The President has decided definitely against this.

Instead, to prevent piracy and migration of workers away from vital war plants paying below the 15 per cent ceiling, the War Labor board is planning to amend its wage policy to permit the payment of "premium wages" (above the ceiling) in such plants.

Note: One industry sure to be allowed "premium wages" is aircraft, which has lost many workmen, by piracy and migration, to higher-paying shipyards

NEW ARMY FOOD

To save shipping space, the army is sending food overseas in dehydrated form. Experiments in taste-preserving dehydration have been carried out and tested on a group of army cooks.

At the Chicago depot of the quartermaster corps, the cooks sat down to a meal of dehydrated foods, principal item on the menu being scrambled eggs made by adding water to a yellow powder.

It has been discovered that one pound of dehydrated turnips will serve 28 persons, after water is added.

BEHIND THE AIR CORPS

This war will be won or lost in the air. But despite that fact the air forces will win or lose the war on the ground. In other words, the success of operations in the air depends on ground crews, who outnumber air crews ten to one.

Featured in the headlines and the newsreels every day are the pilots and machine gunners. But the unsung heroes of this war are the ground crews.

Real fact is that it takes only one man to pilot a fighter plane, but it takes eight or ten maintenance men to keep it in shape to fight. A four-engine bomber requires a flying crew of nine, and a maintenance crew of 25 Often a ground crew will be assigned exclusively to one plane, and will become attached to it with the affection a stable boy has for a race horse.

Chief of Staff General Marshall has revealed that the over-all strength of the air force is expected to reach 1,000,000 men by the end of 1942, and 2,000,000 by the end of next year If the war is won in 1943, it will be won by these 2,000,000 men. But 1,800,000 of them will be "fighting" on the ground.

They are the overall-boys, the grease monkeys, the men who spend all day overhauling an engine which has been flying all night, the men who know what heat is like in the deserts of Africa, because they don't get up in the air for relief, as do the pilots

OVERSEAS CANDY

The quartermaster corps is in the market to buy 2,500,000 pounds of hard candy peppermint, orange, lemon, lime, anise, and cherry.

The hard candy is being bought for overseas troops, as part of the regular field ration Official explanation is that candy is an excellent source of energy

AFRICAN CAMEL CREWS

They are the mechanics, the armorers, the metal workers, the welders—yes, and they are the pick and shovel men who build the landing fields in foreign posts, and repair them after enemy bombers have passed over They are also the cooks and the mess boys, the pay masters, the doctors, and the truck drivers In short, they are the men who perform every duty that keeps a plane in the air.

They do everything except replace the African camels.

This Is the Army!

(A contribution by the all-soldier cast of Irving Berlin's great hit show at the Broadway theater—for the army emergency fund.)

When one of the boys gave his regimental pin to a girl she demanded to know what the motto "Volens et Potens" meant . . . He explained: "Willing and able" . . . She returned it pronto . . . The 33rd Armored Regiment at Camp Polk call their tanks "Hitler Hearses" . . . The Yank of 1942 isn't called a doughboy . . . He's "Red Legs" . . . There's a 50-Year-Old Club at Camp Roberts. The men in it are over 50—all volunteers since Pearl Harbor—going in as buck privates, although many were former officers and non-coms.

Soldiers purchase lots of fingernail polish—but not for their nails . . . It keeps their buttons shiny and is the perfect remedy for chigger bites . . . At the Indio Desert training center the lads are often rationed only one gallon of water daily for all purposes, including drinking, washing, bathing. To condition them for the real thing.

Contrary to popular legend, it is against Army regulations to give a soldier K. P. duty as punishment . . . At Camp Barkeley the chap who instructs in the art of jiu-jitsu is Harry Morimoto, an American-Japanese . . . In the Army nurses are known as Snow-whites . . . Soldiers insist that uniforms come in only two sizes—too large and too small.

Personal checks cannot be cashed in the Army without the company commander's okay . . . When Paul, the son of the late financier, Andrew Mellon, went to the c. o. at Fort Riley to get approval for a $100 check, the c. o. said: "This is a pretty big check for a private to write. How do I know it is good?" . . "It oughta be," said Paul, "I own the controlling interest in the bank."

The Indians have supplied more volunteers to the Army than any other racial group . . . When they first learned of selective service they came to register with their own weapons . . . The average soldier drinks four cups of coffee a day . . . G. W., who fathers the "Our Fighting Men" dep't in Collier's, calls the U. S. Armored Division the Anzers . . . Because they are the answers to Hitler's Panzers . . . A jeep is also a nickname for a rookie.

Field Marshal Herman Goering's kin is Werner George Goering of the U. S. Army . . . Can't wait, he says, to drop a bomb on his relative . . . In our Army a private can prefer charges against a colonel, and if a corporal sees a captain conducting himself in a manner "unbecoming an officer and gentleman" he can have him put in the guardhouse . . . The name for woolen underwear is "superman drawers."

When a private at Randolph Field comes to a non-com with a complaint he is handed a mourning-bordered card which says. "Your trials and tribulations have broken my heart. They are unique. I have never heard of anything like them before. As proof of my deepest sympathy, I give you this card which entitles you to one hour of condolence."

Fort Riley's newspaper, The Guidon, has an advice-to-the-lovelorn column. "Betty Lou" signs it. Betty Lou is the nom de plume for a pair of privates . . . For every fighting man in the Army there must be five other soldiers to feed, clothe and supply him . . . Unless a rookie is smart, he can be trapped into volunteering for unpopular chores. The big gag in the Army concerns the sgt. who approached a bunch of men at play and asked them if any were good at shorthand

A dozen newcomers, angling for soft snaps, eagerly stepped forward "Fine," said the sarge, "report to the kitchen we're short of K.P.s!" . The phone number of the Negro Enlisted Men's Service Club at Camp Bowie is, oddly enough—711.

Army men always titter derisively when in the movies a sentry says: "Halt! Who Goes There?" . . . The correct challenge is: "Halt! Who's There?" . A letter from a girl is called "a sugar report" . . . There's no favoritism in the Army

Even chaplains must undergo five weeks of training at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

Soldiers do not rate preferred treatment over civilians. They cannot buy shaving cream or toothpaste at their post exchanges without turning in a used tube . At Camp Davis the mimeographed directive given to men in the 96th Coast Artillery (for handling of the wire cable winch on army trucks) warns that the apparatus is "as temperamental as Greta Garbo, and treating it carelessly is like asking Lana Turner to scrub the kitchen floor" . . . The men treat it with great affection and care.

ALL-BRAN FUDGE SQUARES—BEST YOU EVER TASTED!

Every mother in the land will want to bake these scrumptious cookies. Children will demolish a plate of them in a wink. Grown-ups rave about their "different" taste and new crunchy texture. They're made, of course, with the famous cereal, Kellogg's All-Bran.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN FUDGE SQUARES

3 squares unsweetened chocolate	1 cup sugar
⅓ cup butter	⅔ cup flour
2 eggs	½ cup All-Bran
	½ cup nutmeats
	1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Melt chocolate over hot water and add butter. Beat eggs well, add sugar and beat until light and fluffy Add melted chocolate and butter Stir in flour, All-Bran, chopped nutmeats and flavoring. Pour into greased pan, making a layer about one-third inch thick. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 20 minutes. Yield Sixteen 2-inch squares (8 x 8 inch pan).

PRIVATE PURKEY IN LOVE AND WAR

(Harriet Joins Up With the WAACS)

Dear Oscar—

Don't look now, but I'm in the WAAC. If you're in an army why not me? I got to thinking of you doing your bit as a soldier and I thought I would feel better about it if I was following your example. Well, anyhow, here I am out in Des Moines and already I appreciate all those complaints you used to make about your feet. Right now the girls have made the army reverse the usual routine and give us a light noon meal and the heavy one at night. At noon we just get salads and drug store quickies but I wasn't here three days before I saw it was all a mistake as the work gives me an appetite like a horse. And I don't mean an ordinary horse.

* * *

Mess Sergeant Harry Decker says we will all be shouting for big meals at noon in no time and I admit he is right. I guess the girls all figured that they must take care of their figures but this was so much wasted worry. This army routine will take care of their shapes.

The army has figured it out that a girl soldier needs 2,700 calories a day to a man's 4,000. But it must have reached that conclusion after watching you eat. It will take 4,000 a day to keep me at normal weight. For years I have been nipping at lettuce leaves to keep my weight down but in the WAAC I can see my worries are over. They can pass me mashed potatoes from now on.

A man is boss of us. He is Colonel Faith, which is a pretty name for a colonel and he will have to live up to it if he is to get any results from this army He is reputed to be a strict disciplinarian but the news should never have leaked out. You know how a woman reacts when she hears that any man who is to tell her what to do is a disciplinarian. He has two strikes on him from the start.

Quite a few army men are out here in general charge. They try to be stern but they look pretty uncomfortable I can tell they would rather be anyplace but here. Susie Graham says they must have been detailed here as punishment for some army crime. The first big laugh came when army men showed us how to make beds and insisted that we make them their way and no back talk. They made them pretty good at that but we made 'em all over again as soon as they finished. We have steel lockers at the foot of our beds and you are my hang-up boy, of course, dear Oscar. One of the girls asked me if it was a snapshot of Abbott or Costello. It was just because the picture was taken in too bright a light.

Well, dear, I hope all is well with you. How I wish we were in the same army! Your Yankee Doodle girl never stops thinking of her Yankee Doodle boy. I love you.

Harriet.

Lips that look a little human,
Cheeks that are authentic, too,
Help some Yankee bomber's crewmen
Blast a Jap out of the blue.

Noses that are sometimes shiny—
Faces that are real McCoy—
Aid in trimming Moe and Heinie
And that Hirohito boy.

Hands that are as God intended—
Nails as nature made all ten—
Help to keep explosives blended
As a help to fighting men.

Gals with all mascara missing,
And with faces as designed,
Love a foe to angry hissing
As his legions fall behind.

Just a little touch of powder,
Not so many facial creams;
Tend to make a hopeless chowder
Of the Axis hopes and dreams.

Smart White Accents Bring Costumes Up to the Minute

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALL signs point to a continuance through fall and winter of the high fashion rank accorded during the past months to pretty, flattering and "feminizing" white accents on dark costumes. The vogue for dark dresses and suits highlighted with lovely, lacy neckwear and various other frilly, immaculately white touches is particularly apropos at the immediate moment in that it so beautifully solves that tantalizing problem of smart and timely dressing through the "betwixt and between" season which leads from summer into fall.

For the touch that is warranted to lend a new lease of life to summer-on-the-wane clothes that you are loath to give up as long as warmish days persist, regardless of what the calendar has to say about it, there is nothing that surpasses the refreshing prettiness of dashes and splashes of billowy, frilly white. That is why so many fashion-wise women have taken to collecting a "neckwear wardrobe," just as the college girl once collected sweaters.

What with suits registering as fashion "firsts" on the fall style program, one of the most-to-be-desired items you can put in your collection of lacy fineries is a dainty dickey of exquisitely embroidered organdy like that pictured above to the right in the illustration. Note, particularly, the cunning self fabric bow tie fastening, a new note in last-word chic. A dickey of this patrician type is a choice possession that will prove to be "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." Incidentally, we might add that reports from neckwear departments say there are more calls for dickeys to wear with suits this season than ever before One of the clever diversions milliners are indulging in is the trimming of hats with dramatic lingerie touches, ruches and frills especially. You can see by the picture how effective the result is.

The jabot of hand-crocheted lace pictured at the top left is another item that should be included in every neckwear collection. It will prove a standby when an extra touch of allure is needed. You will be wearing it with your suit, and it will prove definitely "right" with your one-piece frocks and your blouses.

As inspiring and as spirit lifting as a good repartee is the bright and piquant set of scalloped organdy collar and cuffs illustrated below to the left in the group. A handsome set like this is a miracle worker when it comes to imparting a dressy afternoon look to a simple daytime frock.

To set off a pretty face and to add glory to a dark dress, the adorable collar at the lower right in the above illustration possesses a fetching way all its own. Spanking white and crisp and immaculate, it will add a lilt to your walk and a gayness to your spirit. The handsome Venise lace that edges it helps to make the vote unanimous that it is one of the prettiest collars brought out this season.

Speaking of lacy accents, here's news for fall that really is news. It's in regard to the new velveteen suits now being shown in smart autumn fashion previews. The all lace blouse of Alencon or Chantilly to wear with it is cast for an important role. Froths of lace in pretty confusion cascade down the front of some of the blouses. They will add grace and daintiness to fall and winter suits for cocktail and on-into-the-evening affairs. Sports blouses will be good, also, and neat, trim and spic-and-span looking. Colorful wool lace blouses are also scheduled for fashion prestige.

Fall Coat

There is a movement among women, which is gaining momentum with each passing day, toward buying apparel of enduring quality and the genteel smartness which reflects discriminating selection. The simple good taste characteristic of the better fall coats is exemplified in the model pictured above. The Forstmann woolen of which it is tailored has quality in look and in velvety texture. For the rest, the appeal of this coat centers in the gentle modulation of its superb lines and in the color, for color is scheduled to play a most important role in coats and suits this fall.

Show Wash Cottons For School, Dates

The vogue for tubable cottons goes on at a rapid pace. Back-to-school wardrobes, especially, include cottons, many which look like wool being made up into suits and even coats.

Jacket suit-dresses of richly colorful plaid ginghams are high style for town wear, and black linen or shantung costumes are holding good and will continue to do so until really fall days set in.

Young folks who eagerly don "after duty" dresses, when uniforms are laid aside after hours of war work, take keen delight in the crisp organdies, dotted swisses and smart piques that make up so pleasingly into dance frocks.

The honors for loveliness go especially to the new crinkled seersuckers that are beautifully flower-printed and are so sheer and tissue-like they are exquisitely dainty and feminine. These are for the most part made with wide swirling skirts, or are ruffled in triple tiers for the skirt.

Velvet Trim

Very new and attractive are the new black wool coats that are collared and cuffed with velvet. Some of them are tied with a sash of velvet to one side. Other new models have velvet yokes or plastrons.

Felt Flowers

The newest felt hats are sporting cunning felt flower trims. The flowers are cutouts in multi-colors These are attached to the off-the-face brim so that the petals are left free and away from the background.

Flying Boats at Midway

By Frank D. Morris

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

This is the story of the first round in the Battle of Midway. It is the moonlight torpedo attack of the PBY flying boats, the "ice wagons," the "winged whales" of the navy—first feat of its kind in the history of any navy.

The raid started on the night of June 3, but for several days before that, the PBYs had spent long hours over the Pacific west of Midway, looking for enemy ships. They didn't fly in formation.

Prelude to Victory.

A Minneapolis boy, Lieut. Forrest Roby, made the first plane contact—a Jap medium twin-engine bomber. They opened up with their guns on each other, but the enemy, a greyhound in comparison to the PBY, scooted out of range.

The morning of the third, another PBY pilot made history by sighting the first enemy surface ships. Ensign Jack Reid, who hails from Paducah, Ky., nosed his ship out of a cloud and looked down on a beautiful target—half a dozen Jap transports escorted by as many heavy cruisers. It was a bombardier's dream picture.

Ensign Reid circled around, had a good look at the toy ships below, then reported by radio to the base at Midway what he had seen Cruising westward a half-hour later he spotted another task force 50 miles away—four heavy cruisers protecting a train of large merchant ships, transports, tankers and a seaplane tender.

Ready for Attack.

Four PBYs were selected for the torpedo attack, and Red Richards, a slim wiry lieutenant ten years out of Annapolis, was designated flight leader.

It was dark when Red and the other three pilots lifted their huge boats off the water at Midway base. After 700 miles, Richard sighted his quarry—a dozen dark objects in perfect formation off the port bow.

The Catalina glided quietly down toward a large transport without being detected. The big plane was perilously close to the water when a pulled lever launched a torpedo. Immediately the Catalina's nose was pulled up in a steep climb over her victim. Seconds later there was an explosion, and one of the waist gunners reported clouds of black smoke rising from the transport.

By this time the sky was ablaze with anti-aircraft fire from transports, cruisers and destroyers. The attackers had been discovered.

More Trouble for Enemy.

Meanwhile, two of the other three Catalina pilots had fanned out and picked their own targets. One pilot, Ensign Dagwood Propst, closed in on a troop transport. He aimed his slanting Catalina directly at the ship's port beam.

Then, nimble as a boxer, he feinted the plane to the right and pulled off in a tight turn to the left. An instant later he dropped the "tin fish." The co-pilot, looking back, yelled: "Just saw two flashes—think we got him!" Confirmation followed from the aft station: "Big explosion—and it wasn't anti-aircraft!"

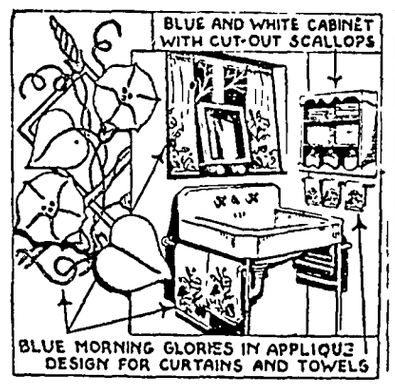
Doug Davis, junior grade lieutenant from Webster Groves, Mo., saw in the half-light of the moon what appeared to be a carrier, and down he went. Gliding over the screen of destroyers, he came close enough to see it was a large transport. Her decks were crowded. As he approached on the transport's beam, the ship swung to starboard in a frantic effort to escape. She couldn't turn fast enough, however, and when the Catalina was within hailing distance of the water, a torpedo was launched directly at the transport's stern.

Machine-gun and anti-aircraft fire from the transport raked the big flying boat as it pulled away in a sharp upcurve. Foster, the bow gunner, had his goggles shot off his face by a blast of machine-gun bullets through the bow turret, but not one nicked him. A red glow rose from the stern of the transport. That was enough. Doug decided to call it a night.

Race With Invaders.

On his return trip he heard by radio about the Midway attack, and that more enemy bombers were expected there. At first, he tried to race this invasion force back to Midway, but his gas was running low, so he turned southeast and legged it for an emergency base. For half an hour he flew on instruments through rain squalls. With just 15 gallons of fuel left, he brought the Catalina in for a rough landing.

That accounted for three of the moonlight raiders



WHATEVER the limitations that priorities may place on new bathroom fixtures there is no limit to the gay color and good cheer that you may have with brightly painted cupboards and towels decorated with pieces from your scrap bag. In this bathroom a morning glory applique design is used for towels of two sizes and for curtains.

The handy towel and lotion cupboard is painted white outside and morning glory blue inside. The sides, top and bottom are screwed together at the corners. Use half-inch metal angles as shelf supports, or make grooves for a neater job. As shown in the sketch, the cupboard is trimmed and made rigid with plywood scallops secured with half-inch screws.

Household Hints

To protect garden shoes keep them well greased or oiled with neat's-foot oil or cod or castor oil, tallow or wool grease. Let dry in a warm place.

Food bought in season will help to keep that part of the budget within reason.

* * *

Sweet corn, green string beans, green peas, pumpkins, squash, celery and greens are best vegetables for home drying. Apples and berries are adapted to drying in the home among fruits.

* * *

Onion juice should be added after a mixture is cooked rather than cooked with the mixture if the best flavor is desired.

* * *

Sheets and other linens should be ironed in different folds each week so the creases will not break through.

* * *

To keep bread in the best condition, store it when cool in a clean, well-aired, covered, ventilated container and keep in a cool, dry place.

Rancidity in lard can be prevented by keeping it away from air, light and warmth. Store in tin or crockery containers in a cool place.

* * *

That fish may be scaled much easier by first dipping them into boiling water for a minute.

* * *

Salt fish are quickest and best freshened by soaking in sour milk.

* * *

Each time bed sheets are changed the mattress should be turned end-for-end or upside down.

PROPOSED NEW STATE AT CLEAR LAKE

An option has been secured to purchase sixty acres of the McIntosh Woods east of Ventura for a state park The consideration is 30,000 dollars and the matter will be taken up at the next meeting of the legislature

Several years ago an attempt was made to secure this tract of beautiful land for a state park but the deal fell through and so the present site of the Clear Lake State Park was chosen and the site improved, such as it was

We have always contended that the McIntosh Woods should be procured for a state park It is a very beautiful timbered section adjoining the lake It is commonly known as Coe's Cove and is used extensively for picnics The southern tip of the area runs out into the lake as a sand bar

It will be a fine place for the public and is one of the few ideal park sites left around the lake

However, a number of fishermen, this writer included, have spent many enjoyable hours in the vicinity of the sand-bar where fly fishing has been excellent

We fisherman rather regret that our playground will be turned over to a park for that means it will be improved" Rushes will be cut out for a bathing beach, and a lot of the natural 'home-sites of fish destroyed It will end good fishing in that part of the lake.

We have talked with many fishmen since the news came out that our favorite stomping ground was to become a state park All felt rather down-hearted and sad about it all but everyone was a good enough sport to concede that where only a few people now enjoyed the natural beauty of the woods and the lake at this point, hundreds in the near future would have the good fortune to share the new proposed park

We fishermen will do all we can to help along the proposed park.

A NOVICE SHOWS 'EM HOW!

Some of the Klemme ladies are showing up the men and boys in the art of fishing Thursday evening Mrs W L Thada and Miss Anna Gibbs went to the river and caught a nice string of bullheads. And to top it off Miss Gibbs hooked and landed a nice big pickerel And it was Miss Gibbs' first trip to the river!

FARMERS WILL VOTE REPUBLICAN

If the first poll conducted by the Wallace's Farmer can be used as a guide Iowa farmers will vote republican at the fall election.

The results of the poll substantiate the conclusions of experienced political observers that the political trend among Iowa farmers is decidedly in favor of the Republican party These figures show a state of political mind among farmers very similar to that which existed in 1940 when Iowa for the first time turned thumbs down on Roosevelt Wallace's Farmer puts Hickenlooper safely ahead of Mr Kraschel as far as the farmers are concerned Likewise the farmers favor Wilson against Herring for the senatorship

The Wallace's Farmer poll is conducted to get the political drift among farm votes It claims that a Democratic candidate must have 56 percent of farmer votes to have any chance of winning This conclusion is based on the fact that in recent years the larger cities have split evenly as an average between the two parties The vote classed as the "town vote", made up of towns and smaller cities, is overwhelmingly Republican, running as high as 64 per cent. For this reason, Wallace's Farmer says, the Democrats must get that 56 per cent of the farm vote. As an example: In 1936 Kraschel got 56 per cent of the farm vote, but won by only 2,400.

Teacher: "Now, if I subtract 25 from 40, what's the difference?"

K. H S. Student "Yeah, that's what I say . . who cares?"

Mother "What are the young man's intentions?"

K. H S Senior. "Well, he's been keeping me pretty much in the dark."

OUR OWN "WILLIE WESTINGHOUSE," INVENTOR

Ira Overholt has stepped into a class by himself the past few days when he constructed a weed cutting machine from a washing machine gas motor, parts from a model T, windmill, mower sickle bar, threshing machine and wheels from a milking machine.

When all parts were fitted and put together the result was one of the slickest little mowing machines we have ever seen.

The motor was mounted on a frame and a three-foot sickle bar extends in front operated through pulleys, v-belt and a pitman. The machine is mounted on rubber-tired wheels off of a milking machine A handle guides the machine and it cuts weeds of all sizes and heighth "like nobody's buisness."

DR. DULMES NOW IN ARMY CAMP AT TACOMA, WASH.

Dulmes Family Residing at Olympia, Wash., Near The Camp

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Mrs. A. H. Dulmes mailed from Olympia, Washington, and is in part:

"We arrived here in Olympia, Washington, last Sunday afternoon. We took our time as Tom and Rita were with us and it was like having a vacation. We really enjoyed every day of it, through Idaho was the hottest, 104 degrees through the dessert

"We didn't get into Portland until 10 00 p. m on Saturday night, and hence stayed in a hotel as all cabins were taken. We really fooled along as we wanted to see everything we could and had dinner at an Inn, near one of the big falls and the boys got fresh salmon, they said it was very good, and me . . . oh, a big steak!

"After breakfast we started out, Tom and Rita going on highway No 995 and un on No. 99-N. We hated to say 'So-long' to them and go in opposite directions, but we are fortunate to be this close. Neither one of us or our cars had any trouble.

"We arrived here, in Olympia, on Sunday p m. Knowing no one, and not knowing just where to go, we laughed and rode alnog, out past Fort Lewis and to the edge of Tacoma Came back and stayed at a cabin near here. On Monday we went to the Chamber of Commerce and Doc was getting addresses of vacancies and the lady answered the phone and said 'Here is another just came in, they will be out in the morning.' So we came right out, and here we are. We moved in Tuesday morning. A captain and wife and 3 children lived here and they were moved, so we feel we were lucky as it is hard to find anything to live in, and some are living in almost anything.

"This is a house: living room, a vestibule, small dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and bath, furnished, electric stove (one side for wood or coal to heat the water so just now Abe has split the kindling and started a fire for bath), electric washer, Hoover and even a banjo clock that strikes . . . and you know how I would like that!

"Anyway its a home and quite new, and Dick has a yard to play in and a little 4-year old boy lives next door and they play together.

"Doc reported in at the Fort on Monday p m. and they told him just to report at 8 00 a m for a couple of mornings and have the rest of the day to get his papers, etc. checked in. So today he really was on duty but has not worked hard as yet. Right now he is temporarily Station Hospital Supply Officer until their unit is entirely filled They do not have all as yet.

"We live 14 miles from the Fort and it takes about one-half hour to drive out. We are up at 6:30 and Doc leaves not later than 7.30, then Dick and I have the day and Doc is back about 5 or 5:15.

"I had to make out a report and have my picture taken the same as Doc did, and given a number to carry That is for getting through the gates if I want to drive out and do my shopping at the post. Doc is driving now but he perhaps will find someone to drive with him and then they will take turns.

"There are lots of airplanes over us continuously so I think of Ray Jr. often.

"Have never seen an Iowa license since we left, isn't that odd?

"The trip out was beautiful and this is wonderful. We look out and see beautiful forrests, and we hope to see many sights as we go on trips.

"I hope to hear from each and everyone of you, Sincerely,

Vera, Doc and Dick.
